TRAGEDY'S NOTE IN BLAZER TRIAL; WHAT IS A SOUL?

Sister of Slain Girl Is a Witness.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Littleton, Colo., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—We must go back to the Bronte sisters in "Wuthering Heights" and "Jane Eyre" for an adequate conception of the background of the trial of Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, which is being rushed to its conclusion in the Arapahoe County court.

In a lonely little house, on the outskirts of Denver, near Brownplains and the tumbling blue ranges, the doctor killed his idiot daughter, Hazel. For thirty-four years he had cared for this "thing," as the defense counsel referred to Hazel today. His mind is supposed to have given way temporarily under the strain and the terror. At present he looks husky and fit, with clear western eye and weathered complexion.

Head Bowed; Indifferent.

Neighbors approaching this house would hear strange sounds coming from the secret bedroom upstairs and would be frightened. People were sorry for the doctor; they are sorry for him today. Dr. Blazer, it seems, thought he might die suddenly, and he wanted to take Hazel with him. He did not appear today as a man near the [illegible].

He sat in court with bowed head, indifferent. "They can do nothing to [illegible]," he says.

He has touched the robe of that dark brother, Death, and the Greek proverb says that one who has done this can fear nothing else.

Sympathy for the Doctor.

As the picture of Hazel was painted today in the court room, sympathy seemed to grow for the doctor. It was a tearful day; jurors cried; spectators wept. Newspaper men said they had never seen such a damp court room scene.

Here was Hazel: A woman of 34, with shaggy hair and eyes that had a gray, glazed look. The breasts of a woman, height about 4 feet, weight 90 pounds.

She gave one sign of human intelligence—a sort of smile when her father or mother was near; that is all. She held dolls in her arms and loved to hear the crackle of paper. If the quilts fell off at night she could not pull them up. When she needed attention she made queer sounds, like an animal in its dreams.

Hazel made a wreck of her family. Her father went poor in trying to cure her. Operations, glandular experiments, all of no avail.

So he killed her, the state says, and he does not deny it.

Now for the Defense.

The trial seems mostly defense. The state hardly took the trouble to prove the corpus delicti. The defense may close Monday. Several tough problems have been given to American juries this year. There was the evolution case in Tennessee. Men who looked about like this row of twelve were called on to settle the question of Divine creation.

Now, part of the defense here, the unwritten part, is that Hazel had a soul. For an easier solution, they are trying to say the doctor was insane. John J. Jones, a pharmacist, told of several peculiar things tonight. He had heard the doctor say "I can't sleep." He had seen him attempt to run and stop and make a sort of hop. Such actions may be observed in that merry-go-round at Chester, Ill., where the insane are housed.

"My old head bothers me," the doctor said, according to Jones.

Jones, it seems, was not afraid to visit the haunted rooms of the Blazer house; he actually slept there. He described the animal-like sound that came from Hazel's bed, and how the good doctor would have to get up at night to attend his child.

Real Problem for Jurors.

But the matter of the doctor's sanity is a minor thing. What really troubles the jurors, if they reflect the common adult, religious minded attitude of the community, is the sacredness or importance of that life the doctor snuffed out, as he would step on a [illegible]

Here the jury enters a real problem. It depends upon how the state presents this issue, and the particular [illegible] appealed to. Long ago, in [illegible] they used to kill the unfit. The [illegible] of the inquisition did not believe in the sacredness of the heretic [illegible] soul.

Scientists, psychologists, are debating this. Evolution buzzed on street corners in Dayton. In Littleton they are talking about the soul.

What is it? No one has ever seen [illegible]

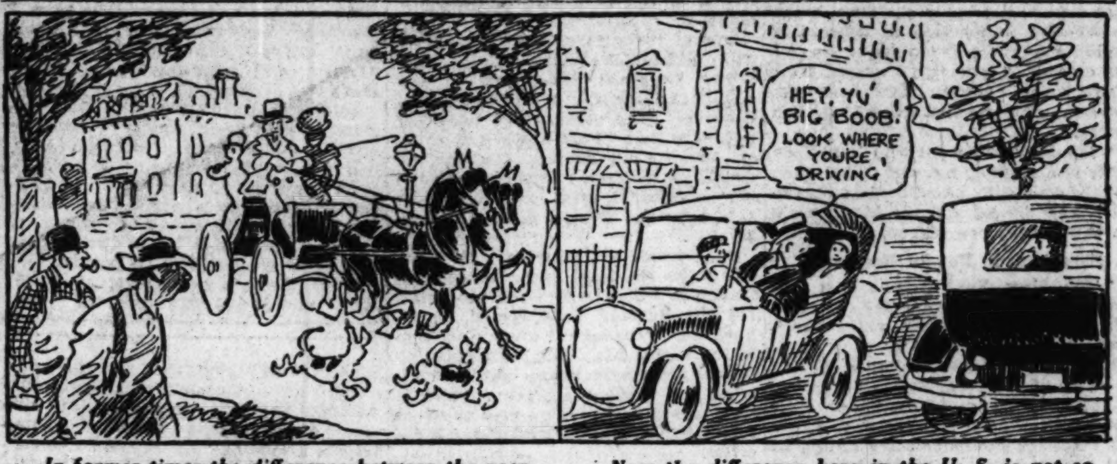
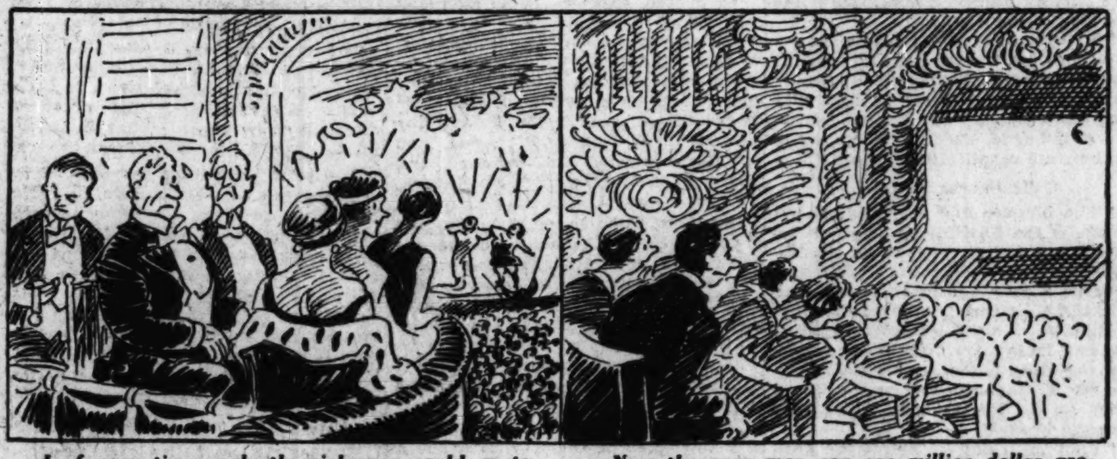
THE CHANGING WORLD



HEY, YU' BIG BOOB! LOOK WHERE YOU'RE DRIVING

In former times the difference between the poor man and the rich man was more clearly marked.

Now the difference here in the U. S. is not so evident.



In former times only the rich man could go to hear $100,000 productions at the opera.

Now the poor man can see million dollar productions at the movies and doesn't wish he was at the opera.

Tax Everyone, Everything, Painleve Aim

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Premier Painleve's tax plan to provide for France's debts and restore its finances met with a serious setback today almost as soon as it was made known. The Socialists and radicals found that its provisions resembled so little the capital levy the Socialists demand that they would be obliged to reject the plan.

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The finance bill introduced by the French government today is the most complete effort at taxation ever made in this country or, probably, in any other. It taxes everything.

PAUL PAINLEVE.

It taxes land with houses. It taxes land without houses. It taxes the millionaire's revenue from gilt edged investments. It taxes the clerk's salary. It taxes stocks, it taxes bonds, it taxes ancient furniture, it taxes kitchen utensils, it taxes diamonds, it taxes pearls, pictures, tapestries, and books. It taxes everything people have.

Startling as Volstead.

If the bill passes, it will make the name of Paul Painleve as famous in French contemporary history as the name of Volstead is across the Atlantic.

As Premier Painleve says in his introduction, a special sacrifice is demanded. His bill shows how he would collect a sacrifice of 80,000,000,000 francs over fourteen years. He expects it to yield 5,955,000,000 francs a year, and this sum, plus 2,630,000,000 francs from the budget, is to feed a sinking fund for the retirement of French domestic debt.

He estimates that in fourteen years his plan will reduce the French public debt of 300,000,000,000 francs to a stable debt by the elimination of the floating debt and short term securities.

ILLNESS DRIVES MISS LA MARR FROM THE FILMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 7.—Special.]—Barbara La Marr, who a year ago was a leader of film fame and fortune, is making a fight against death in a Pasadena foothills retreat. In her battle the actress is cut off from all the world but four persons—her father, William W. Watson; her nurse, Miss Davies; her physician, Dr. Herman Shore, and her attorney, R. D. Knickerbocker.

Dr. Shore today said Miss La Marr showed a trend toward improvement and Mr. Knickerbocker stated that he expected Miss La Marr to get well enough to play in films again.

Hollywood accepts the actress' retirement as permanent, following the complete nervous and physical collapse which marked her efforts to finish the big scenes of her last picture.

Mr. Knickerbocker today announced the actress had terminated a moving picture contract which had three more years to run.

Wounded Cop Battles on and Kills His Man

Policeman Demetri Cal of the Shakespeare avenue station, himself seriously wounded, shot and killed an unidentified man early this morning in a battle which ensued when he charged into a group of sluggers who were beating a former prize fighter at Girard street and North avenue.

A third man was wounded in the affray. He is Ben Sayers, 1856 North Winchester avenue, the victim of the attacking gang. He was shot in the leg. A bullet struck Cal in the side, and he was taken to the North Avenue hospital. Sayers' wound was not serious and he was treated at the West Chicago avenue police station.

Slugged by Gangsters.

Sayers, according to his story, was standing at the corner when an automobile in which six men and two women were riding stopped at the curb.

"That's the guy that tried to beat me up," one of the occupants cried.

Without further ado they piled out and started to slug Sayer, who has recently been "bouncer" in a dance hall. During the struggle a shot was fired and the victim was wounded. Cal, who lives at 1621 Girard street, heard the report and ran over, revolver in hand. The group dispersed, several of them firing at him.

The policeman pursued one member of the gang into a hallway at 1823 West North avenue. There the duel was fought.

It is believed Cal will recover. He was recently granted extra compensation for the arrest of two burglars.

RESISTS ROBBER; SLAIN

Evagelos Chionis, a peddler, 3239 Lowe avenue, was shot and instantly killed yesterday by a lone stickup man who leaped on the step of the horse drawn vehicle in which Chionis was touring the streets in search of business.

The shooting occurred at 35th street and Emerald avenue, when the peddler resisted the robber. The horse, frightened by the shot, ran away. He dashed into 34th street and west to Halsted street. There Peter Valickis, 920 East 34th street, 12 year old assistant to Chionis, managed to bring the frightened animal to a halt. When the door of the wagon was opened the body of the peddler, with a bullet hole in the temple, fell to the street. His roll of bills was intact.

BLIZZARD HITS TOWN ON HEELS OF WINDSTORM

Cold and Clear Today; Snow in West.

A storm of blizzard proportions, with fierce winds whipping snow into drifts that blocked highways in many sections, swept into Chicago early last night from the southwest. An all day rain turned into a driving snow last night, and the mercury tumbled to an unofficial 25 above at 2 o'clock this morning. The snow here was not heavy, but during the day the rain totaled three-quarters of an inch.

However, word from the weather bureau was that the cold wave will be short lived. The disturbance will move rapidly eastward. The prediction for today is fair and much colder, with northwest winds. Tomorrow will be partly overcast, and the temperature will begin to rise. Yesterday's maximum wind velocity in Chicago was 34 miles an hour. Many trees were blown down and buildings damaged.

Three towns on the southwest edge of Chicago—Argo, Justice, and Willow Springs—were without lights for an hour last night. The storm tore down wires and left the villages in darkness until repairs could be made.

Middle States Snow Covered.

Reports indicated that Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas were directly in the path of the blizzard as it rushed toward Chicago. Heavy snows covered these states.

Fire companies from Rockford, Ill., fought their way through snow drifts, sometimes three feet deep, to reach the town of Durand, twenty miles away, which was being menaced by flames. Two buildings had been destroyed and the Methodist church was burning.

Farmers along the way were aiding the firemen in their battle with the storm. A telephone message after midnight said the fire was under control.

Driven Under Trolley Car.

Two possibly fatal accidents in Chicago was blamed on the storm. An unidentified man, holding an umbrella to protect himself from the wind and snow, walked in front of an east bound Chicago and West Towns trolley car at Lombard avenue in Oak Park, and suffered a fractured skull.

The man became wedged between the car and its fender in such a way that it was necessary for a wrecking crew to jack up the car before he could be liberated. Frank Ferst, 2019 South Leavitt street, the motorman, told the police the snow made it impossible for him to see the man in time to stop the car.

An attempt to recover his hat may cost the life of Martin Hohn, 28 years old, 1055 W. 69th street, who was knocked down and injured internally by an east bound 69th street car at Aberdeen street last night. His hat was blown off by the wind and, blinded by the snow, Hohn ran in front of the car.

Snowdrifts in Lincoln Highway.

Points in Illinois reported that the fury of the storm had paralyzed traffic and that the cold was intense. At Sterling drifting snow had almost blocked the Lincoln highway. At Springfield a twenty-four hour rain turned into sleet and snow as the mercury fell to 20 degrees.

Winter blew over the southwest on a 40 mile gale, according to reports from Kansas City. Trains from the west coast were several hours late into Kansas City and wire communications were badly crippled. The blizzard struck with a vengeance in western Kansas, where highways were reported impassable because of drifting snows.

Football Game in the Snow.

In Iowa the snow was as heavy as in Illinois and Missouri. At Iowa City, where the Iowa-Wisconsin football game was played, the temperature dropped to several degrees below freezing and the football contest was played on a field white with snow.

Points in Missouri reported heavy damage from the high winds, in addition to much snow. Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas escaped the snow, but experienced heavy rainfall.

The storm developed in the southwest Friday, according to weather bureau reports, and gathered energy as it moved northeastward, toward the great lakes region. Clearing conditions are expected today over all the sections so far visited by the disturbance. Normal conditions are looked for by the middle of the week.

Shippers were warned to protect their goods against the following temperatures for the next 48 hours: North and northwest, 5 to 15 degrees; west, 10 to 18 degrees; south, 15 to 25 degrees; east, 20 to 30 degrees.

NORTHWESTERN VICTORS: 3 TO 2; U. OF C. LOST: 13-6

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Northwestern university yesterday afternoon defeated Michigan, generally recognized as the strongest eleven in the western conference and one of the most versatile in the country. The score was 3 to 2. This was the outstanding feature of yesterday's football upsets. It was Michigan's first defeat of the year and it eliminated the Wolverines from any claims to sectional or national honors. The victory was wildly acclaimed by Northwestern grads and in Evanston. As it stands now, Northwestern has lost no more games than any other team in the Big Ten, except Minnesota, which as yet is undefeated this year in the conference.

Illinois defeated Chicago, 13 to 6, in a game featured by fumbles, with the Maroons the chief offender. Stagg's team, however, can pride itself upon stopping Red Grange without gain, as the Illinois leader lost more ground than he gained. In both the Illinois game at Urbana and the Northwestern game on Soldiers' field the fields were seas of mud.

Wisconsin put Iowa out of the running for an undisputed claim to the western conference title by winning, 6 to 0, while Drake defeated Nebraska, conqueror of Illinois, 14 to 0. Just recently Illinois won from Pennsylvania, recognized as one of the strongest in the east.

Princeton practically made its season a success by trouncing Harvard, 36 to 0, and Dartmouth further justified its strength and right to the eastern championship by winning over Cornell, 62 to 13.

The western struggles were decided under the most adverse conditions imaginable, as snow and rain fell throughout the contests, making open play impossible and accurate handling of the ball extremely difficult.

Other scores of wide interest were:

Ohio State, 7; Indiana, 0.
Minnesota, 33; Butler, 7.
Notre Dame, 0; Penn State, 0.
Yale, 43; Maryland, 14.
Syracuse, 3; Ohio Wesleyan, 3.

(Further results, details of the great games, and pictures of the contests at Soldiers' Field and Urbana will be found in Sports Section.)

GIRL, 18, IS SHOT BY SUITOR SHE REFUSED TO WED

Lena Lenzi, 18 years old, a telephone opeartor, 2427 South Oakley avenue, was shot twice early last night when she refused an offer of marriage made by Pasquali Matalini, a tailor, living in the vicinity of West 24th street and South Irving avenue. They met in front of 2316 West 24th place while the girl was on her way home from work at the Monroe telephone exchange.

She was wounded in the left arm and right hip and was taken to St. Anthony's hospital by a passing motorist. Matalini escaped and is being sought by the Marquette police.

Miss Lenzi told policemen she had met Matalini several times while on her way to and from work, and he had wooed her ardently, but she had repulsed his advances.

LIPTON'S FAMED RACING YACHT IS RUM RUNNER

Miami, Fla., Nov. 7—(AP)—A staff correspondent's dispatch to the Miami Daily News from Nassau, British Bahams, today states that Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock II., three times defeated international cup racer, is now engaged in liquor carrying under an alias.

The Shamrock II., recently was acquired by the Nassau Liquor House of Pinder, Collons and Brown, and is now riding at anchor with fifty other liquor schooners in Nassau harbor.

U. S. DRY CHIEF HANDS LOCAL MOPS TO COPS

Uncle Sam to Watch Rum Sources.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of the reorganized federal prohibition forces, yesterday called on each state, city and village to enforce the dry law by the machinery of its own local government, instead of leaving the job to Uncle Sam.

Andrews was one of the speakers who addressed the third day session of the "crisis convention" of the Anti-Saloon League of America at the Chicago temple.

"The federal government will have done its full part when it eliminates the sources of supply and the traffic in liquor by which it is removed from one community to another," he declared.

Wants to Concentrate Work.

"This it can hope to do if its energies may be concentrated on that task. In order that this may be done it must be relieved of its present task of local police work.

"In looking forward, it is useless to attempt to foretell what may be accomplished under our reorganization, as it is impracticable to measure accurately what already has been accomplished. It only can be stated that vigorous action is being taken to make the law enforcement agencies as effective as possible.

Depends on Public Opinion.

"The prohibition department is not solely responsible for enforcement. It shares this equally with the department of justice, by which prosecution of cases must be handled.

"The enforcement of the Volstead law is absolutely dependent on the existence of a public opinion which requires faithful and vigorous action by those in public office—in legal office quite as much as in police office.

"The national law is intended to prevent the traffic in liquor and make it possible for each community, by policing itself, to exist happily without liquor distribution. The federal government will have done its part when it eliminates the source of supply."

United States District Attorney Edwin A. Olson, in an attack on local officials, said the dry law enforcement in Chicago had been left almost entirely to federal authorities.

Olson mentioned Druggan and Lake, the Genna gang, and the famous "little black book," which Attorney Patrick H. O'Donnell told about in the murder trial of the Genna gangsters.

O'Donnell charged it was a record of police graft.

Dry Fleet's Admiral Talks.

Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the United States coast guard, which also is under Andrews' control, told of the vigilant watch that is kept on Rum Row off the Atlantic coast, declaring that little liquor from foreign lands is now coming through the blockade.

Three United States senators were also on the program. They warned the dry leaders to tighten up and extend their organization. These senators were Frank B. Willis [Rep., O.], Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.], recently appointed to fill the Ralston vacancy, and Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], who presented the eighteenth amendment resolution to congress.

The voice of William Jennings Bryan on a phonograph record also was heard in the convention hall. It was given as a part of a memorial service for the commoner in remembrance of his work for the prohibition cause.

Willis Defends Dry Law.

Senator Willis declared that the eighteenth amendment has made no criminals, but merely has unmasked those that already existed. Virtually every bottle of bootleg booze, he declared, is stained with blood. The banker who traffics with a bootlegger at the back door has no just cause for complaint when gunmen enter the front door of the bank and shoot the cashier, Senator Willis said.

The Saturday night convention sessions were held at the Second Presbyterian church, 20th street and Michigan avenue. Speakers on the night program included Senator Willis, Fielding H. (Hurry Up) Yost, University of Michigan football coach; Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, editor of the Epworth Herald; Dr. W. A. Ganfield, president of Carroll college; Cora Frances Stoddard, secretary of the Scientific Temperance federation, and Dr. Ira Landreth, president of the Intercollegiate Prohibition association.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, declared that the recent election of a wet Democratic candidate for governor in New Jersey was not a wet victory. The only test on the prohibition issue in the New Jersey election, he said, was in the election of the legislature where the drys claimed a victory, and in the defeat of a wet candidate for congress by a dry. The fact that Gov.-Elect Moore made his campaign on the prohibition issue was no test, Wheeler said.

"Obviously, if one player is permitted to overlook a given rule, another shall expect to be exempt from some other rule, with the result that there would be no game whatever—merely a free-for-all," Yost declared.

"My attitude toward prohibition is comparable to that.

"If our civilization is to mean anything more than a free-for-all, every citizen must respect every law. If you or I assume that we are privileged to violate the prohibition law because it does not suit us, the slayer can just as easily argue that the, "Thou shalt not kill," does not apply to him. Personal liberty is not a license for each individual to do as he pleases. Many of our laws regulate human conduct.

Compares Life to Athletics.

"In athletics we expect our boys to live clean, think clean, act clean. Why? So that they may have a strong, healthy, enduring body; an alert, keen mind, and a loyal, trustworthy, confident heart. If these things are worth while in athletics, why are they not worth while in other games that life presents? No one can violate the laws of health without personally paying the penalty for the violation. Nature demands that.

"Personally, I never touched a drop of booze in my life, because I never cared to play in a game in which I didn't have at least a chance to win.

"No human being ever won a game from Old King Alcohol—alcohol robs a man intellectually, physically, morally, and financially. How can any one expect to reach the goal of success and happiness, and be of real service to mankind, without those assets?"

No Prohibition in Germany.

Master in Chancery Otto F. Reich, 28 South Dearborn street, who just returned from a visit to Germany, told of liquor conditions in Germany to members of the German club at a luncheon in the Morrison hotel.

"There is little crime in Germany," Mr. Reich said. "They do not have prohibitio nand the absence of it acts as a safety valve and makes no temptation to violate laws."

The complaints of customs service employés were heard by Andrews in the Hamilton club at a luncheon yesterday. The customs also are under his jurisdiction, but he said the enforcement of prohibition was taking 98 per cent of his time. He said he would try to get the customs men more pay.

Clarence F. Buck, collector of the port of Chicago, said the customs were the chief single source of federal revenue. Charles W. Smith, head of the Customs Employés' association here, said the small pay, averaging about $1,500 a year, led trained men to accept jobs with commercial concerns at more money.

STORM HOUSE TO NAB DURKIN, BUT TIP FAILS

Dawn yesterday was the signal for the descent of 100 policemen upon a building at 506 West 61st street, where it was believed Martin Durkin, the slayer of Federal Agent Edward C. Shanahan and Police Sergeant Harry Gray, was hiding. Durkin wasn't there.

Police details were carefully planned in the certain knowledge that Durkin will resist with all his ammunition and his deadly aim. There was the realization that if Durkin were there he would not be taken without gunplay.

Fifteen automobile loads of police stepped a block from the house, then ran to it. Every man previously had been assigned to a position. Five were sent up to the third floor with orders to allow no one to come out of any of the rooms. Five were on the second floor for the same purpose and the same number on the first floor.

The others outside were instructed to warn any one who appeared at a window to remain inside or his head might be blown off. Shotguns were aimed at each window.

H. A. Sebourn, who operated the place as a rooming house, was roused from bed and taken with the detectives to furnish keys. Every room in the house was visited before the police departed, disappointed but not disheartened.

And then, all day and all last night the same thing was happening; houses were surrounded and searched but to no vail. But it's to continue indefinitely, the police vowed.

Hears Scores of Football Games; Then Drops Dead

Ellwood N. Johnson, 26 year old salesman from Grand Rapids, Mich., dropped dead late yesterday afternoon in the Illinois Athletic club. He had been listening to the W-G-N broadcast of the Illinois-Chicago football game. At the conclusion of this game the announcement was made that Northwestern had beaten Michigan. Shortly afterward Johnson remarked to a friend that he felt ill. He stepped into a lavatory and toppled over.

Doctors who examined the body said that heart disease, possibly made more acute by the excitement of the football game broadcast, caused death.

TIRE PUNCTURED 857 TIMES LEAKS NO AIR.

A new and amazing scientific puncture proof discovery has been perfected by Mr. O. S. Nelson, S-1870 Logan Building, Mitchell, South Dakota, with which an automobile tire was punctured 857 times without loss of air. Makes all old as well as new tires puncture proof. It increases the mileage of tires enormously. Makes ordinary tire troubles go forever. Prevents tire changing. It is inexpensive. Anderson Sees Dry Law Modification Move if Wheeler Continues Sway Over League

"Unless the Anti-Saloon League of America chanegs its present policy and escapes from the dictatorship of its little czar, Wayne B. Wheeler, congress probably within five years will attempt to legalize beer."

That stinging challenge to the national dry organization, now in biennial convention at the Chicago temple, was made yesterday by one of the most conspicuous figures the prohibition campaign has produced, a man who knows the inner workings of the league through years of organizing—William H. Anderson, former New York secretary.

He Charges Cowardice.

It was part of a sensational broadside hurled at Wheeler from the convention side line, where Anderson sits as the representative of the American Protestant alliance, which he founded. An outcast of the league by his own self-excommunication, Anderson charged the Wheeler régime with hypocrisy and cowardice.

Wheeler, the absolute dictator of the league, is keeping the truth from the people, even from the league itself, while playing hand in glove with the politicians, Anderson charged.

The Anti-Saloon league is slipping in Washington, rapidly losing influence in the nation and is headed for the rocks unless the constituency is aroused to awaken or expel the present management and take on a new, he declared.

Deserted by League.

"I think I am as well qualified to judge the situation as anybody," said the big dry crusader who was deserted by the league when he got into trouble in New York and was convicted of third degree forgery on charges he said were framed up by some of the same interests with whom Wheeler now plays.

"I have built more leagues than any organizer in the country," he declared. "I built the Illinois league and the Maryland league and I took the New York league as a mass of wreckage and built it up until New York passed a state dry law.

"The dry leadership today is living in a fool's paradise."

Would Address Convention.

Anderson has challenged the league to permit him to address the "crisis convention" now in session in the Methodist temple.

"So far they haven't invited me," he declared. "I want to speak and prove by the reaction of their audience that they want a new kind of leadership."

As the lieutenant of the late Purley A. Baker, former general superintendent of the league, Wheeler was an able and effective crusader who did much for the dry cause, Andersen asserted. But as the czar and dictator Wheeler has shown neither broad vision nor initiative, he declared.

Wheeler Honest Personally.

"I have nothing against Wheeler personally as an individual," he said. "I think he is absolutely honest in the general sense. It is inconceivable to me that he would take a penny for himself from any source for doing or failing to do anything injurious to the dry cause. But there are other ways of betraying a cause."

In New York, he declared, is a glaring example of Wheeler's hypocrisy and cowardice. There, Anderson asserted, Wheeler is now protecting the state Anti-Saloon league organization which worked almost directly with that outstanding foe of prohibition, Gov. Al Smith, apparently in order to obtain a $25,000 contribution from John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Deal Through Fosdick.

It was through Raymond B. Fosdick, an avowed wet, friend of Gov. Smith and personal representative of Mr. Rockefeller, that Wheeler's New York lieutenant obtained the contribution as a reward for opposing Theodore Roosevelt, the Republican candidate for governor, much harder than he opposed Smith, Anderson declared.

"It was Fosdick, too, who was largely responsible for my prosecution and conviction," he said. "I was too militant in my campaign."

Anderson talked freely of his conviction and sentence to Sing Sing for altering the Anti-Saloon league's books.

"The prosecution was based on my order to transfer funds from one account to another," he said. "There was no change in the total receipts and expenditures. But the trial court ruled that it was not necessary to show any criminal intent. Only one other state in the union has third degree forgery. If I was guilty, then every banker in America, every minister of the gospel, every church treasurer could be sent to jail.

League Keeps Silent.

"And I am either a crook or a liar or I am the victim of a frameup. Yet the management of the Anti-Saloon league in its cowardice refuses to say which. It would command more respect from the public and the league itself if it declared itself either one way or the other."

Here Mr. Anderson explained the purpose and object of his new organization, the American Protestant alliance. He declined to admit it is an anti-Catholic organization. He called it a "militant Protestant" organization.

Protestantism is not attacking, it is defending itself from attack, he declared. And prohibition is a big factor in this religious conflict, he said, because the prohibition movement was founded by Protestants, and the anti-Protestants are capitalizing the sentiment against prohibition to strike at Protestantism.

Calls Haynes Wheeler's Man.

Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes, who addressed the league convention Friday, is an example of Wheeler's mismanagement, Anderson declared.

"Haynes is Wheeler's man," he said. "But Mr. Haynes has been muzzled and handcuffed and shorn of power, and Wheeler doesn't tell why. It is because Wheeler, having obtained the appointment of Haynes, has given a hostage to politics and must remain silent on the truth.

"Wheeler plays to the fellow who is in. He doesn't tell the truth about so-called dry senators and congressmen who are playing politics with prohibition and doing more damage to the dry cause than the bootleggers. Rather than offend these politicians Wheeler is letting things drift from bad to worse.

Pursues Easiest Course.

"Mr. Wheeler is quite willing to play with the Ku Klux Klan on the quiet, but to save political unpleasantness and criticism he has elected to endanger and run the risk of sacrificing the dry cause by refusing to give that cause the benefit of the militancy of the patriotic Protestant constituency which, if frankly challenged, can be wheeled into action in defense of prohibition not only to make up for the defects of lethargic Protestant denominational church forces but to awaken and reënlist these church forces.

"The Republican party in New York state is a mass or mess of ruins. Gov. Smith has simply hammered and trampled it to pieces, and the blame rests on the Anti-Saloon league.

Says League Fought Roosevelt.

"The New York league last fall fought Roosevelt, who had declared for the state dry law while Smith had repealed the law they had. They could have defeated Smith in spite of the New York City count. If they had he would have been done politically. If he had failed to carry his state for governor after failing to get the nomination of his party for President he would have been through as a candidate for President. He would not be a factor for 1928.

"He would not have had the chance to add to his laurels and increase his strength by the big personal victory he recently won in the New York City mayoralty primary and election and in the adoption of the four amendments to the state constitution.

Calls Course Blunder.

"The blunder and stupidity, if not worse, of the Anti-Saloon league is responsible for the wreckage of the Republican party in New York. Wheeler believed a year ago in that campaign that the New York league was making a blunder. I am informed he said so but now he is covering up and protecting the state administration responsible for it. It looks and smells like a trick to get $25,000 from Rockefeller through Fosdick.

"I am not trying to destroy the Anti-Saloon league. I am trying to revive it and give it new life. I have quit the league but not the dry cause. Prohibition is a big factor in the campaign of my present organization which is pledged to do what the Anti-Saloon league will not do.

"The Anti-Saloon league is slipping. It's constituency must be aroused to the situation or congress will attempt to legalize beer within five years."

PAINLEVE PLAN TAXES EVERY ONE AND EVERYTHING

Seeks to Raise Eighty Billion Francs.

imposes a head tax of 20 francs on every one in France. Next comes a tax on all real property, improved and unimproved, which may be paid in one lump sum or over three or fourteen years, discounts being given for prompt payment. On improved real estate the tax is one and one-half times the income for 1925.

Then follows a new tax on business, which is fixed at 50 per cent of the yearly average profits for the last three years of all commercial enterprises in France, payable over fourteen years.

Article 6 contains the important provision that all securities and investments shall pay 15 per cent of their yield over fourteen years. State bonds are exempted, except bonds of one year or less, which will include 60,000,000 francs worth of national defense bonds.

Boosts Income Tax.

Then comes an addition to the income tax, so high already that it is dodged by a majority of those who ought to pay it. The new provision would tax at 3 per cent incomes of between 50,000 and 100,000 francs; 5 per cent on incomes of between 100,000 and 200,000, and 5 per cent extra on incomes of more than 200,000. This will mean that a man earning the equivalent of $10,000 would be taxed about 27 per cent.

The most novel provision of the Painleve plan is contained in articles 8 and 9, which tax household goods and personal property. There is a first exemption of 50,000 francs, plus an exemption of 30,000 francs for a married man, with a further exemption of 10,000 francs for each dependent. On the rest the taxpayer would have to pay 8 per cent, which he could acquit in fourteen years or all at once.

Based on Insurance Value.

Every one would have to declare the value of his household goods and private property before March 1, 1926, and here the premier has slipped in a catch, because the value declared can never be less than the amount for which the property is insured.

The bill also sets up a directorate for the sinking fund, which is to be conducted independently of the government and which will be authorized to repurchase extant state securities, to sell new securities based on the prospect of returns from the new law.

Concealed in the project is evidence of an intention to inflate currency.

12,000,000 BY 1960 SEEN AS CITY'S GROWTH

William L. Bailey, professor of sociology at Northwestern university, predicted yesterday that Chicago will be a metropolitan center of 12,000,000 inhabitants in 1960. Greater Chicago, he said, will extend eighteen miles in all directions from the loop.

Data to support the prediction was incorporated in an opinion prepared for the city engineering department. The educator declared that Chicago is developing under conditions a full generation ahead of New York in modernity.

According to Mr. Bailey's forecast, all the vacant land between the present city and suburbs within the eighteen mile radius will be filled with residences and business places. The government census figures for the future metropolitan area show that Chicago may reasonably be expected to extend ten miles in all directions from the present city limits. This is four times the area covered by the sanitary district.

HUSBAND WORKS NIGHTS; SHE KILLS SELF AND BABY

Despondence because her husband held a night job and left her home alone evenings is believed by police to have led Mrs. Elizabeth Kirkhope, 30 years old, 1935 North La Crosse avenue, to kill both herself and their baby, Robert, 6 months old, early yesterday.

Kirkhope noticed an ominous stillness about his flat when he arrived home after his night of labor. He tried all the doors and windows, but found them locked. Then he detected an odor of escaping gas, and, with no more ado, crashed through the kitchen window.

In the bathroom he found the body of Mrs. Kirkhope stretched upon the floor. Just inside the door lay little Robert in his carriage, dead. Death had occurred hours before, physicians said. Kirkhope called a neighbor, who summoned Patrolman Charles O. Olson.

"She always complained about my night job, but I didn't think she took it that much to heart," Kirkhope said.

BLAIR'S LETTER HINTS RECEIVER FOR CARS IS SURE

Bar on Extensions Until Settlement Seen.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

In the last two days the inward meaning of Henry A. Blair's statement to the council local transportation committee has come to the surface. The true significance of the transit problem, in Mr. Blair's opinion, is contained in two sentences of his statement.

One of these says that "any street railway franchise which the city has power to grant under present law could not adequately meet the needs of Chicago." The other, more pointedly put, says that "I am advised by counsel that in our present situation we could not secure a franchise from the city predicated upon possible future action by the Illinois general assembly."

In a word, Mr. Blair says that the city lacks the legal power to grant a franchise "upon which the properties [of the Surface lines] could be refinanced." The logical conclusion from which is that Mr. Blair anticipates no formal settlement before Feb. 1, 1927, when the present surface franchises expire, and now sees no way to avoid then a receivership to protect the properties.

Special Session Improbable.

Of course, there could be a special session of the legislature to confer more authority upon the city, but that is considered highly improbable.

Mr. Blair does not advise that every one sit idly by until Feb. 1, 1927. He urges that the city officials and the surface lines, elevated roads, and others concerned get together and agree upon a plan of consolidation, unified operation, universal transfers, and other features of an ordinance that would be acceptable to the car riders, the city, and the companies. He would have an agreement prepared such as would be formally agreed upon if the city had the power to make it. That would tell the legislature exactly what would be done if sufficient power should be granted the city to go ahead.

The principal two powers sought are the right of the city to grant a franchise for more than twenty years and the power of the surface lines and the elevated to consolidate and supply other means of transportation.

Upsets Basis of Defeated Bills.

Heretofore it has been supposed that the city could adopt a legal ordinance, subject to powers to be conferred upon it subsequently by the legislature. That was the theory upon which the 1918 ordinance was prepared and also the 1925 ordinance. Those two ordinances were passed upon by transportation lawyers. Mr. Blair has obtained a different view, and it is reported that this came from lawyers of financial interests. Color is lent to that rumor because Mr. Blair in his letter says flatly that "the properties could not be refinanced" on an ordinance predicated upon possible future action by the legislature.

It is also rumored that the banking interests insist upon a sound financial base for the Chicago surface lines, because they look upon them with unusual favor. Of all of the profits of the street car systems in 213 American cities the Chicago Surface lines received 38 per cent in the first nine months of this year.

On Feb. 1, 1927, the bonds of the surface lines become due, and it is reasonably certain some bondholders will demand payment. Probably in advance of that demand the financial interests concerned, if the Blair legal view is correct, will apply for a receivership in order to get the protection of the court around a property now considered profitable.

Meantime and until after the prospective receivership is dissolved and a new agreement reached there is little chance of extensions of lines or other major improvements. That indicates the lot to befall the car riders.

The state legislature has seen fit to criticize the city for failure to solve its transit problem. In reply certain aldermen have said that the legislature is to blame because it has denied the city the necessary legal power to deal with the condition satisfactorily. It might also be added that the city has not recently made any real effort to get more power from the legislature, except a general request that the Illinois Commerce law be repealed.

Commission to Visit Wisconsin.

The legislature, in its latest session, appointed a joint commission to investigate and report upon "terminable" permits. This commission, with its sixteen members, starts for Madison, Wis., tomorrow afternoon and later in the week goes to Minneapolis and St. Paul.

By one form of terminable permit the city would be denied even the trifling quantity of home rule that it now enjoys. By another form Chicago could have complete and final power over service, extensions and kindred factors in management and operation with the state exercising control over valuations and fares. What the joint commission will recommend remains to be seen.

Lincoln C. Andrews Will Talk to Sunday Eve. Club

Speakers at the Sunday Evening club service at Orchestra hall this evening will include Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in general charge of prohibition enforcement, and Col. Patrick Henry Callahan of Louisville, Ky., who are here attending the convention of the Anti-Saloon League.

Yellowley Raid on Roadhouse Row Nets Grog and 5 Arrests

Prohibition Administrator Ed Yellowley's boys swooped through Cook county's roadhouse mecca northwest of Chicago early yesterday morning. When their chores had been completed the agents found they had netted five well known impresarios and a large quantity of grog.

At one of the places, that of Peter Stocker, on Waukegan road, the proprietor asked for leniency on the ground that he belong to an influential political group, the agents said. He showed credentials indicating his dues had been paid, according to the dry sleuths. However, they found it impossible to laugh off the fact that Pete had five gallons of good bourbon behind his service bar.

Barrels of Real Beer on Ice.

The Casino, also on Waukegan road, catered to the beer element, the agents charged. Ten barrels of real good stuff were well iced when the invaders arrived, well after midnight. Tony Haas was arrested.

John Feichtner's place in Glenview rated a visit from the drys because officials under cover as merrymakers had purchased lavishly on a pre-raid tour, according to their affidavits. Although the agents arrived late during Feichtner's Saturday night-Sunday morning play, they found twenty-five gallons of grog still to be poured.

Peter Kelley's roadhouse, at Lake street and Waukegan road, in Glenview, yielded its quota of contraband.

At the White Inn, two miles north of Glenview, the agents made a considerable haul. Judging by the looks of the cellar there, the raiders said, the bartenders had been dealing moon almost exclusively.

Proprietors or employés of each of the places were brought to Chicago and arraigned yesterday afternoon before United States Commissioner James R. Glass. All were released on bond.

Police Seize Nest of Stills.

Two distilling plants of large capacity were seized in raids by the police.

At 7743 Greenwood avenue a squad, led by Capt. John Stege, found four 500 gallon stills, 50 gallons of alcohol, and 177 barrels of mash.

Neighbors reported that Pete Genna, supposedly in Italy, had been seen at the house daily. To add to the excitement, a fire broke out while the police were there. The blaze was put out, and then the raiders dumped the mash and shot holes in the barrels.

Lieut. William Blaul of Chief Collins' office and Prohibition Agent Maas learned that the sale of gasoline was only a side line at a filling station at 50th and Halsted streets. They arrested three employés and seized 1,000 gallons of alcohol and thirty-one barrels of beer. At 827 West 50th street they found a 200 gallon still from which the supplies were drawn.

BARE EXTORTION PLOT AGAINST MRS. BERGDOLL

$25,000 Price Put on Her and Grover.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A plot to extort $25,000 from Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll by threats to kill her and her fugitive son, Grover C. Bergdoll, draft evader, was revealed today.

Mrs. Bergdoll placed a "dummy" parcel, wrapped in brown paper, at the entrance to the Baltimore and Ohio passenger station. As detectives watched, a man followed Mrs. Bergdoll, looked at the package, and then hastened away, apparently suspecting a trap. The package later was picked up by an employé of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and this led to the disclosure of the plot.

At her home in Wynnefield, Mrs. Bergdoll admitted an attempt had been made to blackmail her, but refused further information.

For the last three weeks, the would-be blackmailer has been corresponding with Mrs. Bergdoll. He would put his letters in a hole in a tree trunk in Fairmount park and ordered that replies be placed in the same place.

Opportunity for Sales Executive

The Williamson Heater Company of Cincinnati, an old reliable and nationally known manufacturer of heating apparatus, has an interesting offer for a merchandiser to handle the Snow White Cabinet Clothes Dryer in Chicago, salable to new homes, professional builders, architects, housewives, small laundries and institutions.

Snow White dries, sterilizes and bleaches clothes in a few minutes. It permits washing and ironing to be done the same morning. It prevents damage to clothes by wind. It eliminates the drudgery of carrying clothes outside. It makes the housewife independent of weather conditions. No more unsightly displays. Every woman appreciates its advantages. It appeals to the professional builder for it enhances the salability of his buildings. It appeals to the apartment owner or builder in eliminating the backyard problem. Space heretofore used for drying can be used for other purposes. To the man owning or erecting a high grade home it sells itself. The price is less than any other laundry equipment. Every residence, apartment and institution should be SNOW WHITE equipped.

Thousands in use from coast to coast. We have definite proved methods of sales procedure and attractive literature. One sale a day nets a $10,000 yearly income. We want a high grade man to organize with capable salesmen. This is not a job, but a business opportunity and handled like an automobile agency. Factory will carry merchandise in car lots for local distribution. You must have from $1,500 to $3,000 to finance your living and operating expenses for thirty days and sufficient responsibility for initial shipment of dryers. On time payments we carry paper and pay you your profit immediately. One exclusive franchise will be given for each side of Chicago.

Successful applicant must be capable of directing men, possess an unimpeachable record and vision to realize the potential possibilities. To such a person we can offer a mighty interesting proposition, a real money making opportunity. For further particulars address Lee Stratton, care of Williamson Heater Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

GENNA DEFENSE DEFIES THE LAW, CROWE CHARGES

Fear Its Influence on Youth of City.

Mr. Bailiff, if any one in the courtroom is disorderly arrest him at once.—JUDGE BROTHERS.

Without a warrant, your honor?—STATE'S ATTORNEY CROWE.

That was Mr. Crowe's parting shot last evening at the close of an eight hour speech on the law of arrest by Attorney Michael Ahern, defense counsel in the trial of Albert Anselmi and John Scalisi, Genna gangsters who are charged with the murders of Policemen Harold Olson and Charles Walsh.

When minions of the law attempt unlawful arrests, and are so bold as to point their pistols, they may be killed and there is no punishment, said Mr. Ahern, as he quoted from book after book until a spectator, sleepy eyed, murmured, "He has read from every book except the Bible."

Urges Defiance to Police.

And when at last he ended, confessing himself very weary, Mr. Ahern asked the jury to acquit Scalisi and Anselmi. He pleaded with them thus to send word to the policemen of the city that they may no longer invade the liberty of freemen. He told them to let red blooded citizens know that they may resist unlawful questioning and detention by policemen, and use force of fist or firearms if necessary.

And Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, glancing over the groups of tough looking, interested young men in the courtroom, said he feared the outcome if the jury acquitted the defendants and approved by their verdict the law of Ahern.

Challenge to Law—Crowe.

The issue in the trial has become far more important than the guilt or innocence of the two accused—it is a challenge to the law by the lawless, of order by crime, according to State's Attorney Crowe, who prepared to take up the challenge on behalf of the people.

Mr. Crowe probably will address the jury tomorrow, when, in the last word to the jury, he will demand death for Scalisi and Anselmi. Before he speaks, Attorney Patrick H. O'Donnell, whose tongue, lawyers say, is most vehement and eloquent, will close for the defense.

O'Donnell has charged that 300 policemen enjoyed the Gennas' gold and gave them immunity to barter in alky. This charge has brought on an investigation of his professional conduct by the Chicago Bar association, because of his refusal to give up his alleged evidence to the authorities.

Action Waits on Evidence.

When Mr. Crowe, whose duty, some say, is to demand the graft evidence, was asked what he would do, he replied:

"If some reputable witness or citizen will produce credible evidence against the police department or any one else, I will act on it promptly."

Opinions of many courts, high and low, American and English, were summoned by Attorney Ahern in his exposition of the law of arrest, which he said was a more thorough one than is given in most law schools.

Argues Police Are Guilty Ones.

The four policemen in the pursuit car on the morning of June 13—they were Olson and Walsh, who were killed, Michael Conway, who was wounded, and William Sweeney—were guilty of assault with deadly weapons, and the two survivors of the battle should be prosecuted by State's Attorney Crowe, the defense lawyer argued.

"Olson and Walsh, when they leaped out of that car with guns in hand, put themselves in a position where the defendants had a right to shoot them," Mr. Ahern said. And he turned to the counsel table to get another stack of law books, stubbing his toe on the pile of shotguns and revolvers used by Scalisi, Anselmi and Mike Genna in their battle with the police. The firearms, placed in evidence by the state, were scattered on the floor in front of the jury box.

Cites Another Gun Case.

Quoting from the Supreme court decision in the case of a Chicago gunman charged with murdering a policeman, Mr. Ahern read that the only circumstances under which an officer may arrest without a warrant are when he witnesses the commission of a misdemeanor, or when he has knowledge of a felony and sees the perpetrator. He must know beyond question that his man is guilty before he may arrest him, the lawyer said.

"What if Marty Durkin," interrupted Mr. Crowe, "were to go automobile riding, and a policeman saw him, but was not quite positive of his identity. Could not the policeman seize him?"

"If the policeman did not know that the man was Durkin," Ahern answered, "the man would have a perfect right to tell the officer it was none of his damn business."

Prosecutor's Retort.

The prosecutor turned to Matthew Zimmer, first deputy superintendent of police and said:

"You'd better tell your men to leave Durkin alone."

Ahern's associates said he had spent many hours searching the records, and that his address constituted a "most masterful handling of the law as it now exists by reason of the statutes and of the decisions of the Illinois Supreme court.

Through all the long days of the trial four persons have been in constant attendance. Two of them are Chief Schoemaker and Deputy Zimmer, who worked night and day to obtain the evidence submitted by Prosecutor Crowe. And there are Mrs. Myrtle Olson, deaf-mute mother of the slain policeman Olson, and Miss Helen Cant[illegible], who was to have married him.

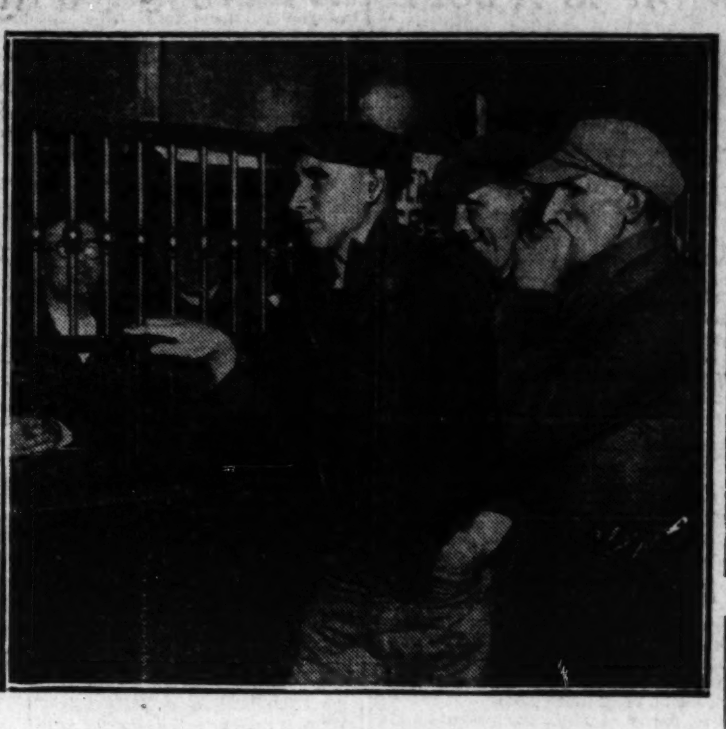
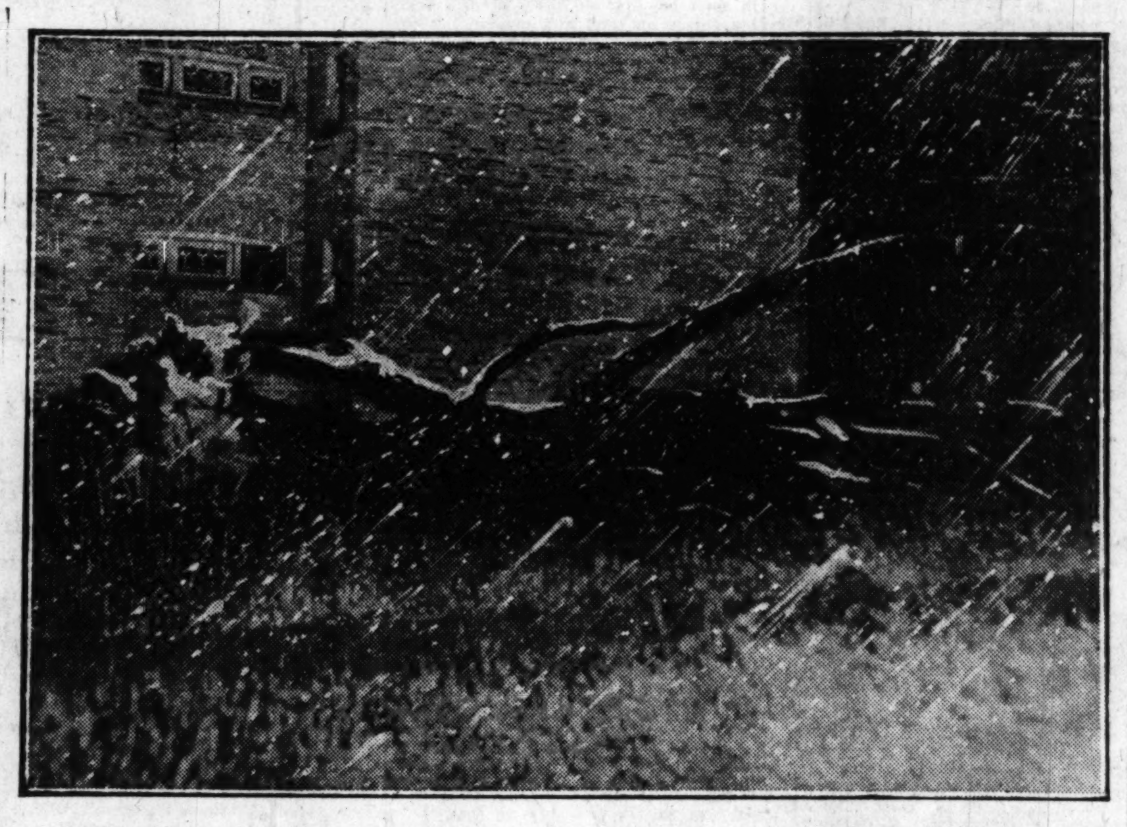
FREEZING GALE, RAIN, AND SNOW SWEEP CHICAGO

A sea of umbrellas filled the busy intersection of State and Madison streets yesterday afternoon during the rainstorm with which the wave of freezing weather began. This picture proves that Saturday shoppers were not daunted. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



Another effect of the cold was the filling of all available space in the Des Plaines street police station with Madison street hobos seeking lodging.



Late in the day the rain turned to snow and a gale did considerable damage in some sections of the city. Picture shows tree uprooted at 5021 North California avenue.

TURKISH PRINCE ACCUSED BY WIFE OF FAKE WEDDING

British Noblewoman Sues for $60,000.

BY KARL LAHM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PRINCE BURHAN EDDINE.

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 7.—The examining magistrate today summoned Prince Burhan Eddine, son of Abdul Hamid, late sultan of Turkey, to come to the police court on the complaint of his wife, Lady Leonore, the widow of the late Lord Douglas. She is now accusing Prince Burhan Eddine of the embezzlement of 300,000 Swiss francs [$60,000] after arranging a false marriage by a bogus Turkish priest.

The prince claims the priest was the real article whom he brought last spring especially from Budapest to perform the ceremony. He qualifies the nuptial tie, however, by saying it was only a "second class marriage ceremony" whereby he reserved the right to dissolve it and send his wife back to her family at any time.

Refuses to Return Money.

The prince also refuses to give back the money, saying that by Turkish law all money is the property of the husband for keeps. The judge called the witnesses to the wedding including Prince Francis Johan of Liechtenstein, the Polish ambassador, Count Karl Romer, Count Jeunenfeld and Baron Wetterstaetten who affirmed the marriage appeared serious.

Nevertheless, the court informed the princess that her marriage is invalid in Austria, where it is necessary to have a civil ceremony.

The princess explained how she met the prince at Monte Carlo last January when she sat beside him at a roulette table and saw him lose heavily. He told her then that he was poverty-stricken and she gave him some money.

Then He Proposes Marriage.

The next day the prince, who is a portly man of about forty—the seventh son of the old sultan—declared his love for Lady Leonore and told her that he was sure to make a big fortune as soon as his Mosul oil lands were sold. Then he proposed. Lady Leonore suggested the wedding be performed in London, but he said he hated London and preferred Vienna.

When Lady Leonore received her yearly income of 400,000 Swiss francs ($80,000) from the Douglas estate she gave the prince three-quarters of it, telling him it was her dowry, but it was to be used for the household expenses.

Barred from Home.

After the wedding the couple went to live in an elegant apartment in Vienna, and then, with the prince's consent, Lady Leonore went to visit her parents in London. When she returned to Vienna she was prevented from entering the apartment by the prince's valet on the prince's orders. The English woman today practically implored the court to prosecute the Turkish prince, who has taken practically all the money she had to live on for a year.

DEAFNESS IS NOW CONQUERED.

Science Aids Thousands.

Some folks imagine that deafness is merely a personal annoyance. But it's far more than that. It ruins the disposition. Upsets the nerves. And taxes the health.

Now science has proven it is needless to remain deaf. A remarkable little personal hearing aid has been perfected by a group of New York scientists. Immediately restores good hearing even to the poorest ears. Results are immediate—there is no waiting—no delay—no danger. You hear at once—clearly, distinctly, naturally.

The inventors are so sure you will be elated with this wonderful little discovery that they offer to send it to you without a string of any kind—for ten days' free trial. No red tape—no deposit—no C. O. D.'s of any kind. To take advantage of this liberal trial offer simply write to the Dictograph Products Corporation, 1230 Lytton Building, Chicago, Ill. In justice to yourself, please do this now.

If you have lost hope through other methods, we are even more anxious to have you try this remarkable little invention. For it will not fail you; and there is nothing for you to lose. Simply send name and address now.—Adv.

POSSIBLE VICTIM OF BEER WAR IS HUNTED IN CANAL

Shooting Story Leads to Dragging.

Police dragged the drainage canal near Blue Island yesterday in the belief that they might find the body of a man supposed to have been mysteriously murdered and thrown into the water late Friday night.

Chester Morton, colored, 551 East 50th street, told the police that while he was driving from Blue Island to Chicago with a woman friend a large high powered sedan passed him on the road. Two shots were heard a moment afterward and he saw the car stop and three men get out carrying the limp body of a fourth. Seeing Morton, one of the men drew a gun, but did not have time to fire before the passerby had sped away.

Find Traces of Blood.

Sergt. Eugene Barry and his detective bureau squad found traces of blood along a trail leading to the drainage canal near the place indicated by Morton.

Police were working yesterday mainly on the theory that the man was the victim of a beer feud who had been "taken for a ride" to pay the penalty for some violation of the gangsters' code. Capt. John Stege of the detective bureau suggested the possibility of a new beer war murder.

The unexplained disappearance of Karl ["Big"] Bates, was recalled. He was reported at one time to have been thrown into Sheehan's lake, near 63d street and Central Park avenue.

May Be Oil Station Head.

The belief was expressed by relatives of Dennis R. Daly, 615 Oakwood boulevard, an oil station superintendent, that the body in the canal may be Daly.

Investigation showed that Daly has been missing since 11 o'clock Wednesday night after being seen last at his filling station, 63d street and South Park way. He was hatless and coatless when he disappeared and members of his family believe he was kidnapped and slain by bandits. No money, however, had been taken from the cash drawer of the filling station.

RULES DAD HAS NO SAY ABOUT DAUGHTER'S BOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The French flappers scored an overwhelming legal victory over old fashioned parents today when the Dijon court ruled that girls can have their hair bobbed without parental consent. The Dijon judge handed down this decision in the case of Mlle. Frere, pretty 17 year old daughter of a prominent Dijon business man.

A few months ago the girl went to a barber shop and had her golden curls bobbed in the latest boyish fashion. The girl's father, enraged, filed suit against the barber for bobbing his minor daughter's hair without the family's permission. The father asked 100 francs (roughly $4) damages.

"The girl, in having her hair bobbed, was only following the styles, and, therefore, did not require parental permission," declared the judge. "The barber only did his duty."

NEW BRIDGES TO LINK BOUL MICH TO OUTER DRIVE

Park Chief Promises Relief by Spring.

Traffic delays caused by the inadequacy of automobile outlets from Michigan avenue to the south side outer drive will be done away with next spring, according to Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board.

At present there are no bridges across the Illinois Central tracks between Monroe street and 8th street. Thousands of motorists, bound from the north side to the Northwestern-Michigan football game at Soldiers' field yesterday, were forced to a snail-like pace from the Drake hotel to the field. The congestion was at its peak shortly before the game, when the trip of a little more than two miles required one hour and ten minutes.

Work Starts in Two Months.

When Mr. Kelly, who attended the Chicago-Illinois game, was informed of the conditions, he said that provisions already had been made for the bridge construction and that construction on some of the viaducts would start within sixty days.

"We are getting ready to straighten out those kinks," he said. "There will be bridges at Harrison street, Van Buren street and Jackson boulevard. We realize the necessity of more outlets to handle the crowds which go to Soldiers' field. There have been delays that were unavoidable. Arrangements had to be made with the Illinois Central, for one thing."

Plan Roosevelt Road Viaduct.

Another project of the South Park board is a viaduct at or near Roosevelt road. Mr. Kelly said that negotiations were on with the city to obtain the necessary authority for its erection. An artery there would connect with the drive at Field museum, just north of the athletic field.

GLAND EXTRACT RETURNS YOUTH, STEINACH SAYS

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Nov. 7.—Announcement of a sensational discovery making possible the rejuvenation of women was made at the session of the Vienna Academy of Science by Prof. Steinach. According to Prof. Steinach and his assistants, Drs. Heinlein and Wiesner, they succeeded in restoring full female characteristics to female animals whose ovaries had been removed. Females which had grown old normally were rejuvenated by the treatment as evidenced by the reappearance of normal feminine cycles. The treatment consists of an injection of extract gained from female germ glands. Prof. Steinach refused to commit himself on the method of preparing the extract or the adaptability of the process to human beings, but it is believed that the discovery will ultimately make it possible to rejuvenate old women.

TWO CHILDREN TO BE EXHUMED IN POISON HUNT

Three in Family Die in Thirteen Months.

Exhumation of the bodies of two children was ordered yesterday by Coroner Oscar Wolff as the first step in an investigation of the mysterious deaths of three children in one family within thirteen months. The three were the children of Herbert Duff, 2148 West Monroe street, who requested an investigation.

Graves in Arlington cemetery of Marion Duff, 3 years old, and her brother, Carl, 2 years old, were opened yesterday under the direction of the coroner. Chemical analysis of the vital organs will be begun at once by Dr. W. D. McNally, coroner's physician, to ascertain whether the children had been poisoned.

Third May Be Exhumed Later.

The body of another son, Herbert, 5, will not be exhumed unless developments warrant, the coroner said. Each of the children died under circumstances that, according to medical authorities, indicate a possibility of murder.

A bill for divorce charging cruelty was filed recently by the children's mother, Mrs. Selma Duff. Her husband, a foreman for Crane & Co., has prepared a cross bill charging that she deserted him two days after the death of the third child on Oct. 2.

"We are not certain of anything," Coroner Wolff said, "but, basing our investigation on the strong suspicions of the father, we have found a maze of extraordinary evidence that either will be dispelled or confirmed by an examination of the bodies."

Poisoning Possible, Doctors Say.

Physicians who attended the children reported to the coroner that each of the children died under similar conditions. Dr. Leslie B. MacDiarmid, 400 North Michigan avenue, who attended Marion, and Dr. Theodore Weller of St. Luke's hospital, Herbert's physician, both said that poisoning might have caused the death of their patients. A post mortem over the body of Herbert, the first to die in September, 1924, was refused by the parents of the child, according to Dr. Weller.

If the suspicions of the father are confirmed, the coroner said, the case will be presented to the grand jury.

YOUTH FOUND ASPHYXIATED.

With a tube from a gas jet in his mouth, the body of a young man believed to be Samuel Harwin, 1234 South Troy street, was found in a rooming house at 2339 West Madison street by Warren avenue police. He had been dead several hours.

KING OF SIAM PICKS WIFE NOW EXPECTING STORK AS NEW QUEEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KING RAMA VI. [Und. & Und. Photo.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Cables received in London tonight from Siam, where the queen was recently demoted, tell the story of the latest developments in the royal household. After depriving his consort of her rank, King Rama VI. has raised another consort, named Chao Chom, to the exalted position of first favorite.

The news was announced that Chao Chom is about to present the royal family with the first child to be born in the palace in thirty-three years. The Princess Lakshi, who recently was deposed, lost her rank because she had never borne a child.

This week a solemn proclamation announced the new queen, his majesty telling his subjects that as she had served the realm faithfully she would be raised to the highest rank in order to give her child the title of crown prince should it be a boy. Chao Chom is a girl, still in her teens.

SCIENTIST FINDS LIVING COMPASS IN HUMAN BODIES

Developed, Tells Hunters How to Locate Camp.

Claremont, Cal., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Hidden away in the human body, hitherto undiscovered, is a minute compasslike organism which registers sense of location, said Dr. W. A. Hilton, head of the department of zoölogy at Pomona college here, in his announcement tonight of this find as the result of lengthy experiments.

The so-called instinct that tells a seasoned hunter how to head for camp after a day in the woods, the same sense that guides some persons, apparently instinctively, through the winding streets of strange cities, is traceable to this special organism, says Dr. Hilton, which points the way as the compass needle indicates the pole.

Other Animals Have It.

Neither has man a monopoly on this anatomical direction finder. He shares it in common with primitive animals whose types have survived the wear and tear of the ages.

The organisms with which Dr. Hilton has been experimenting for months are so small, he declared, that they could be traced and watched only through high powered microscopes. He said:

"They were exasperating things to handle, and more than 90 per cent of those I attempted to study were lost.

"The reactions of these minute organisms were very uncertain. Sometimes it would be three weeks before any favorable results were noticed, and at other times it would be only twenty-four hours.

Forgot Food and Sleep.

"It was necessary to scrutinize them with the utmost care, and when changes are noted it was impossible to leave the microscope. At those times meals and sleep were forgotten."

In conclusion he added: "After seeing such a mass of complexities in life I have a greater respect for the universe than ever before."

Dr. Hilton received his Ph. D. and B. S. degrees from Cornell university.

Police Sergeant Sticks in Trapdoor During Raid

Frank Walsh, sergeant of the Maxwell street police station, became tightly wedged in a narrow trapdoor yesterday during a liquor raid on a basement under a butcher shop at 1233 West Harrison street, his legs dangling in midair until Patrolman Labord entered the cellar by a door and pushed upward on his feet. Police found Nick Genovesi tending three large stills. Louis Cartina of 840 South Lincoln street was arrested.

RUSSIA GIVEN BRITISH BID TO ENTER LEAGUE

London Envoy Confers with Tchitcherin.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GEORGES TCHITCHERIN.
[Copyright: U. & U.]

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—The Russo-British peace and war problems were the object of an important conference held in the Russian embassy tonight between Georges Tchitcherin, the Russian foreign minister, and Lord d'Abernon, the British ambassador in Berlin.

To celebrate the anniversary of the revolution, the Russian embassy issued invitations to prominent men in the political and artistic world of Berlin. For the first time since the war, Great Britain's ambassador attended a Russian embassy reception. It was in honor of M. Tchitcherin, who arrived here from Wiesbaden today.

U. S. Envoy Stays Away.

Chancellor Luther, Foreign Minister Streseman and President von Hindenburg's aide, Gen. von Seckt, headed the German representatives. The entire diplouatic corps, with the exception of the American and Swiss members, attended, and with the others listened to the tune "Internationale" played in honor of the Russian revolution.

But in the midst of these 800 guests Lord d'Abernon and M. Tchitcherin stood alone in the center of the room, all guests keeping a respectful distance, for more than an hour. Some times a wave of curiosity would sway the crowd of diplomats and politicians, throwing them close to the men discussing the Russo-British problems which play a large factor in the world's peace.

Urges Russia to Join League.

M. Tchitcherin is the man who a few weeks ago denounced England's thirst for world supremacy, denounced the league of nations as a British tool, and denounced the Locarno pact as the seal of Great Britain's supremacy. Nevertheless, Lord d'Abernon entered the bear's den to impress upon M. Tchitcherin's mind that the Locarno pact is the only possible solution of Europe's present difficulties and that the league of nations is not Russia's enemy.

The British diplomat pointed out that the best way for Russia to find out the truth is to apply for membership in the league of nations, adding that Russia would be received as a regular member. M. Tchitcherin reserved his decision until the final fate of the Locarno pact is decided, but the politicians are convinced that during his stay in Berlin the Russian official will continue his conferences with Lord d'Abernon to help clear the European atmosphere.

A Strang Gathering.

From dashing monocled officers of the German army to communistic leaders, it was a strange mixture that had assembled at the palace chosen and equipped by the czars for the Russian embassy at Berlin. But every conversation centered on the Locarno pact. The German politicians approached Chancellor Luther with their wishes more easily in this neutral ground than in the reichstag or in Wilhelmstrasse. Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann have been virtually besieged by their countrymen as well as by the diplomatic corps, each one suggesting a new course to help Germany out of the way of its present predicament.

The German democratic press greeted with joy tonight the appointment of an imperial commissioner for the Rhineland as a civilian liaison official between the German government and the Rhineland high commission. Under a heading, "The beginning of the natural consequences," the Vossische Zeitung prints an official statement that Freiherr Langwerth von Simmern will be appointed to the post. An official communique makes it plain that the commissioner is appointed as the result of the negotiations at Locarno.

It is also reported here that the German government has received information that Belgium, France, and England have agreed on the form of concessions toward Germany in the Rhineland. They will be made public either on Nov. 11 or 12.

TRAGEDY'S NOTE IN BLAZER TRIAL; WHAT IS A SOUL?

Sister of Slain Girl Is a Witness.

it save the spiritist believers. Where is it? Hazel's brain, the physical part, was well developed and apparently normal. Is it in the glandular secretions, or is it merely an unified effect that the association cells of the brain give birth to, and would a microscopical examination show that in reality Hazel's brain cells were dead or dying?

Or is the soul merely reasoning power? If so, the law says that murder is the unlawful killing of a reasonable creature.

Fine spun arguments. They were all dimmed with tears today. Perhaps Monday may bring a new light. This courthouse seems to rest close to the stars.

Normal Daughter a Witness.

Mrs. Frances Blazer Bishop, second daughter of Dr. Blazer, had been summoned originally by the state, but she was not called in the sudden shift of plan, and the defense late today placed her on the witness stand. Here was a perfectly normal young woman. Her story had a highly emotional effect upon those in the courtroom. Her father, who had faced death for himself and had willed death for another, sat without marked change of expression, but there were sobs from the audience and tears even in the jury box.

Here is the picture which Mrs. Bishop gave of her sister, three years older than herself:

"She was absolutely helpless. Her back was twisted in the shape of the letter S. She could not sit up except when propped by cushions and then but for a short time. She couldn't stand; she couldn't talk.

"All she could do was to utter weird gutteral sounds, more like those of an animal than of a human being, sounds that were so weird that they scared strangers away from the house.

Could Not Lift Her Hands.

"She could not lift her hands. If a fly lit on her face, she could not scare it off. She could not feed herself.

"Her mind was that of a babe, I would say, about a month old. She never spoke a word. She had many severe illnesses. We could only guess what was wrong and if the treatment was not right she would go off into convulsions. These became less frequent in later years. Always it was father who took care of her.

"How father treated Hazel during 33 years only God will ever know. He gave her the most wonderful love, care, devotion and attention. He poured all his devotion upon her.

"After mother died the only change that I could see in father was that he spent more of his time, more energy, more love, upon Hazel. He spent practically all of his time except that demanded by his practice, at home. He did not seem to recover from the shock of mother's death. He became despondent. He dropped his circle of friends and stayed home with Hazel all the time.

"Hazel had very little amusement except to lie upon the floor and play with paper. She liked to hear the paper rattle. She would take a large piece and roll on it to hear it rattle. When she was in pain she would draw up and get stiff."

Dr. Hugh H. Aldredge, who was called to the Blazer home when Hazel was found dead, testified that the apparent stupor in which he found the doctor, who was lying on the bed with the face of the dead girl turned toward him, was probably because the doctor had taken chloroform with suicidal intent after having killed the girl. Late that same night Dr. Blazer was found in the bath tub after he had slashed his own throat.

The letters written to Frances, introduced by the state, tell the state of mind of the physician. He wrote:

"Dear Daughter: I am weary and afraid, afraid of being taken suddenly and leaving Hazel. I know my blood pressure is very high. I made up my mind a great many years ago I would not leave her behind to be a burden to some one else. She is a burden, notwithstanding our love for her. I have never been even partially reconciled to your mother being taken. You have a very fine baby. Do the best possible for him. Write to my mother.

"DAD."

In a second note he directed Frances not to pay more than $100 for casket and services "for the two of us." He gave directions as to his little property and said: "Either have the ashes interred or scatter them on a windy day."

Dr. Blazer will tell his own story of how he tried to solve the problem of his "child without a soul" Monday when he takes the stand.

Judge Johnson today ordered that all children under 16 years be denied admittance to the trial. He said the philosophies of life that were being brought out at the hearing of the case were not fit for youthful minds to dwell upon.

FIND MAN DEAD IN OLD BARN.

Quake Follows Volcanic Eruption in Aleutian Isles

Cordova, Alaska, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A wireless message received here tonight reported that immediately following an eruption today of Mount Shishaldin on Amnak island, 800 miles southeast of Cordova, in the Aleutian islands, a severe earthquake was felt in the vicinity. The sky, which was clear, this morning was smoky and dark by evening on Unalaska island.

Mother of Bridegroom Attends Golden Wedding

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The honored guest today at the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Walker was Mrs. Sarah Walker, 99, of Rock Island, Ill., mother of the bridegroom. The anniversary was celebrated in the same farm home where the original ceremony was performed a half century ago. Mr. and Mrs. Walker are 76 and 73 respectively.

LEVER-START.

Fords Will Now Start with Gentle Touch of Finger.

Escanaba, Mich.—An invention which is an important necessity to every Ford car has just been announced. This simple device enables the driver to start his motor by a gentle touch with his fingers, eliminating the foot starter. Its most amazing feature, however, is that it will only start the motor by retarding the spark. This prevents dangerous kickbacks, the breaking of Bendix springs and stripped ring gears. The inventor, Mr. A. J. Kirstin, 501 Wells St., Escanaba, Mich., is so proud of his achievement that he wishes to hear from men in each locality, to whom he will send his device on trial and explain his big money making offer. Write him today.—Adv.

JAIL ENEMIES OF MUSSOLINI FOR PLOTTING DEATH

Deputy, General, and an Editor Accused.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GEN. LOUIS CAPELLO.

ROME, Nov. 7.—Arrests of prominent opposition leaders and the detention of others for questioning were the chief developments today in the investigation of the alleged plot for the assassination of Premier Benito Mussolini and the violent overthrow of the Fascist government.

At Naples Ulise Ducci, former chief of the Garibaldi organization known as the Italia Libera, which was disbanded by the government, and a brother of Gen. Louis Capello, said to be the ringleader, were arrested. At Genoa Sig Ansalda, editor of an opposition paper, was seized. Turin saw the arrest of Gen. Gianpietro, and in Leghorn Deputy Capocchi was jailed. Two prominent members of the opposition were seized at Milan.

Free Conspirators' Secretary.

Great significance was attached to the release from prison today of Sig. Quaglia, correspondent of the Popolo and also secretary to Deputy Tito Zaniboni, who, it was charged, was to shoot Sig. Mussolini. It was charged that Sig. Quaglia arranged many of the details of the assassination, including the hiring of the hotel rooms. Sig. Quaglia refuses to talk, and his release from prison was not explained.

"Prominent Masons," whose names are withheld, have been arrested at Terni, where an arms factory is located and where, it is said, the conspirators intended to get their arms for the proposed coup d'état after the assassination.

Opposition Papers Quit.

The few opposition papers still existing are disavowing the plot, stating they have always been opposed to violence in any form and in any capacity by any party. The Corriere della Sera is the only big opposition paper remaining. The republican Voice of Justice has been suspended, and the Mundo is contemplating voluntary suspension following the sequestration of the last few editions. It did not publish tonight.

The discovery of the plot has done considerable toward discrediting the enemies of Fascism, and the government seemingly is more popular than ever. A section of the Liberal party is contemplating joining the Fascisti. Gabriele d'Annunzio, poet-warrior, sent a message by special courier felicitating Sig. Mussolini upon his escape, saying: "God protects the courageous and sincere servers of the country."

Reports Zaniboni Confessed.

ROME, Nov. 7.—[U. P.]—Tito Zaniboni, former deputy of the Unitarian Socialist party and trusted political adviser of the king of Italy, confessed the plot to kill Premier Mussolini and dethrone the Italian monarchy, according to the police today.

DARROW BARES CLUB FORMED TO BAR OUT NEGROES

White District Object, Witness Says.

Detroit, Nov. 7—(AP)—The activities of the Waterworks Improvement association as an agency to thwart the encroachment of negroes in an exclusively "white" neighborhood were developed by witnesses today under the cross examination of Clarence Darrow at the trial of Dr. and Mrs. Ossian H. Sweet and nine other negroes for murder. Darrow heads the defense counsel of which Arthur Garfield Hays of New York and five other attorneys are members.

Four witnesses of the shooting of Leon F. Breiner last Sept. 9 by a volley of shots fired into a crowd from the Sweet home in which the eleven negroes were barricaded, occupied the entire court session today. Three of the four admitted membership in the waterworks association, and one of them, Eber Draper, admitted the organization was actively hostile to the Sweets making their home in the neighborhood.

Admits Membership.

Draper said he had been a member of the association since its formation last summer. Asked by Darrow when he first heard Sweet was going to move into the section, Draper replied, it was a long time ago.

"Did that have anything to do with your joining that club?" Darrow asked.

"Yes."

"You joined that club to aid in keeping that a white district?"

"Yes."

700 Attend Meeting.

Draper said he attended two meetings before the shooting of Breiner and one after. He said that at one of the first meetings reference was made to keeping the district free from Negroes. Seven hundred persons attended the meeting, he said.

Draper admitted he was in the neighborhood of the Sweet house the night of the shooting and the night before. Darrow asked him what he was doing there, and he replied that he was curious about the crowds.

"And the people in the Sweet home?" Darrow suggested.

"I suppose so," Draper answered.

Russell C. Burns, Edward Wettlaufer and Otto Eberhardt told of hearing and seeing volleys fired from the Sweet home, of Breiner's falling, fatally wounded, and of the police action in placing the Negroes under arrest.

WOMEN TONIGHT OPEN CONFERENCE ON CURE OF WAR

An United States senator, a minister and a clubwoman, talking on "The Foundations of Peace," tonight will launch the opening session of a three day conference on the causes and cure of war, which women representing eight Evanston organizations are sponsoring at the Evanston Woman's club.

Senator William B. McKinley will talk on the relation of the state to peace. Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, pastor of the First Methodist church of Evanston, will discuss the place of the church in a peace program. Mrs. James W. Morrison, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will consider the home and universal peace. Mrs. U. S. Grant, president of the Evanston International Relations council, is to preside, and Dr. George Craig Stewart, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, will deliver the opening prayer.

Speakers tomorrow and Tuesday will include: Yusuke Taurumi, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Rufus Dawes, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Prof. Manley O. Hudson of Harvard. Prof. Ernest H. Hahne and Prof. Thomas D. Eliot, both of Northwestern university, will lead round table discussion groups.

The organizations in charge of the conference include: Central Council of Evanston School Clubs, Evanston League of Women Voters, Evanston Missionary union, International Relations council, University Young Women's Christian association, Woman's Christian Temperance union, Evanston Woman's club, and its young woman's auxiliary.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

LAUNCH ATTACK ON GIRL'S ACTS IN DRAGON TRIAL

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Testimony intended to show that Madge Oberholtzer willingly participated in an alleged trip to Hammond, Ind., last March 15 and that she was not abducted was presented in the murder trial of D. C. Stephenson, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry here today.

The state charges the former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana with forcibly removing the girl from Indianapolis and attacking her.

A dying declaration signed by Miss Oberholtzer said she took poison after being mistreated and that Stephenson and his body guards withheld medical aid after learning her condition.

Hotel Manager Testifies.

James H. Lambert, assistant manager of the Washington hotel, Indianapolis, testifying for the defense, said he had seen Miss Oberholtzer alone in a car similar to that owned by Stephenson in front of the hotel the night of the alleged abduction. He was certain the woman was Miss Oberholtzer, he continued, because he had seen her with Stephenson several times.

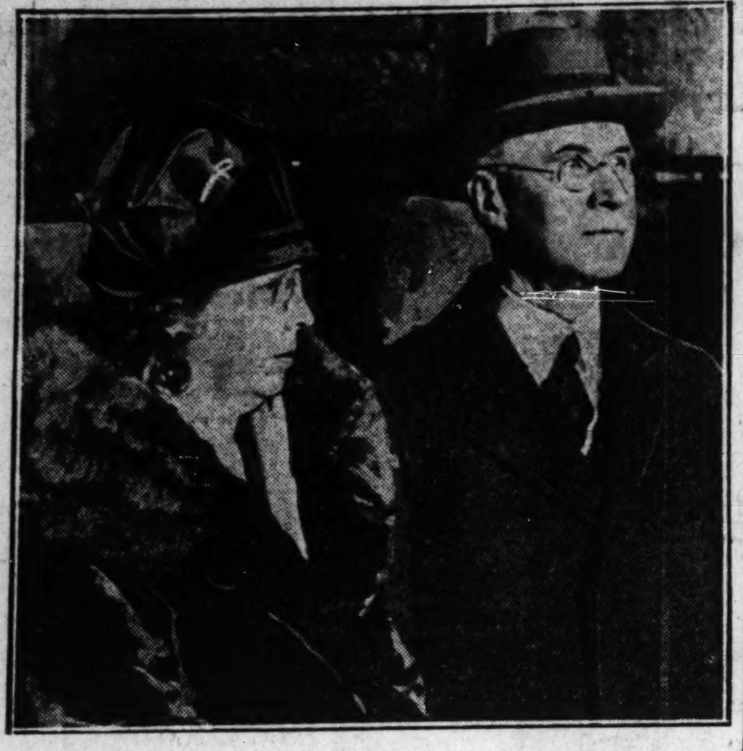
In her dying statement Miss Oberholtzer charged that Klenck and Gentry, with guns held against her body, prevented her from obtaining help when the machine stopped in front of the Washington hotel.

Seen with Stephenson.

Other persons called by the defense testified to having seen Miss Oberholtzer with Stephenson at night in Columbus, Ind., and in Laurel, Ind.

Activties of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana and its relationship with state politics were developed slightly by the state in cross examination of defense witnesses. Former members of the klan were loathe to go into details of the organization's many meetings and gave little information.

COMMANDS FORT SHERIDAN



Brig. Gen. Michael Lenihan, accompanied by Mrs. Lenihan, arriving in Chicago to take charge of army post. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Benjamin Poore. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

GEN. LINEHAN TAKES CHARGE AT FT. SHERIDAN

When Brig. Gen. Michael J. Linehan took over the command of the 12th brigade and Fort Sheridan yesterday, there was no turnout of troops, the new commandant having telegraphed that he did not want his arrival to interfere with week-end plans at the post.

Gen. Linehan also will be acting commander of the sixth corps area until the return of Maj. William S. Graves, who is in Washington as a member of the Mitchell trial board.

The new Fort Sheridan commander was born in Massachusetts in 1865. He is a West Pointer and served with temporary rank of brigadier general with the Rainbow division in France. He was given permanent rank on Oct. 10.

For the present Gen. and Mrs. Linehan will live at the Moraine hotel, Highland Park.

KID WEIL'S FAST LEG WORK PUTS LAW FAR BEHIND

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Yellow Kid Weil did a Marty Durkin out of the Sheffield avenue police station yesterday morning.

He didn't say it with bullets. That would be too crass for the dapper gentleman in the neatly pressed checkered suit, the political looking derby, and the pure white collar with the wide open spaces over the Adam's apple. Nor did he make his get-away with his customary weapon, thousands of words, intoned passionately before a judge.

No, the kid fell back on the good old fashioned heel, toe; heel, toe; and took it on the lam from the seventeenth step of the rickety outside stairway which leads from Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen and justice to the gutter and freedom.

Mr. Joseph Weil put it all over Red Grange getting down those stairs, and as this paper goes to press he still is going in the opposite direction from the Bridewell, which is where the law wants him to go. Where the law proposes to keep him for one long year, once they ever get him there.

But to return to the saga of Weil, the Nurmi of Sheffield avenue.

He stood there on the step, considering whether to go. Above him was the judge and Assistant State's Attorney Eli Herrin. Above him was Attorney Max Haleff, the first of the Kid's second hundred lawyers for this year. Below him was the gutter, the rain, and an orator's chance of dodging the capias, the mittimus, the warrant and the other parchments that some bailiff or other always is thrusting into the Kid's hands.

Hears Unwelcome Words.

Attorney Haleff was importuning Judge Immenhausen to continue the case for just two more days, just a puny two more days. Out on the stairs the Kid heard the syllables. But Judge Immenhausen was in no mood for continuances. Hadn't the case, in which Weil is charged with having passed a wrong check for $300, and on his boy hood friend, one Robert McNair, been up six weeks ago when the Kid was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell, then paroled, then the parole was voided, because of the Kid's previous legal residence in a penal institution.

Wasn't this the same case, the judge was recalling, which had come up again thirty days ago; hadn't he been granted a thirty day continuance in which to file an appeal. The time expired at midnight Friday. It was the judge recalled Saturday, come ten o'clock. Was that any way to treat the law?

Now the Kid, all alone out there in the rain, hears Judge Immenhausen order Attorney Haleff to:

"Bring Joseph Weil into court. He goes to the Bridewell for one year."

Legally Weil was on his way to the bandhouse. Actually the Kid was taking those seventeen steps in quintettes, after pausing long enough to ask his attorney "what happened."

Bailiffs Poor Sprinters.

Somebody told the judge. The judge sent a pair of athletic bailiffs out after him. But he had a head start.

The legal machinery was set in motion. Some one phoned Richey Graham, superintendent of the Bridewell that Weil was coming.

"So is Christmas," a doubter muttered.

Left waiting at the church, where she was to have married Frederick Wissing, wealthy banker of Melrose Park, Miss Freda Mierrow, 4851 North Lincoln street, brought suit yesterday for $50,000 damages against the banker, charging breach of promise.

According to Attorney D. F. Bustin, Wissing's first wife died a year ago, leaving a $100,000 estate. Wissing is also wealthy in his own right.

Then, Wissing met Miss Mierrow, according to the attorney, and proposed to her. The marriage was set for June 15, but Miss Mierrow waited in vain for Wissing to show up. Instead, she found, Wissing had married another woman.

C. F. Julian, Broker, Leaves $115,000 Estate to Widow

All the $115,000 estate left by the late Carl F. Julian, broker, who died Oct. 18 at the age of 76 years, was given to his widow, Mrs. Johanna Julian, 1437 Farragut avenue, accordnig to the will filed yesterday in the Probate court.

The Table

All solid Walnut except five-ply Walnut Veneer top. Spanish in design; the double molded recess apron carries out the characteristics of the design. The cut cornered top measures 45x60-inches and extends to 6-feet. The serpentine stretchers connecting the nicely turned legs are true to the Spanish influence. Finished Antique Walnut. This suite is made by our direction, just as sturdily as it is possible to manufacture furniture.

The Chairs

Matching the Table in design and finish, the Chairs are all Solid Walnut. The slip seats are covered in a Tapestry of a Floral Decoration in blended colors of subdued greys, blues and reds—in keeping with their Spanish style. In the group are five Side and one Arm chair.

The chairs are big, roomy, heavy construction, "never-wear-out" type.

THIS IS UP TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, NOT THE MARINES.

President Coolidge will not extend the leave of Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler of the Marine corps after Dec. 31 to serve as the head of the Philadelphia police department. Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia got Gen. Butler his first leave and assignment. He and Senator Pepper asked that the leave be continued.

The mayor thought that a marine general could clean up Philadelphia. The marines can keep Haiti in order. They can give Nicaragua a government. They can stop Chinese disorders. "The marines have landed and the situation is well in hand."

Butler failed in Philadelphia. He has said so several times. Several times he has wanted to quit. He did not land in Philadelphia with the system of which he is a part. He was an unusual force asked to operate on the morals and prevent the crime of a self-governing city.

The Philadelphians who wanted him to come and who want him to stay have the mistaken idea that the American people can get correction of their faults from the top. They don't and they can't. They get them from the bottom and they will so long as they remain democratic and governed by their own decisions. They cannot be handed something good which they have not the determination to have.

If democratic self-government had been abolished in Philadelphia and if Butler had been sent in with a sufficient force, Philadelphia would have become exactly what he wanted it to become. It would have conformed to military law. Crime would have been stopped. Vice would have been controlled. Politics would have faded away. Butler would have been an effective autocrat. The court-martial would have disposed of violators. Undesirable citizens would have distributed themselves throughout the adjacent countryside. But Philadelphia would not be expressing itself but would be an exhibit of the law of the marines.

In what it was before Butler tried out this failure and while he did it and in what it will be when he returns to the marines, Philadelphia was and will be itself, just as any other city is. It presented what its indolence and inertia permitted and what its will and determination got.

This city has a better chance than many other great American communities to be itself in correct living and good government. It has a background and tradition of the Quakers. It has not tried for the lure of New York. It has not tried to entertain the cavalier and western buyer. The big butter and egg man goes to New York. Youth for a fling goes to New York. Philadelphia is not such a port as New York and it is not, as Chicago, the clearing house of the country. It is or could be a city of respectable householders, content with their tradition and their surroundings and wishful that life should be tranquil and well ordered.

If Philadelphia does not realize what it thinks is its wish, it cannot blame it on the marines. The moment an American city needs the marines it has confessed that it is not worthy of democracy or that it does not want it.

There could not be any greater confession of failure in the American system than that there should be an acknowledgment that government must come from outside. American cities can have such government if they all agree to it. It is a confession of defeat. But it cannot be obtained without the full force which Gen. Butler represents when he is on his own job, and when that confession has been made American citizens have said that they are incapable of governing themselves.

They can't call a god from the machine to correct the faults which they themselves permit and still retain the idea that they are governing themselves. The marine system can govern them, but one marine officer cannot, and if he could they would be worthless, worthless either way, under the full system or under the individual officer.

Any American community had better take the consequences of its own democracy rather than call in an agency of morals and a preserver of order, even if he were successful. When the American people begin to think less of mechanism and more of character they will be getting down to the foundation of their order, well-being, and moral good.

They will not have this bestowed on them from above and remain a free people. As a free people they cannot get salvation from a legislature which gives them laws they do not want or from a marine officer who tries to give them security they have not earned or morality they have not deserved. None of this will work.

Government, public morals, decency in life and in the conduct of affairs rest on the character of the people. They cannot sustain themselves otherwise. They will not get something they have not deserved or anything they do not want, if they want to be free. They can get it from a superior breed. They can get it handed to them. They can get it from the top. But then they are not self-governing.

It is most important just now that the American people should know that they get just what their own character gets for them and that in a free government they should get it. If they get anything else they ruin their scheme of government and we do not believe they will when they have the idea that the course of their lives is entirely of their own decision and should be.

Character is the basis of a nation. Laws are its expression. Administrators are of its choice. There is no substitute for character, either in Philadelphia or elsewhere. It cannot be expressed in statute and it cannot be expected in the police force or the rules and regulators of life unless it exists in the population governed by the one and regulated by the other.

DEFENSE AGAINST A WORLD'S ENVY.

American citizens having at heart the welfare and safety of their country are troubled at the thought of what would happen to the United States in case of war. Word concerning the state of the national defense comes constantly to their ears. The aviation inquiry, now occupying the limelight, is but one of many indications that things are not as they should be. National Guardsmen recently were moved to protest against a government policy which failed to provide them with the funds contemplated under the national defense act of 1920.

Still more recently a report has come to us that there will not be money enough next year to provide adequate uniforms for the high school R. O. T. C. If this report is true, it is one of the most disquieting we have heard since the teaching of economy replaced the lessons learned at such cost during the war.

More than an important part of America's contemplated system of national defense, the high school R. O. T. C. is, in our opinion, one of the most valuable portions of a boy's education.

We were among the first to preach universal military training, and even though we failed in bringing about adoption of our views, we still hold to our text. We can urge at least that what was gained by the agitation for universal military training—the institution of training courses in schools, colleges, and camps—be not left to die for lack of support.

There should be more military training instead of less. Six months or a year of it should be required of every young man who expects to enjoy the benefits of American citizenship. Inserted in the high school and college years, in the years when young men are unmarried and have not yet settled down to work, it would bring no hardship, while its benefits, national and individual, would be well worth the cost.

With the memory of the war's bitter lessons still upon it, with the need of preparedness still strongly impressed, congress in 1920 passed the national defense act. It marked, so every one said, a new epoch in the nation's history. It was the first time that the United States had ever formulated such a definite plan.

The act of 1920 contemplated a regular army of 280,000 men, a National Guard which should reach a strength of between 400,000 and 500,000 men by 1925, an officers' reserve training annually 200 officers for three months and 25,000 officers for fifteen days, a reserve officers' training corps turning out each year 5,000 men, and a citizens' military training camp system which would give instruction every summer to 100,000 men.

That was the plan. The subsequent fate of the regular army is indicative of the way the whole project worked out. The regular army was cut to 125,000 officers and men, less than half the number contemplated in 1920, while officers of the National Guard, instead of being at the head of half a million men, have had to plead for provision for 250,000. The other branches of the service have suffered in almost parallel fashion.

The reserve munitions supply is disappearing. Material is lacking. Manufacture has been confined largely to experimentation and the building of models.

The picture is enough to bring worry to those who have not forgotten America's plight of eight years ago. It is poor economy that has brought it about—if it is economy entirely—and we believe there may be other forces at work.

A whole world looks at America with jealous eyes because of her prosperity and her freedom from internal complications. America stands isolated by her own choice. Isolated, regarded with jealousy—it is no time for America to jeopardize her national defense for the sake of a few dollars or a few million dollars.

DEVELOPMENTS IN COLLEGE SPORTS.

Back in the eighties Yale, Harvard, and Princeton had a game called football which they seemed to find interesting. It was about as much related to the general sports of the country as English rugby or soccer. For a long time they kept their football learning to themselves and the other schools went at the game timidly, as if they were intruders.

Even after Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Brown, and Cornell broke in, tradition said that proficiency was in the east. The east had two policies, to retain the ball and tackle hard. Even now the tackling in the east is said to be harder than elsewhere. To take a chance on losing the ball was madness. Basketball went more rapidly in the west than it did in the east. The western players learned passing. They were quicker to get away from the rule of never turning the ball loose when it could be held by a carrying back. They took chances with a loose ball and their teams began to find it easy in the east. Now the east has accepted the western game. If when Dartmouth comes out here to play Chicago it plays the game as it played it against Harvard the west will see passing of great brilliance.

Just as Princeton, Yale, and Harvard put football in the college sports they are now, with football preëminence gone, introducing polo. It is making its bid for recognition as a minor college sport and may become a major sport. Ten, fifteen, or twenty years from now the great crowds which turn out for college sports may be watching the college polo matches.

It will be a great game for the old grads. They can buy the ponies. It won't require the Rhodes scholarship idea or any under cover work. Whitney says he will give Yale ponies for next year. Happy days when this game gets going strong. We don't know the half of it yet.

YOU CAN'T BLAME THE ARABS.

Mohammedans under the yoke of England, France and Italy are receiving secret appeals to rise against the oppressors. George Seldes, THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent at Damascus, has seen some of the inflammatory pamphlets that are being circulated in French Syria. They urge Mohammedans serving in the French army to refuse to obey orders or desert. They call the French commanders murderers. Similar appeals are being made to Mohammedans throughout Asia and Africa.

The war taught the yellow and black and brown men that white armies could taste defeat. That was bad for white prestige. Dark skinned men served in the allied armies and so long as they were near the front were generally treated as equals or near equals of the whites. Then they went home to Africa and Asia and found that they were not so good after all. They were members of backward races. They were "not yet ready to stand by themselves under the strenuous conditions of the modern world." The tutelage of "such peoples" was "intrusted to advanced nations." The quotations are from the Versailles treaty.

Europe told the peoples of Asia and Africa that they were incompetent and unable to take care of themselves. They needed to be mandated. Rumblings began at once in all the far corners of the world and some not so far. Nobody with any spunk wants to be told he is inferior, particularly if he suspects it is true. That is what Europe told the Mohammedans. They are now replying with insurrection. It is the only answer that men of spirit can make.

If the peace conference had not had so much idealism, so called, to hinder it, much of the difficulty might have been avoided. The victorious powers might have parceled out the captured territory as crown colonies and let it go at that. Nobody likes to be ruled by foreigners, but it is not so bad if the foreigners base their right to rule on simple force. More honesty would have made for peace.

OUR MASTERS.

At a Friday session of the convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, Judge Charles A. Pollock of Fargo, N. D., said that twenty-eight years ago there was a small meeting in Columbus, O., for temperance, and a young fellow just out of college came to him and said he thought there was a good field in temperance law and asked his advice. He said, "'Go to it, young man,' and he's been going to it ever since. That was Wheeler. Wheeler, come out here."

Wheeler came out. He is Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the league, with a fine salary, residence in the most delightful city of the country, Washington, an autocrat's chair in congressional circles and with dictatorial powers. The success of his career, chosen as a career in his youth, required the subjection of his fellow citizens to a rule of intolerance. If he failed to bring them under the heel he would be lucky to be writing mortgages in an Ohio village.

O. G. Christgau, editor of the American issue, speaking at the same session, wanted contributions, pledges for a five year campaign. Give till it hurts. Something from everybody. Cash for the careers. The league does not report the source or say where it goes but the partisans are to give and the work of making the habits and customs of all the people of the United States conform to the opinions of some will proceed through well paid general counsels, secretaries and superintendents.

To round out the session Andrew J. Volstead, the Volstead, said that he wanted to see the people who were drinking liquors and beverages declared illicit by his law put in jail and kept there. He also draws a salary for preaching intolerance.

These are our masters, unpleasant people seeking careers in the successful manhandling of the American people, and doing very well for themselves financially.

THE WORLD COURT TRIBUNAL.

If our pacifists, leaguists, legalists, and optimists get the United States into the world court this is the tribunal before which any case involving America would come:

Hans Max Huber.
Rafael Altamira y Crevea.
Charles André Weiss.
Dionisio Anzilotti.
Antonio Sánchez de Bustamante.
Robert Bannatyne Viscount Finlay.
Bernard Cornelis Johannes Loder.
John Bassett Moore.
Didrik Galtrup Gjedde Nyholm.
Yorozu Oda.
Epitacio da Silva Pessoa.
Frederik Valdemar Nikolai Beichmann.
Mikhailo Jovanovich.
Demitrie Negulescu.
Wang Ch'ung-hui.

Read the list out loud, if you can.

That body might determine, for instance, the right of the United States to police the streets of Panama in the event of disturbances getting out of local control or the right to land troops in Haiti to end government by assassination.

In the Hague tribunal which the United States has supported the judges are chosen by the parties to the controversy and they can be chosen for their particular fitness to hear the case at issue. They can be selected with a view to their freedom from prejudice and national interest. A case going to the world court goes to a fixed tribunal, regardless of the character of the issue and the probable or apparent unfitness of the tribunal to decide it without nationalistic bias, traditional, inherited, or inherent.

Editorial of the Day

THE CANAL AND THE WEST.

[The Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal.]

Noting that the rate of 90 cents a box on apples from Pacific ports through the Panama canal to the markets of Great Britain is only 15 cents more than the rail rate from these inland empire orchards to the middle western and eastern markets, the Spokane Spokesman-Review calls for an adequate merchant marine. On ships, it says, the prosperity of the Pacific northwest depends, and it reminds its readers that "the producers of the Pacific northwest owe an everlasting debt of gratitude to Theodore Roosevelt."

All the country will rejoice with the Pacific northwest because of its growing industry, but for the interior the Panama canal has created a knotty problem. With the interior forced to depend on rail transportation to its big city markets and to tidewater the competition of the water-borne products of the Pacific northwest is sure to be felt more and more. Wisconsin's canning industry faces the pinch of inequality between overland and waterway transportation. Pea packers of the state must pay nearly 30 cents more per hundredweight than would packers of the Pacific states in laying down their peas in carload lots in New York city. Already overtures have been made to some of our canners to move their machinery to the coast.

The economic way for the interior to meet competition of the Panama canal, which the west helped to build, is to open the St. Lawrence waterway, giving the interior also a cheaper outlet to the great consuming centers. This, however, can hardly be finished under 10 years, if work were started tomorrow, and an industry can be ruined in that time.

THE WAVE OF COLDS.

JUST at this time of the year the children begin to miss school. When they turn in their excuses it is found that "had a cold" leads the list. Towards Christmas the story may be "sore throat" or it may be "had a cough," but now it is "had a cold."

Clerks and factory workers are also turning up with colds. Many of them stay home from work. What is more important, many of them come to work in spite of their colds, headaches, aching and fevers, and infect their fellow employés.

The thing comes in waves and just about now the first big wave is due. It is significant that just now, or last week, or some other time about now, the windows go down. All summer people have been living in open window rooms. Offices have been on the open window basis. Factories have had the windows up. Stores have been enjoying natural ventilation. But somewhere in October it got cool, especially before 11 in the morning and after 3 in the afternoon. Down went the windows! Up went the colds.

The two synchronize. Soon after the one happens the other follows. Always has been that way. Most everybody has noticed it. Most people know these two occurrences to be cause and effect.

The bad part of it is that colds are cumulative. About Thanksgiving the sore throat will pile up on top of the colds. Along in December the waves of coughs will come. Finally, along in January, pneumonia will grip us. The colds will still be with us, but out of that soil these other noxious weeds will be growing.

Dr. Nesbit tells us that in the public schools in Gary last session, 10,364 pupils lost 23,272 days from school because of colds. The total number of pupils was 14,279. Colds, sore throats, and coughs caused 36 per cent of all illness and 35 per cent of the total number of days lost from all illness.

The school teachers fared even worse. In the Gary schools the teachers lost 625 days from school because of colds, sore throats, and coughs. This group of troubles caused two-fifths of all the cases of illness and two-fifths of all the time lost.

Colds are a serious matter in Gary—as they are everywhere else. If putting the windows down causes the sickness rate from colds to mount so, why not leave them up? We might leave them up in the middle of the day, anyhow. We might leave them open for, say, five or ten minutes out of every hour. Some simple scheme ought to work. It is worth while doing something to escape this first autumn wave of colds.

SHOULD MENTION NAMES.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A company, not incorporated, is doing business under a firm name such as the "Upland Store." Can it be sued under the firm's name or must the owner or an officer be mentioned in the bill of complaint? J. L. H.

They can be sued under the firm name, but in order to render the collection of the judgment convenient it is ordinarily advisable to name the individuals, for example, John Smith and George Jones, co-partners, doing business as the Star Store.

NINETY DAY NOTICE TO MOVE.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I signed a lease for a year for a flat, with a ninety day clause in the lease, that it will be canceled if the building is sold or leased for a long term. The building has been sold and I have been given the ninety day notice that my lease expires Dec. 31. Must I stay until that time or can I move before that date. J. W. P.

As far as facts stated are concerned you cannot move until December 31 unless you secure the landlord's expressed consent.

LEAVES THREE WILLS.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A person dies leaving three wills and the heirs have started to contest the last one which was filed. The attorney for the heirs says the trust officers of the bank, the trustees, say that, if the contest is against them, they will file the second will for trial, which they have done. The first case has not been tried yet. Does not the last will stand as final? H. C.

If there is a question as to subsequent wills it is proper to file the latest unquestioned will. If on hearing one of the questioned wills is sustained the latest valid will should stand, and unless its wording is unusual it will entirely supersede previous wills.

CLOTHES ON TIME.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In April 1924, my wife introduced a friend of hers to a credit clothing house and guaranteed payment of this friend's account. The friend bought some clothing and paid the account in full in time. My wife had signed her name to an agreement which would completely assign the signer's wages. Now this friend has always paid her bills but her husband recently bought clothes amounting to $200, on this account, and has left a balance of $90. The firm has notified my employer that they hold an assignment of my wages for failure to turn my salary over to them. Could my wife have assigned my wages, on facts stated? J. L. O.

Your wife would have no power to assign your wages. We cannot advise to advantage as to the further effect of the instrument which she signed without knowing its exact wording. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

EXCEPTIONS TO THE QUOTA.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—Are any exceptions being made by which a person could come to this country in spite of the quota of his native country? J. G.

The wife or child under 18 years of age of a citizen of the United States is admissible exempt from the quota. The husband or children between 18 and 21 years of age and the father or the mother of a citizen of the United States are in the preferred class under the quota. Domiciled aliens returning from a temporary visit abroad are exempt. Students coming to an institution approved by the secretary of labor. Ministers of many religious denominations or professors in a college, academy, or seminary are exempt, and navies of all countries having independent governments in North or South America are exempt. HOWARD D. EBEY,
District Director of Immigration.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 8, 1865.

CHICAGO.—Great union victories were gained in elections in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, and Iowa.

CHICAGO.—The union ticket triumphed in Chicago by a majority of 15,000. The attendance was not large at the polls. Due to splitting votes for soldiers on the bolters' ticket, the count of the ballots was greatly delayed.

WASHINGTON.—Capt. Wirz, former military governor of the Andersonville prison, will be hanged Friday in the old Capitol prison under the direction of Maj. Russell, provost marshal. Wirz was convicted of a long list of crimes and extreme cruelty to prisoners, which resulted in several deaths. His trial cost the government $1,000,000.

WASHINGTON.—It is reported on good authority that Jeff Davis is about to be tried by a jury of his peers without delay. He is charged with treason.

PARIS.—The emperor and empress delayed their departure from the capital and will not leave until the cholera has abated. Deaths are averaging 200 daily from the disease. The emperor visited two hospitals to view conditions first hand.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 8, 1900.

CHICAGO.—McKinley and Roosevelt's sweep of the nation at Tuesday's election has been phenomenal. The electoral majority of four years ago has been far surpassed and the great victory in the presidential race has been supplemented by an entirely unexpected landslide toward Republicans in congressional districts. McKinley's plurality in Cook county was 17,835. Charles S. Deneen, Republican candidate for state's attorney, won by 25,649. Fred Upham was elected to the board of review by 24,253. On the other hand, George Berz was defeated for coroner by J. E. Traeger, Democrat, by a small majority.

CHICAGO.—The 1900 campaign will be memorable in Chicago as marking the defeat—some call it the "passing"—of William Lorimer, congressman from the second district, often called the "Boss of the Tenth Ward." John J. Feeley, the man who humiliated the erstwhile boss, is 25 years old and an "unknown."

CHICAGO.—As the election smoke cleared away Republicans began to discuss candidates for mayor. Among names mentioned were those of Graeme Stewart, John Maynard Harlan, and Frank Fowler. Lorimer's defeat buried the boom of W. J. Moxley, the butterine man, for the mayoralty.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—An event of more than ordinary interest in local society was the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Samuel A. Wheeler, and Harry O. Phillips of Chicago.

CHICAGO.—Miss Agnes Florence Kennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Kennett, and Walter Hamlin Dupee, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dupee, were married at the Metropole.

NEW YORK.—Elbridge T. Gerry resigned the presidency of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, which he founded 21 years ago.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 8, 1915.

CHICAGO. — The United Societies' demonstration against Mayor Thompson's Sunday saloon closing order was the largest and in many respects the most spectacular street parade held in Chicago in recent years. It was three times as large as Mayor Thompson's prosperity parade when he was inaugurated and five times as large as the recent "dry" parade that welcomed the mayor home from California. By actual count there were 2,242 vehicles and 44,155 persons in line. It was a riot of color and music for "personal liberty."

WASHINGTON. — President Wilson's long expected protest against the British blockade, the operation of which has violated international law, contravened American rights, and damaged American commercial interest to the extent of millions of dollars, was made public by the state department. It demands that neutrals be given their rights at sea and declares America will not recognize the blockade, but it is the mildest note of major importance addressed to the belligerents in the present war.

GENEVA.—The poisonous gas factory at Dornach, Alsace, was attacked by French aviators and practically destroyed, a Basel report says.

LONDON.—A Saloniki correspondent says the Serbian government and headquarters staff have gone to Kraljevo on their way to Novibasar, and that King Peter is lying ill there.

CHICAGO. — Moses F. Rittenhouse, president of the Rittenhouse & Embree company, and one of the pioneer lumbermen of Chicago, died at the age of 69.

CHICAGO.—Weddings of Saturday, Nov. 6, included these: Miss Madeline Wakem, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wallace Wakem, 1235 Astor street, and Charles Banes of Philadelphia, at St. James' church; Miss Helen Judah, daughter of Noble B. Judah, 2701 Prairie avenue, and Carl T. Schunneman of St. Paul, at the Judah home; and Miss Lillian Plamondon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton, and J. Spencer McCourtney of St. Louis.

THE BOARD OF TRADE REFORMS.

Galena, Ill., Nov. 2.—It seems to me that Secretary Jardine's effort to reform the Board of Trade is a complete failure so far as being beneficial to the producers of grain; but, if he wanted to benefit and protect the speculators and especially the mutimillion bushel trader, he has been more successful.

No doubt the majority of the members of the board have, for reasons best known to themselves, been praying for these so-called reforms for some time, but never dared to incorporate them into their bylaws without some governmental authority. To get the authority by legislation wasn't likely, so they got the secretary. It's their getaway in case the public gets after them.

The corn trader this year will have to take into consideration the location of the surplus corn. This surplus seems to be located in that part of the corn belt where the farmers are not habitual corn sellers, but raise corn for feed and not to sell. They even buy some when it's cheap and do not sell except when it's away up in price. Only a few, except the habitual corn seller, will take less than one dollar per bushel for corn.
C. HENDERSON SMITH.

FOOTBALL AND DRINK.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Regarding Mr. Miral's criticism of the great college sport, I feel sure that if Mr. Miral had given it any forethought he could not, with conviction, characterize the game as being "ribald." Almost anything but that. It requires the utmost in fitness, both physical and mental, to participate in it successfully. As to its being "low and base," a few derivatives of the word "ribald," I wonder why it is being sponsored by our highest institutes of learning and patronized by the intellectuals of the nation so enthusiastically.

Why condemn the sport as being an incentive to drink. Mr. Miral says: "The way to counteract this evil is apparent—abolish football." Why not go a little deeper and abolish the real cause? But that is up to the authorities, and anyway, I am not writing on prohibition. How any level-minded citizen can see in the abolition of football a cessation of the violation of prohibition is beyond me. THOMAS P. RYAN.

MR. MIRAL NEEDN'T ATTEND.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Why be a dog in the manger, Mr. Miral? If you don't like football, why attend the games? There is no law to compel you to go.
REAL FOOTBALL FAN.

HE LIKES HIS FOOTBALL.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—In defense of the greatest of American games, football, I would like to state that any attempt to abolish the game would be like unto moving the rock of Gibraltar. It can't be done. Young people going to and from these games naturally are enthused and because some drink is no reason to state all do, and therefore do away with our beloved game. In other words, try and do it. I'm sure the majority of fans will stand with me in the game's defense, as we see the game for the thrills and excitement, and interest it creates. T.

FOR THROUGH STREETS.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Why not let us have a crisscross through street system, these streets to be 100 ft. wide, with brick paving, and stop and go lights, for either auto or truck traffic? Such a system in my opinion will take 80 per cent of the traffic from the street car lines, thereby cutting down the surface line running schedule 20 per cent. It will also make the street safer for shoppers and their families, resulting in increased business for the storekeeper, and last but not least it will reduce accidents to a minimum. M. J. WHELAN.

BUSINESS AND SPORT.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—I believe that your editorials in regard to sports are a little too businesslike and practical and I have been very sorry to see the world of sports becoming more and more a commercial affair rather than a thing where sentiment and good sportsmanship should take first place. DONALD MCKINLAY,
Alderman, 19th Ward.

A DRY CONVERTED.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—I was a booster for prohibition until some of your sensible arguments showed me how idiotic were my convictions. MRS. T. F.

LONDON'S LOCAL TRANSPORTATION.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Senator Barr's remarks (as quoted) would create the impression that the street car service of London is wholly under the control of Lord Ashfield (the Mr. Albert Stanley of American days). Whilst Lord Ashfield's companies control the tube railways and the busses, they control only the London United Tramways, a suburban line which comprises perhaps 5 per cent of the total car mileage of London. With this exception the whole of London's street car service is controlled by the London county council, and therefore municipally owned, a fact which London ratepayers know to their cost, as each year they have to pay rates to make good the deficiency on the cost of the service.

Whatever value Lord Ashfield's observations may have on street car transportation, he cannot be credited with running the whole of London's cars, only a very small percentage of them, and, even then, far away from the really congested areas.

It must be remembered, too, that Lord Ashfield's bus services compete with the municipally owned cars and any view which he may express might be tainted with some little prejudice in consequence. In fact, when I read his opinion that "taxation would soon be supporting London transportation," it occurred to me that his motive was to frighten the London county council and the people of London from spending more money to develop and extend the system and thus give his busses the [illegible]. Where he has no competition his fares are a shade heavier. London bus and car fares are a certain sum for a certain distance, not a set sum for any distance.

If London transportation or any other city for that matter is to be used as a guide to the settlement of the question of Chicago's transportation, then let the facts be accurate. G. KELSEY.

A LAW TO STOP GUN-TOTING.

Carthage, Ill., Nov. 2.—Your editorial entitled "Federal Law Against Guns" is a timely attack against the worst evil that exists today in this country. With all due respect to your opinion, I feel safe in saying that there is a better way of suppressing the gun-toting habit. A federal law does not [illegible] with an army of officers trying to enforce it, and a federal law will not prevent gunmen from [illegible] prohibiting the importing of guns into the United States will do no good. Too many guns are made here for a shortage to be brought about that way.

A law making it a penitentiary offense to carry a gun illegally is the only law that will do any good. It makes no difference whether it is a federal law or a state law; that is the kind of law that is needed. Our laws against carrying concealed weapons accomplish but one thing; they encourage crooks to carry guns and prevent law-abiding citizens from doing so. Since all crooks carry guns, everybody else should have them; they should have a right to do so. Nobody will dispute that.

A law should be passed making it a felony to be caught carrying a gun illegally. Fix the term in the penitentiary not less than ten years; possibly twenty years would be better. This kind of law will wipe out gun-toting. It is the only law that will do it. There is a law of this kind in England, and the result is there is imprisonment for life. Compare the murder record of London with that of Chicago, and the kind of law suggested by me is needed. JOHN A. CALVIN.

FURTHER COMMENT ON THE STATE OF THE DRAMA.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Accompanied by my husband, I, too, saw "What Price Glory?" and was disappointed. [illegible] thing I can say in its favor [illegible] all its sordidness, it showed to us the real side of war, not the customary pomp, glorified heroes, martial music, etc.

For the sake of decent civilization it would seem that [illegible] control of the theater to purge it of such plays as "Rain" and "Desire Under the Elms." What about the women's clubs, churches, and civic organizations? In this crowded city of 2,000,000 [illegible] are there not enough forces for good to stamp out these lewd plays and give us something at least entertaining, if not uplifting? MRS. DAVID T. [illegible]

YANK SEES SELF ELECT OF WORLD, FRENCHMAN SAYS

Limit on U. S. Tourists and Students Urged.

BY DON SKENE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 7.—A bitter attack against Americans was launched this afternoon by Henri B'Almeras, noted French writer and authority on French social life in the nineteenth century, in a speech before the Club du Faubourg, a famous Paris debating society, where current topics are discussed twice weekly and all shades of opinion are welcomed.

"The overwhelming pride of the Anglo-Saxons is beyond belief," declared M. B'Almeras. "The English are bad, but the Americans are worse—they consider themselves the world's elect. They feel no compunctions about coming to France and treating us like a conquered country. They already are rifling France's art treasures, which have been her glory. I expect some American will make an offer for the Louvre or Notre Dame cathedral. I know one American who actually wanted to buy the Arc de Triumphe and transport it to New York, stone by stone.

"Want to Enslave France."

"The Americans do not comprehend the significance of value of these treasures. They simply want to get their dirty hands on them. They are also reaching out for our industries, lands and houses. They want to enslave France, although I do not expect to see actual armies arriving from the banks of the Mississippi. They know commercial enslavement is more effective.

"The Americans' presence in France raises the cost of living, crushing 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 French with small incomes. Only a small class of Frenchmen catering to tourists benefit. If we put the Americans out the cost of living will go down."

Would Cede Colonies to United States.

M. B'Almeras advocated ceding to America all the French colonies in the new world in order to free France of the burden of its American debt.

"We might as well get something from the colonies, because sooner or later America will grab them anyway," M. B'Almeras said.

The speaker urged the limitation of Americans in France by raising the tourist tax ten times, imposing a special restaurant tax for Americans and English, limiting artists and students, and keeping all business in French hands. M. B'Almeras declared the Frenchmen soon would require passports to visit the French Riviera, which had become an Anglo-Saxon colony.

"Like Wolves Love Lambs."

Practically no objections were raised against M. B'Almeras' statements. One old gentleman, a retired army officer, caused gales of laughter when he declared the Americans really loved the French, basing his statement on many warm personal friends in America and blaming the whole Franco-American misunderstanding upon Woodrow Wilson.

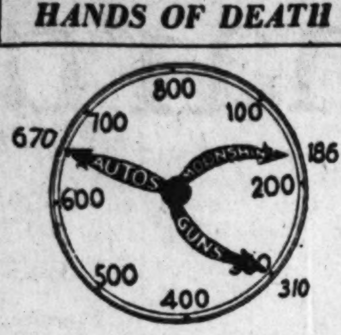
"Yes, the Americans love the French," shouted a voice from in back of the hall. "So do wolves love lambs."

Designer of Most Noted Norse Cathedral Is Dead

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 7.—Prof. Nordhagen, one of Norway's leading architects and designer of the cathedral at Trondhjem, the most noted cathedral of all the Scandinavian countries, died today. A stone from Trondhjem cathedral was sent to Chicago to be placed in Tribune Tower.

HANDS OF DEATH



The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1. Yesterday was the three hundred and eleventh day of 1925.

U. S. FATHERS NOT CROOKS, BIGOTS, HISTORIANS SAY

Refute Briton's Sneer at Early Settlers.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The statement of John Fortescue, librarian to the king of England and former president of the Royal Historical society, that the original American stock was composed largely of fanatics and criminals, most of whom would be barred at Ellis island if they attempted to enter the country today, is not an accurate summary of the beginnings of America, according to historians who commented on it today.

The criminals who were shipped to the southern colonies were not criminals in the modern sense of the word, according to Gustavus Myers, but were for the most part men who had been seized for debt or for offenses, such as smuggling, which involved no great moral turpitude.

Only "Partly" Fanatics.

As for the fanaticism, Mr. Myers said that the Puritans had the current bigotry of the seventeenth century only to an average degree. He said that the amendment to the United States constitution guaranteeing religious freedom was the first enactment by any nation giving liberty of conscience.

Prof. W. R. Shepherd of Columbia university said that the royal librarian was carried away by his extreme bias as "an ardent upholder of George III." Sir John's reflections on America's origin were made in an article on George III. in the London Times which was cabled over and printed here today.

Calls Us Cheaters.

The king's librarian was comparatively mild in his reproaches to the United States in the George III. article as compared to his expressions in a lecture delivered in England in 1911, in which one passage was as follows:

"The United States cannot engage in any form of competition with us, from athletics to diplomacy, without using foul play. They must win, if not by fair skill, then by prearranged trickery or violence; if not by open negotiation then by garbled maps and forged documents. There is the fact. It may be unpleasant, but it cannot be denied."

These and a number of other points made by Sir John were resurrected in 1922 when he came to this country as a member of the English Speaking Union to deliver lectures and make speeches for the promotion of Anglo-American comradeship.

Weeks Stopped His Lecture.

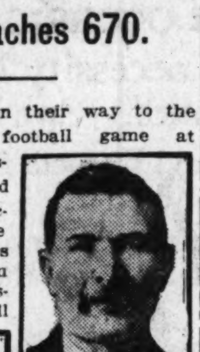
The British historian accepted an invitation on this visit to deliver the armistice day address at West Point, but the invitation was canceled by order of Secertary of War Weeks after the uncomplimentary notices to America in Fortescue's book were called to the secretary's attention.

"It would probably be better not to take Fortescue's statements seriously," Myers said, "except for the fact that there are many writers in this country who make a profitable business of jeering at America and who would probably accept his statements as matters of fact."

TWO ON WAY TO ILLINI GRID GAME DIE IN CRASHES

3 Others Dead Here as Toll Reaches 670.

Two persons on their way to the Illinois-Chicago football game at Champaign yesterday were killed in automobile accidents. Three other persons were killed in Cook county, raising the 1925 toll of deaths to 670.



MICHAEL J. CONROY.

MRS. HAROLD OLSON.

Mrs. Harold Olson, 27 years old, of Aurora, was killed early yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding, driven by her husband, skidded on a wet highway and collided with another automobile driven by R. C. Scheets, owner of the Aurora Milling company. The Olson party was en route to the game in Champaign. Mrs. Olson suffered a fractured skull.

Missouri Youth Killed.

Arthur Schoeler, 24 years old, of Webster Grove, Mo., also on his way to the football game, was instantly killed when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a freight train standing on a crossing in Tolono, Ill.

In Cook county Miss Maxine Schreiver, 22 years old, 7532 Parkhurst avenue, a piano teacher, was fatally injured when she was knocked down by an automobile at Church street and Sherman avenue, Evanston. Two colored men, occupants of the car, said to have been intoxicated, were taken into custody after they attempted to flee. Miss Schreiver was taken to the Evanston hospital, where she died of a skull fracture and internal injuries.

Mrs. Juliana Olsen, 67 years old, 3741 Wabansia avenue, believed to have been blinded by the storm, walked in front of an automobile at Springfield and North avenues, last night and was fatally injured. J. T. Messick, 3802 West North avenue, driver of the car, took Mrs. Olsen to St. Anne's hospital where she died a short time later from a fractured skull.

Aged Man Is Victim.

Michael J. Conroy, 80 years old, 11117 Watt street, died on the way to the Ingall Memorial hospital after being struck by an automobile at 154th street and Western avenue. Herman Tith of Harvey, driver of the car, was held under $10,000 bonds.

Conroy, said to have been mentally defective, wandered away from his home and into the path of Tith's machine.

Eldridge Gerry Snow of N. Y. Financial Note, Dies

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Eldridge Gerry Snow, president of the Home Insurance company of New York, and prominent in financial and civic circles, died here today.

HOLDS PULLMANS NOT LIABLE ON NEGRO'S CHARGE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—A recommendation that the railroads of the south and the Pullman company be acquitted of charges of racial discrimination was laid before the interstate commerce commission today by one of its examiners who investigated the subject.

Reporting adversely on a complaint by E. Crosby, a Negro doctor, who asked for $120,000 damages, John McChord, the examiner, reported that "unjust discrimination or prejudice against persons of the colored race has not been shown as alleged."

Crosby asserted that in 1922 and 1923 Pullman tickets had been refused him and attorneys of his race in the south. Officials of the Pullman company declared there had been no refusal generally to sell Pullman tickets to Negroes.

EVANSTON LOSES SECOND VETERAN SCHOOL TEACHER

For the second time within two days the Evanston public schools lost a veteran teacher. Miss Nellie M. Sickles, who for thirty six years taught the first grade class at the Lincoln school, Main and Forest avenues, died yesterday at the Evanston hospital following an operation. On Tuesday the body will lie in state at the school. Funeral services will be conducted there at 10:30 o'clock that morning. Miss Sickles is survived by a sister.

The first death was that of Miss Jennie Foster, 67 years old, who for forty-six years was a teacher at Central school, Main street and Elmwood avenue. Funeral services for Miss Foster will be conducted by the Rev. David U. Jones of the Evanston Presbyterian church, at Central school tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. Both teachers will be buried at Rosehill cemetery.

CORA GOODSPEED, TEACHER, DEAD; BURIAL MONDAY

Miss Cora Goodspeed, a teacher in the Sherwood school for the last 26 years, died yesterday at her home, 327 Englewood avenue, after an illness of several months.

Miss Goodspeed, who was born in Iowa, had lived in Englewood for 30 years. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

She is survived by three sisters and two brothers, Miss Hersalora C. Goodspeed, Miss Stella L. Goodspeed, Miss Alice L. Goodspeed, Weston A. and Charles L. Goodspeed, all of Chicago.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in the Cunningham chapel, Sixty-second place and Normal boulevard. Burial will be in Mount Hope cemetery.

Francis W. Jones, 66, Dies; Made Beauty Specialties

Francis W. Jones, 66 year old president of the Melba Manufacturing company, beauty preparations, died yesterday morning at his home, 843 Drexel square. He had been ill for several weeks with a complication of diseases. Fifteen years ago he started the Melba concern in a cellar on Prairie avenue. At his death he was said to be a millionaire. Surviving him are two brothers, Albert G. Jones, vice president of the Melba company, and Walter Jones. Funeral services, which will be private, will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the residence.

DOUBTS SERPENT TALKED TO EVE; WILL BE TRIED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Nov. 7.—America had its "monkey case," but Holland is now having its "serpent case," as a parallel to the trial at Dayton, Tenn.

Dr. Vangeelkerken, a clergyman of the Calvinist church, has been summoned to appear shortly before a special synod to answer charges of having cast doubt on the conversational ability of the serpent in Genesis. The Dutch preacher's sermons, in which he questioned the fact of the famous reptile's talkativeness with Eve in the Garden of Eden, have caused a sensation both in the press and church circles. As a result he now faces the possibility of dismissal unless he appears before the synod and subscribes to the latter's fundamental beliefs.

Mrs. L. M. Loba, Widow of Evanston Preacher, Is Dead

Mrs. Lucene Morgan Bradley Loba, 74, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. Howard McConnell, 1914 Sheridan road, Evanston. Hursen Leads America in Funeral Quality

In funerals, as in everything else, changes through the years become desirable in manner, method, equipment and style. Some years ago Chicago was startled by revolutionary improvements in funeral direction established by Hursen. Since then the leading improvements which have been noted have been initiated, as usual, by Hursen.

In all that pertains to funerals, Hursen leads, not only in Chicago, but in the entire country as well. Hursen funeral equipment is acknowledged to be unsurpassed in America. In this equipment you find the Hursen "limousine-hearses," the Hursen new idea which has revolutionized the use of the old-style, gloomy-looking, over-adorned hearse.

Hursen automobiles for passengers are unexcelled anywhere for beauty, roominess and riding comfort. They are driven by Hursen-trained, liveried chauffeurs, chosen for their qualities in appearance, deportment and ability. A remarkable fact is that there is no extra charge for the use of this Hursen superior automobile equipment.

Another fact that startles is that the price of "Hursen" funerals is but a fraction of the charges made elsewhere, a policy which has made "Hursen's" the largest funeral-directing establishment in America. Call Hursen, of course!

STEINWAY

or

Lyon & Healy Grand Piano

Certainly, One or the Other

IF you would purchase the best that can be had, your decision must naturally be a STEINWAY. In it you have, first of all, a tone that is inimitable, action that is perfect, and durability that has never been equalled.

Our stock is most complete at this time and you may have a choice of beautiful brown mahogany or walnut cases. Or possibly you may be interested in a Louis XV period model. It is not too early to make your Christmas selection now.

$1475

FOR those persons whose fine tastes and perception would naturally lead to the selection of a STEINWAY grand, but who, nevertheless, feel that its price makes it slightly inaccessible to their purse, the LYON & Healy which is second only to the STEINWAY will solve the problem. You need no longer deny yourself the joy and pride of possessing a high grade piano when it is possible for you to obtain such a wonderful instrument as the Lyon & Healy at its price.

GERMANY'S HERO ACE, RICHTHOFEN, GOES BACK HOME

Chivalry in Air Made Him Honored by Foes.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Baron Manfred von Richthofen is coming home.

CAPT. BARON VON RICHTHOFEN.

From his rest in France beneath the earth which he consecrated with deeds of chivalry ere he fell in flames they are bringing him back to Berlin for a military funeral before burying him here.

I am not sure that Baron Richtofen would have thanked his former comrades for disturbing his last sleep. It was across the skies of France that Baron Richthofen wrote his name in a blaze of glory. It was to its soil that he crashed after his last gallant fight.

His Comrades Want Him.

Perhaps he would rather have rested there, but his comrades want him. They want to wrap his coffin in the German flag; they want to follow his bier through the German streets while trumpets clarion a funeral march; they want, after eight years, to pay solemn tribute to Germany's greatest war hero.

I for one am sorry. To us of the entente flying corps, whether French, British, or American, Baron Richthofen is more than a name. He is a tradition. Long before our own flyers reached France we knew of this modern knight.

Was a True Gentleman.

We realized that in him we had found a true gentleman. That heart, bound with triple bands, could not have known for a moment fear. His chivalry and victory taught us that he had the courage to face defeat. Never during his 100 combats on the western front did he desert his victim.

Always that red nosed fighting plane came to earth a few seconds after the allied plane he had downed. If the pilot was alive, he accompanied him to his staff headquarters, assured that he would be properly received. If dead, he arranged the funeral services himself.

When Baron Richthofen fell, the battle of the Somme was raging. The world forgot this titanic struggle while the allied flyers who honored his name gave him a full military funeral. I do not think his former comrades, when they gather around the casket containing those poor ashes of Germany's greatest gentleman on Nov. 20, can do more.

FELL FIGHTING TWO PLANES.

Capt. Baron von Richthofen was killed in battle fighting two British planes, while three miles away more than twenty of his comrades were fighting about an equal number of British birdmen. The German ace was buried by his British foe with the most impressive ceremonies near the little town of Sailly le Sac, in northern France.

Six British officers acted as his pallbearers.

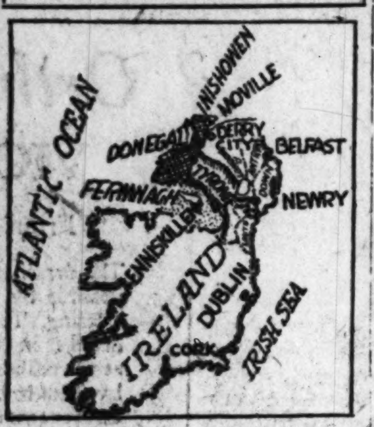
ULSTER HAPPY



[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, Nov. 7.—Ulster is extremely pleased over the developments of the border inquiry. It is officially understood that the border commission's findings are more favorable to Ulster than it was expected they would be, although it is believed that the position will increase the difficulties of President Cosgrave, whose predictions led the southerners to believe that Tyrone and Fermanagh would be ceded to the Free State.

Ulster was determined to stake all on the retention of Derry City, Enniskillen, and Newry, but with these safe the government's intention not to recognize the commission may be modified.

A large section of east Donegal was colonized by Presbyterians, who will welcome joining Ulster. The disposition of Moville and a part of Inishowen is doubtful.

DECLINE IN RURAL STANDARDS SEEN BY N. U. EXPERT

"Unless the life of the farmer and his family can be made more attractive, the movement of population from country to city is likely to carry away the more intelligent and aggressive elements of rural population," declared Dr. Henry C. Taylor, former chief of the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture, who has just joined the staff of Northwestern university.

Dr. Taylor, who has been made research professor of agricultural economics, is beginning a year's survey of farm conditions, starting in his home state of Iowa. Especial attention will be given to farm living conditions, with a view to making the life of farming more attractive.

Continuing, he said: "If this tendency is left to work itself out under conditions of an inequitable distribution of wealth between country and city, the gradual lowering of the quality of rural population will ensue, and will not only reduce the efficiency of land utilization, but will increase the cost of the nation's food supply."

BELIEVE MELLON WILL O. K. NEW INCOME TAX BILL

His Main Objection to Exemption Raise.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—With the exception of the increased personal exemptions, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was understood today to be fairly well satisfied with the tax bill as thus far perfected by the house ways and means committee.

Secretary Mellon has opposed the increase in exemptions, both because of the loss in revenue involved and because of a belief that citizens generally should maintain an interest in governmental affairs through tax payments.

Administration spokesmen an the ways and means committee, who accepted the Democratic proposal for increased exemptions as a means of getting through a compromise bill, appeared to feel that Secretary Mellon would approve the measure, notwithstanding his objection to this particular feature.

The treasury head is credited with having sacrificed several features of his tax program in order to obtain a reduction in the maximum surtax to 20 per cent and to obtain the repeal of the publicity provision of the present law.

Just why the administration has chosen to compromise during the preparation of the tax bill is something of a mystery to those Republicans who vainly urged Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge, to do so in 1924. Last year, the Mellon forces insisted upon keeping his plan intact in the bill as reported from the ways and means committee despite the insistence of Longworth [Rep., O.], then the majority leader, and Rep. Green [Rep., Ia.], chairman of the committee, that the administration accept a 35 per cent surtax maximum as a compromise.

There were rumbling today of opposition from various quarters. Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.], as was expected, declared himself for the retention of publicity, for higher surtax and estate tax rates than proposed and for an increase in personal exemptions to $5,000. Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], declared for the retention of publicity.

Representative Tilson [Rep., Conn.], the new majority leader of the house, called on President Coolidge today to discuss the tax situation. He indicated that the President probably would accept the committee bill as a fairly satisfactory compromise.

BRAVERY AWARD GOES TO COP WHO KILLED GUNMAN

Felled Reputed Slayer Firing Into Crowd.

For shooting it out with a reputed killer, and eventually killing the gunman, Policeman James Kehoe of the Maxwell street station is given THE TRIBUNE'S $100 bravery prize for October.

By his courage in tackling single handed the gunman, who was firing into a fleeing crowd, Kehoe not only rid the community of a dangerous man, but probably saved the lives of a number of persons who were on the street at the time.

On the night of Oct. 11 Kehoe, with his partner, Patrolman Joseph Graney, drew up in front of a café at 725 Blue Island avenue in a police car to put a stop to a free for all fight that had started in the café. When the police car drew up to the curb the crowd scattered and ran.

Fires on Fleeing Policeman.

Patrolman Graney started in pursuit on foot. As he did so Gus Samolos, alias [illegible], who had remained in the background, stepped to the curb and started firing in the direction of Graney. Samolos, who is said to have killed three men, had started the fight in the cafe over a gun fight in which he participated in Omaha some time ago. Kehoe started for Samolos and ordered him to drop his revolver. Instead Samolos whipped around and fired point blank at Kehoe. Kehoe fired at the same time, and Samolos dropped to the pavement with a bullet in his heart. He died a few minutes later.

At his side was found his gun with six empty shells. A coroner's jury on Oct. 14 returned a verdict of justifiable homicide and commended Kehoe for his bravery.

Patrolman Thomas F. Meagher of police headquarters, by accosting and arresting three pickpockets single handed after a fight, wins honorable mention and probably will be commended in a special order by Chief Collins and given extra compensation.

Pins Three Against Wall.

Meagher, in plain clothes, was aboard a street car when he noticed three men elbowing a passenger. Without waiting for help he pinned the three of them against the wall and ordered the car stopped. Two of the men broke loose and started to slug Meagher. The third started to leave the car and Meagher, after breaking loose from the other two and ordering the conductor to close the doors, gave chase. He caught the man a few feet from the car and fell upon him, pinning him to the pavement. By that time help arrived and all three were taken into custody.

The men, John Cummings, Ben Cohen, and Charles Wolf, later pleaded guilty and were fined $200 and costs each.

Dawes, Harbord to Help Dedicate War Memorial

Vice President Charles G. Dawes will attend the public dedication of the Oak Park-River Forest war memorial in Scoville park, Oak Park, at 2:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Armistice day, Wednesday. The dedication address will be delivered by Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord. The memorial, executed by Gilbert Riswold, the sculptor, was erected through public subscription.

COUNTESS AGAIN DENIED PERMIT TO ENTER U. S.

Second Karolyi Case Hearing Fails.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The state department refused today to grant a renewed request of Countess Karolyi, wife of the former president of the Hungarian republic, for admission to the United States.

James F. Curtis of the law firm of Curtis, Fosdick and Belknap, laid the request before Secretary Kellogg. The firm had been retained by the countess.

May Specify Reason.

The secretary, although refusing to change his position in the matter, took under consideration an additional request that he make known the specific section of the law and the specific ground upon which admission was refused. A reply to this request is expected by Mr. Curtis Monday. Several weeks ago the countess applied for a passport, which was refused on the ground that she was a communist and must be barred under the law.

Barred as "Unadmissable."

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Harry F. Ward, chairman of the American Civil Liberties union, today announced receipt of a letter from the state department in which it was explained that Countess Karolyi was barred from coming to this country because she was regarded as "unadmissable under the law." Refusal of a vise to permit her admittance was not because of any representations by the Hungarian government or any other government, the letter stated.

U. S. VICE CONSUL'S WIFE WOUNDED IN MEXICAN FOURTH

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Ragland, wife of the American vice consul at Monterey, Mexico, has been brought here suffering from a bullet wound in the head sustained during the celebration of Constitution day in the Mexican city Sept. 16.

Her arrival here became known after the vice consul paid a visit to the state department, where officials are inclined to believe the shooting was accidental.

Mrs. Ragland is in Georgetown University hospital, where it is expected she will recover. She was wounded while sitting in a café with her husband in Monterey.

PRESIDENT OF PERU PREDICTS ARICA VICTORY

Praises Pershing for His Work on Plebiscite.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 7.—The recent developments in the Arica plebiscite are entirely satisfactory to Peru, President Leguia told THE TRIBUNE this morning.

Discussing at length Gen. Pershing's stand over the voters' guarantees, President Leguia said:

"I am more than ever confident of the outcome of the plebiscite. There is no possible doubt as to Peru's victory in the final balloting and the return of our lost provinces to us."

Peru Willing to Pay.

Regarding Peru's payment of indemnity to Chile should Peru win, he asserted:

"We are ready to pay this $5,000,000 to Chile. Regarding the paymenet for the Arica-La Paz railroad and the Arica harbor improvements, Peru protested at the time this work was commenced, and this will require special arrangements. But Peru will not be niggardly and will pay what is just and right."

Praises Gen. Pershing.

President Leguia paid tribute to Gen. Pershing, president of the plebiscite commission, saying he had a high opinion of the general's judgment, adding that the United States could not have selected a better man to take charge of the plebiscite.

President Leguia refused to discuss the events in Peru should the plebiscite go against Peru. Nor would he quote Peru's attitude regarding a sea outlet for Bolivia in the disputed provinces.

Peru's Troops Disembark.

An infantry battalion and a cavalry squadron recently disembarked at Mollendo, Peru's southern port, on their way to Tarata, ostensibly to take over Tarata from Chile. Mollendo is placarded that all foreigners must report to the chief of police if they intend to stay twenty-four hours. The Peruvian liner, Limac, at Callao, is ready to transport troops southward. The Chilean government has issued a decree that in case of war or internal trouble a strict press and mail censorship will be established, isolating Chile.

Arturo Alessandri, former president of Chile, will arrive in Arica tomorrow to take Augustin Edwards' place as Chile's representative.

Demand Officials Be Ousted.

ARICA, Chile, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Removal of eleven Chilean officials in Tacna and Arica is demanded by the plebiscitary commission under the chairmanship of Gen. Pershing, on the ground that they "have used or are using their positions of power in a manner designed to repress or prevent legitimate expression of views touching upon the issues to be determined by the plebiscite." Among the functionaries mentioned were Luis Barcelo of Tacna, and Emiliano Bustos, governor of Arica, as well as the prefect of police and secret service chiefs of Tacna and Arica.

GIRL SCOUTS AND COOLIDGES EAT VERMONT TURKEY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The excitement of bringing a live turkey gobbler from her home near Montpelier, Vt., to Washington, and of serving it to the President of the United States at a luncheon prepared today by Girl Scouts proved too much for 13 year old Leona Baldwin.

After the President and Mrs. Coolidge had returned to the White House from the "Little House," headquarters of the Girl Scouts here, Leona burst into tears.

The turkey was raised by Leona on her father's farm. The President and Mrs. Coolidge attended the luncheon after Mrs. Coolidge, who is honorary president of the Girl Scouts of America, had attended morning exercises of the organization at a theater.

WEARS HIS MOON AS A VEST; GETS FINE AND A CELL

An aluminum can, rounded into half moon shape so that it fitted around his body beneath his coat, was found on Albert Collins, colored, 23 years old, when he was arrested on a charge of larceny yesterday. The can was filled with a gallon and a half of moonshine liquor, according to police.

Judge Francis Borrelli fined Collins $100 and sentenced him to thirty days in the Bridewell on a charge of violating the prohibition law. The hearing of the larceny charge, preferred by a colored woman, was continued to Jan. 15.

Seize Pay Roll of $550 After Lining Up Employes

A pay roll of $550 was stolen yesterday from Richard McLangors of 1419 West Garfield boulevard by three gunmen who lined him and several employés up against the wall in the offices of the Consolidated company, 1001 South Springfield avenue, of which he is manager. The robbers escaped in a touring car.

BOND BUYER FOUND DEAD.

Charles R. Williams, 67 years old, of 4600 Lake Park avenue, a municipal bond buyer, was found dead in bed last night by his wife, Nellie.

YANK CHURCHES AND SCHOOLS IN SYRIA BURNED

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Reports of the burning of American mission schools and churches in the region south of Damascus, Syria, where the Moslem Druses have driven out Armenian and Syrian Christians, have been received at the national headquarters here of the Near East Relief.

The reports came from Roy M. Davidson of Ashland, Ky., who is in charge of the Near East relief work in Palestine. He said the British have barred Palestine to refugees from Syria and many of them now are massed on the border.

Kill 300 Syrian Rebels.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—[U. P.]—The situation around Damascus continues serious, with rebels growing bolder and apparently more determined to avenge themselves for the recent French bombardment of Damascus.

The Daily Mail's Damascus correspondent reported today that the French attacked rebels near Katana, eleven miles to the southwest of the city, and killed 300 of them. Capture of Deraa, southwest of Damascus, was again reported. Homs, north of Damascus, is reported in imminent danger of falling to the insurgents.

The Roala tribes, previously pro-French, are reported to have decided to join the guerillas, who have organized "explosion units" for blowing up railways and bridges.

Damascus authorities have arrested 200 notables, many of whom protected the Christian quarters when the rebels recently entered the city.

Briand for Autonomy, Report.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The semi-official Havas agency says Foreign Minister Briand will propose to parliament that the population of Syria, which is held under French mandate, be given the widest autonomy as soon as order is reëstablished.

Senator Henry de Jouvenel, chief editor of the Matin, was officially named French high commissioner for Syria today, to succeed Gen. Sarrail, whose administration of the troubled region has been the object of much criticism.

EBERT'S SON-IN-LAW FINED FOR CASTING A SLUR AT HINDENBURG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—The late President Ebert's son-in-law, Dr. Wilhelm Jaenicke, must pay one-third of one month's salary and receive official censure for his indiscretion in signing the guest book of one Sig. Pagano in Capri.

Dr. Jaenicke, who is an attaché of the foreign office, in a disciplinary court this morning said that when he wrote, "Dear Sig. Pagano: In your pleasant house I have forgotten that Von Hindenburg has become president of Germany," it was not meant to insult Germany's president, nor did he think his words would be given such world-wide publicity. He asserted he regretted his action.

Dr. Jaenicke's romance with the saddler-president's daughter was one of the most pleasant interludes in republican social life during the inflation days. Dr. Jaenicke was related to a wealthy family of shoemakers. He met President Ebert's daughter at an official party and it was love at first sight. They were married soon after.

Dr. Jaenicke has continued his official duties in the foreign office, despite Foreign Minister Stresemann's request that he be dismissed.

HUSBAND HUNTS IN VAIN FOR BODY OF WIFE HE SLEW

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 7.—(AP)—John Crowley today directed the unavailing search for the body of his 26 year old Indian wife, whom he killed and sunk in the lake a week ago, after an altercation. Heavy seas and thick ice confronted the dredgers today and search will be resumed Monday.

Crowley shot his wife last Saturday night, and Sunday morning, finding her dead, took the body 1,200 feet from shore in a rowboat, weighted it, and sunk it. An hour later, in a frenzy, he said, he tried to recover the body. Then, after burning all evidence of the slaying, he fled to Michigan. Returning to his shack yesterday, he tried again to find the body, and then came to Ashland and gave himself up.

Wales, Off Again, On Again, Follows the Hounds Again

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

On Its Last Legs

A faucet's usefulness is over when its seat is worn out. The only way to stop leaking then is to replace it.

In Chicago Faucets the seat is renewable—just like the washer. It can be replaced for a few cents after giving years of service—longer than the ordinary faucet seat.

That's why Chicago Faucets can't wear out. Minor repairs, such as replacing a washer, are easily effected because all wearing parts are confined to a small, standardized working unit that can be taken out almost as easily as a light bulb from its socket.

You can save considerable expense and annoyance by installing Chicago Faucets throughout.

ARMISTICE DAY, RED CROSS SHARE CHURCH INTEREST

Both to Be Topics Today in Many Pulpits.

Armistice day services have been planned for a number of Chicago churches. Pastors in many pulpits will preach on that topic this morning. Services appropriate to the occasion will be held by a large number of congregations.

Today also has been designated "Red Cross Sunday," and in places of worship throughout the country the activities and the work of that organization during peace time will be emphasized. The society's annual membership roll call will begin on Armistice day.

Red Cross Stresses Peace Work.

Because of the services of the Red Cross during war time, it is often looked on as primarily a war machine, and the fact that it has a peace mission of equal importance is frequently slighted, says a bulletin issued from the organization's headquarters in Washington. It is hoped today to stress the fact that the Red Cross still is fighting a fight that will end only with universal good health.

Chicago's main celebration of the Armistice anniversary on Wednesday will center on the dedication of Soldiers' field, at which Commander John D. Rodgers, hero of the attempted navy flight to Honolulu, will officiate.

Rodgers to Be Guest of City.

Arrival of Commander Rodgers Wednesday morning will be announced by a salute of guns by the 122d field artillery. At 11 o'clock a special Armistice day meeting of the city council will be held. Commander Rodgers will be present as the official guest of the city.

Commander Rodgers, President Edward J. Kelly of the south park board and Scott W. Lucas, commander of the Illinois department of the American Legion, will be speakers at the joint meeting of the Advertising Men's post of the Legion and allied advertising organizations, at noon, and also at the dedication services at Soldiers' field in the afternoon.

Citizenship Club to Give Show

Ticket Sale Heavy

Advance sales of tickets for the benefit performance this afternoon at the Olympic theater under the auspices of the Chicago Citizenship club indicate that a large audience will see the curtain rise at 2:30 o'clock.

Sponsors for the performance are Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell Jr., William Wrigley Jr., and Joseph R. Strauss, president of the American Citizenship Foundation.

Proceeds will go toward providing citizenship manuals for the 5,000 R. O. T. C. cadets in high schools, and for citizenship training for the boys. Miss Fern Gifford is president of the club, which is composed of business women in the downtown district. The program will include a dancing number by sixty society girls, and bits from current theatrical attractions.

WIDOW KILLED BY LEAKING GAS.

Mrs. Mary Simpson, 75, a widow, 1652 West Washington boulevard, was killed by gas which was found escaping from a stove in her home yesterday.

COOLIDGE VOICES APPEAL FOR AID FOR RED CROSS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Wounds of the world war remain, and while the great armies which grounded their guns seven years ago have been demobilized, there is a constant need to mobilize the spirit of peace, President Coolidge declared today in an appeal for support of the annual membership enrollment of the American Red Cross beginning Armistice day.

"May that spirit," he added, "be with us all as we move along the pathways of the future.

"We cannot evade, we cannot forget the responsibilities which are ours while a single wound of that war remains unhealed. Our work has still to be done until we reach that plane where we can ask, 'Are there no others who need help?' and the answer shall be 'There are no others.'"

Red Cross is Praised.

Praising the Red Cross for its widespread and effective relief activities, the President said:

"It is one of the encouraging, the hopeful things in this work of bringing sunlight to dissipate the cloudy aftermath of war, that we as a people and a government have the helpful and reassuring service of the American Red Cross.

"The American Red Cross is an organization which, with an impartiality as broad as the earth, has broken down all barriers, mounted the heights and marched unflinchingly onward to succor humanity. This work justifies our faith in mankind.

Needs More Members.

"The American Red Cross invites all to share in its inspiring responsibilities. It needs strength in numbers; it needs you. Its record of the past is secure; its record of the future will, I am confident, be the better for our standing with it to be counted in this legion of mercy which strives for the practical application of the golden rule, of peace on earth and good will towards men."

KILLED BY FUMES FROM AUTO.

Overcome by fumes from the exhaust pipe of his automobile in the garage in the rear of his home, Oscar Swanson, 5523 North Fairfield avenue, died yesterday.

ALLEGED MORON FINED $1,200 ON GIRL'S CHARGES

John Welschmidt, 42, an alleged moron, was fined $200 on each of six charges of disorderly conduct by Judge Francis Borrelli in the South Clark street court yesterday. He was identified by six girls as the man who had been annoying women recently in the neighborhood of Prairie avenue and East 22d street.

Welschmidt was arrested on complaints of Helen Tretler, 19, an employé of the World Book company, 2126 Prairie avenue, and Mildred Bloomquist, 18, 5946 S. Morgan street. Welschmidt is married and has a family.

ANTI-BRENNAN GROUP FORMED IN 46TH WARD

Formation of the first ward unit of the O'Connell-Dunne-Harrison "Democracy of Illinois," a movement hostile to National Committeeman George E. Brennan and his associates, was announced yesterday in the forty-sixth ward.

The new club is headed by Fred V. Maguire, president of the election board, who some time ago was deposed as head of the regular organization in the ward. Others associated with him are Ald. Oscar Nelson, John Ganey and H. C. Anderson.

"Brennan is not a leader," read a statement issued by Nelson. "He's a trader. He cares nothing for principles and desires control of the party merely to trade it off in elections to suit his own selfish interests.

"During the few years Brennan has been in control there has been a wholesale desertion from the party's ranks. His actions at the Democratic national convention last year are pointed to as evidence that he does not desire victory for the party, nor the establishment of party principles."

DAUGHTER ILL; SEEK MOTHER.

Chicago police were asked late yesterday to find Mrs. Catherine Myers of Morgan Park to tell her that her daughter, Vivian Courtney, is critically ill in West Palm Beach, Fla. A telegram to that effect was received from Bertha Austin, director of public welfare.

A New Volume of Mr. Neihardt's Epic Poem of the Great West

The Song of the Indian Wars

by

John G. Neihardt

In the prelude to his first book, "A Bundle of Myrrh," John G. Neihardt wrote:

"I would sing as the Wind;
As the autumn Wind, big with rain and sad with prenatal dread.
I would sing as the Storm;
As the Storm whipped by the lightning and strong with the despair of giants.
I would sing as the Snow;
Wailing and hissing and writhing in the merciless grasp of the Blizzard.
I would sing as the Prairie;
As the Prairie droning in the heat, satisfied, drowsy and mystical."

With his newest volume, "The Song of the Indian Wars," this yearning has become achievement. The mighty music of "The Song of the Indian Wars," is compounded of the voices of the wind, the storm, the snow and the prairie. It is a tale Homerically told and it is an Homeric subject which Mr. Neihardt has essayed to handle—the last great battle between the prairie Indian tribes and the invading Aryan hordes for the bison pastures of the plains. Price $2.25

Critical Opinions

OPERA PRESENTS BOSTON WITH AIR OF THE CAVALIERS

News to Puritans, but Is Full of Fine Singing.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Vox Pop. correspondents who have been asking Mr. Insull to suppress the American flag in "Mme. Butterfly" and otherwise purify the operatic situation down in Congress street might complete the job by calling for a new locale in "The Masked Ball." For when I am asked to believe that this drama takes place in colonial Boston and its suburbs, I am wounded in the tenderest spot in my geography.

Otherwise this opera, revived yesterday afternoon at the Auditorium after a silence of five years became a pleasant proclamation of some of Verdi's juiciest tunes. They showed him at his best and at his worst. There were melodies, any number of them, that would make a great hit if their invention had been delayed for a musical show of the present age; there were other bits that classified as rubber stamp messages of the most ancient order. But taking it by and large, it was a pleasant afternoon for the cause of music.

Robert Steel Makes Debut.

Robert Steel, American baritone, made his debut in this performance, singing the role of Renato, the secretary of the governor of Boston—there is an unholy fascination about that Puritan locale in connection with the fine raiment, swords, masked ball, and countryside crucifixes that occur in it. Mr. Steel started at a somewhat low emotional level, a bit too low for the dimensions of the theater, but developed as time went on. His chief handicap would seem to be the somewhat light weight of his voice. On the other side, it has definite and good quality, he knows how to use it, and he makes a pleasing, if slightly diffident appearance on the stage. "Eri Tu, the aria beloved of all baritones, he sang with manner and style.

It is true that he had a lot of vocal competition. Any one who makes a first appearance in a cast that includes such brilliant voices as those belonging to Rosa Raisa, Cyrena Van Gordon, Charles Marshall, and Virgilio Lazzari is starting in uncommonly fast company.

Singing at Their Best.

These glories of the Civic Opera company were at their best. These are the voices that make an old time melody sound as though it were pure gold, whether it happens to be pure gold or a well alloyed plate. If anything could have made them sound better, it was the glowing spirit, sometimes known as pep, that Giorgio Polacco instilled into them from his place on the conductor's stand.

Continuing the old home day for Verdi, "Rigoletto" was given in the evening, and on the conductor's stand was a leader of considerably fewer years, but apparently destined to follow in the directorial footsteps of Mr. Polacco. He was Henry G. Weber, who was probably born with a baton in his hand, and now uses it with authority, with much the same glow, and with a most stimulating idea of pace. Here, also, was a fine collection of singers. There was the glorious voice of Editn Mason as Gilda, no finer lyric soprano in the world. There was Charles Hackett as the duke, singing as he never before sang in Chicago, which means a par score with an eagle or two. And there was Cesare Formichi, who for sheer volume which still keeps its quality has about the most astonishing baritone voice on record.

Churches Start Observing Father and Son Week Today

More than 100 Chicago churches will hold services or gatherings in observance of Father and Son week, beginning today, it was announced yesterday by Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church federation. Banquets, outings, hikes, and other events will be sponsored by the federation and the Y. M. C. A. Special efforts are being made to provide sonless men to entertain fatherless boys.

SETTLE STRIKE OF WORKERS IN CLOTHES PLANT

Differences which have kept members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America on strike from the plant of the International Tailoring company here since June 27 were ironed out in New York yesterday, according to Attorney William A. Cunnea.

Mr. Cunnea, who represents the workers, said that the International concern and its New York subsidiary, the J. L. Taylor company, had agreed to recognize the union and to discharge all employés taken on since the strike began. Other conditions, he said, were remedied as demanded by the union. The decision affects 650 persons in the tailoring trades in Chicago and 500 in New York.

A formel announcement of the end of the strike, which resulted in considerable disorder about the company plants, will be made to the workers at a meeting at 2 p. m. today at Hodcarriers' hall.

HAMMERED WIFE, CHARGE; HELD.

Frank Neil, 59, alleged to have struck his wife, Agnes, on the head with a hammer as she lay sleeping, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $50,000 on a charge of assault with intent to kill when arraigned before Judge William R. Fetzer in Maxwell street court yesterday.

GIGANTIC VAULT WILL BE MOVED IN LOOP TODAY

A problem as difficult as hoisting the wooden horse of the ancient Trojans will confront engineers today in their task of shifting into place a huge safety vault at the First National Bank of Chicago.

Three hundred workmen and three big six wheel trucks will be required to transport the vault, one hinge of which alone weighs 13,000 pounds, from its resting place on flat cars in the New York Central railroad yards to the bank building at Dearborn and Monroe streets.

"Police permission has been secured to rope off Monroe street in the vicinity of Dearborn long enough tomorrow morning to hoist the big vault into the bank building," said Attorney Frank J. Dowd, counsel for the manufacturers.

The immense weight of the vault, Mr. Dowd said, would crush to pulp the rubber tires of the moving trucks during the short journey from the railroad yards to the bank. The total cost of installing the vault will be $40,000, it is estimated.

The Big Six Studebaker [Unit-Built] outsells every other car in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower

"The Arizona Sheriff"

Twelve of Arizona's fourteen counties provide their sheriffs with Studebaker cars. Major Grover F. Sexton visited each sheriff to see just what service these Studebakers are rendering in the cause of law and order.

In each county, Major Sexton gathered stirring stories of adventure. These stories we have assembled in an illustrated booklet, "The Arizona Sheriff," which will be mailed on request to the factory at South Bend, Ind., or may be obtained free from any Studebaker dealer.

TODAY Studebaker Big Sixes are outselling every other car in the world of equal or greater horsepower, according to the rating of the Society of Automotive Engineers and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. (See table at right.)

That is because Studebaker has attained the goal in the fine-car field which Ford attained in the low-price field — One-Profit, Unit-Built cars.

Studebaker's Unique Facilities

Few motor car "manufacturers" have foundries, forges, etc., to make their own engines—yet one-fourth of the cost of an automobile is in the engine. Even fewer build their own bodies—yet one-third of the cost of a car is in the body.

Only two plants in the world today (Studebaker alone in the quality field) have the impressive facilities for making all their own bodies, all engines, axles, clutches, differentials, steering gears, springs, gear sets, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

One-Profit Value

These facilities enable Studebaker to manufacture quality cars under the One-Profit policy — enable Studebaker to make, in its own plants, vital parts and bodies and eliminate the profits of outside parts and body makers. Many major savings are thus effected and passed on to the ultimate buyer of a Studebaker car. No other car in the world of equal rated horsepower enjoys the advantages of volume production which are reflected in the price of the Big Six.

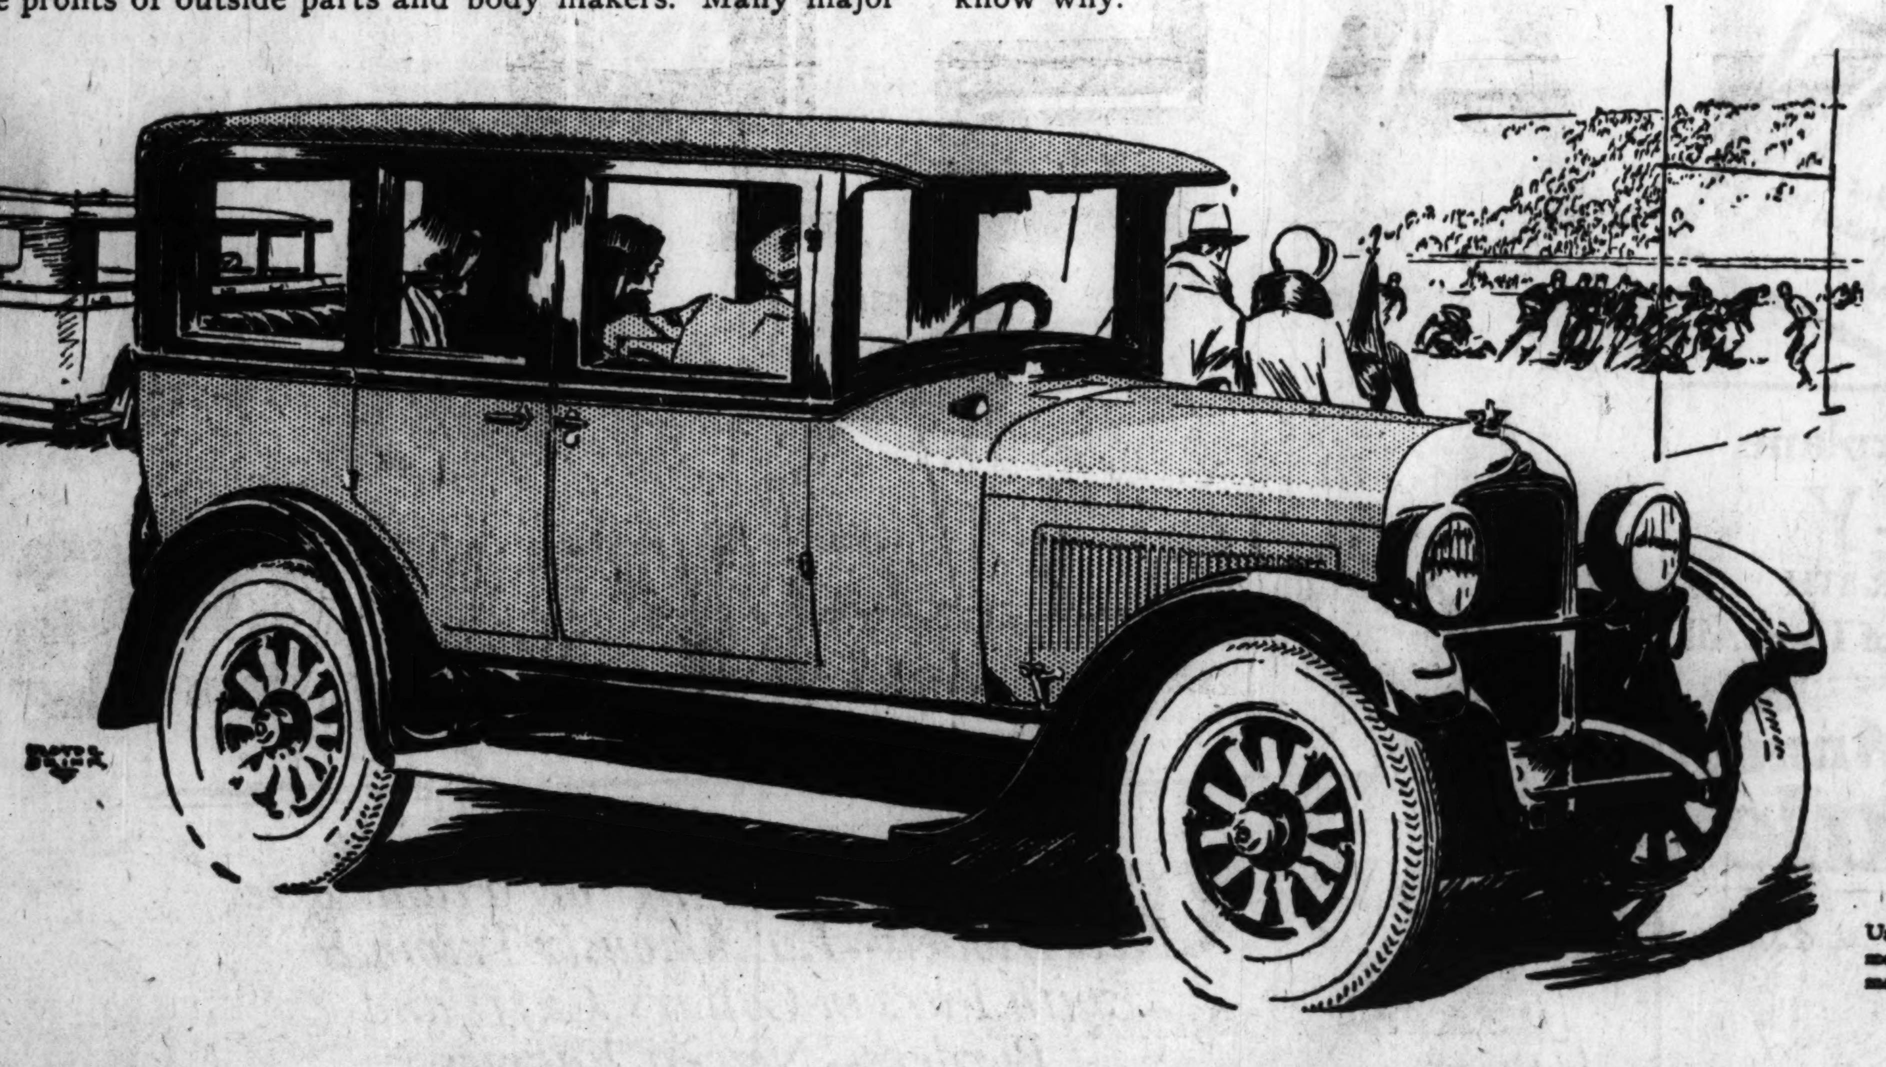
Unit-Built Construction

These facilities result, too, in Unit-Built construction—in cars designed, engineered and built as units. The hundreds of parts used in a Studebaker car function together as a unit, resulting in longer life, greater riding comfort and higher resale value for you. Scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation thus are built into Studebaker cars.

And "No-Yearly-Models"

As a natural outgrowth of these two factors, a third great advantage to the buyer is attained—"No-Yearly-Models." Because all phases of manufacture are directly under Studebaker control, Studebaker cars are constantly kept up to date. Improvements continually made, not saved up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete. Resale values are thus stabilized.

Because of these three advantages — One-Profit Value, Unit-Built Construction and "No-Yearly-Models"—the Studebaker Big Six has become the world's fastest-selling high-powered car. Ride in one—consider the price, and you will know why.



STUDEBAKER
Big Six 5-Passenger Sedan

To surpass it in rated horsepower costs $2755 to $8055 more

THE 5-Passenger Big Six Sedan is powered with the identical engine that carries hundreds of Studebaker busses at high speed hour after hour over hills and valleys—hence a car of swift pick-up and thrilling performance. It is luxuriously comfortable, beautifully finished, elaborately equipped.

Based on the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the Society of Automotive Engineers, only seven American cars equal this Big Six Sedan in power. But they sell for two to four times its price, as shown by the following table:

STUDEBAKER BIG SIX

N. A. C. C. and S. A. E. rating, 36.04. Price of 5-Passenger Sedan, f. o. b. factory, $1995

Car A— 1% more power, $2755 higher price
Car B— 1% more power, $2905 higher price
Car C— 7% more power, $4905 higher price
Car D—25% more power, $5605 higher price
Car E—31% more power, $7680 higher price
Car F—35% more power, $4725 higher price
Car G—35% more power, $8055 higher price

It is not surprising that the Big Six outsells every other car in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower.

The Big Six 5-Passenger Sedan is a car built to hold five passengers in real comfort. The body is unusually large and roomy. Seats are luxuriously deep and restful.

The chassis and engine are especially designed for the Studebaker-built body. Full-size balloon tires and snubbers add to its ease of riding.

It is richly upholstered in genuine mohair, which is indicative of the fine quality body construction you cannot see. Body pillars are of northern white ash—cross-members of hard maple.

It has an automatic spark control, safety lighting switch on the steering wheel, gasoline gauge on the dash. There's also an 8-day clock, automatic windshield cleaner, rear-view mirror, cowl ventilator, stop light, inspection light on 10-foot cord, and a splendid coincidental lock to ignition and steering wheel controlled by the key that operates the door and the spare-tire locks.

Open the doors and look within. The hand-grained dash with instruments on a silver-faced dial under glass; the panels of walnut inlaid with holly; the rich mohair upholstery; the heavy ornamental hardware, butler silver finish—all these fairly sing "quality." Slam the doors and the sound echoes the same keynote—"quality."

Then ride in it, feel the surge of power from the smooth, silent engine and you will know why the Big Six outsells all other cars of equal or greater rated horsepower.

FATE OF LOCARNO PACTS WAITS AS GERMANS JOCKEY

14 Parties Use Treaties to Grab for Power.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GUSTAV STRESEMANN.
[K. & H. Photo.]

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Representatives of fourteen different parties in the German reichstag will engage in the battle which will decide the fate of the Locarno treaties, designed to pacify and stabilize Europe, when the reichstag convenes on Nov. 20 or earlier if one-third of its members agree to a special call. The leaders are awaiting the decision of Dr. Loebe, president of the reichstag, who has just returned from America.

In the meantime the parties are engaged in skirmishes with the government, which are bringing new complications into the struggle. The conservative half of the reichstag is expressing its confidence in Chancellor Luther and the more democratic and socialistic elements are favoring Foreign Minister Stresemann. This adds an element of personal conflict to the theoretic battles over the Locarno pacts, although both signed them.

Divided Into Three Camps.

The fourteen political groups of the reichstag which will make Germany's final decision on Locarno are divided into three big camps. They are:

1. The middle parties: the German people's party, the Centrists or Catholics, the Bavarian people's party, and sometimes the democrats. Men such as the reichstag's greatest orator, Dr. Stresemann, and the leader of the Centrists, former Chancellor Marx, are the outstanding figures in this group.

2. The parties of the right: the nationalists, with the dashing Count Westarp, whose decisions overrun the narrow fanatical faction of his party under Herr Hergt share this side of the reichstag in which the supernationalists are typified by Field Marshal Ludendorff.

3. The left wing: the leaders are the socialists, who are headed by Rudolph Breitscheid, a tall Demosthenes of the reichstag, whose oratorical power often rivals that of Dr. Stresemann. On the left side are also the communists, but they are reduced to helplessness by intrigues in their own ranks.

Middle Parties in Saddle.

The place of honor belongs to the middle parties. They are the pillar of the German political society. They are the men who in the last five years, though inferior in number as compared with the radical monarchists or radical Socialists, have always managed to keep the power in their control and protect Germany from the wildest political experiments. The German People's party, the Centrists an dthe Bavarian People's party are today the chief supporters of the Locarno pacts. The fifty-one members of the German People's party together with sixty-nine Centrists and nineteen members of the Bavarian People's party form a fundamental block totaling 139. Reinforcing this group are thirty-two Democrats, bringing the voting strength of the Middle parties to 171.

This numerical weakness explains why the German government is buffeted from both sides despite the fact that Drs. Stresemann and Marx and some of the strongest men in German political life control it. The German People's party is the party of the industrialists and big commerce, consequently it is rich. The Centrists are recruited from industry and the Catholic population of Westphalia, the Rhineland and Bavaria. They are intensely religious. Dr. Stresemann and Dr. Marx fight often but they are fundamentally striving for the same objective—the peaceful settlement of Europe's problems.

Bernstorff Acts as Mediator.

The Democrats, led by Count Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States, for years were close collaborators with the middle group. But last winter when the German People's party fought collaboration with the Nationalists, the Democrats withdrew. On the eve of the Locarno conference they were found to be leaning toward the Socialists without indulging in the latter's opposition tactics.

They are now trying to induce Chancellor Luther to build a bridge over which the Socialists can return to the support of the government so as to insure the ratification of the Locarno treaty.

The Socialists, who with their 131 members constitute the strongest party in the reichstag, are not willing to give up their aloofness toward governmental responsibility. They point out to their partisans that whatever is wrong is due to the inefficiency of the parties in power and they are confident that if there are new elections the voters will flock back to them. Therefore, their papers are insisting that the reichstag must dissolve unless the Nationalists ratify the Locarno pact which members of their party then in the cabinet, helped to devise.

Ask Guaranty for Socialists.

The Democrats are requesting that the cabinet give the Socialists a full fledged guaranty that the government of Germany and the government of Prussia will remain in the hands of the center coalition with so strong a sprinkling of Socialists as to correspond to the Weimar coalition, and that the Nationalists will be definitely out of the governmental picture.

The Nationalists are not in the least degree willing to withdraw from the limelight despite the resignation of their members from the cabinet. They are the second strongest party in the reichstag. One hundred and ten members answer to their roll call in sharp military tone. Often their ranks are reinforced by Field Marshal Ludendorff's fifteen Hittlerites. In their eyes the Locarno pacts spell treason. They are laboring under the conviction that England and France will not fulfill the promises given at Locarno but will insist on every pound of flesh which Germany offered to obtain the French and British promises.

COWBOY, TO BE A BRITISH EARL, VISITS CHICAGO

Oliver Henry Wallop, the near Earl of Portsmouth, since the death recently of his brother, John Fellowes Wallop of London, arrived in Chicago yesterday en route from his Wyoming ranch to his English holdings.

The visitor combined the reticence, usually attributed to a British lord, with the tenacity thought typical of an American cowboy. For he declared he had nothing to say; and he stuck to his story.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallop breakfasted with Mrs. Wallop's niece and her husband, the John Paul Wellings, 920 North Michigan avenue. Then they went to the Lake Shore Drive hotel, where they will tarry until tomorrow, when they leave for New York, to sail soon for England. They will visit the family estate in Devonshire, and will be the guests of their son, Gerald Vernon Wallop, Viscount Lumington.

Baronial halls may be all very well, Mr. Wallop admitted, but he doesn't propose to give up his ranch in Wyoming, not for all the estates listed in Burke's peerage.

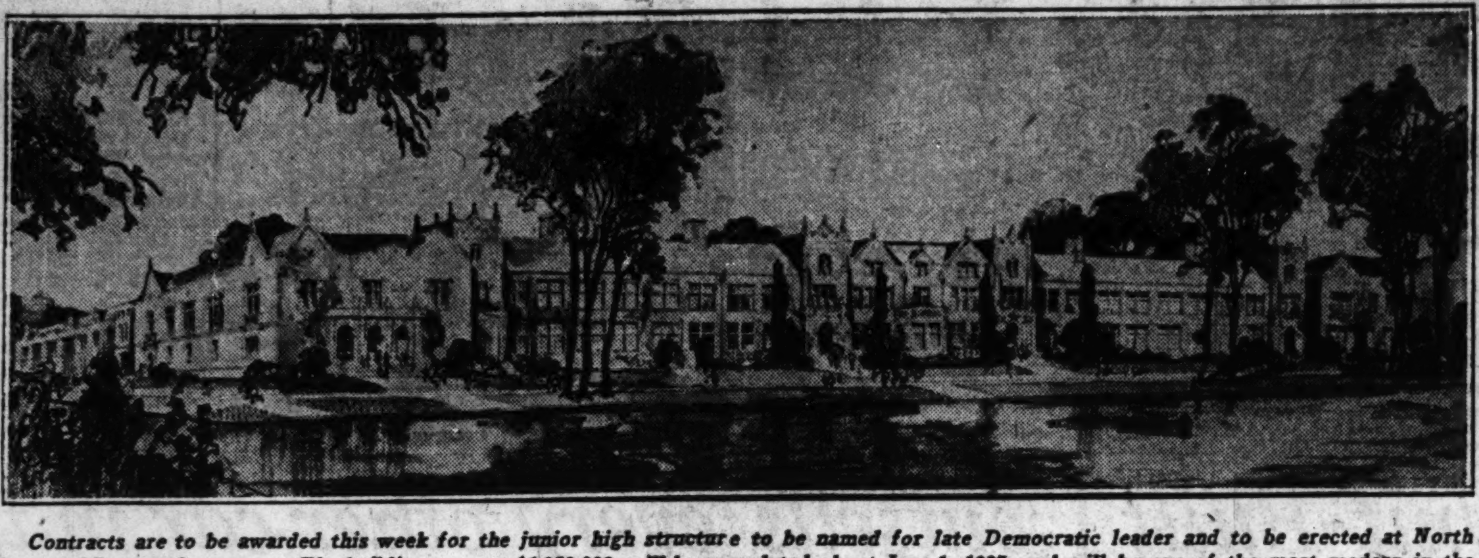
PLANS COMPLETE FOR ROGER C. SULLIVAN SCHOOL



Contracts are to be awarded this week for the junior high structure to be named for late Democratic leader and to be erected at North Shore and Bosworth avenues. The building, to cost $1,250,000, will be completed about Jan. 1, 1927, and will be one of the most modern in the Chicago system.

Will Ask High Court to Rehear Lorenz Case

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 7.—The state Supreme court will be asked to rehear the case against Arthur Lorenz, Chicago, found guilty on a charge of libeling the American Legion. Formal notice that the petition will be filed was recorded today in the office of Clerk Charles W. Vail.

Vera Cruz Shuts Foreign Shops Not Hiring Mexicans

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Police here have closed thirty-two business houses, a majority of them Spanish, because of alleged noncompliance with the labor law, which provides for the employment of a percentage of Mexicans by foreign concerns in the state of Vera Cruz.

FARMER SCHWAB COMPETES WITH DAVID WINDSOR

CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate and agriculturist, who owns a live stock farm in the east, will join other wealthy exhibitors at the International Live Stock exposition this winter. Killmere II., an outstanding Aberdeen-Angus bull, will represent the Schwab herd. The bull has won honors at many fairs this season.

Mr. Schwab's entry will be exhibited by the Kemp brothers of Marion, Ia. Killmere II. was bought from the Kemp farm to head the Schwab herd of black cattle.

The Prince of Wales' cattle also will be represented among the wealthy breeders who are exhibiting at the show at the Union Stock yards during the week of Nov. 28. King of the Fairies, many times champion Shorthorn bull, will head the herd of royal contenders from the E. P. ranch at Pekisko, Alberta, Canada, belonging to the Prince of Wales. King of the Fairies was bred on the prince's home farm at Cornwall, England, and was brought over to Canada to head the E. P. Ranch herd two years ago.

Sixteen universities have already entered teams in the students' live stock judging contest, an annual opening feature of the international.

IN Chicago and environs there are 10,261 satisfied users who indorse Frigidaire—with enthusiasm. They like this fine electric refrigerator bcause it is more than is claimed for it. They know and enjoy its many benefits and conveniences. Wives like the way it saves them work and gives them added time. They like Frigidaire's economy, its cleanliness, its happy way of keeping all foods fresh, sweet and toothsome for a month at a time if they like.

For, Frigidaire is entirely automatic. It needs no adjustments, no attention, no pampering of any kind. There aren't any buttons, nor levers, nor plugs to work. There is no melting cake of ice, which means wasted money, to run down the drain pipe—there's never a flooded compartment bottom nor drain pipes to clean. There's no waiting for the ice man nor any phoning for him. And the ice-bill is no more.

Frigidaire keeps all foods—raw, cooked, solid or liquid—in a dry, cold, changeless temperature. It matters not whether you are at home or off on a holiday for a month. Frigidaire makes for you a hundred frozen goodies. It makes ice cubes sized properly for every household use. It is the tireless watchman of purse and provender.

Frigidaire is a product of General Motors and made by Delco-Light Company of Dayton, Ohio. This means quality. Quantity production and tremendous engineering facilities make you sure of added money value. Come in and learn more about Frigidaire. TREATIES KEEP U. S. ARMY OF 1,400 IN CHINA

Early Withdrawal Is Held Impossible.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

The United States army and navy are dug so deeply into China by tradition, treaty and necessity that many veteran observers are of the opinion that military occupation by American forces is as firmly established as are the concessions of the Japanese and the European powers, which are, to all intents and purposes, sovereign soil. In the cases of Hongkong and Kowloon for the British and Macao for the Portuguese, this is absolutely true; while in the cases of France, Italy, and Japan the concessions are subject to return if and when China is ready for it or the powers are willing or both. Russia by her collapse and Germany and Austria-Hungary through their defeat have lost all rights in China, but so far as can be observed the other powers are holding as tightly as ever.

Advocates of a small army and a diminished navy for the United States as a step in the movement for the outlawing of war seem about to seize on the fact that America maintains at enormous cost a great Asiatic fleet, which spends most of its time in Chinese waters, and also has on active duty in sovereign Chinese soil a military force under the command of a major general, which includes the Fifteenth infantry, with machine gun, howitzer and other essential elements, in addition to two battalions of riflemen, a command and a regimental headquarters. There are more American soldiers in Tientsin than at many of the large military posts at home.

Subject to Dutch Orders.

In addition to the 800 soldiers on duty in China with headquartrs in Tientsin there are in Peking, as a legation guard, two battalions of American marines, under the command of a colonel and subject to the orders of the American minister. More than that, they are subject to the orders of the senior military commander of the five nations having troops in Peking, and to the orders of the senior minister, who is the Dutch minister. Presently, when the Japanese carry out their decision to have an ambassador, these American fighting men will be subject to the orders of a Japanese.

In addition to the army of 1,400 men maintained by the United States in China there are at the moment sixteen warships, either on the Chinese coast or far inland on the great, broad rivers, and especially the Yangtze. In the summer the entire Asiatic fleet is in Chinese waters, basing on Chefoo, on the northern coast of the Shantung peninsula, but in the winter the major ships of this powerful fleet, which is under the command of Admiral Williams, base on Manila.

Even this fleet is divided, for there is a permanent division of gunboats strung along the Yangtze under the command of a rear admiral and known as the Yangtze patrol, in addition to station ships at the more important ports, reporting direct to the commander in chief. The total number of men required for these ships runs into more than 2,000, and these are not reckoned with the land forces.

Withdrawal Would be Opposed.

When one asks a military or naval man why such large forces are maintained in China the answer is that armed forces were established in China first at the request of the missionaries and that when their services are required even in the present time the majority of the requests come from missionaries. When one asks the diplomatic part of the government why a formidable army and navy are maintained in China the answer comes calmly and firmly: "They are established by treaty and their duty is to protect American rights."

Advocates of a small navy and a little army would scrap our ships in Chinese waters and bring home and discharge the 1,400 fighting men who are ashore. Business men and even a considerable number of the missionaries, if not a majority, would oppose such a movement until China itself can maintain a government capable of protecting the lives and the rights of the Americans in China, whose numbers now run into many thousands. In the opinion of a majority of the Americans in China withdrawal of the armed forces in China cannot come until the relinquishment of extra-territoriality and the rendition of the foreign concessions are accomplished. And these, many will further emphasize, are a long way off. The initiative rests with the Chinese and the foreign powers have stipulated certain essential preliminaries. First and most difficult is a stable government for China. The revolution of 1911 is still going on; China has not yet found herself.

Gunboat 1,000 Miles Inland.

Chicago is roughly 1,000 miles from the Atlantic seaboard and St. Louis about a similar distance from the Gulf of Mexico. How would Chicagoans or St. Louisans feel if a French warship were stationed off Lake Shore drive or moored in the Mississippi near the Eads bridge for the protection of French nationals who might run counter to a traffic cop or be the victim of a holdup man? Yet the United States maintains at Ichang, in Szechwan province, 1,000 miles up the Yangtze from Shanghai, the gunboat El Cano. The power launch of the El Cano, with a crew and a pair of machine guns, often goes a full 500 miles further inland for the rescue of a missionary from bandits or for the protion of a Standard Oil man whose stocks have been seized by ruthless militarists.

There are at the present time further American warships stationed in Chinese waters—the flagship Huron and destroyers Hart and Rizal at Shanghai; flagship Isabel and gunboats General Alava and Penguin at Hankow, known as the Chicago of China, 600 miles from the sea; the Asheville at Hongkong, Aberanda at Amoy, Sacramento at Swatow, and Helena at Canton. The Monocacy is at Anhsien, 900 miles inland; the Palos at Luchow, also far up the Yangtze; the Villalobos at Changsha, 800 miles from the sea; the Pigeon at Nanking, 250 miles inland from Shanghai, and the Pampanga on the river beyond Canton.

Congress has authorized the construction of three additional gunboats in Chinese waters for use on the Yangtze. These are not to increase, but to replace, obsolete vessels captured from Spain in the war of 1898, and their size and draught are so slight that if constructed in the United States they would have to be dissembled and reassembled after reaching China.

Abolition Far Distant.

There is hope for the abolition of the large military forces in China, but the fruition is far distant. One of the resolutions of the Washington conference, adopted in February, 1922, reads in effect that "whereas the powers have from time to time stationed armed forces, including police and railway guards, in China to protect the lives of foreigners lawfully in China, and it appears that certain are maintained without authority of any treaty or agreement; and whereas the powers have declared their intention to withdraw such unauthorized forces whenever China shall assure the protection of the lives and property of foreigners in China; and whereas China has declared her intention and capacity to assure the protection," etc., the powers resolve to instruct their diplomatic representatives "whenever China shall so request" to associate themselves with three representatives of the Chinese government to "consider collectively a full and impartial inquiry and report."

The Chinese have first to request, under the terms of the resolution. Even then the Washington conference has bound itself to nothing more than an inquiry and report. As for the withdrawal of the forces established in China by treaty, or other benefits conferred on China by treaty, these seem even farther in the distance. It is this that has caused the Chinese student bodies to demand rendition of concessions and relinquishment of extra-territoriality; it was this, indirectly, that within the last few months caused the rioting that led to the landing and firing on the Chinese by American armed forces in Shanghai, in Nanking and in Hankow. At home only congress can declare war. In China the admiral or the minister can do so.

GLACKIN WRITES $100 CHECK TO AID FIGURES IN REMAPPING FIGHT

State Senator Edward J. Glackin of Chicago yesterday came to the aid of John B. Fergus, who is without funds to summon 204 state legislators before the Supreme court in a mandamus suit to compel reapportionment of the state. His help was in the form of a check for $100.

On Friday Mr. Fergus was ready to draw on the city for $375 from a fund of $2,500 which the council voted to aid him, but he discovered that the finance committee had neglected to make the appropriation.

With only twenty days to serve the writs Mr. Fergus found himself yesterday without funds. Then Senator Glackin stepped in. The Supreme court hearing is set for Dec. 1.

Son of McAdoo Sued by U. S. for Income Tax

Los Angeles, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The name of William G. McAdoo Jr., son of the former secretary of the treasury, was among those against whom income tax liens were filed yesterday by Income Tax Collector Rex B. Goodcell. The government claims there is $58.93 due on young McAdoo's 1924 tax. Through an error, the name of the elder McAdoo was at first associated with the tax lien, but a recheck developed that it was the son of the former treasury secretary against whom the lien was directed.

Milwaukee Ex-Brewer Leaves Charity $1,700,000

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Charitable bequests amounting to $1,700,000 were made in the will of the late Fred Miller, one time Milwaukee brewer, it was disclosed today when the will was offered for probate. Of this sum the missionary association of Catholic Women, Milwaukee, will receive $1,000,000. The value of the estate is established at $2,033,000.

PROSPERITY PUTS U. S. ON PEAK OF LIVING STANDARD

Hoover's Annual Report Is Pæan to America.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Prosperous conditions in most sections of the country during the last year made possible the highest standards of living in all history, according to Secretary of Commerce Hoover who made public today excerpts from his forthcoming annual report to congress.

"Taking the nation at large," Mr. Hoover said, "the outstanding features of the fiscal year were: The high rates of production, consumption and export; high wages; the absence of any consequential unemployment; continued growing efficiency in management and labor; continued expansion in application of scientific discovery, in such fields as electric power and light, the gas engine, and radio.

Textile Industry Lags.

"There were industrial patches where progress lagged, as in the New England textile industry, some sections of the agricultural industry and the bituminous coal industry. Nevertheless, the standard of living of the country as a whole was the highest in our history and therefore the highest in all history."

A large volume of new construction and a further expansion of automobile production were the chief features of the industrial situation, Secretary Hoover said. Retail trade increased during 1924-'25 and was larger than in any previous year on record. Improved buying power among the farm population, he said, caused a 10 per cent expansion of mail order sales. This improved buying power, according to his analysis, was due to increase of 9 per cent and 7 per cent, respectively, in the prices of farm products and foods while wholesale prices of most other commodities were declining. The higher food prices incidentally boosted slightly the cost of living for the rest of the population.

Building Figures Soar.

"The greatest volume of construction operations on record, representing a total investment of more than $6,000,000,000, was carried out under the most noteworthy circumstances," said Secretary Hoover. Building cost indexes declined perceptibly during the execution of this tremendous program.

"This was possible because the construction industry and building owners responded to the movement for stabilization organized by the industry with the coöperation of this department for the purpose of keeping the industry employed more actively throughout the year, instead of allowing it to operate at only a fraction of its capacity during most months.

"There was practically none of the obvious and gross inefficiency and waste which has usually accompanied building booms in the past, and the industry continues in a healthy condition, ready to meet continuing demands upon it."

Agriculture on Up Grade.

Secretary Hoover reported marked progress toward the restoration of agriculture to a prewar condition.

"Advances in prices of agricultural commodities, together with a large volume of production and marketing, caused the farm income to reach a greater total in the crop year 1924-'25 than in any year since 1920-'21," he said. "Price advances were pronounced in the case of the various grains. Some weak spots continue, but the general situation is much improved.

"September forecasts indicate that the aggregate output of all crops during the present year will be about 6 per cent smaller than last year, but this will probably not adversely affect farm communities, since it has been just about offset by advances in agricultural prices.

"As a result of the successive rises in the prices of cotton, grains and animal products during the last three years, the agricultural industry has now reached a better adjustment with other industries than at any time since the war."

Railroad managers and employés received praise for the handling of a greater traffic than ever before without car shortage or congestion. The steady increase in ratios of car and train loadings, Mr. Hoover said, represents "a great contribution to efficiency."

Turning to world conditions, Secretary Hoover said that perhaps the most encouraging feature of the period was the stabilization of monetary systems.

"The setting up of the machinery of the Dawes plan in Germany, in August, 1924, was a helpful beginning in this direction," Mr. Hoover said. "The reorganized reichsbank commenced the issuance of new currency based on gold to replace the old inconvertible currency.

Britain Paves the Way.

"On April 29, 1925, Great Britain and The Netherlands simultaneously resumed specie payments and this example was immediately followed by New Zealand, Canada, the Union of South Africa and the Dutch East Indies.

"These favorable developments had already been preceded in April, 1924, by Sweden's return to the gold standard and the establishment of sound currency conditions in such countries as Switzerland, Austria, and Czechoslovakia. The countries of Latin-America which are not already on a gold standard, have made marked progress toward sound monetary conditions and stable exchange.

"The progress in the reëstablishment of the gold standard is of incalculable importance to the world.

Huge World Trade Shown.

"The volume of the world's total international trade, counting both imports and exports, now aggregates about $50,000,000,000. The great bulk—more than two-thirds—of this total represents the foreign trade of the United States, Great Britain, the British dominions, and the other countries whose currencies are stabilized.

"The foreign trade of those countries that have long been on a silver basis might well be included with these gold standard nations, in which case it appears that the financing of an overwhelming proportion of the world's trade will henceforth be done on a metallic monetary basis comparable to that of before the war."

PLAN OVERSEAS MEMORIAL FOR "Y" WAR DEAD

A movement for erection of a monument "somewhere in France," in memory of Y. M. C. A. workers who died overseas was started last night at the third annual dinner and reunion of the Chicago Hut of the Y Overseas Union, held at the Central Y. M. C. A. building.

Capt. Wayland Brooks, commander of the Marine Corps post, American Legion, was the principal speaker.

Conrad Hoffman Jr. spoke on "Europe Seven Years After." The invocation was by Chaplain A. S. C. Clark. Miss Ada Dahlgren of Minnesota, who was an overseas Y worker, sang, and there was a chorus singing, led by Clarence G. Moser. Harry E. Overstreet was toastmaster.

GERMAN TO HELP FOUND INDUSTRY MUSEUMS IN U. S.

Oskar Von Miller, manager of the German railway system and founder of the German museum of science and industry at Munich, announced yesterday at a luncheon of the German club of Chicago that he had been invited to assist in the establishment of two similar museums, one in New York and the other in Washington, which would involve an outlay of $50,000,000.

As a nucleus for this work Mr. Von Miller said, a wealthy eastern man left a $1,500,000 bequest in his will. The German railroad director is in Chicago as the guest of Vice President Charles G. Dawes and Samuel Insull, both of whom are interested in the museum projects, he said.

MOTOR SILENCE

Its Relation to Automobile Longevity

WHEN a motor runs with almost imperceptible sound—it means that in it there is virtually no metal-to-metal contact with its resultant friction, rattle and life-shortening wear.

Many cars boast partial forced feed oiling systems, but Velie has full forced feed lubrication. Through a drilled crankshaft oil is pumped to all moving parts, even to the wrist-pins and rocker arms, all of which operate in a constant oil bath that makes for this extreme quiet.

FULL FORCED FEED MOTOR LUBRICATION

Velie is the only medium-priced car employing this system—a feature contained and looked for in high-priced cars only.

Reasons for choosing The Knabe Piano with the AMPICO Re-enacting Action

YOU can choose the Knabe-Ampico with the assurance that this piano has already been chosen by hundreds of leading people, from coast to coast. At our studios you may see photographs of the Knabe-Ampico in many of America's finest homes. Also a list of distinguished owners far too voluminous to reproduce here.

Until you hear the Knabe it may be hard for you to realize that there can be so much difference in piano tone. It is a difference difficult to describe. You must hear it. Then you will know—instantly—that this tone is different from all others. It is the very soul of music. Remember, when you buy a piano, first of all buy tone. Hear the Knabe before you make any final purchasing decision. Permit your ears to take evidence.

The Playing of the Masters is always available to you through the marvelous re-enacting Ampico, which is contained within the Knabe. Insert a different type of music roll in a sliding drawer. Close the drawer. All sign of mechanism vanishes. Now touch an electric button and glorious music comes forth—the exact, re-enacted playing of the world's greatest musicians. No one can tell the difference between Rachmaninoff in person and Rachmaninoff through the Ampico—without seeing. The Ampico list of recording artists numbers 249, practically every great pianist known to the concert world.

A nominal payment down, which includes our acceptance of your old piano, puts a Knabe-Ampico in your home. Balance payable on a monthly plan suitable to your requirements. Details gladly given on request. See us for particulars and demonstration. Mail coupon for illustrated Knabe-Ampico brochure

NEW ENGLAND IS READY TO GO ON SOFT COAL BASIS

$70,000,000 Year Saving, Coolidge Is Told.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—New England, as a result of the anthracite tie-up, is preparing to go on a permanent bituminous basis, and by so doing will save $70,000,000 annually on its fuel bill, President Coolidge was informed today by John Hays Hammond. Hammond was chairman of the coal commission which conducted an investigation two years ago.

Mr. Hammond said he saw nothing the federal government could do under present legislation to end the anthracite suspension. He estimated that anthracite in storage in the east would supply wants to mid-January.

Pinchot Sees Settlement.

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Belief that an early settlement of the anthracite strike will be reached was expressed today in a letter from Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania to Maj. William F. Deegan, foreman of the Bronx grand jury, which investigated the fuel situation.

The governor, replying to a telegram urging him to use his good offices to bring about an early settlement, said he was "rather optimistic that each side will shortly be much more ready to agree than they were when the strike commenced."

"Both the miners and operators are suffering tremendous daily losses," the governor said.

Plan Memorial Service for H. F. Fuller Tuesday

Memorial services for the late Henry Frederick Fuller will be held Tuesday evening at the Woman's City club jointly by the midwest chapter of the Alden Kindred of America and the State Microscopic society of Illinois. Mr. Fuller was historian of the Alden organization and curator of the Microscopic society. He was a native of Chicago and was educated at the University of Chicago and in England. Recently he had lived in New York. His death occurred Oct. 25.

Man Accused of Lover's Lane Killing Is Acquitted

Frank R. Loomis, charged on circumstantial evidence with the murder of Mortimer Fairchild, whose body was found in a lover's lane, three miles north of Elgin, in August, 1924, was acquitted by a jury at Geneva on Friday night.

B. & O. CHIEF TO MEET CITY ON RIVER PROJECT

Willard to Discuss Big Terminal Plan.

Steps toward an agreement and acceptance of the terms fixed by the citizens' committee for straightening the Chicago river by the railroads interested in the south side terminal are looked for tomorrow when Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, confers with Theodore W. Robinson, chairman of the mayor's committee.

It is the first definite move on the part of President Willard to meet with the committee and discuss the terms worked out by the citizens' group. Heretofore Mr. Willard has been considered cold to the plan and the meeting tomorrow was viewed by city hall officials as encouraging.

Other Lines Favorable.

The Rock Island lines and the New York Central lines, both of whom are the tenant companies most affected by the project, are reported to have tentatively agreed to the plan. Should the B. & O. indicate willingness to get together prospects for pushing the improvement would be bright, in the opinion of city officials.

Under the plan seven railroads interested would have to buy and sell land to permit the river to be straightened. The B. and O. will have to pay the largest amount of any road, $4,138,340. The Rock Island and New York Central jointly would pay $2,836,610. No objection is expected from the four other railroads interested, as under the terms they will sell land.

Ready to Consider Plan.

President Willard was recently reported by Commissioner of Public Works Sprague to have left an erroneous impression with directors of the B. and O. by indicating that his road had not been consulted in the river straightening project.

Mr. Willard in a letter to Mr. Sprague hastened to correct the impression and declared that his road was ready to listen to the plan and that the system did not intend in any way to stand in the way of the improvement. He further stated that he would confer with Mr. Robinson at the earliest possible moment.

Linked with the river straightening project is the plan for a $300,000,000 passenger terminal in which fourteen railroads now using three depots are being invited to participate.

ISHING VILLAGE ECOMES CITY OF MILLIONAIRES

Sarasota Epitomizes the Saga of Florida.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sarasota, Fla., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Another magic city. Two years ago Sarasota was little more than a fishing town of less than 3,000. Now it has a population said to be 12,000 and a growing skyline. It calls itself the "greatest small city in all the world" and it has plenty to back up its hand.

Chicago plays a large figure in its development. It appears that there are more Chicagoans than native Floridians in the city. This is not as strange as it may appear, for all through the Spanish moss and cocoanut belt nearly everybody one meets seems to have come from some outside state.

All summer long the town was packed. Three or four new hotels have gone up and five more are building in this region, and house builders are working as fast as the embargo on freight and the shortage of building supplies will permit. But even at that, when the winter season reaches its crest the tourist with a tent on the back seat will still be playing in luck.

Tourist Camps Permanent Abodes.

They tried tourist camps. The newcomers snuggled down into these camps and put up little cabins until now they are permanent workmen's homes. The demand is such that a tincanner who has a shack in a camp has no difficulty in selling out for $300 to $500 if he wishes to depart.

One tract of land that started as a tent colony a year ago, has grown into a permanent community of 300. As one drives over the roads in the early morning, he meets streams of workers flivvering to their jobs—more than 1,500 now come into Sarasota daily to help build it into "the Miami of the Gulf coast," which is its most cherished dream.

The chamber of commerce says Sarasota, the fishing village of two years ago, now has at least 35 millionaires from outside and perhaps 20 more of the home grown variety. This may be stretching it a bit, but at any rate, the city gives evidence of abundant capital and substantial growth.

Palmer Family Interested.

The latest developments at Sarasota are those of Ringling Brothers, and of Honore and Potter Palmer of Chicago. The Ringling brothers, John and Charles, became interested in Sarasota a few years ago when on a tarpon fishing trip and they carried the name Sarasota all over the country on the circus posters.

The main Ringling development is the "John Ringling Estates." They are on three islands and keys directly across the bay from Sarasota. To afford access to them, John Ringling is building, at an expense of $1,250,000, a causeway a mile and a quarter in length, from Golden Gate point to Starmands island and on to Little Sarasota Key and Long Boat Key. It is to be presented to the city of Sarasota upon completion.

Andrew McAnsh of Chicago, one of the most active builders, erected the Miramar, a hotel of picturesque beauty, a year ago and is now building a casino and bathing pavilion at the beach.

$2 an Acre 25 Years Ago.

Some 25 years ago, the late Mrs. Potter Palmer came to the west coast just below Sarasota and established a beautiful estate. At that time, all the land one wanted could be had for $2 to $5 an acre at the water front. Now frontage is sold by the foot up into the thousands. The Palmer holdings are the largest in the region of Sarasota, and are being operated by Honore and Potter Palmer under the title of the Potter corporation.

One phase of exceptional interest is back country development through acreage tracts. The Palmer corporation is converting 1,600 acres into a citrus grove now two years old. They are also draining 25,000 acres east of Sarasota, of which the greater part is muck land, the best in the world for truck gardening.

LABORER MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT.

Four bullets were fired at Frank Bruegto, a laborer, 912 South Irving avenue, last night as he was getting into an automobile at 2239 West Taylor street. One struck him and inflicted a scalp wound. Bruegto told the police he did not know his assailants, who fled.

CHICAGO VENUS IS SOUGHT FOR THE ARTS BALL

The search for a Chicago Venus has begun.

A committee composed of artists and laymen, headed by Albion Polasek, sculptor, and McClelland Barclay, has been appointed to select from among the applicants a number of Chicago beauties who will be judged by popular acclaim on the night of the Arts ball, Dec. 18, at the Congress hotel.

The girls, who are registereing at Mr. Barclay's studio in the Wrigley building, come from all walks of life. They are girls working in shops, on the stage, professional models, students, and society girls. In judging only two things are taken into consideration—beauty of face and beauty of figure.

The Arts ball is sponsored by the Association of Arts and Industries, which is working to establish an industrial art school in connection with the Art institute of Chicago. Andre Rebori is chairman of the executive committee, which includes Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Col. William Nelson Pelouze, Harry J. Ridings, John F. Jelke, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Colin C. H. Fyffe, John M. Glenn, and Benjamin Marshall.

LAST SETS NOW SELLING

If you want a set of the famous

Encyclopaedia Britannica

in the NEW FORM at nearly half-price

YOU MUST ACT AT ONCE!

ONLY a few sets of the famous Encyclopaedia Britannica in the New Form, at the present amazingly low price, are left. Not nearly enough to take care of orders of the thousands who are saying: "Some day I will own a set of this great work."

The success of this, our greatest sale, is astounding! Orders have jumped from 100 to 120 to 160 sets a day. Therefore, we are emphasizing the fact that if you really want one of these last sets—at the lowest price at which the large type, large page Britannica has ever been offered—you must act at once.

As fast as orders come in, we are shipping the very last that remain of a printing of 10,000 sets. With each set is included the handsome mahogany-finish bookcase, given free while this offer lasts.

Act now!

If up to this time you have merely thought of buying the Britannica—and have not sent for the free booklet, do so now. This illustrated 56-page booklet, which tells all about the New Form Britannica, and the convenient terms on which you can obtain one of these last sets, will be sent you by return mail.

When the Britannica in the New Form was brought out, less than 14 months ago, it created a sensation—it was the result of revolutionary changes in book publishing.

A word of warning to those who have already sent for information about the Britannica

If you have already received the 56-page booklet describing the Britannica, you know what a marvelous work it is—its every-day interest, value and usefulness.

But think: Thousands of others have that booklet—are deciding to buy—are sending in their orders. The meager supply of sets remaining is diminishing at a rate that makes it essential for you to order now.

Delay invites disappointment. And may prove costly. For this sensational offer may never be repeated—the large type, large page Encyclopædia Britannica at a 46 per cent saving!

To avoid regrets—to save money—send in your order now. It is urgent.

What makes it such a bargain?

By means of a number of innovations, we were enabled to reduce the price of the Britannica in the New Form 46 per cent less than the price of the famous large type, large page Cambridge issue.

Total sales of the Britannica in the New Form have exceeded 37,000. Our last printing was of 10,000 sets. Now these are almost gone.

It would not be possible for us to print any more sets for nearly a year. We could not guarantee delivery before next September. It requires four months to make the paper and five or six months to print and bind.

Therefore, to make sure of one of these last sets of the Britannica in the New Form—at a saving of 46 per cent and payable in convenient terms—you must act.

Danger in delay

We have given you the plain facts. Now look at it in this way: You have long desired to own this famous work which is the greatest source of knowledge ever published. You probably have considered a thousand-and-one ways in which the Britannica would prove valuable and profitable to you. Then why delay?—this may be your last chance to get the Britannica, greatest of all reference books, at a saving of 46 per cent.

This beautiful bookcase free

This beautiful bookcase, in mahogany finish, especially designed by Maple & Co. of London, given free while this offer lasts.

All the world's knowledge can now be yours

There is no subject of interest to any man, woman or child that is not covered thoroughly and authoritatively in the Britannica. It contains all knowledge—science, art, literature, biography, history, invention, the World War and the momentous times that have followed; also the latest developments in all fields of endeavor—written in easy narrative style that holds the reader's interest.

It contains 49,000,000 words, 33,000 pages and 15,600 illustrations—as much material as 476 books of average size printed on ordinary paper.

Small first payment

A small first payment puts the complete 16 double volumes and the handsome free bookcase in your home. The balance is payable in monthly payments so small they will never be missed. But don't put off sending for information.

In this sale, our policy must be first come, first served. You have no time to lose. When our present stock is gone, this sale will have to stop. No more half-price sets for at least a year—this offer may never be repeated. Act now before it is too late.

THE first, and the dominant, appeal of Hoffman Automatic Gas Water Heaters is the convenience they bring into homes—their helpfulness in pleasurable housekeeping—their contribution of comfort to all the family—their elimination of wastefulness of time, effort and money.

And their promises of these much-needed, modern betterments are entirely fulfilled when they are in use.

Being automatic in action they require no attention whatever. Hot water of unvarying temperature, in any quantity, is ready at the turn of the faucets—every minute of day or night.

No bothersome lighting of a heater, which usually means a trip to the cellar and a tiring climb back upstairs. No waiting for water to heat. No forgetting to turn off the gas.

Bath water any time, for any one—not a lucky one or two. More than enough hot water instantly ready for any purpose—to save time and make work easier. Hot water for the unexpected need—when seconds count.

But these vital factors are not the only Hoffman advantages. Economy is another outstanding appeal. Gallon for gallon, no other water heating method costs so little. A few pennies a day pays for this supreme service.

These home-modernizing automatic gas water heaters are easy to own. Hoffman prices are lowest. There's a considerable saving on the model and size for your home. And you can purchase it on convenient payments.

See these two types of Hoffman Automatics and learn more about them. Inquire of dealer nearest you—see list below—or fill in and mail the coupon below. Send it NOW!

Note These Low Prices:

No. 20-A Storage System, (20 gallons capacity) for average homes, is only....	$100
No. 40-A Storage System, (40 gallons capacity) for larger homes, is only......	$135

Hoffman Automatic Domestic Storage Systems, illustrated below at left, are compact units in which the full capacity of the tank is automatically kept hot and ready for use.

The No. 35 Instantaneous Model, for homes with minimum hot water requirements, is only............	$75
The No. 45 Instantaneous Model, for small homes with usual hot water outlets, only	$90
The No. 3 Thermostatic Instantaneous Model, for homes of average size, only	$125

Hoffman Instantaneous Models require no tank. Service is direct from water main. Gas burns only while faucets are open. Closing the faucet shuts off the gas.

ILLINI WADE TO 13-6 VICTORY OVER CHICAGO

MAROON LINE STOPS GRANGE, BUT FUMBLES COST 'EM GAME

Red Carries Ball 17 Times, Gains 18 Yards, Loses 26.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

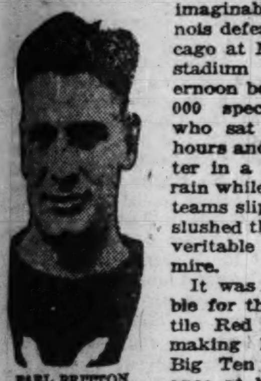
Champaign, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Under the worst weather conditions imaginable, Illinois defeated Chicago at Memorial stadium this afternoon before 69,000 spectators who sat for two hours and a quarter in a drizzling rain while the two teams slipped and slushed through a veritable quagmire.



EARL BRITTON.

It was impossible for the versatile Red Grange, making his last Big Ten appearance at home, to his feet on the slippery surface. Red was stopped, not by the Maroons but by the impossible conditions he faced, although Stagg's men were on top of him on every play and often threw him for a loss. But on those times when Red was free his feet went out from under him in the miry going and enabled the enemy to come alongside.

Britton's Punting Wins.

But the very conditions which handicapped the Illinois captain were in large part responsible for the Illinois victory. It was the punting of Earl Britton, for three years a teammate of Grange and largely responsible for Red's success on dry days by his interference and blocking, which kept the advantage with Illinois and enabled it to take advantage of the breaks which ultimately decided the issue.

It was almost impossible to hold the greasy oval. Chicago punters failed to do so at critical stages. Britton, after a bad first quarter, was steady and reliable, although his distances did not approach what he would have done on a dry day. As Illinois fumbled only four times and Chicago eleven times, the value of a man who could boot that leaden ball was almost beyond estimate.

Coach Zuppke, always a conservative in his compliments, told Britton after the game that for the first time in his three years on the team he felt compelled to take off his hat in admiration.

Just how much this punting and fumbling meant is revealed in the statistics, which showed that Chicago gained 106 yards from scrimmage and Illinois only 22. Illinois made 55 yards from forward passes and Chicago 15.

Red Makes 18, Loses 26.

And then if you go further and find that Red Grange, the unstopable man on a dry field, the man who scored three touchdowns against Pennsylvania and made the fourth touchdown possible, actually lost more ground than he gained, advancing only 18 yards and being thrown for losses of 26 yards, you can imagine something of the field. It was muddy at Philadelphia, but it was not the slippery mud of this afternoon.

And while condoling with Red at his lack of opportunity, one must express admiration for those Maroons who tore through the slime to nullify Red's efforts. It was no yellow bunch from the Midway which made its stand here.

Maligned and criticized to an extent many think entirely undeserved; feeling they were not receiving proper support from their alumni, those Maroons put up a battle which might have won had not most of the breaks been against them. Those breaks, of course, were fumbles, but even fumbles were excusable on such a day as this.

Reitsch, Kassel, D'Ambrosio.

While praise of Britton will go down in Illinois football annals of 1925, Reitsch, Kassel, and D'Ambrosio will be recorded as the specific causes of Maroon defeat. It was Reitsch and Kassel who broke through to block a punt which Rouse was attempting to make from behind his own goal line just as the third period ended. And it was D'Ambrosio who fell on the ball behind the Maroon final line for the touchdown which broke the 6 to 6 tie with which the first half had ended.

That touchdown was the break of the game because whenever the Maroons, minus the services of McCarty, their best ground gainer who was injured in the second period, threatened thereafter, a fumble ended their chance and Britton was called upon to punt again into Maroon territory.

Rain began falling last night at 10 o'clock and continued steadily and incessantly all morning and throughout the game. Although the gridiron had been covered with hay, the water seeped through as if through a sieve and puddles were standing in the field when the opening whistle blew.

Plenty of Rubber.

As Illinois' big band paraded the field in advance of the short signal practice, practically every seat in the stadium and the temporary bleachers containing accommodations for 5,000 more was occupied. Local dealers, who remembered the rain when Chicago and

Players Get Glory, Rooters Pneumonia

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—It is sweet to be kicked in the slats and expire in public for dear old Chicago or dear old Illinois as the band plays and thousands cheer.

But it is not sweet to sit for three hours in a bitter rain on an Illinois prairie or anywhere else and contract a case of sniffles and perhaps to pass out privately on a feverish pillow ten days later.

You may draw your own conclusion as to whether the straining warriors, though they were lathered with honest gumbo from the soil of Illinois and somewhat barked about the shins and knuckles, had a worse time at the Illinois-Chicago game than the 69,000 people who cheered them through the wretched afternoon. Deep down at the bottom of the bowl, two teams of football players went slipping and skidding over the battle site and within two minutes after the game began they were masked in mud, their hands were black and the numbers on their shoulder blades were blotted out by a rich solution of very expensive real estate.

Back to Town in Dark.

Surrounding them, in rising tiers that seemed to crowd the drooping skies, sat the 69,000 people, cramped in their seats, unable even to flap their arms to warm themselves until the dusk closed in and some one mercifully shot off a pistol, ending the game. That sharp report and that darting pink flash from the gun released the 69,000 and sent them limping down the windy runways to find their way across lots, back to town, in the dark.

The Maroons came out to play with their shanks naked because the weight of soggy stockings might have retarded their speed after the first few plays. But among the crowd in the stands were thousands of co-eds and older women wearing the sheerest of silk stockings and paper weight slippers who had already walked half a mile or more along the road that was ankle deep in mud to reach the stadium. The bare legged Maroons were active, racing from end to end of the hundred yard bog, diving in the slime, getting up and diving again. The girls in the grandstands could only sit there with wet feet and mud splashed calves, with the rain washing down on them until it was over.

They were faithful to the hardy tradition of football but they may have the sniffles tonight and it will not be sweet to get pneumonia. It is rarely, if ever, sweet to get pneumonia.

Fakers Outguess Stores.

The fakers on the streets of Champaign, those sharp faced peddlers who follow the crowds to ball games, races, conventions and fights, were quick to throw overboard their stocks of canes and banners and badges and to scour the town for every bolt of waterproof stuff to be found on the shelves of the stores. The merchants themselves seemed to be caught out of their business stride for the peddlers were on the street corners along the route to the stadium selling oilcloth by the yard before the storekeepers realized what had stimulated the market.

And then the procession to the stadium became a fantastic parade. Women with minks and sables stopped in the rain to buy lengths of hideously flowered oil cloth. With nail files or pocket knives borrowed from their escorts, they hacked circular holes in the goods and slid their improvised slickers over their heads. Some one thought of bathing caps as the salvation of fall millinery and the drug clerks went to the basements to dig out stocks that had been stored away for the winter. Some of the girls wore goloshes, but not many. Perhaps they are no longer fashionable.

Resident Element Prepared.

The resident element, the boys and girl of Illinois, went to their lockers and brought out raincoats, mainly those yellow ones affected by Glo'stermen, but some blues and pinks and purples. They also came out in Sou'wester hats, which conducted the rain down over their shoulders. You could spot the college raincoats. They were sensational with fraternity let-

BRITTON SLIDES TO GLORY

Earl Britton, the punting hero of the Illinois team, chalked up another bid for fame when he slid through the Chicago line for a touchdown in the second quarter of the muddy battle of Champaign. He's at the bottom of the heap, and the referee is moving his arms in token of the touchdown. A sheet of rain almost obscured the play.

Badgers Smash Hawks, 6-0 as Iowa Blizzard Rages

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Iowa's hopes of a clear claim to a Big Ten championship were swept up in the teeth of a terrific blizzard here today.

HAROLD BOB KREUZ.
[Photoart Photo.]

On a field drifted with snow while a veritable gale from the north whirled about their heads, the Hawkeyes, heretofore unbeaten, slipped and fell before the rush of Wisconsin 6 to 0 in a battle that probably is without parallel in conference grid history.

Football wasn't possible. It was just a matter of trying this or that and trusting to luck. When a back, most of the time with mittens on his hands, held the ball it was an exception. If a kicker sent a punt for twenty yards into the face of the gale, it was an achievement. Most of the time the fifteen thousand spectators didn't even know what was happening out there in the swirling storm.

Kicks And Fumbles.

That Wisconsin, the under dog, was able to score a touchdown for its second conference victory of the season will remain as one of those things for which there is no explanation. For the better part of three periods the two teams simply kicked and fumbled back and forth. Whatever advantage there was during those snow laden minutes was with the Hawkeyes but with the third quarter almost closed the Badgers, with Doyle Harmon carrying the attack, pulled themselves together for the drive that was to bring victory.

There were only a few minutes of the third canto remaining when Graham, the Iowa kicker, punted into a wind without gaining an inch. The ball rolled out of bounds on the Hawks' 29 yard line. Doyle Harmon smashed into the tackles for 8, then 5. L. Harmon helped with 5 more through the line. Then Doyle Harmon came back with a stab at Iowa's right tackle that put the ball only one yard away from the coveted goal.

Hawkeyes Panicstricken.

Doyle Harmon was still calling for action and he got it in three plays. He tried an end once and got nowhere and after two shots inside the tackles was two yards from the scoring line. Then Brother Leo tried his luck but he fumbled on the one yard line and Iowa took the ball just as the period closed.

The Hawkeyes, by this time apparently panic stricken by the sudden burst of Badger strength, immediately tried to kick out of danger. Graham tried to punt but the ball was blocked and a Wisconsin end fell on it. The touchdown was disallowed, however, because the Badgers were offside, so a five yard penalty was inflicted and Graham punted again, but even with the wind in his favor he sent the ball only to his twelve yard mark. Then the Badgers started another march that put them over.

Kreuz Goes Over.

In two smashes at the tackles, Doyle Harmon rolled the Hawks back five yards. Then came a costly five yard penalty for the Iowans and the oval was only one yard from a touchdown. Big Bob Kreuz, brother of the Pennsylvania star, took it over in a lunge, through Iowa's left guard. The chance to add a point with a place kick went glimmering when the ball was fumbled.

A few minutes later a bad Wisconsin punt against the wind gave Iowa a belated chance on its opponent's fifteen yard line. The few thousand spectators who hadn't departed from the arctic scene rose up out of their blankets as if expecting to see something happen. But nothing occurred because Fry, the star full back, who was able to do practically nothing throughout the struggle, fumbled and Wisconsin kicked to mid-field.

Final Pass Fails.

After this kick, the Iowans, now desperate, uncorked the first pass attempted during the game. Prior to that, neither side dared to hurl the ice covered oval. Hogan, the drop kicking substitute, sailed a long heave about thirty yards down the field. But Rice, who was tagged to recover it, couldn't plow through the snow to reach the ball. Then Hogan tried another, but fumbled just as the final shot was fired.

Iowa, had it been able to penetrate the Wisconsin wall late in the first period, might have scored a touchdown. A fumble gave the Hawks the ball nine yards from the Badger's goal, but they lost it a moment later when Fry let the elusive oval slip from his grasp. The Badgers lost no time punting out of danger.

Mooseheart Preps Score 292 Points in 288 Minutes

Elgin, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Mooseheart high school's football team claims the distinction of being a point a minute combination. The Moosemen have played six games, winning all of them, and scoring 292 points in 288 minutes of actual playing time. The Moose goal has not been crossed.

The Moosemen are negotiating for a postseason game Dec. 5, away from home. The teams being considered are Hollywood, Cal.; Portland, Ore.; Lima, O., and Elkhart, Ind.

In the last eight years the team has won 48 out of 53 games played.

Following is the 1925 season record: Mooseheart, 54; St. Charles, 0. Mooseheart, 62; Elwood, Ind., 0. Mooseheart, 62; Lake View, 0. Mooseheart, 33; Gary, Ind., 0. Mooseheart, 39; De Kalb, 0. Mooseheart, 42; East Aurora, 0.

Hockey League Governors Fail to Admit Chicago

Montreal, Que., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—National Hockey league governors at the annual meeting here today discussed the possibility of admitting Chicago into the league this year but decided it was too late in the year to take action. Pittsburgh's hockey club was officially admitted into the league. Delegates attended from New York, Boston and Pittsburgh and the Canadian club.

Pedestrian Run Down by Barney Oldfield, Injured

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Barney Oldfield today ran down a pedestrian, H. J. O'Fallon, whose injuries were slight enough to permit his removal to his home instead of a hospital. Oldfield said he was going 30 miles an hour, according to the police report. Oldfield was released pending O'Fallon's recovery.

Princeton Back Wears Mask to Protect Nose

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Another "masked marvel" appeared in football today when Joe Prendergast, Princeton half back, appeared in the Harvard game with a special leather protection that covered half of his face. While at Exeter Prendergast's nose was broken and an operation to remove the bone in the nose was necessary. As a protection Prendergast had a special headgear fashioned. It covers his head and extends over his forehead and nose with the leather cut away around his eyes.

JOE PRENDERGAST
[Und. & Und. Photo.]

Prendergast, called "Little Joe" by Princetonians, is the same athlete who on a visit to the White House was advised by President Coolidge to wear suspenders instead of the more popular collegiate belt. His home is in Evanston, Ill.

BY HARRY CROSS.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Princeton galloped rough shod over Harvard in the Palmer stadium this afternoon and gave the Crimson one of the worst defeats in history, the Tigers clawing the bewildered eleven from Cambridge in a 36 to 0 defeat. The Orange and Black outclassed Harvard from the very start and made the annual gridiron spectacle between the old rivals a hilarious rout.

Five times the Tigers rushed across the goal line, Tom Dignan making two of the touchdowns, with Slagle, Darby, and Beares making one each. Jake Slagle contributed three goals after touchdown and one goal from the field. To this impressive outburst of superior gridiron knowledge and tactics 55,000 spectators gave ear splitting acclaim. The Orange and Black waved as it has seldom waved before, and the town of Princeton tonight echoes the unbridled praise of a Tiger eleven which rose from the despondency of a distressing season to take its place among the gamest teams of old Nassau.

Harvard Men Crushed.

Harvard was completely lost in the mad whirl of Princeton's irrepressible flight of victory. The Crimson never got started. Outplayed both in the line and back field, Princeton marched on to triumph over a depressed, disorganized Harvard team and piled up the greatest score which has ever separated these old rivals in the 48 years of their bitter rivalry.

Only once did Harvard make its 10 yards by actual rushing and Joe Crosby did that in the last period by a desperate effort. Only once did they complete a forward pass and that only brought them a few yards. The Harvard stands groaned for its pummeled, punished eleven when at times the back field players stood in a daze and had to call on Capt. Cheek to repeat the signals.

The only sense of bewilderment which Princeton experienced came after the game. They know not upon whom to pin their paeans of praise. This Roper-coached eleven depended on no one player to carry out its threats. It was a closely compact machine, working together with sharp, deadly decision.

Evanston Boy a Hero.

Jake Slagle, Tom Dignan, and Danny Caulkins all did their heroic part, but the lad who really set off a large package of fireworks to score the last touchdown was a lad named Joe Prendergast from Evanston, Ill. During the greater part of Princeton's triumphant march Joe sat on the side-

PURPLE BRAINS AND LEWIS' TOE SINK WOLVERINES IN MORASS

Flash of Genius in Giving Foes Safety Saves the Day.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Northwestern brains beat the powerful Michigan eleven on Soldiers' field yesterday by a score of 3 to 2. On a field ankle deep in mud, which made open play and forward passing impossible, Northwestern played just a little smarter football than the Wolverines.

The result, another big upset, put the Wolverines back among the pack in the Western conference championship race and raised hopes among the Purple of going into a tie for the title. Minnesota, which was held to a tie by Wisconsin, is the only undefeated member of the Big Ten.

In my twenty-five years of football I have never seen worse conditions. Pools of water stood on parts of the field and in some places the players' feet sunk into the field five or six inches. It rained throughout the game and a strong wind from the north gave the team defending that goal a decided advantage.

Captain Lowry Uses Brains.

Northwestern was smart enough to take advantage of this factor. The Purple received the opening kick-off and on the first play Leland Lewis punted to Benny Friedman, the Michigan quarter back. Benny fumbled and Mathews, Purple end, recovered the ball on Michigan's two yard line. Northwestern made three attempts for a touchdown, but at the end of the third effort were further away than in the first.

Lewis then dropped back to the Wolverines' 18 yard line and with Quarter Back Christman holding the ball, booted it over the crossbar. The kick had barely enough power to send the ball over the crossbar, just inside of the east upright.

Spurred on by this score, the Purple played its best game of the year. Northwestern stopped Michigan in the second quarter, when the Wolverines had the wind and in the third period, when Michigan again had the wind, and had forced the Purple to its one yard line, Capt. Tim Lowry decided to give Michigan a safety and instructed Lewis to down the ball back of his goal line. Lewis did, giving Michigan its two points, and from then on the game became a punting duel between Lewis of Northwestern and Gilbert and Hernnstein of Michigan.

Co-eds Defy Rain and Cold.

Despite the bad weather, the cold and rain, fully 20,000 spectators were in the stands, Michigan rooters in the east stand and Northwestern supporters in the west stand, with umbrellas of all shapes vieing in color with slickers of rainbow hues.

But many of the women, particularly Northwestern co-eds, had courage enough to brave the conditions in Sunday finery. As the game wore on and a Northwestern victory became more apparent, members of the fair sex wearing the Purple and White did not give a rap for the rain, cold and mud. They simply yelled and sang until they were hoarse. There should be plenty of call for physicians today.

Bands of both institutions were on hand but instead of parading the field and playing their favorite tunes between halves, the musicians marched on the cinder path and during the game sought places of shelter.

As the game was so close the crowd stood in the cold rain and mud until the final whistle. Michigan always had a chance so few of the spectators cared to leave.

The attendance, however, was about half of the expected number. All seats had been sold earlier in the week but the weather kept many seat holders at home. Scalpers were given a trimming and seats were offered as low as 75 cents.

Purple Uses Single Line.

Under the conditions, Northwestern had well laid plans. On defense the Purple went back to the old style of a single line. The ends were moved out and the defensive half backs brought up on the scrimmage line instead of playing back eight or ten yards. The Purple line from tackle to tackle was tightened up a bit and Capt. Lowry went into his position in the line instead of playing loose center which he would have done for two downs at least on a dry field.

With this tight defense, Michigan tried to skirt the ends or slant off the tackles. Even Benny Friedman was unable to perform in his usual brilliant manner, and Molenda, Gilbert, and Hernnstein were held in check by the aggressive Purple and mud clad warriors who improved as the game wore on. After it had scored the field goal, Northwestern made but few attempts to gain by straight football and usually punted on second and third downs.

It was the Purple plan of battle to defend the north goal if Capt. Lowry called the turn of the coin to determine choice of goals and by taking advantage of the wind boot the oval deep into Michigan territory. Luck was with them and the plan was a success. The kick was followed by the proverbial break which gave Northwestern the unexpected victory and shattered Michigan's dream of a western conference championship and a claim to national honors.

Lowry Orders Safety.

Despite the three points made by Northwestern in the opening period, the turning point came when Capt. Lowry instructed his men in the huddle to give Michigan a safety in the third quarter. At the time Michigan was playing like mad as it was their one and only chance to score, as the wind was in their favor. When the ball rested on his one yard line, Capt. Lowry, elected to give the Wolverines two points and the ball was taken to the Purple 30 yard line and given to Northwestern.

Had Lowry decided to have Lewis punt, the result might have been different. The Purple fullback would have been compelled to kick from at least ten yards back of his goal line with the wind against him. Under the conditions the ball would not have gone further than the Purple fifteen or twenty yard line. The attempt might have been blocked and recovered by Michigan for a touchdown, which would have won the game. It was a smart piece of strategy and was the deciding factor in an otherwise featureless game.

During the entire game only one forward pass was attempted and this by Michigan, and only one first down made, this also by Michigan, on an eleven yard run by Hernnstein. The pass was incomplete although the ball was thrown fairly well by Friedman to the west side of the field. The fleet Wolverine backs were unable to turn the Purple ends on dash off the tackles because of Northwestern's well planned single line of defense.

Northwestern deserved to win. The Purple took advantage of the breaks and conditions. They scored their points when the ball was dry. Later it became water soaked and heavy, although a new ball was put in play at the beginning of the second half or third quarter.

Purple Great Swimmers.

While Michigan and its supporters will use the field and weather conditions as an alibi, the fact must not be forgotten it was as fair for one as the other. It was a football game, and as such the result will go into the record book.

Each team would make two attempts to gain. The referee would then charge time out to himself so the centers could wipe off the ball before punting. The ball would be kicked, permitted to hit the ground, and be declared dead by the referee. This was the procedure throughout practically the entire struggle.

Northwestern has been noted for its swimming teams, which have won the Big Ten championship many years. Apparently some of the football players have been pupils of Coach Tom Robinson of the swimming team, from the way they floundered around in the mud and water.

Before and after the game Coach Yost of Michigan was thoroughly disgusted with the conditions, and judging from his comment he may start a movement which may result in the postponement of games if they are to be played under similar conditions in the future.

Lowry Stars with Lewis.

Capt. Lowry played a splendid game for Northwestern. He was in nearly every play and did much of the tackling. Aside from scoring the field goal, the line plunging and punting of Lewis stamp him as a player with a great future. If given better support in his remaining two years of competition, Lewis should develop into the best full back in the western conference. Gustafson and White did well under the conditions, as did Christman. The Purple ends were always on the ball, Mathews especially, whose recovery of Friedman's fumble paved the way for Northwestern's only score.

Capt. Brown of Michigan played his usual consistent game and fought like a demon to the finish. Friedman tried

Lowry, Hero of Purple Victory, Almost the Goat

Captain Tim Lowry of Northwestern emerged from the mud of yesterday's game with Michigan a hero, but Tim missed being a notorious goat by about half the thickness of a bumblebee's buzz. For Tim, in the first few moments of play, tackled and downed one of his own teammates when that teammate, with the ball safely in the crook of his arm, was within a yard of making a touchdown on the Wolverines. It happened in this way:

Lewis had punted on the first play after the Purple had received the opening kickoff. Benny Friedman, Michigan quarter back, grabbed the ball, but fumbled, and Barney Mathews, Northwestern end, scooped it up and raced toward the Michigan goal line.

Lowry, who had gone down under Lewis' punt with almost the speed of his end, unable to see the purple of Mathews' jersey, so soon had the players been covered with mud, tackled him, believing him to be a Michigan player. And Northwestern lost its only chance for a touchdown.

Lucky for Lowry that Lewis' drop kick went over a moment later and that later in the game Tim had a chance to redeem himself by the strategy of ordering the safety which doubtless prevented a Michigan victory.

to do his stuff, but the field was not to his liking, nor to any of the other Wolverine backs. The Michigan line was a veritable stone wall, although the Purple made some gains just outside Hawkins, the Maize and Blue right tackle.

It was a great victory for Northwestern, one which plainly shows Head Coach Thistlethwaite and his assistants have accomplished a great deal with the team in the last week. If Northwestern can defeat Purdue next Saturday in its final conference game and Minnesota is defeated by either Iowa or Michigan the Purple can lay as strong claims to the Big Ten championship as any other member of the western conference.

Details of Game.

Captain Lowry won the toss and defended the north goal with a strong wind at his back. White caught the Wolverine kickoff and returned it to his 40 yard line. On the first play, Lewis punted high and far down the field. Friedman, the Michigan quarter back, tried to scoop up the ball, but fumbled in the effort and Mathews, the Purple end, recovered. It was Northwestern's ball on Michigan's 3 yard line.

Gustafson, White, and Lewis in turn tried in vain to puncture the Wolverine line, but only lost ground. Then Lewis dropped back to his 18 yard line and booted the field goal. For the remainder of the period play was in Michigan territory as Northwestern took advantage of the wind and punted the ball either over the Michigan goal line for touchbacks or deep into Wolverine territory.

In the second quarter conditions were reversed, with Michigan pressing all the time and Northwestern on the defense. In this quarter the Maize and Blue resorted to favorite plays which had brought victories. Even the place kick formation was tried, but Friedman was nailed before he reached the scrimmage line. Throughout the period Michigan pressed, with Northwestern fighting gallantly to defend its goal and the three points registered in the opening quarter.

Wolverines' Efforts Futile.

Capt. Brown had the choice at the beginning of the third quarter and elected to take tadvantage of the wind by defending the north goal. Again Michigan did all the forcing and finally forced Northwestern to give up two points when the ball rested on the Purple one yard line. Still Michigan kept attacking, but was unable to make headway. Michigan apparently was angling for the break which did not come.

In the fourth quarter Northwestern was again the aggressor. With the wind at their back, the Purple had the ball in Wolverine territory most of the time, but neither threatened seriously to score. When it had the ball, Michigan resorted to running and trick plays, but these were stopped without much gain. The game ended with the ball in Michigan's possession on its 25 yard line.

Northwestern's expected noisy celebration of the unexpected victory failed to materialize last night. The snow and wind storm which swept over the city drove the Evanston students indoors and instead of the proposed street parade and bonfires, 700 students attended the weekly dance in Patten gym.

BELOIT BREEZES OVER RIPON, 14-0, IN WINTRY GAME

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Under almost impossible playing conditions, Beloit college defeated Ripon college here today, 14 to 0, in a championship midwest conference game. The field was under two inches of snow, and a raging blizzard swept the field. Both Beloit touchdowns came in the third quarter. Vondrashek circled left for the first score. A repetition of these tactics opened the way for a neat forward pass, Purdy to Vondrashek, for a 20 yard gain and the second score. Purdy kicked both goals. Beloit's line showed great strength and the kicking of Purdy was outstanding.

AMES, 9; GRINNELL, 9

Ames, Ia., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Grinnell college pioneer football team fough Iowa State to a 9 to 9 tie here this afternoon in the face of a rushing snow storm that swept the field.

Grinnell ended the half with the short end of a 9 to 0 count after J. Behm, cyclone quarter back and captain, had snagged a slippery forward pass from Chill, half back, along the side line and stepped across the goal. The cyclone captain added another three points to the count later in the second period when he booted a place kick.

Grinnell scored early in the second half when Davis, Grinnell tackle, recovered a blocked kick for a touchdown. Meeter, Grinnell half, made the extra point. The Pioneers evened the count when J. Behm downed the ball behind the line for a safety rather than risk kicking after a 15 yard penalty. Lineup:

Greenleaf Trims Vaughn in Handicap Cue Match

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Ralph Greenleaf, former world's pocket billiard champion, won his handicap match with Carl Vaughn at the Strand academy today by winning both of the blocks played. Greenleaf was playing Vaughn 1,500 to 900 and the final score of the match was 1,500 for Greenleaf and 626 for Vaughn. The entire match required 136 innings.

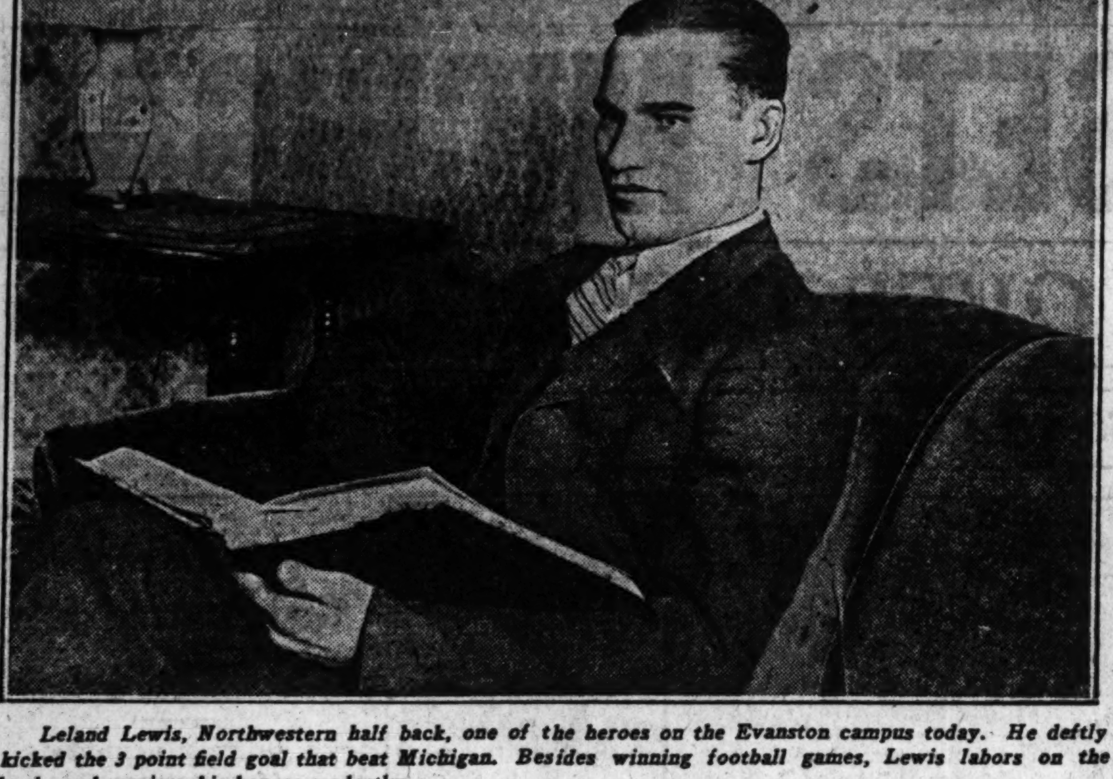
PRIDE O' THE PURPLE



Leland Lewis, Northwestern half back, one of the heroes on the Evanston campus today. He deftly kicked the 3 point field goal that beat Michigan. Besides winning football games, Lewis labors on the books and receives his honors modestly.

Lowry Expects 'Call,' but Gets Only Praise

BY MORROW KRUM.

The name of Leland Lewis, Purple half back of the dexterous toe, will be written high on the scroll of athletic endeavor at Northwestern. Lewis is the man of the hour. His toe brought the 3 points that defeated the great Michigan machine.

But, you who extoll the fame of Lewis and the Wildcats, forget not Capt. Tim Lowry, skipper of the Wildcats. Lowry displayed a brilliant bit of generalship yesterday, a bit of the stuff that made him worthy of the title of captain.

It was Lowry who in conference with his mud caked teammates at the end of the third quarter ordered the safety that gave Michigan its 2 points. That safety may have saved the day. Experts call it a great exhibition of football brains.

Lowry wasn't sure he had made a wise decision in ordering Lewis to make the safety. He told Walter Eckersall, the referee and one of football's greatest critics, of his doubt. The conversation occurred in the final period as Eckersall cleaned the muddy ball for the fiftieth, or hundred and fiftieth time.

Lowry Doubts His Wisdom.

"I suppose I'll get hell from Thistlethwaite for ordering that safety," said Lowry to Eckersall.

Now, Eckersall is a wise arbiter. He made no comment at the time. As an official his business was to conduct the game, not to give advice to players. But later, in THE TRIBUNE office, Eckersall called Lowry's decision "smart headwork"—and that's praise from Eckie.

The safety came at a time when anything might have happened. The ball was soggy, slippery, difficult to handle. It was in Northwestern's possession on its own one yard line. The punt Lewis would have had to kick from at least 10 yards behind his own goal line. A short punt would have given Michigan the ball dangerously close to the goal. A blocked punt might have given them a touchdown. The wind was against the Purple. Lewis is a good kicker, but no one could have been certain within that field of mud.

"Headwork," Says Eckie.

All of those things Lowry considered as the team huddled for the preplay conference. By the time they were around him he had decided upon the safety. He gave his order in terse sentences.

"Call a punt—Lewis, drop on the ball—a safety, see?" That's all he said.

In the next minute Northwestern presented Michigan with 2 points, but probably saved the game. Three minutes later the period ended, the goals changed and Northwestern had the wind at its back, a fair wind, as the sailors say, and the Wildcats rode the fair wind to that haven of safety, the center of the field. And there they played the rest of the game.

"Smart headwork," says Eckersall. There's a line for Northwestern's syllabus.

LAFAYETTE WINS OVER RUTGERS ELEVEN BY 34-0

Easton, Pa., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Lafayette took sweet revenge on Rutgers for the defeat of last year, by defeating the New Brunswick collegians today, 34-0, before a crowd of 10,000. Lafayette played little but straight football. Offtackle thrusts by Millman and Kirkleski and later by their understudy, McGarvey accounted for the most consistent gains, while Lafayette's defensive work, intercepting forward passes and returning of punts by the speedy Dinty Moore, Lafayette's quarter back and safety man, figured largely in the drives which resulted in touchdowns. Glory for Grid Stars but Only Pneumonia for Fans ters, class mottoes, and proclamations that Illinois would assassinate the Maroons.

Automobiles were crawling toward the stadium and then floundering through the swamp of an open field designated as the official parking space. About fifty of them were still there late tonight and the tow cars from the town wrecking stations were gallumphing over the hummocks like tanks on a battlefield, flashing their searchlights through the mist in search of foundered machines.

From the eaves of the stand the country stretched away to a quick horizon, for milky mists were swirling past like smoke from wood fires, blotting out the distance. The rain swept by in gusts like stage rain from the sprinkling cans. The 69,000 huddled deeper in their coats and drew their oil cloths closer about them.

Cheer Leader Full of Pep.

The skinny little cheer leaders, absurdly gay in their mud splattered white pants, leaped and turned pinwheels in the straw on the sidelines to show that it wasn't raining rain to them but pilsener or attar of roses. There were three of these fidgety exhorters flitting along the Chicago sector, bareheaded and full of what college boys call the old pep. They came out in pretty white pants. Their first exercise was a swooning maneuver in which they sank to the earth and came up with their arms trembling to yank the wow-wows from their cheering cohorts in the stand. When they came up their white pants were not white pants any more, and they probably will never be white pants again.

Down on the field the ball became so lopsided with slugs of mud that the bottle holders were dashing out from the benches after every play with towels to wipe it off. The players crowded around them and grabbed towels, too. They wiped their faces and streaks of pink showed through the black until the next mêlée. Once McCarthy of the Maroons made a plunge to snatch an Illinois back by the ankles. He missed and went on his face in a puddle. When he came up he was a minstrel full back.

Grange Slides in Mud.

Grange tried an end run and was forced to swing wide as the Maroons went sliding through the lines. A Maroon back ran over to head him off and Grange tried to change his course. Instead he fell on his side and slid through the slime, leaving a slick trail on the ground. Then the black water folded over it.

The return to town after the game was probably the worst experience of a terrible day. At the sound of the pistol shot the players backed off from the writhing tangle of the scrimmage and went splashing for the dressing rooms. There they slashed the laces from their shoes, the tape from their hands, and peeled down to their steaming, pink complexions for their warm showers.

But the 69,000 groped their way down fro mthe stands, bending against the piercing wind, and then with fumbling steps waded through the puddles to the nearest paved streets for the walk to town.

It is very sweet, no doubt, to be publicly kicked in the wishbone for dear old Chicago or dear old Illinois.

Get Away from Here.

But it is virtually no pleasure at all to flop on one's nose in a puddle of casual water when feeling one's way home from a football game in the dark.

Outwardly, Champaign and Urbana were not very gay tonight. There might have been red fire and ructions in the streets under better weather conditions. But the greater part of the crowd had clambered aboard special trains and had rattled away home, still dripping from three hours in the rain. And those whose automobiles were still above water when the game ended promptly got into them and rolled away from here—the farther away the better.

Champaign and Urbana comprise a very hospitable community, but the climate leaves virtually everything to be desired.

Butler Buried Under Gopher Attack, 33-7

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Minnesota's powerful offensive team swept the scrappy Butler bulldogs off their feet for a 33 to 7 victory.

Standing out like an Alpine range among hillocks was the work of Harold Murrell, former high school star of Cedar Rapids, Ia. His brilliant runs, which ranged from 5 to 30 yards, accounted for two Minnesota touchdowns. Murrell, however, had fine cooperation in march after march down the field in Almquist and Joesting.

Butler's Aerials Effective.

Butler threw passes at will, and through such an offense managed to score a touchdown in the fourth quarter. Off tackle plunges by Northam, hard smashes by Paul through the center of the line, and accurate passing by Nipper made possible the Hoosiers' lone score. Butler took the ball near the close of the third quarter on its own 32 yard line and by mixing passes and smashes marched 68 yards to the goal.

The Gophers scored once in the first quarter, twice in the second, and once each in the third and fourth. With second string men in the game late in the fourth period Minnesota was on the way to another score when time was called.

Gopher Line Weak.

The Minnesota line, with three regulars out, was rather anemic, but the work of Joesting, Almquist, and Murrell on the offense offset this weakness. Wheeler assisted greatly in the Minnesota scoring by his expert receiving of forward passes.

Tigers Chew Up Harvard by 36-0 Score lines wrapped in a blanket, but finally he got his chance.

Princeton had the ball 'way down on her own 35 yard line when Prendergast came into the fray. On the next play Joe was given the ball and he smashed through the Crimson wall for 15 yards. Again Disston called for him to take the ball and again and again and again. One mad charge after another by Prendergast pushed the Harvard eleven back, 10, 15 yards at a clip.

The great throng, who were leaving the cold seats of the amphitheater paused to watch football's latest pattern of a battering ram.

Prendergast's great march covered more than 70 yards and the last time they lifted his battered and bruised legs and arms from the sod, the ball was on Harvard's 3 yard line. Once again the signals were barked out, but this time Joe didn't hear his number. The ball went to Charley Beares, and he plunged through for the Tigers' last and most sensational score. Joe Prendergast had played his part and played it well.

MAROONS STOP GRANGE; LOSE ON FUMBLES

Britton Is Hero of Messy Affair.

Illinois played here two years ago had stocked up for the occasion, so there were slickers and oil cloth coverings enough to go around.

Before this motley, fantastically arrayed assemblage, Capt. Henderson for Chicago won the toss and elected to receive the kick off. Failing to gain, Rouse punted to Grange who was downed by Lampe on Illinois' 20 yard line. After a penalty had aided in a first down, Grange twice failed to gain, once slipping when almost clear and Britton sent a punt to Chicago's 36 yard line.

Chicago's first break in luck came soon afterward when Daugherity fumbled and Rouse recovered for Chicago on Illinois' 29 yard line. Curley went back for a drop kick after three attempts had yielded only three yards. He could not hold the slippery ball and the chance went blooey.

Daugherity Intercepts Pass.

There was an exchange of punts, Britton making only five yards on one of them, his poorest effort of the day, and Daugherity finally intercepted a pass on Illinois' 27 yard line. On the first play Grange fumbled and McCarty recovered on the 18 yard line, as the quarter ended.

On the first play thereafter, McCarty plunged through his right tackle for 15 yards and ball rested on Illinois' three yard line. In two plays McCarty carried the ball over for the first count of the game while Chicago's 20,000 partisans went into a frenzy of cheering. Curley elected to try a forward pass to Marks for the additional point, but the pass grounded.

Britton kicked off to Kernwein, who returned the ball to Chicago's 33 yard mark. Quickly the fortunes of the contest veered to the Orange and Blue. On the third down with seven yards to go Kernwein dropped back for a punt out of danger. The pass from center was low and the ball slipped from his hands, but Kernwein fell on it on Chicago's 21 yard line. Again he dropped back to punt and again he could not hold the ball, but fell on it at Chicago's 10 yard line, where it went to Illinois on downs.

Illinois Stands Afire.

Illinois stands were afire with exhortations to its team. Grange fumbled on the first play and lost 7 yards. He picked up two yards on the next attempt. Daugherity gained five through his right tackle, but Grange's pass to Kassel grounded and Chicago took the ball on downs at its own 10 yard line.

Kernwein lost a yard on a crisscross. He dropped behind his own goal line to punt. Again he could not hold the slimy ball and it struck the ground. In desperation he kicked it, while it was on the ground, and it went out of bounds at Chicago's 3 yard line. Britton gained a yard at center and then went over the line for a touchdown. Yeisley blocked Britton's attempted place kick for the extra point and the score was tied. There was no more scoring in the half, which ended with the ball in Illinois' possession on Chicago's 45 yard line.

Rouse opened the second half by kicking off to Grange on Illinois' 35 yard line and Britton almost immediately sent a long punt, considering the conditions, to Chicago's 25 yard line. Timme fumbled on the first play but recovered. Fearing to take chances on long passes, Rouse punted from close behind the line to Illinois' 48 yard line.

Breaks Against Maroons.

At this point another break went against the Maroons. Grange fumbled and Yeisley recovered and carried the ball to Illinois' 25 yard line, but a Maroon had been offside and the play was nullified. With the play mostly in Chicago territory and the Maroons making several costly fumbles Grange finally received a punt from Rouse at Chicago's 49 yard line. After two plays, Britton punted to Chicago's 12 yard line.

On the first down Marks fumbled but fell on the ball at Chicago's 3 yard line. Here is where Illinois blocked the kick as previously described, and D'Ambrosio fell on it for a touchdown.

A pass, Britton to Kassel, behind the goal line, yielded the extra point. For the remainder of the game there was no serious threat except as a fumble might produce another break, and the game ended with the ball in Illinois' possession on its own 42 yard line.

Statistics for the game showed Chicago made eight first downs and Illinois only five. Illinois could not gain against Chicago's stubborn defense. McCarty outclassed all the Illinois backs in ground gaining. Had he been able to play in the second half he possibly might have avoided the defeat, but the whole issue of superiority faded before the Maroon fumbles and Britton's punting. Illinois counted thirteen points and Chicago six and that's what determined the result. But this Maroon team is not yellow, not by a heluva lot. Just remember that as you pass along the result into football history.

Twenty-five Trains Carry Maroon Rooters to Game

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Twenty-five special trains left Chicago for the bootball game here before 11 o'clock this morning. The first contingent of Maroon rooters arrived at 9:15 o'clock and thereafter at 10 minute intervals trains arrived with a minimum of confusion. It is estimated these trains carried 18,000 persons, most of them camp followers of the Maroons, but with a generous percentage of Illinois alumni and Illini dads, for this was "Dads' day." Railroad officials said far more people came from Chicago than for the Michigan contest two weeks ago.

Local offices of the Illinois Central were deserted. The entire executive and clerical force acted as an information bureau to direct patrons to the stadium and to their trains after the game was over. All movement of freight trains through Champaign was shut off for the day to give the special trains the entire available track facilities.

Perched high in the press stand were two Dartmouth scouts looking over what the Maroons had to offer. What they saw ought to make them wish for a slippery field, for the Maroons certainly could not hold the ball

It was surprising to find many neutrals who usually are pulling for Chicago defeat lined up in sympathy with the Maroons. Their sympathy was enlisted because of the recent criticism of lack of fighting spirit by the Midway eleven.

Until removed from the game on account of an injury which may prove to be a cracked rib, Austin McCarthy was the star of the visitors. Not only was he the best Chicago ground gainer, but he was in every play on defense and recovered the fumble which enabled him to score a touchdown.

Chicago, for the first time within memory, appeared for play with legs bare between knees and a point just above the ankles.

Autos in the twin cities bore posters on the windshield reading "Hello, Dad."

Chicago ends played wide whenever Grange was given the ball, and made sure that he would not outflank them.

Zuppke prepared a defense against the expected Maroon line-smashing which left only six men on the line of scrimmage and three men in a row as a close secondary defense about two yards behind the line. Because of the slippery field and the small chance of long forward passes with such a messy ball, the two safety men were within ten yards of the scrimmage line except when going back for punts.

Maroons Gained Most, But Illini Won the Contest

Southwest Teachers Beat Kirksville, 10 to 0

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Southwest Missouri state teachers college defeated the Kirksville teachers here today, 10 to 0. The first score came in the second period, when Austin sent a place kick between the bars. With less than five minutes to play in the fourth quarter, Capt. Henderson of the Bears broke through the line for 15 yards and a touchdown. C. Davis cked goal.

RAZORBACKS AND MUSTANGS PLAY SCORELESS TIE

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Arkansas university Razorbacks and Southern Methodist university Mustangs clashed here this afternoon in a colorless gridiron contest that ended in a scoreless tie, the second such deadlock for the Mustangs in two weeks. The result of today's game leaves the Razorbacks in the southwest conference cellar, with S. M. U. perched just above them. Only 4,000 persons attended today's game, which was played on a muddy field.

RAIN, SNOW, MUD MIRE GRID PLAY EAST OF ROCKIES

Teams Find Blizzards Strongest Foe.

[By Associated Press.]

Rain or snow swept across football fields from the nation's capital to the western plains yesterday turning gridirons into sloughs of despond that disheartened even the most valiant eleven. Players staggered through pools of water and mud that in places was six inches deep and so sticky that none could get away for anything that resembled a long run. Fumbles were frequent, and in many cases meant defeat.

Nor were the spectators much better off. They shivered in the blizzards and gales and huddled under oilcloth and slicker from heavy downpours that at some games continued through most of the play.

Two major games in the middle west were contested on snow swept fields. Drake and Nebraska found a stronger foe in a blizzard than they did in each other, and the Drake gridders carried a snow covered ball across Nebraska's goal line. Some spectators departed for their hearthstones. Grinnell and Iowa State slipped and slid across the latter's gridiron amid driving icy flakes.

Players Wear Gloves.

Wisconsin and Iowa struggled through a snowstorm at Iowa City, the players wearing canvas gloves to give them a grip on the ball. The rainfall at the Chicago-Illinois battle at Champaign was so heavy that the players were virtually hidden to spectators, and at times the west stand Chicago rooters could not see their collegiate rivals in the east seats. Coupled with the rain was a strong north gale that made punters' efforts seem puny. The mud was worse than that which Red Grange conquered so handily last week at Philadelphia.

Rain at Columbus.

A six hour rain at Columbus so drenched the Ohio State gridiron despite its covering of straw that there was six inches of muck that plastered officials and players a heavy drab. Penn State and Notre Dame at State College, Pa., likewise had a setting of rain and mud, as they battled against terrific odds to a 0 to 0 tie. At Washington the Georgetown-Lehigh affair was played in only a drizzling rain, but there was the inevitable sea of mud in which the gridders wallowed. Down at Norman, Okla., Kansas and Oklahoma had mud to fight in addition to the blasts of a "norther," which struck chills to the spines of 10,000 lookers-on.

One unidentified player in the Michigan-Northwestern game at Chicago was literally buried in the mire of Soldiers' field and had to be dug out.

WHEN NORTHWESTERN BEAT MICHIGAN ON SOLDIERS' FIELD. The muddy trenches of Flanders were no more damp or slippery than Soldiers' field yesterday where Northwestern and Michigan clashed in a game that resulted in a Wildcat victory, and one of the greatest upsets of conference football history. The field probably was about the wettest thing in the Chicago district next to the lake. Great pools of water surrounded the bog which was the playing field. The panorama was taken as the Wolverines kicked off to the Wildcats at the opening of the game. (Story on page 1, Sports.)

State College, Pa., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Twenty-five thousand spectators, the greatest crowd in Penn State history, sat or stood through a drenching rain today and saw a fully aroused Penn State eleven hold at bay a powerful Notre Dame team in the big alumni homecoming day game. Neither team could break the other's defense, and the result was a scoreless tie, in which laurels were evenly distributed.

CHRIS FLANAGAN

Perhaps there are some who will say that the rain and mud of New Beaver saved the day for the Littany Lion. They may contend that it was this factor that slowed up the flashy Christie Flanagan and the famous Rockne forward passing attack.

Fight All the Way.

But the greatest factor today was the old time fighting spirit displayed by eleven blue clad warriors of Penn State. Entering the game, with Notre Dame as topheavy favorite, Penn State battled from the first play of the game until the final whistle and held in check the fast flying backs from South Bend.

For once the goddess of chance did not go back on Penn State and there was no unfortunate lion fumble to pave the way to defeat, in fact it was Notre Dame that fumbled most. It is the only right to say that the visitors displayed a better offense than Penn State. Penn State has been weak at that department all season. The Lions had no speed merchant like Flanagan and no line smasher like Fright, who was the greatest ground gainer for the visitors.

Few Chances to Score.

Twice Notre Dame was within scoring position in the second half. A clever punt by Edwards that was downed on the State one yard line, led to one opportunity. Edwards ran Gray's kick back to the State 25 yard line, and Enright and Flanagan made first down twelve yards from the goal.

Then came the growl of the Lion, on a forward pass play, Weston and Filak nailed Edwards for a seventeen yard loss and the danger seemed avoided. But on fourth down, a pass from Flanagan went far over Vadisch's head but officials ruled interference and gave the visitors first down on State's 10 yard line. Again the Lion roared defiance and on fourth down Enright missed a placement goal and trouble was over.

Penn Has a Chance.

Late in the same quarter, Penn State had its chance. A fumble by Enright was recovered by Gray on his 43 yard line. Michalski circled Notre Dame's left end and was not checked until driven out of bounds on the 30 yard line. Notre Dame yielded but five yards in three plays and Weston tried a placement goal from the 34 yard line. He failed.

Those were the scoring chances of an otherwise drab game.

CORNELL FIGHTS MONMOUTH TO TIE IN BLIZZARD

Mt. Vernon, Ia., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A blinding snowstorm sweeping the Cornell football field today kept the Cornell and Monmouth grid elevens from scoring in the Purple homecoming here. Gray's recovery of a Monmouth fumble early in the game gave Cornell a chance to score from the 6 yard line, but her four attempts failed. A see-saw battle, with numerous and much kicking, ended in a 0 to 0 score. Lineup:

132d Infantry Clashes with Ft. Sheridan Gridders Today

The annual 132d Infantry-Fort Sheridan football game will be played on Soldiers' field today.

Fort Sheridan has three great back field men in Wurst, Hill, and Evans and they promise to bring a great deal of forward passing into the game, although the infantry have been preparing for such an attack.

Norman C. Barry, former Notre Dame star, who has been coaching the guardsmen, has developed a star back field man in Burnell Peters, a six footer, on whose speed the infantry are banking for long gains.

Checker Champ to Give Exhibition Tomorrow

FORTY-PLAY RULE IN EACH QUARTER PROVES SUCCESS

Brown Beats Boston U. 42-6 in Experiment.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—(AP)—For the first time since the modern game of football was instituted, the method of timing provided by the rules was discarded and periods of plays instead of minutes were substituted in the game between Brown and Boston university here today.

Under the official sanction of the football rules committee, Brown and Boston university gave the system a tryout and in the opinion of officials, coaches and spectators, the experiment was an unqualified success.

Brown Wins Easily.

Brown was the victor, 42 to 6, and at no stage of the game was there any question of the superiority of the home eleven, although the latter was for the greater part of the game composed almost entirely of substitutes.

Under the system agreed to the coaches of the two elevens, the first two periods consisted of 40 plays, the last two 35. The elapsed time for the four periods was 27, 28, 21½, and 26¼ minute respectively. The actual playing time by quarters was 14:20, 14:16, 13:50, and 13:45.

Officials Pleased.

Harry R. Coffin, Harvard, '94, co-originator with R. W. P. Brown, Brown strategist, of the system which they seek to have incorporated in the official football rules, expressed entire satisfaction with the experiment after the game.

Officials of the game expressed their satisfaction with the system and voiced the opinion that its adoption generally is eventual.

MORTON DOUBLE WINNER.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Morton High of Cicero gave West Aurora a double setback today. The heavies won, 6 to 2, and the lights, 12 to 0.

WEST VIRGINIA DOWNS BOSTON COLLEGE, 20-0

Boston, Mass., Nov. 7.—(AP)—West Virginia overwhelmed Boston college at football today, 20 to 0, with a combined aerial and running attack. The local team's only threat came in the last period, and it never got beyond the opponents' 14 yard line. Oliker, at left end, played brilliantly for the visitors.

Layton Beats Maupome in National 3 Cushion Play

Cleveland, O., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Johnny Layton trimmed Pierre Maupome twice in national three cushion games today. He won the afternoon game, 50 to 46, in 46 sessions, and captured the evening contest, 50 to 23, in 38 innings. Layton had high runs of 8 and 9.

UZCUDUNA (TRY AND SAY IT) KO'S MARCEL NILLES

PARIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Paolino Uzcuduna, Spanish heavyweight champion, tonight knocked out Marcel Nilles, the French heavyweight, in the third round of a fifteen round bout. This was Paolino's seventh straight knockout.

He will fight Hans Breitenstraeter, German heavyweight champion, in Berlin, Nov. 20, and will then proceed to the United States along with Georges Carpentier.

University of Montana Whips Idaho by 20 to 14

Moscow, Idaho, Nov. 7.—(AP)—After having held the University of Montana to seven points in the first three periods of today's game, while the Vandals scored 14, the University of Idaho was unable to prevent the Grizzlies from making 13 more in the last quarter and winning the game 20 to Columbus, O., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Out of a wallow of mud Ohio State emerged victorious over Indiana in the Ohio stadium here today, 7 to 0. Replete with fumbles, slips, slides, and splashes, the game afforded breaks both ways. None of the breaks was disastrous, and Ohio State's touchdown in the second period was scored on a brilliant forward pass attack starting in midfield.

CUNNINGHAM.
[P. and A. Photo.]

A six hour rain had so drenched the gridiron despite its straw covering that pools of water stood here and there, and everywhere there was a sixinch ooze that was churned over time and again, plastering players, officials, and the ball until all were of the same hue.

Game of Many Fumbles.

Thirteen thousand five hundred spectators huddled under the overhanging upper tier while the water ran in cascades over a few hundred who sat out in the open swathed in raincoats and tarpaulin.

Fumbles numbered more than a score, Ohio State being quicker on the recovery than Indiana. Toward the end it was impossible for either team to gain by plunges. It was too slippery to hazard wide end runs, so punting was the favorite pastime. The only flashes in the second half, which was shortened five minutes by agreement, were two runs by Capt. Lawrence Marks of Indiana and a few thrusts by Freddy Grim, Ohio State back field star Buckeyes Score Touchdown.

Receiving a punt on their 45 yard line, the Buckeyes started a 55 yard march to the Indiana goal. Clarke and Karow plunged and then a pass, Grim to Cunningham, made a first down on Indiana's 39 yard line. Karow bucked for six yards then grabbed a pass from Grim for a gain of 17 yards. With the ball on the 16 yard line Grim heaved a pass over the scrimmage line to Cunningham. The Buckeye captain juggled the soggy ball, then nestled it to his grimy chest and ran past six tacklers across the goal line. Clarke attempted to kick for the extra point but the try was low, Ohio gaining the extra counter, however, because of the offside play of several of the Hoosiers.

Elmer Marek, Ohio State star half back, was injured in the first quarter and was removed from the game. He sprained his back somewhat seriously.

Referee Birch became disabled in the last period and retired to the position of head linesman, dragging a game leg. The players had repeatedly used his trousers and shirt for a towel and he was a sorry sight as he was replaced by Fred Gardner, who had been serving as head linesman.

YALE DRIVE IN LAST HALF WINS OVER MARYLAND

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Trailing by four points at the end of the first half, Yale wore a light but aggressive University of Maryland down in the closing periods in the bowl this afternoon and scored a 43-14 triumph. Thirty-five thousand spectators saw the southerners get off to an early lead when Tad Jones started his reserves and add another touchdown after the Eli regulars had been rushed into the fray, but the visitors could not maintain this pace when the third period opened and they were routed completely when the Blue tallied 27 points in the final stanza. Badger Harriers Beat Iowa, 25-30, In Snowstorm

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's snowshoe artists took first in the Iowa-Wisconsin cross-country run here today over a five mile snow covered trail in the midst of a whirling Iowa blizzard. Wisconsin placed three men in the first four places, first, third, and fourth. The Hawks, not inured to the arctic weather, fought gamely and finished three men among the first six to cross the finish line. The score was 25 to 30.

Chapman, Wisconsin sophomore, finished first in the fair time of 28 minutes 52 and 9-10 seconds. He was closely trailed by Hunn of Iowa, another sophomore, and by Capt. Kubly of Wisconsin, who finished third.

Speers and Vanness of Iowa finished fifth and sixth,

Montreal, Que., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Pittsburgh was officially admitted into the National Hockey league at the annual meeting today, Ottawa withdrawing its objection on being assured that Pittsburgh had a strong team.

Marshalltown, Ia., Preps Try Prayer; Win Every Game

Marshalltown, Ia., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The "Praying Colonels" of Centre college are not the only football players who believe in strengthening the spirit of the men by prayer.

The Marshalltown High school football team, which has won every game it has played this season and was scored against yesterday for the first time, kneels in prayer before its games and between halves.

Noticing in an early game the players were suffering with jerky nerves, Allie Morrison, the coolest athlete in the school, suggested to Lloyd Hale, half back, that he say a few words to calm them. Hale spoke briefly, then bent in prayer. The entire team went on its knees, and when the boys arose they took the field to sweep the North High team off its feet and won by a big score.

Since then Hale has led the team in prayer before all contests.

Indiana Harriers Win from Purdue Runners, 24-31

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Indiana university cross country team today defeated Purdue, 24 to 31.

U. of Colorado Smashes Colorado College, 23 to 6

Boulder, Colo., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Crushed under a barrage of forward passes and powerful line smashes, the Colorado college Tigers were defeated, 23 to 6, by the University of Colorado before a crowd of 10,000 at the homecoming game in Norlin stadium today.

PURDUE AERIALS, END RUNS ROUT FRANKLIN, 20-0

Boilermakers Fail to Get Score in First Half.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Purdue's second half attack completely upset Franklin in the Ross Ade stadium this afternoon, and the Boilermakers won, 20 to 0, after being held scoreless in the first half.

Coach Phelan started his reserves, and they threatened to score several times in the first period. In the second half, the Boilermaker regulars traveled to the Franklin one yard line shortly after the start of the period. Koransky plunged over for the score.

After that first touchdown everything was in Purdue's favor. Forward passes and end runs were executed successfully in spite of the slippery field. Merkobrad, Wilcox, Leichtle, Spradling and Taube led the attack. Wilcox ran back punts for big gains, Merkobrad and Spradling got away for several end runs, and Taube continued his stellar heaving of forward passes.

Practically every member of the Purdue squad was used in the encounter. Franklin's line was strong, but the ends were taken out and the backs outfoxed by Purdue's running and passing attack. Lineup:

LEHIGH SWAMPED BY GEORGETOWN ELEVEN, 40 TO 0

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Georgetown celebrated homecoming day today with a 40 to 0 victory over Lehigh university in a game played in a drizzling rain.

Lehigh was unable to find a defense against the tackle drives of Capt. Hagerty and Full Back Plansky of the Blue and Gray and was scored upon in the first five minutes of play.

Dartmouth Shoots Down Cornell, 62-13, with Aerials

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 7.—(AP)—With the Giant "Swede" Oberlander starring in a spectacular air attack that swept all before it, Dartmouth bombed Cornell's football forces into submission today by the annihilating margin of 62 to 13.

Before a crowd of 15,000 Jess Hawley's big green forward passed the red clad eleven into the worst defeat it has suffered in the five year reign of "Gloomy Gil" Dobie. Simultaneously, Dartmouth, by its astonishing triumph over a foe that came here with an unbeaten record, lifted itself to the peak of the eastern championship heap.

Oberlander the Whole Show.

The victory not only kept Dartmouth's record of no defeats intact, but broke the tie that existed up to today in the series with Cornell and squared accounts for the humiliating 59-7 defeat the Ithacans handed the Green in 1921.

Oberlander's bulletlike passes resulted in six of Dartmouth's nine touchdowns. Two others were accounted for personally by Oberlander, one on a 48 yard dash through most of the Cornell team and another on a one yard dive through center, while the ninth and final tally was carried over by a substitute back, Starret, who intercepted a Cornell pass and raced 42 yards to score in the last quarter.

Cornell Bewildering.

While Oberlander was the outstanding tower of strength in the Green onslaught, turning in a performance that seems to clinch his claims to all-American fame, the big blond backfield ace had a defensive screen for his amazing passes that was perfection itself, while Lane, a running mate, and Tully and Sage, a bare legged pair of remarkable ends, proved themselves unerring "ball hawks."

Cornell was bewildered and almost defenseless against this dazzling display.

Just how brilliantly effective the Green's aerial weapons were is shown by the fact that twelve out of nineteen passes were completed for the amazing total gain of 231 yards, while Cornell completed only two out of ten heaves for gains of 44 yards.

SUB WINS FOR GEORGIA TECH OVER VANDY, 7-0

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Georgia Tech defeated Vanderbilt university here today, 7 to 0, when Wright, substitute half back for Capt. Wycoff, broke through the Vandy line in the last quarter of the game and scurried 55 yards for the only touchdown. Williams kicked goal.

Fumbling precariously, neither team was able to make any appreciable gains throughout any of the former periods. Although after every Tech fumble Vanderbilt recovered the ball, they were unable to score or even approach the enemy territory.

PITTSBURGH WINS, 6 TO 0

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 7.—(AP)—A cornered Pitt Panther bided his time to spring on Washington and Jefferson today, and when the opportunity came seized it to score a 6 to 0 victory and eliminate the W. and J. team from the eastern gridiron championship race. The opportunity came in the form of a blocked punt in the closing minutes of play. Wissinger, Pitt guard, scooped it up on the 25 yard line and ran unmolested to the goal line.

The game was played in a downpour of rain and the crowd, which was expected to break all records in Pennsylvania football history, reached only 30,000.

ARMY HAS CLOSE CALL BUT BEATS DAVIS-ELKINS

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Army caught a Tartar in Davis and Elkins college today. The Cadets won, 14 to 6, after a stubbornly fought game. The West Virginians, thought to be able to offer but slight opposition, surprised Army. Lineup:

DETROIT WADES TO 12-6 VICTORY OVER ST. LOUIS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 7.—(AP)—In a downpour of rain, which converted the field into a morass, the University of Detroit football team defeated St. Louis university gridders 12 to 6. Ramacciotti took the ball over for the visitors' only score in the third quarter. Mamiere scored for Detroit in the first quarter, taking a pass from Phillipart, and again in the final period on an 85 yard run.

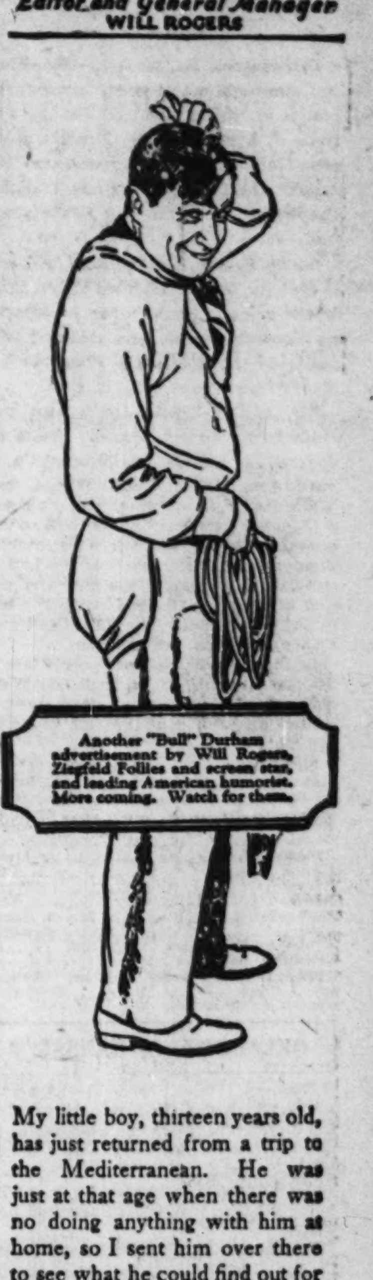
BULL'S EYE
Editor and General Manager
WILL ROGERS



Another "Bull" Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

My little boy, thirteen years old, has just returned from a trip to the Mediterranean. He was just at that age when there was no doing anything with him at home, so I sent him over there to see what he could find out for his old Father, who had never been any farther away from home than the barn. He spent two weeks in Egypt, and visited the Tombs of the old Pharaohs. In fact he prowled around in King Tut's Tomb.

Now I am a great believer in ancestry. I hate to see new things or new people come up with no tradition or backing behind them. So when my Young Hopeful returned from a three months' cruise, he informed me of a historical fact that even I (as a Harvard Man) didn't know. He said the most prized thing dug out of King Tut's Tomb was a sacred Bull, which the Egyptians idolized as their God. The wrapping, on close examination, was found to be of empty "BULL" DURHAM sacks sewed together by those ancient people. And when they reached the inner tomb or sarcophagus of this old Pharaoh, or Bull Worshipper, the pocket of his pajamas was found to contain a sack of "Bull" Durham, proving that "BULL" DURHAM is older than the ages. Now, my own boy told me this and he don't lie. He ain't old enough to have to.

"I NEVER KNEW I COULD GET SO MUCH MOTOR CAR VALUE FOR SO LITTLE!"

INVOLUNTARILY you'll think thus as soon as you learn of the surprising reductions in the prices of the famous Stearns-Knight Motor Cars.

For the prices on all models of this world-renowned car have been substantially reduced—in most cases many hundreds of dollars.

These reductions have in no way affected the fine quality of these high-grade motor cars—the same Stearns-Knight Quality is present at every point. And in addition to these lowered prices is the factor of added equipment that costs you not a dollar extra!

At the end of any test you may want to give this thoroughly good, thoroughly efficient car you'll be impetuous to own one. There's something about the performance of a Stearns-Knight that people never forget. It's the sensation of unconquerable power, of supreme flexibility, of uncanny smoothness given by the remarkable power-plant that "gets" you.

Remembering the much lowered prices now in effect, you'll be the loser if you fail to ask us to make this experience possible. We'll provide the opportunity gladly. Just telephone us or call at our sales rooms.

"You'll know when you sit at the wheel."

ALERT DRAKE ELEVEN BEATS HUSKERS, 14-0

Nose for Ball Makes Both Scores Possible.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Playing through a driving snowstorm, which at times assumed the proportions of a blizzard, the Drake university football team today defeated Nebraska, 14 to 0, in a game marking the dedication of the new Drake stadium.

Glenn Spears, Drake back field ace, scored the first touchdown of the game in the opening period when he scooped up Brown's fumble and sprinted fifty yards to the goal. Ed Wier blocked Everett's attempt to kick goal.

The second Drake touchdown was made in the fourth period. Drake recovered a fumble on Nebraska's 25 yard line. Sutherland immediately broke away for a nine yard run and a moment later carried the ball to Nebraska's 1 yard line, where he fumbled momentarily, but recovered the ball as two Husker tacklers hit him and carried him across the goal with the ball in his possession. The attempted goal kick again was unsuccessful.

Drake scored two more points late in the last quarter, when Capt. Ed Weir, called back for a punt, was downed behind his own goal line for a safety. Lineup:

OKLAHOMA, 0; KANSAS, 0

Norman, Okla., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Oklahoma Sooners and the Kansas Jayhawks fought to a scoreless tie this afternoon in Oklahoma's homecoming game. Sixteen thousand persons witnessed the battle. A muddy field handicapped the offense of both teams.

Oklahoma outplayed the Jawhawks in the first half, three times taking the ball to the Kansas 1 yard line, but was unable to score. Each team attempted a place kick in the second half, but both efforts were short. Lineup:

MISSOURI, 14; WASH., 0

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The University of Missouri Tigers continued their march toward another Missouri Valley football championship by downing the Washington university Pikers today, 14 to 0. Missouri scored touchdowns in the second and fourth periods.

A short punt by Capt. Levy of the Pikers gave Missouri its second touchdown in the fourth period. Flammank returned the ball to the Piker 20 yard line, a pass brought it to the 10 yard line, the Pikers were penalized for roughness, and Jackson slipped through for the score. The lineup:

LITTLE GIANTS SCORE 13-0 WIN ON CHICAGO 'Y'

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Chicago "Y" college was defeated by Wabash college, 13 to 0, in a field of mud and water here today. Wabash scored 6 points in the last few minutes of the first half. An intercepted pass in the third quarter resulted in the second touchdown. During the second half "Y" college kept the ball in the Little Giants' territory most of the time. D. Showley and R. Busch played a great defensive game for Chicago, while Davis and A. Luchs made most of the gains.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only few cents a jar at any drugstore. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

THE GALLOPING HAWKEYE

Cowboy Nick Kutsch, University of Iowa half back, taking the football for a stroll aboard his trusty pony. Nick was out of the Iowa game yesterday, nursing injuries, and during his absence the Hawkeye title chances were jolted by Wisconsin, 6 to 0.

FORDHAM PUSHES HOLY CROSS FROM TITLE RACE, 17-0

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Fordham defeated Holy Cross today, 17 to 0, and thereby vaulted one of the chief obstacles in its way to the eastern Catholic college championship. It was the first defeat of the season for Holy Cross, the conqueror of Harvard.

The first score came when Manning's short lunge at the line took the ball over in the third period. An offside penalty on Holy Cross had placed the ball within one yard of goal. A march down the field and Woerner's 5 yard end run again scored for Fordham in the fourth period. In the same quarter Graham scored by a 45 yard dropkick. Graham dropkicked two goals for points after touchdowns.

COE BEATS KNOX, 3-0

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Playing in a blizzard on a field covered by four inches of snow, Coe college defeated Knox, 3 to 0, here this afternoon. A drop kick by Harris Lamb, Coe full back, from the 20 yard line in the third quarter won for Coe.

NAVY WALLOPS W. MARYLAND

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Naval academy football team defeated Western Maryland here this afternoon, 27 to 0. The Navy team's running game fell down badly except in the final quarter when two colt backs, Ransford and Milligan, got in the game and made real gains, while the passing game was only partially effective. Lineup:

NAVAL ACADEMY [27].		WESTERN MARYLAND [0].

OHIO WESLEYAN HOLDS SYRACUSE TO 3 TO 3 TIE

Blichle and Carr Score Field Goals.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The big toe of brilliant Eddie Blickle gained Ohio Wesleyan, champion of the Ohio conference, a 3 to 3 tie with Syracuse here today.

With only three minutes to play, Blickle scored a field goal from the 23 yard line after he and Harley Pearce had alternated in carrying the ball from the westerners' 48 yard line to the Orange 18 yard mark. Golch Carr, Syracuse half back, scored a field goal from placement from the 20 yard line in the second period.

Syracuse found Ohio Wesleyan the best team it has faced this year. With two brilliant backs in Pearce and Eddie Blickle, a pair of giant ends in Campbell and Lamme and a hard charging tackle in Bob Tilton, the Ohio eleven time and again stopped the powerful charges of the Orange backs and unleashed an aerial offensive that was spectacular and threatening. Lineup:

SYRACUSE [3].		O. WESLEYAN [3].
Hanson	L. E.	Campbell

COLGATE, 19; PROVIDENCE, 7

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Coach Harlow assigned the entire Colgate second team to duty against Providence here today, and the Maroon won 19-7. The field was a sea of mud and the straight football predominated. The Colgate reserves outplayed the visitors all the way. The New Englanders' touchdown came after a blocked Colgate punt, which rolled to the Maroon's 8 yard line. Colgate line held and Providence completed a pass on the fourth down for the score. Lineup:

PROVIDENCE [7].		COLGATE [19].
Connors	L. E.	Murphy
Abrams	L. T.	O'Leary
Harnisch	L. G	Realt
Burke	C	Connors

FOOTBALL TITLES.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 7.—From time to time various suggestions are advanced for determining the often disputed Big Ten football title. Now, officially, there is no such thing as a Big Ten title. The conference wisely declines to recognize a championship, both because there is no way of arriving at an unquestioned decision and because it prefers to foster rivalries between colleges rather than encourage elevens to "go out" for premier honors.

In theory that is all right, and the conference is absolved from perplexing situations. But the public wants a champion, the newspapers recognize that demand, and so there usually is some sort of conclusion on the subject, seldom satisfactory and often with the honors awarded to an undefeated team which is not the strongest eleven at the end of the season.

It now looks as if this season would end with more than one undefeated team. You certainly cannot take honors away from an unbeaten eleven and give it to any other eleven in the same body on comparative scores, for in the modern open game comparative scores mean little.

Neither can you rig up a percentage system based on relative strength of opponents which will do the trick. It would be just enough, perhaps, to penalize a team which consistently sought weak opponents, but the same percentage would apply to an eleven willing to play all comers but unable to secure the dates.

If Iowa goes through unbeaten, could any mythical honors justly be taken from Iowa and awarded to Michigan, or possibly Chicago, because those elevens played more Big Ten games? Iowa was willing to play either Chicago or Michigan, but could not match schedules. In fact, Iowa had to go to the Pacific coast for its final game of the season because it could not obtain a conference opponent.

So whatever the faults, the unofficial Big Ten title, as in the past, will be determined by public opinion and the verdict of football critics rather than by any other arbitrary system.

East Is East.

I took him to the Tribune Tower
(He lives in New York City).
He said, "Of course I must admit
The lines are rawther pritty."

"But, O, how short," he said to me;
"The Woolworth is much higher."
"But not so beautiful," I urged—
His eyes called me a liar!

I stopped him, on the new lake drive,
To feast his eastern eye
On gray stone buildings, melting in
An orchid sunset sky.

But as he looked he closed his eyes,
And said, as in a prayer:
"Our sky line is a sketchy thing,
It's copied everywhere."

'Twas then my conscience flew away;
You'll think me awful, Wake,
But I kept backing up until
I lost him in the lake. MAIZIE.

Golf Problem.

Recently we received a golf problem which was too complex for us, so we sought an official decision from Treasurer A. C. Allen of the Western Golf association, who also is chairman of the rules committee. Here is the question and the answer:

Dear Wake: While playing in a Scotch foursome my partner's ball lay about three inches from the hole in 5, although not in the line of my putt. On my putt I dropped his ball. Our opponents claimed his score for the hole was 6 because we were partners in the Scotch foursome; however, we were also playing syndicates. Is the correct score 5 or 6? M. N. W.

This Wake Is Conducted by Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

Dear Mr. Woodruff: In further reply to your letter, there is no doubt in our mind that Rule 2, applying to three or four ball matches would cover the case mentioned by you, and the ball would have to be replaced. The correct score would be 6. This rule covers the case very plainly and we can find no exception to it in the Royal and Ancient Book of Decisions. A. C. Allen.

Roulette Systems.

While at French Lick we observed a player with one of the inevitable systems for beating roulette. It called for varying stakes but was not a double up affair. Play was either on odd or even and adhered to that. In theory you could lose six bets and win four and break even, or win five and lose five and quit winner. It won for the three nights we watched.

The trouble with most systems is that a bad break wipes out one's capital. Once we had a friend with a system for beating the races. It called to win $25 a day. For three weeks it worked and our friend wondered "how long has this been going on and me not profiting by it."

Finally came a run of losers and the bankroll was shot. Our tabulation showed that $15,800 would have been needed before the system got to working again.

KANSAS AGGIES BEAT MARQUETTE ON SAFETY, 2-0

Game Is Played in Whirling Snow.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Kansas Aggies defeated Marquette university here today in a whirling snowstorm, 2 to 0, when Fleck, the Aggies' right end, nailed Demoling behind his goal line after he had recovered a fumbled punt.

Although conditions were more favorable for snowshoeing than football, the game was marked by some fine line play and hard tackling and blocking.

Randall, the Kansas Aggies' left end, was seemingly in every play and smeared many Marquette formations before the interference was started. Dilweg was doing the same for Marquette on his end of the line, while Ballard was offering able assistance to Randall in sweeping back the right side of Marquette's line.

The play resolved into a punting duel early in the first period and continued throughout the game, Demoling matching his boots with those of Cochrane to see which side would get the break. It came in the second period, when Demoling himself took a punt near his goal line, juggled it for a moment and went down under Fleck's slashing tackle behind his goal line with the ball in his possession.

On several occasions Marquette was in position to attempt a drop kick, but the condition of the ball was such that only one try was made, and Demoling missed the ball completely on the attempt. The lineup:

Gonzaga Eleven Batters Whitman College, 13 to 0

Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 6.—(AP)—After a scoreless first half, Gonzaga scored a touchdown in the third period in the game with Whitman college here, scored the try for point and another touchdown in the final period, while Whitman was unable to cross the invaders' goal. The final score was 13 to 0.

Walter Johnson to Make Bid for Toledo A A Club

Toledo, O., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A report in baseball circles here tonight is that Walter Johnson, Washington star twirler, is en route to Toledo from Florida to complete negotiations with a number of Toledo men for the purchase of the Toledo baseball franchise in the American association.

The Toledoans claim that if the negotiations are concluded Walter Johnson will become the new manager of the Toledo club next season.

NEW YORK HOLDS COLUMBIA GRID TEAM TO 6-6 TIE

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Somewhat to the surprise of Columbia's stanch football followers the violet clad gridiron warriors of New York University dropped down from the heights and played the blue and white to a standstill today at Baker field, the final score being 6-6. Each team scored a touchdown, both tallies being the result of forward passes. About 10,000 saw the battle. Lineup:

LINDBLOM WHIPS ENGLEWOOD, 6-0, IN MUD BATTLE

Victory Gives Winners Class 2 Title.

Lindblom High school football team won the championship of section two in the City league yesterday by defeating Englewood, 6 to 0, in a mud crawling contest at Normal park. More than 6,000 fans braved a downpour of rain to witness the game.

Tony Antonides, Lindblom half back, made the only score of the game. He waded around right end for a touchdown in the third quarter after one of his teammates had recovered a fumbled ball fifteen yards from Englewood's goal line.

Twelve fumbles, equally divided between the two teams, marred the contest. The ball was a bag of mush. It could not be kicked. Neither could it be passed.

Mud, Mud, Mud.

Five minutes after the game had started no person in the stands could distinguish one player from another. The referee became a cast of mud with a whistle and a lot of authority. Despite the weather, the spirit of the athletes and their classmates who were rooting in the rain ran high.

The fierceness of play became evident in the first quarter. Dick Richardson, quarter back for Englewood, tore around right end. His teammates picked off the defense like clockwork and it became apparent that the young man was going somewhere. The Englewood stands went wild.

But crashing through the interference came Antonides, Lindblom back. He shot straight for Richardson, who swerved toward the boundary line. The force of the tackle sent Richardson hurtling into the bench and among the cheer leaders, the coach and the substitutes. He had gained 25 yards, however, for his team.

Fumble Costly to Englewood.

Richardson later got his team in trouble by fumbling the ball while attempting to punt from his own 15 yard line. Three Lindblom Pollywogs pounced on the loose oval.

Three thrusts at the Englewood line netted only seven yards and the goal was still 15 yards away. Then it was that Mr. Antonides again rose to the occasion. Tucking the heavy ball under his arm he headed for Englewood's left flank. His interference picked off man after man, giving him a clear field to the goal. Antonides failed to kick the point after touchdown, but nobody cared. Lineup:

East Aurora Prep Grid Teams Want Nov. 14 Game

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Both heavyweight and lightweight football teams of the East Aurora High school of this city are seeking games for Nov. 14, to be played on the local gridiron.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question George Park, 208 South Kildare avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Are you interested in prairie football?

Where Asked.

Madison at Dearborn street.

The Answers.

Frank Gronfin, 4926 Sheridan road, merchant. — Many prairie football contests have been of more interest to me than college games. Whenever I pass a lot where a game is in progress, I never fail to stop and look on. Those boys certainly fight.

Charles Chatlin, 119 West Ontario street, salesman. — Between you and me, some of the biggest and most spectacular plays have been made on the prairie gridiron by boys who will become stars when they compete on the college gridiron. It is excellent sport for the kids. It gives them a knowledge of the game and builds up their bodies for higher class competition.

Morris B. Edelman, 534 North Clark street, clothier.—I am very much interested in prairie football. I get more of a kick out of the lot game than from professional football. Why? The boys play for the sport alone. They certainly look like a group of wild Indians when the game is over. Prairie football for me!

Mabelle Diesel, 1367 Estes avenue, bookkeeper.—Am I interested? Why I would rather see one prairie football game than five college games. The prairie football players go into a game and fight, with nothing to gain and all the world to lose. It's too bad there aren't more lots for the kids' games. It's a great sport and teaches them valuable lessons. In my neighborhood there is a contest nearly every day.

Sadie Crawford, 2123 North Kostner avenue, stenographer.—Prairie football is all right but college football with its cheer leaders, brass band, and parades has all other games backed off the sport map. College spirit gives color that you don't find elsewhere.

ALL CATHOLIC LEAGUE GAMES ARE SET BACK

Rain and muddy gridirons forced the postponement of many prep grid tilts yesterday. All Catholic league games were set back, while Hyde Park and Tilden of the City league also decided to take a holiday. Some of the parochial games will be played during the week, St. Rita and St. Patrick arranging to hold their contest Tuesday afternoon.

MISSOURI CADETS SWAMPED, 64 TO 0, BY LAKE FOREST

Lake Forest, Ill., Nov. 7.—Lake Forest academy again showed its strength today by running over Missouri Military academy of Mexico, Mo., by a score of 64 to 0 at Lake Forest. Missouri was able to make but one first down during the game. Lake Forest started scoring early in the first quarter and made the last touchdown just as the game ended.

MORTON DOWNS WEST AURORA

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Morton High, powerful member of the Chicago Suburban league, defeated West Aurora here this afternoon, 6 to 2. Repeated gains around the ends by Capouch gave Kadlec his chance to punch the ball over for Morton's score in the second period.

Cue Body Has New Way of Picking Champ

BY MORROW KRUM.

Announcement of a pocket billiard championship tournament that will be nation-wide in scope was made yesterday by the National Billiard Association of America.

The association plans to call every pocket billiard room owner in America into the tournament. The stars of each room will play one another until the best man is determined. These players will then go through city, county, state, sectional and finally national elimination play.

All contestants must comply with a set of rules adopted by the national association. Besides the championship medals, cash prizes will be awarded the various champions. The state, interstate and national titleholders will receive monthly salaries from the National Billiard association of America. The prize list amounts to $75,000. The salaries will be paid for twelve months, the life of the championships.

Entry blanks, rules of play and instructions are now being sent to billiard room owners. Early responses indicate that there will be about 30,000 players entered.

The National Championship Three Cushion Billiard league schedule for this week follows:

Nov. 9, 10, 11—Kieckhefer vs. Layton, here; Reiselt vs. Copulos at Philadelphia.
Nov. 12, 13—Hall vs. Kieckhefer, here; Maupome vs. Copulos at Cleveland.

The schedule consists of thirteen games, eight of which will be played at home, and includes contests with Lafayette, Lehigh, Syracuse, and Colgate.

Columbia will be ployed here on Dec. 16 and C. C. N. Y. in New York on the following Saturday. The schedule follows:

Dec. 5, Drexel; Dec. 12, Temple; Dec. 16, Columbia; Dec. 19, C. C. N. Y. at New York; Jan. 8, Lafayette at Easton; Jan. 16, Lehigh at South Bethlehem; Jan. 20, Fordham; Feb. 4, Syracuse at Syracuse; Feb. 6, Colgate at Hamilton; Feb. 12, Lafayette; Feb. 17, New York university; Feb. 20, Haverford; Feb. 24, Lehigh.

DOCTORS SPILL SAILORS, 12 TO 0, IN SEA OF MUD

Playing in rain and mud the American College of Physical Education football machine yesterday defeated the sailors from the Great Lakes Naval Training station on the latter's field, 12 to 0. Neither team could score until the start of the third quarter, when, after a Great Lakes kick had been blocked, Capt. Kupsunet picked up the oval, dived through his left tackle, and ran the ball back for 35 yards and a touchdown.

Lisle Beats Morton, 6-0; Wins Junior College Title

Lisle college yesterday won the football championship of the northern Illinois junior college conference by its victory over Morton, 6 to 0, in a sea of mud at Morton's field. Coach Bauer's eleven finished its season with a clean slate, having victories over Crane and Elgin, other members of the conference.

RITOLA IS NEW METROPOLITAN HARRIER CHAMP

New York, Nov. 7—[Special.]—Willie Ritola is the Metropolitan A. A. U.'s senior cross country champion. The wiry, lithe limbed Finnish-American A. C. standard bearer added this title today to the ten mile run championship of the district he won a fortnight ago in the annual running of the title test over hill and dale at Van Cortlandt park.

Running like a scared deer, Ritola, leading practically from the very start of the race, sped to victory in 30 minutes 5 4-5 seconds, a record for the course which was traversed today by an Amateur Athletic Union field for the first time, and which, if present plans are followed, will be the permanent hill and dale trail for the local A. A. U.

Ritola, as has come to be characteristic of him, won this title as he has won others in the past—as he pleased. The title race attracted a field of thirty-six starters.

Fred Wachsmuth, German lad who now sports the silks of the Millrose A. A., finished second, a quarter of a mile or so in the rear.

DE PAUL EDGES OUT VALPARAISO BY 7 TO 6 SCORE

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Failure to kick goal after touchdown brought about Valparaiso's defeat today, De Paul university of Chicago winning, 7 to 6. Half Back Jamieson returned a punt for Valparaiso's touchdown. De Paul threatened frequently, but fumbles prevented the visitors from piling up their score.

SCOTT HIGH WINS.

Toledo, O., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Scott High defeated the fast Cleveland West Tech team here this afternoon, 12 to 0. Scott scored all its points in the opening quarter.

YELLOW JACKETS BUZZ IN WEST TO STING BEARS

Local Pros Set to Turn Back Invaders Today.

Philadelphia's Yellow Jackets meet the Chicago Bears this afternoon at Cubs park in a national pro football league game. The kickoff is scheduled at 2:15.

The Yellow Jackets come here prepared to sting the Bears. They were upset on their home field last fall by the Bruins after leading up to the final minutes of play, and are determined to reverse the verdict today.

With the Yellow Jackets are Full Back Tex Hamer and Half Back Sullivan, former Penn stars.

Array of Stars.

The Yellow Jackets are coached by Guy Chamberlain of Nebraska, who formerly starred for the Bears, and knows their style of play. He has built up a powerful line and a fast charging, hard hitting back field. In addition to Sullivan and Hamer, he has Midget Homan, a football flash from Lebanon Valley, at quarter, and Haws of Dartmouth at half back.

Fitzke of Idaho, a triple threat man; Burnham of Harvard and Stockton of Gonzaga are other back field stars on the visiting eleven, and will get a chance at action during the afternoon.

All Illini Back Field.

The Bears will start an All Illinois back field against the Yellow Jackets—Joe Sternaman, Dutch Sternaman, Oscar Knop and Larry Walquist will be there, with Halas, Illinois, and Hanny, Indiana, at ends; Healy, Dartmouth, and Murry, Wisconsin, at tackles; McMillen, Illinois, and Fleckenstein, Iowa, at guards, and Trafton, Notre Dame, center.

Milt Romney, Chicago; Johnny Mohardt, Notre Dame; White, Valparaiso; Scott, Wisconsin, and Mullen, Illinois, will probably be seen in action for a part of the clash.

BEARS.		YELLOW JACKETS
Hanny	L. E.	Crowthers
Healy	L. T.	Carton
Fleckenstein	L. G.	Hoffman
Trafton	C	Springsteen
McMillen	R. G.	Welch

YELLOW JACKETS WIN

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 7.—The Yellow Jackets knocked Akron out of the professional football league lead here this afternoon, topping the Ohio eleven in a fiercely contested battle, 17 to 7. Fifteen thousand witnessed the fray. Lineup:

Y. JACKETS [17].		AKRON [7].
Chamberlain	L. E.	Bierce
Behman	L. T.	Clements
Hoffman	L. G.	Nesser
Springsteen	C.	Barrett

Touchdowns — Crowthers [2], Annan. Points after touchdown—Behman [2], Newman, Behman. Substitutes — Carton for Harms, Seacrist for Seidelson, Bissel for Newman. Referee—Harmon [Army]. Umpire—Winters [Philadelphia]. Head linesman—Whetstone [Pensylvania].

CARDS MEET PACKERS

Two evenly matched professional football teams will meet at Sox park at 2 oclock this afternoon when the Packers from Green Bay, Wis., lineup against the Cardinals. Both teams will present lineups of former college stars, men who have made all-conference and all-American teams. In the past both teams have depended to a great extent on their aerial game but it is doubtful if such a game will succeed on the poor footing which is certain today.

Five hundred rooters will come from Green Bay to root for the Badger team, which has been the champions of Wisconsin since 1918, and has won six of seven games this year. One of the most recent additions to the team is Eddie Kotel, Chicago boy, formerly captain of the Lawrence college team.

Chicagoans are familiar with the work of Paddy Driscoll of the post graduate toe and Bobby Koehler, both former Northwestern stars, and Claypool, star center, formerly captain of Purdue.

The Wisconsin team has such players as Harris, last years captain of Wisconsin; Abramson of Minnesota, Lambeau of Notre Dame, and Mathys a crack quarter from Indiana.

The Packers present one of the heaviest lines which the Cardinals have faced this year. Buck is a fast tackle and accurate kicker even though he weighs 260 pounds. Earpe of Monmouth is also fast though he weighs 235. Mathys, 165 pounds, is the lightest on the squad.

EVANSTON ELKS TO MEET RACINE ON GRID TODAY

Having met some of the best teams in the Midwest league and taken their measure, the undefeated Evanston Elks will meet the Racine, Wisconsin, gridders at Boltwood park, Evanston, today. The game will start at 2:15. Robinson is the only Evanston player not in top shape. The Badgers have a good record for the season. A number of former college and high school stars are in their makeup.

Coach Bill Cerney has his Pullman-Roseland Panthers in fighting trim for their clash with the Opal A. A. at 115th and Halsted streets in the second round of the Midwest Football league's champion series. Other games today are:

Washington Parks of Evanston and Highwood A. C. at Highwood; Independence Gridders and Modocs at Irving Park place and Springfield; Sparrows and Rogers Park Hotels at Loyola field; Racine A. C. and Evanston Elks at Boltwood park, Evanston; Tokio A. C. and Boulevard Cardinals at White City; Audubons and Igorrotes at Logan Square park; Logan Squares and Ravenswood Blues at Winnemac park; Pullman A. C. and Hammond Boosters at Hammond; Waukegan Elks and Harvey A. C. at Waukegan; Borderick Boosters and Bearcats at Grand Crossing park; Armeros and Roseland Boosters at Cicero and Fullerton; Hegewisch and Oscar Wolf A. C. at St. Michaels park; Boltwood Squares and Audubon Arrows at Welles park; Chicago Blackjackets and Rebel A. C. at Pyott park; Maywood Bachall Furnaces and La Grange All-Suburbans at La Grange; Hamlin Hanks and Mustang A. A. at Hamlin park.

THREE 10 ROUND BOUTS TOP CARD AT EAST CHICAGO

Three ten round bouts and two four round preliminaries complete the boxing show to be staged by Promoter Jim Mullen at East Chicago Friday night. In one of the ten round affairs, Phil McGraw of Detroit will meet Tommy Herman of the Board of Trade. Archie Bell of New York and Ray Rychell of the stockyards will be the principals in another and Irish Fagan of New York and Shuffle Callahan of Gary will clash in the other.

Jim Savage, west side heavyweight, will meet Al Moore of East Chicago in one of the openers and Mickey Kelly of Sujerior, Wis., and Emil Baksic of Whiting will trade punches in the other four rounder.

AUGIE AND HALL DIVIDE IN THREE CUSHIONTOURNEY

Allen Hall, playing for Mussy's, and Augie Kiechhefer divided honors yesterday in two games in the National Three Cushion Billiard association tournament. Kieckhefer won in the afternoon, 50 to 38, in 47 innings. In the evening play Hall won, 50 to 40 in 45 innings.

GREB REFUSES TO BOX SHADE FOR RING TITLE

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Plans for a world's middleweight championship bout between Harry Greb, the titleholder, and Dave Shade, California welterweight, who knocked out Jimmy Slattery, sought as the principal attraction of the Christmas fund boxing carnival in New Madison Square Garden on Dec. 23, today were abandoned when Greb declined the match, it was announced by Matchmaker Jess McMahon. Efforts are still being made to arrange a match between Gene Tunney and Young Stribling. McMahon said he is also working on a welterweight title bout between Tommy Milligan, English boxer, and Mickey Walker, world's champion.

DAYTON SLIDES 6 TO 2 VICTORY OVER HASKELL

Dayton, O., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Haskell Indians went down to defeat before the University of Dayton flyers here this afternoon, 6 to 2. The game was played in a driving rain storm and in a sea of mud. Cabrinha of Dayton made a brilliant 59 yard run on the first play after the kickoff for a touchdown, after snagging a 17 yard pass from Mahrt.

Blake, Dayton full back, made a sensational 39 yard run through a broken field late in the third quarter. Capt. Levi starred for the Indians. It was the second defeat suffered by the Indians this season.

NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE TAKES X-COUNTRY RUN

Lake Forest, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Northwestern college's cross country track team won the 3.2 miles race between Northwestern college, Armour Tech and Lake Forest college here today. Brooks of Northwestern won by a narrow margin over Fay of Armour, his nearest competitor. Score: Northwestern, 30; Lake Forest, 42; Armour, 50. Time, 15:53.

ANDERSON WINS 2 GAMES; LEADS IN BILLIARD PLAY

Andy Anderson, with two games won and no defeats, was leading last night in the pocket billiard tournament for the city championship at the Palace billiard hall, 123 West Madison street. The tournament opened Wednesday and will continue for three weeks, with games daily at 3 and 8 p. m. Those competing are Anderson, Clarence Safford, Major White, Sidney Cole, Robert Graham, Harry Towle, and Henry Herbain.

BY BOB BECKER.

Two more days to go and then the ringneck pheasant, that gay colored, exotic bird found in Illinois coverts, will receive the attention of hundreds of gunners as the game codes of Illinois permit the hunting of cock pheasants from Nov. 10 to 15 inclusive. The limit is two a day.

The arrival of the ringneck season will again air a heap of arguments about the value of this stranger as a game bird. In the northwest they can't see the ringneck for dust and loud are the lamentations of many sportsmen because the sprinting pheasant has been introduced by the state.

In Mnchigan the shotgun army, after patiently watching the increase in ringnecks, which have been protected for many years, sailed into these birds last month during the first open season on pheasants which the Wolverine state has ever had. The last we heard from one hunter as he told us how the pesky ringnecks behaved was to the effect that this game bird must be part ostrich.

At this time of the year, when the football experts are tossing the adjectives around as they dispense news about the triple threat half backs, the Illinois hunter going afield for ringnecks can tell the world that he is up against a triple threat game bird.

The pheasant is just that and he sure knows his stuff. He may sit tight in a bit of cover, making as nice a "lay" to a dog as any partridge or quail. On the other hand, this same ringneck may decide to run and when disturbed he will do a Red Grange through the weeds and other cover while the irate hunter stands by quite baffled by the play. Then, just to show how versatile he is, Mr. Ringneck may forward pass for a safe getaway and either flush out of range or sit tight until the hunter has gone by before he jumps into the air for a surprise flight out of the danger zone.

We have had several of these surprise forward passes pulled on us. One day while plowing through a patch of weeds in which there were dozens of birds one wise old cock let us pass by him until we had gone on 25 or 30 yards. Then into the air he went cackling gleefully as he angled away amid several hurried shots and strong language.

ALBION UPSETS HOPES OF ALMA, AND WINS, 12 TO 0

Albion, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Albion college wrecked the M. I. A. A. championship aspirations of Alma college here this afternoon when they turned back the Presbyterians, 12 to 0. Albion got a marker in the first quarter when Harry Williams heaved a long pass to his brother, Victor, who went over for the touchdown. Albion's second touchdown came in the last two minutes of play when Alma, trying to kick from behind her own goal, kicked a poor punt which rolled on the ground. Officials ruled that the play went for a touchdown. Albion failed to kick goal on both attempts.

MAT GO WINNER TO MEET LEWIS

Paddy Harmon, local wrestling promoter who has matched Joe Zickmund with Stanley Stasiak at the Dreamland arena on Nov. 16, yesterday announced he will match the winner with Ed [Strangler] Lewis, one of the claimants of the world's heavyweight championship. Promoter Harmon will support the main event with three other matches which will be announced this week.

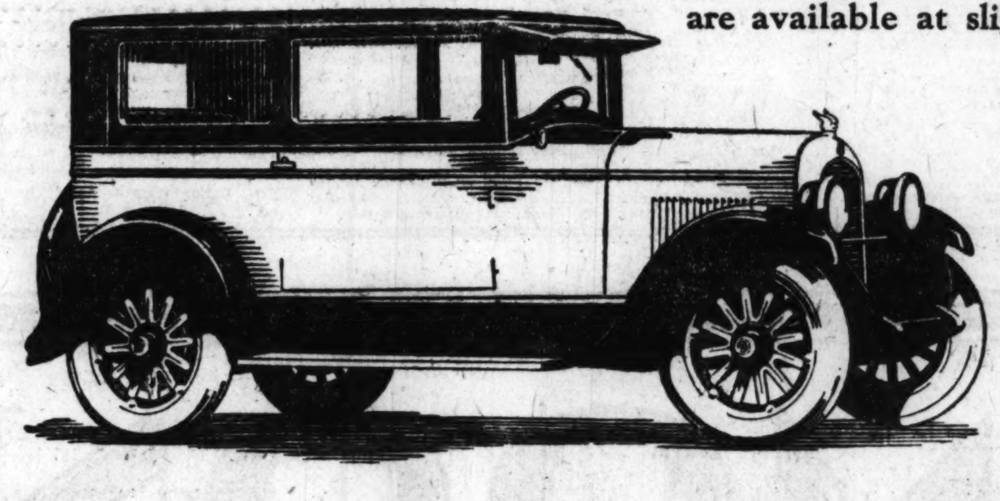
$15 Seats Are All That Remain for Army-Navy Game

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—All of the $4 tickets for the Army-Navy football game, scheduled to be played at the Polo grounds on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 28, have been sold and only a few box seats at $15 each, remain, it was announced at the Polo grounds headquarters.

"There is not even a single reserved seat left, outside of the boxes," said Jim Tierney, secretary of the Giants. "We are returning hundreds of requests daily and it will save time and lebor at boths ends if the fans will refrain from sending in any more applications. The last reserved seat is gone."

Dr. Brides, Columbia Line Coach, Resigns

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Dr. Arthur Brides, line coach at Columbia has resigned owing to the press of professional work. The line coaching will be taken on by Coaches Depler, Brodil, and Price, all line instructors.



Drive a Chrysler Four and You Will Want to Own It

A ride in a Chrysler Four goes beyond all previous conception of what a car of this price should be and do.

Its quiet engine, with all sense of vibration eradicated, gives a flow of power that is continuous and dependable.

Its smooth and flexible pick-up takes you through traffic with consummate ease.

A new degree of riding and driving comfort results from Chrysler-designed spring suspension, low center of gravity, full balloon tires and pivotal steering. Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes are available at slight extra cost.

These are exclusively the results of Chrysler advanced engineering, combined with prodigal use of the finest alloy steels, and a precision of workmanship heretofore unknown in cars anywhere near the Chrysler Four price.

Only a demonstration can do justice to the unexcelled performance which these Chrysler qualities assure.

Only by driving it can you fully realize the Chrysler Four's true worth. Only by a personal experience can you know beyond doubt the supreme quality and extra value it gives in results not even remotely approached by cars of any type near it in price.

We are eager to place a Chrysler Four at your disposal to test in the manner you choose.

Outselling

in this Community and all over America

The following official new car registrations in Cook County, Illinois, for October, show how the new Oakland Six has passed car after car in its uninterrupted march towards leadership in its field:

Ford	929
Chevrolet	469
Buick (Two Chassis types)	363
OAKLAND	293
Chrysler (Four and Six)	215
Studebaker (Three Chassis types)	196
Dodge	179
Willys-Knight (Four and Six)	165
Nash (Two Chassis types)	152
Essex	141
Overland (Four and Six)	133
Hudson	114
Oldsmobile	80
Reo	50
Ajax	43
Jewett	42
Auburn (Six and Eight)	40
Hupmobile (Two Chassis types)	37
Flint (Two Chassis types)	30
Chandler	18
Star	17
Cleveland	15
Rickenbacker	14
Moon	11
Velie	9
Locomobile Junior 8	6
Durant	2

The above significant registration figures only reflect the fast-growing favor for the new Oakland Six throughout the entire country.

For example, factory sales for October show a 146% increase over October, 1924—a 63% increase over September, 1925—and an increase of 14½% over the best previous month in Oakland history. November daily production will be still greater than in October.

Oakland outsells because in public opinion it outclasses its field.

More than 100 improvements, including new Bodies by Fisher, Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, Four-Wheel Brake refinements and the Harmonic Balancer, establish this car as the outstanding value of the year.

New Price $70 to $350 Lower, plus savings of as much as $40 to $60 on the GMAC Time Payment Plan

W. W. SHAW, JR.

THE different associations that are building highways to Florida are vieing with one another to be the first to complete their respective roads and thus get the larger percentage of tourists to use the route offering the most paved road. The greatest competition is between the East Dixie and West Dixie in Kentucky.

The East Dixie south of Lexington has twenty miles of dirt road, and the West Dixie from Louisville to Bowling Green and then southeast to Scottsville, where you take the Jackson highway to Nashville, has about thirty miles of rough stone and gravel, but it's an all year round road. The road between Henderson, Ky., and Nashville has six miles of dirt and about twenty miles of rough gravel. The Dixie from Nashville to Lake City is mostly paved and gravel. There's an occasional stretch of dirt and clay.

Today's map shows an almost continuous stretch of hard road from Chicago to Washington, D. C. From Washington to South Hill is gravel clay, then excellent hard road to Greenville, S. C., good dirt roads to Hazelhurst, and good gravel and pavement to Jacksonville.

Although there are plenty of tarpon, they are not fished for until the heat of spring brings them in season. There are countless numbers of pelicans along the west coast of Florida that have been tamed to a wonderful degree. While fishing on the dock these friendly feathered creatures sit close to you, and if you push them away they'll come right back to coddle and beg.

The Gandy bridge, just recently completed, cuts off thirty miles between Tampa and St. Petersburg. This bridge is two and one-half miles long, but approaches make its total length six miles.

On the overseas highway from Key West to the mainland of Florida four bridges of importance are to be constructed, two of which will be nearly seven miles long. Imagine riding in an automobile and being completely out of sight of land! This overseas highway, which will be 128 miles long, will, of course, be a continuation of the Dixie highway which extends from Chicago.

Three Types of Clutch Mark Rise of Modern Motor

AFTER the leather faced cone clutch had held sway for a number of years in the early automobiles, the metal-to-metal multiple-disc clutch running in oil made its appearance and became popular. The next important step was about fifteen years ago, when the multiple-disc dry clutch was adopted. The third important change came in 1915 with the introduction of the single-plate type, which has solved many perplexing problems, writes E. E. Wemp, clutch engineer, in the October issue of the Journal of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Ten years ago the automobile industry was well established and demanded better units for less money. At the same time, the car drivers demanded easier operation and, as the single-plate clutch meets both requirements, it came into prominence rapidly, continues the author. It has displaced the cone type on most of the cheaper cars and, because of its lower cost and reasonable serviceability, has made serious inroads in the multiple-disc type field for use on cars of the medium and higher priced models. No new types have been developed during the last ten years, during which period the advancement has been in the way of refinements of design and developments of materials used in existing types.

The dry multiple-disc and single-plate types of clutch were made possible by development of the asbestos-base friction facing. A good friction facing in a properly designed clutch should permit smooth flexible engagement over a wide range of speeds and be able to withstand hard and continuous service over a long period.

One of the most interesting developments has been a design of single-plate clutch in which a dense molded type of facing can be used and good clutch engagement obtained. Thermal efficiency is an element in design that has not received sufficient attention, in the opinion of the author, who says that as in pick up the clutch changes horsepower into heat, it is not good practice to house the clutch completely in the flywheel and that openings should be provided to allow air to circulate through the mechanism.

The non-adjustable single-plate clutch has its advantages and its limitations. Its simplicity, ease of assembly and low manufacturing cost are of advantage to the car builder and the non-adjustable feature makes it particularly desirable from the service angle, as it is impossible for an inexperienced mechanic to adjust it improperly.

News and Gossip of the Auto Trade

WORD has been received by F. D. Cerf, president of the Stutz Chicago Factory Branch, Inc., that the local organization is the winner of a silver loving cup, awarded by F. E. Moskovics, president of the Stutz Motor Car company of America, for a sales contest during the month of October. Twelve branches and leading distributors for the company were in the contest.

A national newspaper advertising campaign announcing the 1926 Buicks was carried on in 7,000 American newspapers in August. The public response was remarkable. In two days, 1,018,000 interested persons visited Buick show rooms, and at the end of the campaign, six days later, thousands of cars had been sold. Many dealers sold more Buicks than they usually sell in a year, in the first month after the new models were introduced. Encouraged by this success, the company now plans to use more space for newspaper advertising than it has ever used before.

Get New Part.

Warnings have been sounded by engineers against the practice of trying to straighten steering rods and cross tubes bent in automobile accidents. Mechanics use two general methods of straightening—cold bending and heat treating. Both of these methods are unsafe. It is advisable to replace bent parts, since they have been forced beyond their elastic limit and will not stand a repetition of this treatment under a straightening process without being that much nearer the breaking point when put back into service.

FRONT END.

It is often important to know what type of front end support is in one's car. The popular arrangement is known as a trunnion support. A bearing holds the front end of the motor and allows it to adjust itself to torque, twisting, and other conditions. There is a provision for lubricating this point with grease, and it should not be overlooked.

The New
Gardner Six
4-Door Brougham

Now $1595 instead of $1795

Gardner presents another closed-car value—a 4-door, full-size, six-cylinder Brougham for $1595 at St. Louis.

Think of it! A really roomy, comfortable, beautifully designed Brougham with four wide doors, real plate glass windows, rich two-tone lacquer body finish—not a makeshift—not of the coach type—but a genuine closed car on the famous Gardner chassis at coach prices!

With elegant upholstery and handsome fittings—snappy black leather rear top with landau irons—genuine, full-size balloon tires, enclosed 4-wheel brakes, natural wood wheels and one of the smoothest, sweetest six-cylinder motors that ever pulled a hard hill in high—for $1595.

And one of the fine things about this car is that Gardner passes along to the buyer the manufacturing economies that permit of a $1595 price instead of $1795—a saving of $200. Come in and meet it!

MOTORDOM

600 Paved Miles Will Link Florida Coasts Next Fall

State Pushes Its Roads Through Swamps of the Everglades.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Florida's everglades, those vast and unchartered leagues of swamps and dwarfed jungle that stretch away from Lake Okeechobee on the north to the junction of gulf and Atlantic ocean on the south, and form the better part of six subtropical counties, are the battlefields today of nature's last stand against the automobile.

It will be years before the great drainage and reclamation schemes already launched send any connected network of roads through this last frontier and open it entirely to traffic, but the fall of 1926 will see the completion of the first 600 mile paved highway loop connecting the southern cities of both coasts straight through the hitherto impassable barrier.

This unique highway loop, extending south from Fort Myers for 100 miles along the gulf and then diving straight east through the everglades to Miami to connect with the Dixie highway north along the Atlantic to Palm Beach, was conceived in the early years of the century and started at the Miami end in 1914. Baron Collier, on the west coast, began blazing the first trail east to meet the Miami contracts from Marco, while county, state, and government forces began operations connecting roads straight south and east from Fort Myers through the lowlands.

Today this remarkable road system, unequaled for weird scenery and difficulties in construction, is paved for a distance of forty miles west from Miami, and is graded from Everglade, in Collier county, west to Marco, on the gulf, and north to the edge of Lee county, where it meets macadam and stone surfacing north into Fort Myers.

From Fort Myers east the northern link of the loop is graded and surfaced for about 100 miles to a point just below the center of Lake Okeechobee, and work is going forward on the twenty-five mile gap that will meet the completed pavement now in service from the southern tip of the lake into West Palm Beach. This northern link of the loop is called Palm Beach boulevard. The Dixie forms the east coast link from Miami to Palm Beach, and the Tamiami trail the southern and west coast links, from Miami, 273 miles to Fort Myers.

Along both coasts Florida builders found new road construction comparatively easy, following the pioneer surveys. They sent crews in first to clear away virgin timber and palmetto, filled in lowland stretches with rock and sand, then easy of access, bridge the few streams and swamps that the road could not be detoured around, and laid crushed stone and macadam surfacing.

The everglade links presented altogether different problems. From Miami west the contractor found that he must blast a passage through steely coral rock foot by foot, and began dynamiting his way into the wilderness until the war stopped his operations. As soon as the government allowed the work to proceed again after the war embargoes, he faced a 100 per cent increase in dynamite prices and other material and labor costs, and lost an estimated $100,000 in completing his contract. On the northern end the road was pushed ahead through miles of water and muck by the sheer weight of sand and rock on endless fills that settled down almost as soon as they were completed.

Now the freight embargoes have made it almost impossible to get materials into the road jobs, and contractors have to content themselves with clearing the right of way, grubbing out roots and tree trunks, and grading to await the arrival of rock, concrete, or other surface material. Even so, the Palm Beach boulevard, the only direct line between east and west coasts below Lake Okeechobee, will be completed and open to traffic by about Jan. 1, and the entire loop will be thrown into service next fall.

F. A. Hathaway, chairman of the Florida highway commission, announced today that construction in the state will continue unabated despite lack of finishing materials and the freight embargoes. A total of $1,000,000 is involved in new contracts let for clearing, grubbing, and grading the new road stretches preparatory to paving them in the spring. In the spring, too, the commission plans to resume its big program of road widening, which will bring all of the main highway routes to a standard 18 foot pavement width and lay slabs ranging from 40 to 100 feet in width over points of the worst traffic congestion.

In practically every county of the state, highway bond issues have been voted to care for the rush of automobile traffic that dwarfs any of the old forced migrations in American history.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to Mrs. Henry Carlsen, 20 West 151st street, Harvey, Ill.

The Question.

What auto trip did you enjoy most this past summer?

Where Asked.

County building.

The Answers.

Charles L. Cohns, 139 North Clark street, lawyer — My most pleasant trip was to New York City, Baltimore, Washington, and back through the Cumberland mountains, without a puncture or any other trouble. We had fine weather, two thousand miles of fine scenery, and the roads as smooth as this ought to read.

Miss Estelle De Wan, 5744 South Ada street, stenographer—To Des Moines and return. We didn't have any car trouble. Wonderful trip! We stopped off at Starved Rock; stayed over night at Iowa City. I forgot—we ran into an overflowed lake and had to detour. Instead of stopping, as ordered, we went all the faster.

Chester D. Levin, 929 County Building, deputy clerk—My most enjoyable trips were around the land of sunshine, California, and the land of beauty, Yellowstone National park. Of course, we took the train from here to there, and there to here, touring in autos out there.

Marie O. Andresen, 902 City Hall, assistant state's attorney—A trip to Valparaiso. Really, I went on business, but it had been so long since I had a chance to get out into the country that every mile of that trip seemed most enjoyable. The Indiana dunes, the trees, everything was interesting.

Joseph L. Turek, 111 West Washington street, lawyer—A trip to Holland, Mich., especially that part of it beyond South Haven. There is something different, decidedly different, about Michigan. The roads were good and there were interesting turns, hills, little lakes, and attractive forests.

Changing World Brings New Names for Motor Models

THERE is a definite trend toward the use of the term "phaeton" for designating the type of open car heretofore generally known as touring car. This is disclosed by inquiries made among car manufacturers by the passenger car body division of the standards committee of the Society of Automotive Engineers. Several American car builders use "phaeton" for the five passenger open car and "touring car" for the seven passenger open car, but out of 61 times when either of these terms is used by the manufacturers, "phaeton" is used 20 times. The term "touring car" has lost its former significance since all types of body have come into use for touring.

No standard term for the five passenger two door closed body commonly called "coach" or "brougham" has ever been specified by the standards committee of the society as recommended practice, as it was held that the standard nomenclature is intended to apply to basic types of body and that variations from such types should include the basic name, properly qualified. Thus, the so-called "coach" or "brougham" should be called a "five passenger coupe" or a "two door sedan." The recent survey shows that of 31 companies making this type of body only slightly more than one-half use the term "coach."

What names for the close coupled two, three, and four door closed bodies shall be recommended as standard practice is to be considered at a meeting of the passenger car body division of the S. A. E. early this autumn.

British Car Makers Swamped with Orders at Annual Exhibit

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—[Special.]—In spite of Jeremiahs about the declining British trade, the entire automobile production of the British manufacturers for the coming year was sold within a couple of hours at the opening of the annual motor show in London. It is estimated that 100,000 cars will be made this year, and all have been sold to the trade. One order alone for export of Morris cars totals over £2,000,000 ($10,000,000).

A feature of the show is the great growth in closed models. England in the past favored touring models, but now is going in for sedans. A great majority of the cars shown range in price from £200 to £400 ($1,000 to $2,000). As there is no automobile show in Paris this year, a large number of French cars are shown, and cheap excursions are being run from Paris to London to enable Parisians to see the show. Many American cars also are shown, including some not seen on this market before.

Small Cities Feel Traffic Jam Menace

Reports from the city engineers all over the country indicate that only in a handful of cities are traffic studies being made by experts with a view to city planing. In only 25 per cent have any traffic counts been made from the broader aspect. Half the cities have "City Planning commissions," but they are not active. Hence the warning of safety organizations and engineering societies that the smaller cities may repeat the traffic tragedy of the larger cities through failure to adjust their physical facilities to the demands of traffic in time.

FARM AND GARDEN

How to Increase Farmers' Profits Moot Question

McNary-Haugen Bill Is the Pivot of the Controversy.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

THINKERS in agriculture are still disagreed on how they are going to get more profits for the farmer. They are expected to lock horns when the farm legislative questions come up at the next session of congress, which is to open in Washington, D. C., early in December.

"High Prices versus Lower Production Costs" might be given as the title of their debate. One group holds to the theory that the surplus is keeping prices of farm products down and that if any permanent relief is to come, an export agency must be established to get rid of the surplus so that the products used at home will be sold on a domestic supply and demand basis. They don't want the world market fixing the price.

This group fought for the passage of the McNary-Haugen bill, which failed at the last session of congress. Neither President Coolidge nor William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, is in sympathy with it and it has been ripped up and is now being pieced together to be presented under another name. Secretary Jardine, however, is said to regard the farmer's surplus as the trouble maker in agriculture.

Land Big Issue.

The other group holds to the theory that the McNary-Haugan bill would not work, that it is impractical, and the way for the farmer to increase his profits is to cut down his overhead costs—cut down his production costs, and thereby increase his profits.

They argue that to boost the price of wheat or corn, for example, to a relatively high level would mean more men in the production of corn and wheat and the price of land raised, which would, in turn, raise their big item in production costs. The supply would be greater and out of joint with demand.

The cost of using land is the biggest factor in the production of farm crops, according to J. B. Davidson, head of Secretary Jardine's survey on agricultural engineering. He says 50 per cent of the cost of producing an acre of corn in Iowa is caused by the use of land, 20 per cent for man labor, 20 per cent for power, and 10 per cent miscellaneous. Land is relatively high in Iowa and production costs are also higher.

It cost in 1921 on an average of $25 an acre, or 53 cents a bushel, to produce corn in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, and Kansas, according to the federal government's figures, and nearly half—$11.90 an acre—was for the use of the land. The yield was 46 bushels to the acre.

Students of agricultural economics think farmers would be much better off in the long run if they could do away with the land speculator. More land operators and fewer speculators are needed.

Since the use of land is the big item in production costs, increase in land values is narrowing down the farmer's profits. It has had much to do with the corn belt farmer's scant profits in recent years. During the ten year period from 1910 to 1920 Indiana's farm values jumped more than an average of $50 an acre; Illinois', nearly $80 an acre; Iowa's, more than $131 an acre. The increase in farm prices did not keep pace with the increase in production costs during that decade.

Mistaken Valuation Basis.

In the system of appraising farm land in this country there is a tendency to determine the value upon the basis of what it will sell for if the money lender has to close out the owner, rather than upon the amount of corn, wheat or oats it will produce. Land in the middle west that is now selling for $25 to $100 an acre more than it sold for ten years ago is not producing any more bushels or tons to the acre. In most cases it is producing less. The farmer who is cultivating the land has to pay the bill.

Perhaps it is profit, not price per bushel, that the grower is interested in after all, and he might do well to give that some thought. The farmer who raises corn at a cost of 40 cents a bushel and sells it at $1 a bushel is making more money than the man whose cost is 60 cents and selling price $1.10.

It is a realization of the significance of these factors that has caused farmers to turn their attention to the task of helping themselves by studying the things immediately under their feet rather than going to Washington for help.

Farmers Are Divided.

The public has been hearing much about how the farmer is tearing his hair over the failure of congress to pass the McNary-Haugen bill, but it is hard to find a farmer who has actually made a study of the bill who is in deep sympathy with the measure's principles. Farmers are not always in sympathy with their leaders.

The farm bureau in the midwest is divided on this issue, which was made apparent at the last meeting of the state bureau federation representatives. Eight states were represented at the meeting held here—Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, and Minnesota. It was only after the McNary-Haughen element had been removed that the bureau delegates could agree and pass a resolution pertaining to federal legislation. In the final draft of the resolution which was adopted the bill was not mentioned, but since the meeting some of the supporters of the export corporation measure have interpreted it to mean a renewal of the fight to gain passage of the McNary-Haugen bill or a bill containing its main principles.

The resolution insists that "agriculture is entitled to and must be accorded the full benefit of protective tariffs if the American protective system for industry is to be retained," calling attention to the fact that world prices of farm products will prevail in our domestic market regardless of tariff schedules, since the surplus determines the price of the whole crop, whether at home or abroad. An attempt will be made by the bureau to have enacted legislation "to give agriculture equality with industry and labor in the American protective system."

Representative L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, who was here the other day conferring with supporters of the McNary-Haugen bill's principles, says that in order to give agriculture parity with other industries there must be price stabilization of farm products. And in order to get price stabilization, it is absolutely necessary to have control of surplus agricultural products sold in export.

He is planning to introduce a bill at the next session of congress which he thinks will bring this about.

"Limiting production has been advanced as a cure," he says, "but to all agricultural economists it is impractical because there are too many uncertain factors entering. We have had diversification presented as a remedy, and the more diversification the more we shift responsibility from one product to another, and it has not cured the evil."

Theory All Wrong.

"We have had the theory advanced that no legislation is needed to help agriculture, that the farmer's problem is his own and he alone can solve it. On looking up history, we find the farmer has never solved his own problem and in practically all countries in the world after new lands have been exhausted and speculative land features have ceased the food producers have been reduced to a peasant class. Our country is now facing this crisis, and business men who sit around tables and say agriculture is prosperous are wrong.

"In a prosperous state like Iowa we've been living off our fat for the last five years. Our reduction in indebtedness has been made either by increasing mortgages on farms or by decreasing our capital investment. It is now being suggested that we need additional farm credit. This may bring about some relief but will not materially assist in paying the overdraft in producing a field of corn where the sale price is less than the cost price.

Thinks Legislation Remedy.

"Iowa and Illinois have seen prices of corn reduced 40 per cent, or 10 per cent a month in the last four months. No business institution can suffer such deflation and survive, because credit will only assist in easing off the situation to the crucial day."

Mr. Dickinson believes coöperative marketing should be encouraged, but can bring only limited relief. "In order to be effective coöperative marketing should be joined with legislation permitting control of the agricultural surplus," he added.

He thinks the corn, tobacco, and cotton surplus can be handled in the same way Great Britain has handled rubber and Brazil coffee, because the United States produces the large percentage of the world's consumption of each one of these three farm products or commodities. Wheat, he explained, does not parallel the rubber and coffee situation, because it is grown in many countries.

Representative Dickinson is convinced his bill will do away with the speculative aspect in the marketing of agricultural products, will cut the middle man's toll, and aid in preventing extreme price fluctuations.

CATTLE CRITICS

FOUR OF THE WORLD'S BIGGEST CATTLE BUYERS.—This quartet of veterans of the Union stockyards have perhaps bought more cattle on central live stock markets than any other four men on the globe. When this picture was taken they had just finished buying the bulk of the animals that were put through one of the weekly calf club auctions held here, where hundreds of farm boys' and girls' baby beeves have been sold at premium prices to encourage better beef production. MOTORDOM

Big Motor Plants Will Run at Full Speed All Winter

No Chance for the Usual Letdown with Orders Piling Up.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—All the larger automobile plants now are planning practically capacity operations right up to the opening of next spring, and schedules are being revised accordingly. Packard, Hudson-Essex, Ford, Cadillac, Hupp, Buick, Willys-Overland, Chrysler, and Oakland are now working practically at capacity, with no intention of an easing up in output.

Labor in many Detroit plants continues to increase, with a continued demand for skilled mechanics. Last week's addition to the pay rolls was small—only 495—but it was an increase, and placed the total number of men now employed at 266,748.

All five General Motors units are operating at capacity, as is the Packard plant, with 4,000 cars a month. Alvin Macauley, Packard president, declares the present gait will be maintained throughout the winter months.

The new Hudson-Essex body plant is being rushed to completion, and, when ready for operation, the company's production will be doubled to 2,000 cars daily. Dodge also will practically double its output about the first of January, when additions now being made to the mammoth plant are completed. Fifteen hundred cars a day is the schedule for the early weeks of 1926.

Auburn Automobile company will build a four cylinder car, to be manufactured in addition to the present line of sixes and eights. The new model will be of the short wheel base variety. Peerless Motor company of Cleveland went into production this week on its new light six.

Practically every automobile plant is now giving its attention to the coming year, considering 1925 closed. Steel, parts, and accessories orders are being placed in larger quantities than ever before, the manufacturers collectively being satisfied that every indication points to a bumper year just ahead for production and sales.

As yet not a car has been built and stored for the spring trade. Producers are attending to that, and will not be caught "long," as they were two years ago. In fact, conditions for the last few months have been such that storing has not been possible, on account of the immediate demand for cars.

The battle for a reduction of war excise taxes on automobiles will begin in earnest with the opening of congress next month. Car and truck makers promise that the benefits will be passed on to the public immediately, in the form of reduced prices, if the taxes are repealed.

The only open opposition to doing away with the tax entirely is that of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury. Mr. Mellon advocates that the tax on trucks, parts and accessories be repealed, but favors the retention of the tax on passenger cars as a means of providing funds for the construction and maintenance of good roads. He announced that so long as the federal government is contributing more than $90,000,000 a year on roads on which passenger vehicles run, they certainly ought to be made to pay their way.

Michigan foundries may not pour as many tons of molten iron as do those of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio or Illinois, but this state is easily fifth in volume and unexcelled in facilities for the production of gray iron castings. The growth of the automobile industry, which is centralized in Michigan has been accompanied by vast improvements in the gray iron molding industry, which is a very near relative to automobile production.

About $50,000,000 is invested in gray iron foundries in Michigan. Half of this is represented in those which are part of the plant equipment of companies producing automobiles. There are 228 of these foundries in this state.

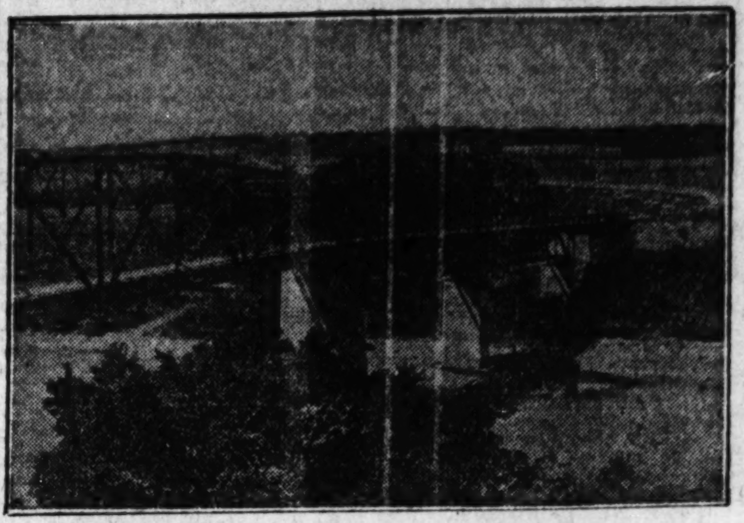
A provisional agreement has been reached under which General Motors corporation will control Vauxhall Motors. The plan provides for General Motors to put £300,000 of new working capital into the business and pay existing shareholders £210,000.

MISSOURI SHOWS THE WEST



Steady progress in every county of the state has brought Missouri's paved highway system well toward leadership in the west this year. In addition to its straightaway concrete roads, which are routed to cover the shortest possible distances between traffic centers and to avoid all towns possible, the state has set a high standard for new bridges and highway structures. This picturesque Gasconade bridge, recently dedicated, is typical of the new work. It spans the Gasconade river at Mount Sterling, 50 miles east of Jefferson City.

Highway Mission Finds Peru Ready for Road Program

IMPROVED highways are to receive the preferred attention of the government of Peru, the American delegates to the Pan-American congress of highways were told by President Leguia, who received them on their arrival in Lima, according to a cable received by J. Walter Drake, assistant secretary of commerce.

The delegation is on its way to Buenos Aires, via the west coast of South America. Representatives of every American republic will participate in the congress, which was called by the Argentine government.

Discussing Peru's program of highway development, President Leguia said:

"We are giving preferred attention to the matter of improved highways for Peru. We have already under way 106 projects, which we hope to complete within two and one-half years, our best wish being that in time the triumphant automobile may go from one end of our territory to the other, from Tubes to Madre de Dios, from Iquitos to Tacna, from Javari to the coast."

In conferences with officials of the Peruvian government the delegates were told the highway needs of Peru vary from the highest type of motor highways to the development of roads for remote rural sections, with the present greatest need being for a $6,000 per kilometer road.

The United States delegation arrived at Callao on the steamship Santa Ana. The Americans were tendered an enthusiastic reception by a number of public officials and persons prominent in the industrial, engineering, and scientific life of Peru.

MORE TRUCKS.

The number of trucks registered in Massachusetts has nearly doubled in the 5 year period 1920-1925. From a total of 44,498 trucks in 1920, the number has grown to 87,015 in 1925.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

PINES AUTOMATIC
WINTERFRONT

Don't take chances by forcing your motor.

Driving now without proper control of air through the radiator means an over cooled motor with——excessive carbon and crank case dilution

—excessive cylinder and bearing wear
—a worn and noisy motor
—or an overheated motor with very similar consequences.

Any day you need an overcoat your radiator needs a Winterfront to keep the motor doing its best.

The Winterfront is entirely automatic. A simple but powerful thermostat responds to the needs of the motor—

—when it wants warmth the shutters close tight and hold ALL the heat.

—when it needs cool air, the thermostat like an unseen hand opens the shutters to let it in.

This simple but powerful and long lasting thermostat is a part of the Winterfront itself. There is no motor connection.

Once installed, Winterfront automatically gives your motor Summer conditions without any attention whatever. You have nothing to remember, nothing to forget. Winterfront does it all, unfailing under all driving conditions.

Saves each season more than its cost.

Why take chances of ruining your motor?

The price of cars with small radiator is $22.50; for cars with medium radiator $25.00; for cars with large radiator $28.00.

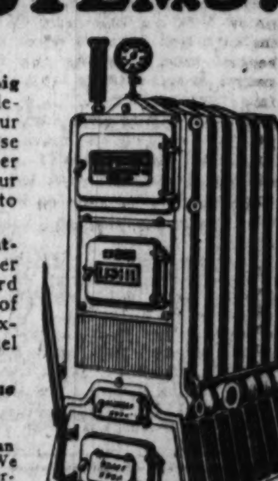
HEATING SYSTEMS!

Complete Delivery in 48 Hours!



Important: We are fully prepared with big stocks of Heating Materials to deliver your Heating System complete within 48 hours after your order is accepted. Enjoy the comforts of healthful heat these chilly mornings and be prepared for the cold winter weather just ahead. Our engineers will show you how to install your own heating system or recommend competent mechanics to do the work for you.

Warning: Don't allow yourself to be caught with a heating stove or other heating apparatus this winter which requires hard coal for fuel. Today the price of hard coal is soaring high because of the shortage. Install one of our modern heating systems at our low sale price, using inexpensive soft coal for fuel. The money you will save on fuel alone will almost pay your monthly installments.

A phone call brings one of our heating engineers to your home anywhere within 35 miles, without cost or obligation, at any time, day or night.

Under our sensibly cut-to-fit service, we cut and thread all pipe larger than two inches in diameter after the boilers and radiators are set in place. We will loan you all tools you require at a small rental charge. Over 20,000 Perfection Heating Systems are now in service with big economy and greatest satisfaction to their owners.

Perfection Square, Sectional Heating Boiler for hot water system; capacity, 1,000 sq. ft. Large enough for a 6-room bungalow. $97

All other sizes proportionately low.

Perfection Plain Design steam and hot water radiation. Thoroughly tested, guaranteed perfect. All styles and heights in stock. Our price on 38-inch three column hot water radiators, per foot, 35c

TRADE REVEALS SOME PERILS OF SPECIALIZED MEN

BY HARPER LEECH.

Few writers since James Babington Macaulay have equaled Glenn Frank in the art of balanced antithesis. He said the other day that the world cannot afford specialism, if it is to produce specialized men.

Luncheon orators and correspondence schools have so stressed the virtue of knowing so much that you can tell the boss how to run his own shop, that a glance at the other side of the picture may be worth while.

Lopsided men are not the feature of modern business.

A lawyer is at the head of the greatest steel company. Another lawyer runs a great oil company. A former bookkeeper is slated to head another great oil company. An accountant runs the telephone system. There have been periods in the history of railroading when the way to the top would seem to lie through mastery of such transportation texts as Cooley's Constitutional Limitations or Justice Marshall's decisions. Receivers have pulled railroads out of ruts, and judges have frequently guided the receivers.

A former railroad president pulled a typewriter company out of the red. He probably doesn't know the touch system yet. Few newspaper men do, although they rattle out their livelihood on the keyboard.

A railroad executive is running one of the greatest merchandising concerns in the world. Its turnover is far greater than all the foreign commerce of Russia, which has had so much free advertising from our intellectuals that the purported plan of some moron commisar to buy a tractor, receives more publicity than the production of 100,000 tractors in America.

The electrical industry was the creation of men who knew nothing about it—because there was then nothing to know. Clerks, stenographers, school teachers and others of the white collar tribe, to whom the world always turns for brains, helped to create its precedents. Now one sees newspaper men disguised as vice presidents of utilities on all sides. The new craft of public relations will furnish many commercial and financial executives.

Learn to write a good political story. It may lead to power in a power company.

More than one good bank has been started by politicians who prepared a place of deposit for the proceeds of a bond issue. There is a difference between the political and the business mind—but it does seem that the most successful politicians have good business sense, and the biggest business men have the political touch. Chicago is full of examples. Double track minds of that kind are not cursed with specialism—although they are the minds of specialists.

Humanity need not fear specialism—because exaggerated specialism is its own death warrant. Man is a success biologically because he has remained generalized as an animal. He has specialized organically on a brain and nervous system—but the limit of that probably has been reached—the crowded mad houses are the red light ahead. The physical evolution of man—not the evolution of ideas or civilization—probably reached its limit, 20,000 years ago. He is a fixed type, and the conditions of mastery and success ever are the same.

Du Pont Company Plans More Debenture Stock

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The E. I. du Pont de Nemours company announced today its intention to issue an additional $10,000,000 of its debenture stock, to reimburse the company treasury for plant and working capital in connection with recent developments. Holders of debenture stock of record Nov. 16 will be offered rights to subscribe to one new share for each seven shares held, at $100 a share. Payment must be made by Dec. 10. Employés of the company may make subscriptions about Dec. 1.

The Tribune Radio Book Has Been Brought Up to Date

SINCE the last printing of The Chicago Tribune Radio Book several new broadcast stations have been licensed, several others have signed off and many have been assigned new wavelengths, etc. This supplement (intended to replace the station lists from page 42 to page 59) includes all ... station data ... the De
Chicago Tribune Radio Book

The Tribune's new radio map is 15 cents. (17 cents by mail.)

Radio is still new. Its terms are strange, its queer quirks of reception mystifying to the uninitiated.

The Tribune Radio Book has done much to lift the shroud of mystery. It tells you, briefly, the basic principle of crystal, neutrodyne, and super-heterodyne sets. It analyzes all the ordinary difficulties of reception, and explains how they can be avoided. It logs all broadcasting stations in the United States alphabetically by call letter, by state and by wave length, including all changes and additions to October 1, 1925. It gives you the information you need to get the best results from your receiving set. The price of 10c merely covers the cost of printing and binding. (13 cents by mail.)

On sale at The Tribune Public Service Bureau, 11 South Dearborn Street or in the lobby of the Tribune Tower.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Trading in the local unlisted securities market continued on a broad scale last week, with price movements generally higher.

Transactions were again made in Elgin National Watch between 96 and 98. Both Creamery Package full voting and common were in demand, the former at 32½ and the latter at 32, with practically no stock appearing in the market. After selling up to 35¾, Butler Bros. reacted fractionally to closing sales around 34½. The bid price of Wahl preferred improved 3 points to 45 without attracting sellers. Interstate Iron and Steel preferred and common maintained their previous gain at 103 and 53 bid, respectively. McCord Manufacturing common was actively traded between 12¼@13¼, while the preferred was one point higher at 85@86. Albert Pick preferred developed strength in the late trading, advancing 3 points to 98 bid, 100 asked. Palmolive was slightly higher, with transactions between 100@101. Kellogg company relinquished a portion of its previous gain, changing hands at 101@103.

Beatrice Creamery was stronger. Bids of 68 were freely made with no stock changing hands. Strength was likewise registered in By-Products Coke common, stock selling at 76½ with 75½ being bid at the close of the week. Some trading in Western Grocer common was reported around 74@75. The Creamery Package issues were all stronger, bids of 32½ being freely made with full voting offered for sale at 35 and nonvoting a point cheaper, both in the bid and ask. The preferred stock continued in demand at 99½, with none offered. Gossard preferred was in good demand at par, with few sales being reported as high as 102. Chicago Mill and Lumber continued wanted at 102, with no definite offerings being made.

Bank shares again moved into higher ground. Continental and Commercial National made a new high in selling at 405. First National was again traded between 558@562. Central Trust Company of Illinois reflected an improvement of about 5 points in selling at 270. After advancing an additional 5 points to sales at 215, Chicago Trust was in demand at this price, with limited offerings at 220. Bids of 195 for Standard Trust and Savings failed to attract sellers. Union Trust was 4 points higher at 357 bid, while the cheapest offerings were at 365. Although Central Manufacturing District improved 10 points to 400 bid, 410 asked, there were no reported transactions. State Bank of Chicago was again in demand at 580. Illinois Merchants was actively traded between 484@486. There were several trades at 168 in National Bank of Commerce.

Holland-St. Louis was forced down to sales at 4½ and Utah-Idaho Sugar was offered at 2¼, with sales reported at 2⅛. Columbia Sugar was offered for sale at 6¾, with few shares changing hands at 6⅝. Godchaux Sugar preferred was offered down to sales around 43, the market closing 42@44.

SAFETY
Guaranteed by Independent Insurance Companies

The insurance guarantee on Bristol Bonds is definite proof that these bonds represent a conservative and safe investment for your funds.

Seventeen experts approve every Bristol Bond issue before it is offered to you. Bankers, lawyers, real estate authorities and insurance experts join hands in making investigations to remove the last element of risk.

Then, as an added safeguard, a large reliable insurance company contracts to guarantee the payment of principal and interest, if you wish it.

Bristol originated this final form of safeguard on Chicago Real Estate Bonds—a safeguard which positively eliminates all investment risk and worry.

Regardless of your opinions about investments, get the facts about Bristol Insured Bonds. The coupon is for your convenience.

There is no Substitute for Safety

BRISTOL Insured BONDS

The insurance company guarantee stamp on a Bristol Insured Bond indicates that the surety company has rigidly investigated every detail of the bond issue—has applied every known test of safety—and has done it far more thoroughly and carefully than could any individual investor. ¶ The guarantee on Bristol Bonds is optional. When unguaranteed, Bristol Bonds yield 6½% and 7%. When guaranteed the yield is 6% and 6½%. The ½% difference is the premium paid to the insurance company. In either case you receive identically the same bond carefully selected and approved by the insurance company and protected by the same stringent Bristol safeguards.

7,000	August 1, 1929	8,000	August 1, 1932	166,000	August 1, 1935

Price: Par and Accrued Interest to Net the Investor 6½%

Security: A direct closed first mortgage on land in fee and the three-story bank, store and office building, practically completed. The land fronts 80 feet on Lawrence Avenue and 125 feet on Kenneth Avenue, near the intersection of Elston Avenue.

Building: Covers the entire lot. High class construction, the bank space being fireproof. The bank, two stories high, covers two-thirds of the first floor area. The remaining space comprises two standard stores, six offices, a lodge hall and fifteen apartments.

Location: Lawrence and Elston Avenues are both important thoroughfares and their intersection affords a strategic location for a bank, business and apartment block. The district is growing rapidly. Business property is occupied by retail businesses of the better type, in need of a strong local financial institution. A steady increase of population and the substantial nature of the residential and business properties assure a steady growth of values.

Valuation: The value of this property, land and building, is appraised at $365,000.

Income: The banking quarters are leased to the Mayfair State Bank for fifteen years at a rental ample to pay the interest charges on this entire bond issue. For the three stores the owners already have nineteen applications. Renting conditions for the offices and apartments are satisfactory. We estimate the annual income at $45,000—over three times the interest.

Mortgagor: The Mayfair State Securities Corporation. The officers are men of means, long and successfully identified with the banking business.

Adversely influenced by prospects of a seasonal increase in hog receipts in the near future, market for swine receded mostly 10@15c further in fairly active week-end trading. Eastern support was lacking. Underweights, as a consequence, slumped 25@50c, recording the first drastic break since the upward swing of prices commenced ten days ago.

Prevailing hog quotations are still 50@55c above the low time the preceding week and steady to 25c higher than a week ago. Selected 140@150 lb averages topped at $11.75, against $12.00 Friday, with best 210 lb. butchers at $11.70 and 250 pounders at $11.60. General average price lowered to $11.25. Shipments from Chicago last week at 55,900 stand largest in seven months.

Hog Receipts Larger.

Hog receipts last week at 150,700 were largest since February, but 23,600 smaller than a year ago and 66,900 below two years ago. The estimated average weight dropped to 241 lbs, the lightest in nearly four months, but 11 lbs above the five year average. General average price moved up 35c at $11.10, being $1.80 above a year ago and $4.05 higher than two years ago.

With the cattle market relieved of a burdensome accumulation of in between grades as supplies decreased after Monday, prices on all but top steers reacted. Traders were more optimistic late in the week. Closing prices were unevenly steady to 50c lower than a week ago, cheaper grades depreciating the least. The week's extreme top, due to a seasonal readjustment, dropped to $14.25, the lowest weekly top since second week in July. Average price lowered to $10.45, lowest since middle of June. Highly finished heavy beeves selling at top quotations are too few to be any criterion of the general market. Total receipts at 71,000 were smallest in over a month. Butcher stock closed steady to 25c lower. Calves slumped $1.00@1.50.

Sheep Receipts Small.

Sheep receipts last week totaled 69,700, the second smallest in over four months. Prices rebounded after a dip of 10@15c early in the week and closed mostly on par with a week ago. Aged sheep held firm throughout the week, with closing sales strong to slightly higher, the advance mostly on medium and weighty mutton stock. Yearlings closed steady to 25c lower. Feeders were off 50@75c; top fat lambs, $15.50; and feeders, $15.75; top yearlings, $12.50; aged wethers, $9.00; and ewes, $8.00.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 29,000 cattle, 60,000 hogs, and 24,000 sheep, against 30,970 cattle, 51,561 hogs, and 27,010 sheep a week ago and 23,142 cattle, 76,608 hogs, and 26,523 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 70,000 cattle, 185,000 hogs, and 73,000 sheep, against 82,593 cattle, 284,618 hogs, and 83,910 sheep a year ago.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales in all positions yesterday were esitmated at 200,000 bu, largely Manitobas. Some wheat afloat is being sold according to the buyer for a European government, and Pacific coast afloat cargoes and unloaded are still offered rather freely. Some barley bought back from Germany and there was further talk of financial difficulties.

Chicago handlers sold 35,000 bu wheat, 196,000 bu corn, 25,000 bu oats, 5,000 bu rye and 7,000 bu barley to the domestic trade.

Demand for cash wheat here was fair with No. 1 hard sold at 8c over December, and No. 3 hard at 6c over, the basis being unchanged. Offerings at Kansas City were somewhat larger and the basis a share easier.

No. 2 yellow corn on spot here sold at 10½c over December on destination weights, while the general market was 9½@10c over, the basis on old corn being unchanged as compared with Friday. No. 2 mixed was 9¼@9½c over. New No. 3 mixed sold at 81c as did white while yellow sold at 81½c. Quotations for No. 5 and No. 6 grades in Chicago and Peoria in the following table are for new grain. Outside markets were unchanged to 2c higher.

Offerings of oats were not large and the basis easier with No. 2 white 1½@1¾c over, and No. 3 white 1@1¼c over December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 13 cars; corn, 106 cars; oats, 43 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 11 cars.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

It is said that the short interest in wheat, in both December and May has been materially increased the last few days by large eastern traders who switch from the long to the short side. They are apparently trading on bearish conditions which are expected to dominate the trade a little later. On the other hand, a number of local operators are outspokenly bullish on December wheat in Chicago because of the light stocks and short interests. They predict higher prices Monday.

Expectations are that Monday's statistics will be bullish. Chicago stocks are estimated to decrease around 300,000 bu, leaving supplies of spring wheat here about 200,000 bu. Possibly there will be a small decrease in the visible supply. World's shipments are estimated at about 9,500,000 bu, against 21,008,000 bu last year.

Winnipeg reported that exporters were good buyers of November wheat there which was a factor in that market. The movement in Canada continues heavy with 3,415,000 bu marketed in the country on Friday, against 1,842,000 bu last year. Cars loaded in the interior were 2,073.

The government crop report will be issued Monday at 2 p. m., Chicago time. It is expected to show more than 3,100,000,000 bu. Private estimates range from 2,900,000,000 to 3,039,000,000 bu. Last month's was 2,918,000,000 bu, and last year's final was 2,437,000,000 bu. The estimate will be made on husking returns. A report on farm reserves Nov. 1 will also be given. Estimates are for around 64,000,000 bu against 101,000,000 bu last year.

Sam Mincer is back from a trip abroad. He spent his time largely in Germany, France and on the border of Russia. He says that reports received from Russia were that there was one of the largest crops of grain raised in years, but that transportation facilities were against a large export movement. In Germany everybody is working, he says. He had no opinion on grains as he had not been in close touch with conditions.

There is said to be too much rain in the corn belt sections to permit a free movement of new grain to market. There were practically 3 weeks of rain in October and St. Louis reports that it has rained for 6 weeks with over 2 inches in the country Friday night. This makes the fields too wet for farmers to husk or haul corn. Bulls predict that values will work higher, claiming that the market has been oversold.

A Fort Worth, Texas, cash grain handler says Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas have a minimum corn crop, with Kansas no more than 80,000,000 bu. There will be no corn shipped out from the southwest commercially. There has been wet weather for the last thirty days and arrivals are unsatisfactory. He predicts a decreased acreage in wheat in the southwest and says that in several southwestern states, planters are turning their attention to other crops.

Flour trade in the southwest slightly improved, according to Kansas City reports. In the northwest trade is only fair and millers believe that there will be no marked activity unless there is a decided upward movement in wheat prices.

Cotton Traders Even Up for Bureau's Crop Report

Cotton traders were industriously evening up commitments for the government's crop reports due in Chicago on Monday at 10 o'clock. This made business light and kept price changes within a narrow range. Liverpol was higher than expected and weather over the belt was unfavorable with more rain.

Closing trades in Chicago were at gains of 4 points to losses of 3 points. In New York December closed 22 points lower, and other futures off 2 to 10 points, while New Orleans lost 1 to 9 points, December leading. Spots in the latter market lost 5 points, being 19.75c, and New York was off 20 points to 20.80c.

Estimates on the crop range from 14,500,000 to 15,500,000 bales. The government's last estimate was 15,226,000 bales, and the final last year was 13,628,000 bales. Traders believe that the government report on Monday will be the determining factor in the market. Prices in leading markets follow:

JULY WHEAT CLOSES HIGHER; OTHERS LOWER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Heavy eastern and local selling of wheat futures carried prices off 1½@1¾c in the early trading, with some stop loss orders uncovered on the way down, but aggressive buying came toward the last and the finish was ¼@⅝c lower on the old crop deliveries and ¼c higher on July. Corn showed independent strength, due to wet weather, and gained ½@⅞c. Oats were ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher and rye unchanged to ¼c higher.

Wheat Prices Erratic.

At no time during the last week were wheat prices as low as the finish of the previous week, and while the action of the market was extremely erratic net gains for the week were 2⅜@2⅞c, with July leading. Corn was 1⅝@2⅜c higher with December leading, oats up ⅛@¼c, and rye ⅜@1c. Lard gained 22½@30c, and bellies 20c for the week with ribs 10c lower.

Part of the eastern selling of December was credited by the pit element with increasing a short line, and many of the locals who had been bearish took advantage of the decline to cover. A slight easing in the basis for cash wheat was reported at Kansas City, but prices here were unchanged as compared with the future.

Receipts Are Increased.

The three southwestern markets had 240 cars against 165 cars last year, the increased movement tending to create bearish sentiment. However, there is a feeling in some quarters that wheat, corn and other agricultural products are selling too low as compared with other commodities, and that grain prices are about due to start upward.

Export demand at the seaboard remains slow, with sales of 200,000 bu, mainly Manitobas. Showers were reported in Argentine and the forecast was for fine and warm in all sections except Buenos Ayres, where rain is expected. Buenos Ayres closed ⅛c lower. Liverpool showed more strength than expected and closed unchanged to ⅛d lower. India was credited with having bought Manitoba wheat on Friday.

Wet Weather Helps Corn.

Wet and cold weather over the west with heavy snowstorms in parts of Kansas and Nebraska led to short covering in corn and also fair commission house buying and the market showed stubborn resistance to bear pressure thorughout the day with the close about the top. Arrivals of new grain here are showing heavier moisture content, due to the persistent wet weather. Country offerings to arrive were small. Old corn is scarce and No. 2 yellow sold at 10½c over December on outside weights. Oats and rye were dull, and held within narrow limits.

Provision Trade Slow.

Trade in provisions was slow and the market easier due more to lack of support than anything else. Scattered commission houses sold lard with the finish unchanged to 10c lower. Ribs and bellies were unchanged. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the winter season to date is 98,000 against 282,000 last year. Prices follow:

ARE COPPERS STILL A BUY?

For the past year we have been advising accumulation of coppers, particularly the South American issues —Kennecott and Cerro de Pasco.

Although the industrial market as a whole is far above its tops of previous bull movements, and although these South American issues are at new highs, copper stocks on the average are still way below their previous peaks.

BUY OR NOT?

Domestic consumption is the largest in years. Foreign consumption continues disappointing. The metal is improving slowly. Does this situation warrant extensive purchases of domestic coppers right now? Or, has the advance in the low cost producers discounted the current improvements?

The copper situation and outlook are discussed, specific recommendations made, in a new analysis of coppers just prepared for our clients. A few copies are available—FREE.

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Wearied by the intense activity of the last week, which had carried prices to new peak levels and smashed records for the volume and breadth of trading, the stock market today succumbed to the pressure of week-end realizing sales.

Prices turned decidedly reactionary, but not until after United States Steel and a score of other leading industrials had spurted forward again to new high planes. The reaction was considered a natural development, although the market still retained traces of its earlier buoyancy. As representative shares gave way before the onslaught of selling, new specialties were ushered into buying favor with a few net gains of one to four points standing out in contrast to the larger list of losses for the day.

Steel Rises, Then Falls.

With U. S. Steel common selling at the highest level in its history, a flood of rumors regarding the possibility of a distribution of the company's huge undivided surplus and attracted another flood of buying orders soon after the opening. After running up more than a point to a new peak at 139¼, however, the stock finally crumbled to 137½, closing at 137⅞ with a fractional loss for the day.

Encouraged by the early buoyancy of the premier industrial issue, representatives of other industrial groups followed its leadership to new high ground. Among them were General Motors at 10⅝, Allied Chemical at 114¾, U. S. Rubber at 89¼, Texas Gulf Sulphur at 121½ and Schulte Cigar stores at 125¼.

Many of these issues, by virtue of their exceptional strength, were singled out as targets in the latter selling attack, which cancelled most of the early advances and drove the majority of stocks below last night's closing figures. Recessions were most marked, however, in the high priced specialties, with Dupont, General Electric, Brown Shoe and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe sagging 7 to 11 points below the day's maximum prices. Outside buying was an important factor in stiffening the market's resistance and in the final minutes of trading brisk rallies were again under way. Allied Chemical showed sustained strength, closing with a gain of more than four points, and some of the railroad shares which had escaped the wave of profit taking and bear selling were given additional support.

French Bonds Are Firmer.

The most significant development in the bond market was the movement of French government obligations, which were strengthened by indications that support was forthcoming for the franc, probably with the aid of new American credits. Other foreign bonds marked time.

The small turnover in domestic corporation liens held price fluctuations within narrow limits. Secondary rails, such as Erie prior lien 4s, West Shore 4s and Wisconsin Central 4s, seemed to be the favorites of traders. Seaboard and St. Paul issues worked lower. Copper, oil and independent steel obligations were firm, with Skelly Oil 6½s and Otis Steel 7½s showing the most conspicuous activity.

Deficit in New York Reserves.

Despite the heavy trading in stocks this week, the loans, discounts and investments of the New York clearing house bank decreased $24,662,000, today's statement showed. Net demand deposits decreased $59,785,000, and time deposits $1,494,000. In contrast with last week's surplus reserve of $32,267,200 the statement disclosed a deficit of $7,943,-200.

Indications that the French government was considering new plans to support its currency brought about a further recovery in the franc to above 4.05 cents. The Italian lira was strengthened by reports that an accord on a debt settlement was near, while sterling exchange held firm around $4.84⅝.

ANN ARBOR LINE TO BE BOUGHT BY WABASH R. R.

Washington, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Wabash railroad today was given permission by the interstate commerce commission to purchase control of the Ann Arbor railroad, which operates a line between Toledo, O., and Frankfort, Mich.

The Wabash will acquire 10,929 shares of preferred stock of the Ann Arbor and 11,112 shares of common stock from Jules S. Bache for $67.50 a share on preferred and $40 a share on common. This stock, together with Ann Arbor stock already held by the Wabash, will constitute a controlling stock interest, the commission said, while in addition the Wabash has obtained an option to purchase additional Ann Arbor stock at any time during the next two years.

The purchase of the San Antonio, Uvalde and Gulf railroad by the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico railroad also was approved by the commission.

Fewer Hogs for Market; Held Back to Feed Corn

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Winter marketings of hogs this year will probably be smaller than was indicated by the June, 1925, pig survey, the department of agriculture announces in an analysis of the situation.

This conclusion is on the basis that the large supply and lower prices of corn will delay marketings until next spring, when the run may be somewhat larger than was indicated in the June survey. Last year, a short corn crop and high prices stimulated the movement to market during the winter months.

If more sows are kept for farrowing next spring than were kept last spring the winter marketings this year will be still further reduced, the department said.

The June, 1925, pig survey indicated the 1925 spring pig crop in the corn belt more than 10 per cent smaller than that of 1924, or a decrease of around 3,500,-000 head. This crop moves during the seven months, November to May, about 75 per cent of the total for the seven months on the average being marketed during the four winter months, November to February.

WALL STREET NOTES

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Steel operations in the Youngstown district next week will average more than ninety per cent, for the first time this year, approaching what steel men in the valley term "capacity schedules." Republic Iron and Steel is near ninety per cent production. Iron and steel scrap prices have advanced one dollar a ton in the Birmingham district, heavy melting being quoted at $14 a ton.

The Southern Gas and Power corporation is completing negotiations for the purchase of several important gas properties in New York state, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. It now controls gas companies in Georgia, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, and Alabama. New financing will be done in connection with these purchases. It is expected additional issues of class A stock and convertible notes will be offered in New York within the next few weeks.

Progress made by various joint stock land banks in the third quarter this year is reflected in a report by C. G. Taylor & Co., bankers for this type of securities, showing total resources on Sept. 30 amounting to $580,809,511, an increase of $26,695,000 over the preceding quarter. Capital stock outstanding was $40,804,000, an increase of $2,422,660. The statistics indicated average net annual earnings of eight per cent in addition to dividends declared or paid.

The federal reserve board's weekly statement of condition of 723 reporting member banks in leading cities, as of Oct. 28, shows an increase of $23,000,000 in loans and discounts and reductions of $17,000,000 in investments and $19,000,000 in borrowings from the federal reserve banks. Loans on corporate stocks and bonds went up $37,-000,000. Loans and discounts are now $1,137,000,000 larger than a year ago. The increase in those secured by stocks and bonds other than United States obligations amounts to $934,000,000.

Increased production of steel ingots in October is reported by the American Iron and Steel institute, the total of 3,892,946 gross tons being approximately 400,000 tons more than in September and compared with 3,125,-418 in October of 1924. Only twice this year, January and March, was October's output exceeded, production in each of those two months having been more than 4,198,000 tons. Production for the ten months of 1925 was 36,303,634 tons, against 30,120,757 in the same period of 1924.

Copper consumption in the United States in the third quarter is estimated at 194,000 short tons by the American bureau of metal statistics against 198,300 in the second quarter and 185,350 the first quarter.

Bank clearings in the twelve federal reserve districts of the United States in October totalled $47,154,324,905, a compilation by the Financial and Commercial Chronicle shows, compared with $40,617,911,826 in the same month last year, an increase of 16.1 per cent. New York City gained 11.4 per cent.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia railway has called a special meeting of stockholders for Jan. 11 to approve a change in the common stock of the company from $305,000 of a par value of $100 each to 610,000 shares of a par value of $50 each.

Exports of all automotive products from the United States and Canada in September were valued at $30,245,434, compared with $31,243,310 in August, according to the department of commerce.

Acquisition of the Ventura Consolidated Oil company by the California Petroleum company is certain, as 570,000 out of 592,-000 Ventura shares have been exchanged for those of California Petroleum on a six for five basis.

Fidelity Investment Association's Restrictions Against Selling Contracts Removed by Supreme Court's Decision.

The Supreme Court of Illinois has reversed the judgments of the Appellate and Circuit Courts against the Fidelity Investment Association, of Wheeling, West Virginia, which had sustained the secretary of state's order prohibiting the association from selling its special income contracts in Illinois, and has set aside the order of the secretary of state.

Early in the year we published a resume of the findings of the Circuit Court which held that these contracts were void and could not legally be sold or enforced in Illinois.

For the benefit of the holders of these contracts—many of whom have written us for advice—as well as in justice to the association, we wish to give a brief resume of the findings of the Supreme Court [to which an appeal was taken by the association] in reversing the judgment of the lower courts.

In delivering the opinion of the court, Judge C. H. Dunn held that there was nothing indefinite or ambiguous in the language of the contract itself—the only complications in connection with the contract arising out of provisions made to meet conditions growing out of failure of the purchaser to perform his agreements, and these provisions have for their object the keeping of the contract in force so that there shall be no forfeiture for non-compliance of the contractholder because of temporary inability or failure to perform his agreement in full.

"The contract itself is plain and simple in dealing with all conditions and questions which may be anticipated to arise and on its face bears no evidence of fraud or tendency to fraud and no evidence appears in the record of any such fraud or tendency to fraud on the part of the association."

In replying to that portion of the findings of the lower court which alleged that the agencies in control so manipulate the business that the investor who makes payment for ten and one-half years receives only approximately 4 per cent simple interest, the court held that there was no evidence in the record of any unfair manipulation of the business of the association and that there is no rule of law or principle of public policy which gives the secretary of state discretion to determine the amount of return which securities should promise to the investor before they can be sold in the state of Illinois. He also stated that the contractholder's proportion of the surplus to be distributed on his contract had been ignored.

"Neither the wisdom of entering into the contract by any person or class of persons nor the amount to be returned to the investor above the amount invested is for the secretary of state or the court to determine, as long as the contract is free from fraud," the court stated.

In dealing with the objection that the contract provides for no withdrawal value until the first year's payments have been made in full and that the amount of such withdrawal at the end of the first year is less than half the amount of the first year's payments, the court stated that:

"The expense of procuring the contract is incurred at the beginning. It is not unreasonable, at least it is not fraudulent, if it is agreed that, if the contractholder desires to withdraw from the contract at the end of the first year, a part or all of the expense to the association of obtaining his contract, which is cancelled, should be charged against him in settlement."

It is also held that the association is not engaged in the banking business.

"The only loans which the contract contemplates and which the association makes are advancements made from the reserve to contractholders and these are not banking loans. The contract taken in regard to such advancements is not a promissory note and does not bind the contractholder to the repayment of the amount advanced."

The court stated that the association received no deposits. It said:

"A deposit of money in a bank creates the relation of debtor and creditor. The payments by the contractholders to the association create no such relation...The money is not received by the association for safe keeping to be returned to the payer or to be transmitted to any other place or used for any designated purpose. It is paid in fulfillment of the obligation of the contract and when it is received it becomes the money of the association. The moneys collected are, in fact, transmitted to Wheeling, West Virginia, and are there invested, but it is not for the purpose of such transmission that they are made. They become part of the general funds of the association to be used by it in its business, not to be returned to the person making the payment and not subject to his order or direction."

The action of the Supreme Court in reversing the lower courts removes from the association the injunction against selling its contracts in Illinois and makes the contracts which it legally has sold in this state legal and binding upon the contractholders.

In Actual Figures

This book has been published in the belief that most thinking investors are guided by actual figures rather than general statements. It will appeal only to investors demanding concrete evidence of a successful record for investment.

In this book are set forth the names of hundreds of first mortgage bond issues, their exact street addresses, total amount of each issue, appraised valuations of the properties, amount of the bonds already paid off, and the balance of the issues now running to maturity. You can see for yourself the unusually large percentage of issues which have already been paid in full or redeemed at substantial premiums.

There is no obligation on your part in sending for this book—it will be sent to you promptly and without cost.

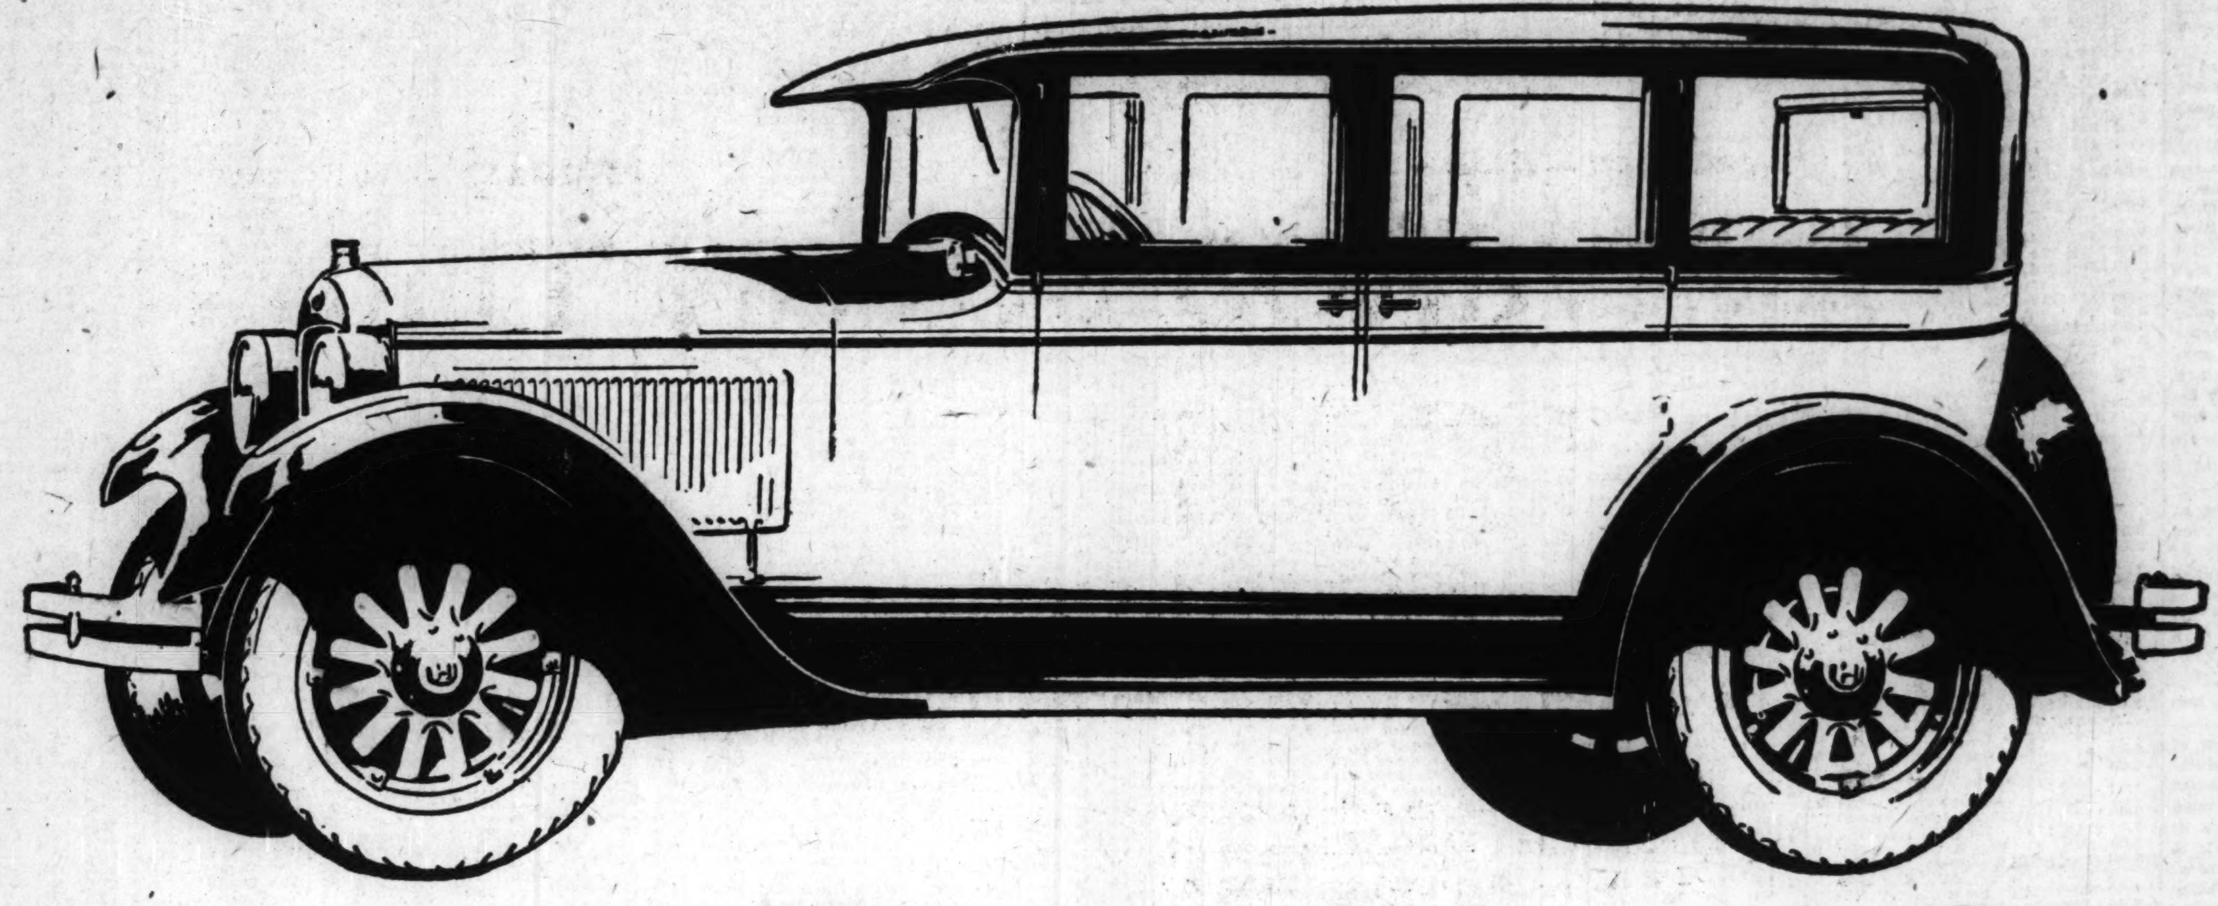
WHAT'S WHAT In Fine Motoring



The way to find out is by driving the Hupmobile Eight yourself

There are just no two ways about it.

If you haven't yet measured the wonderful Hupmobile Eight performance by your own driving, you simply haven't found out what's what in superbly fine motoring.

And if you buy any car without first driving the Hupmobile Eight yourself, we are tempted to say that you will deserve whatever you get.

You can compare Hupmobile Eight performance with any you choose—and the higher you set the mark, the better we will like it.

The car is here for you to drive and steer and brake and park; for you to speed to the top notch and still be comfortable, and feel safe and sure of yourself and the car.

You will find so many things new in fine motoring that we can almost hear you say:—

"This is the kind of performance I've been wanting all these years."

It is impressive that every woman who drives the Hupmobile Eight finds it the sweetest driving car of all she has ever known, and immediately says so.

MARKHAM PUTS OFFICIAL K. O. ON RANDOLPH

Says Terminal Will Be at Roosevelt.

Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central, yesterday answered the arguments made in this department last week for a new terminal at Randolph street instead of Roosevelt road, with an explanation which killed two birds with one stone. He showed logically and apparently conclusively why Randolph wouldn't be used and also as definitely demonstrated why all the roads using the Grand Central, La Salle and Polk street terminals can't very well do anything but share the Roosevelt road terminal with the I. C.—unless they want to spend several hundred millions for electrification.

CHARLES H. MARKHAM.

"The city ordinance calls for our terminal at Roosevelt road," said Mr. Markham, "and if we tried to change to Randolph street it would take two or more years to gain municipal authority to do this, if we could get it at all, which I doubt.

"Unexcelled Site."

"We have an unexcelled terminal site at Michigan and Roosevelt, with a strategic position which enables prospective passengers to reach the station from all parts of the city. Roosevelt road leads directly to the west side and connects with the west side boulevard system.

"With Grant park in front of our new terminal, we'll have eventually two new boulevards across the river connecting with the north side in addition to Michigan avenue. No city in the world has such a site as we'll have at Roosevelt road when our new terminal is built in line with the Field museum and grouped with it and the new Shedd aquarium.

World's Largest Coach Yard.

"In point of accessibility I know of no better location in Chicago than Roosevelt road. It surpasses Randolph street in every way.

"From an operating point of view everything favors Roosevelt road. We have the largest coach yard in the world close to a big terminal, extending from Roosevelt to 31st, with an average width of 640 feet. This is large enough to care for the I. C. and all the tenant roads who might join us.

All New Terminals Face Electrification

"The city of Chicago isn't going to allow any new railroad terminal to be built unless the roads using it are electrified. That means several hundred millions of dollars would have to be spent by the lines entering the contemplated three terminals to replace the present La Salle, Grand Central and Polk street stations.

"Those roads can enter the new Illinois Central by merely signifying their willingness to do so. They'll have no negotiations to enter into with the city; no costly electrification programs forced upon them; they'll merely pay a rental and use a terminal which will be probably the finest in the world and under the same conditions, so far as motive power goes, as they are under now.

Two Problems Settled.

"As to the other south side roads entering a Randolph street terminal as suggested in THE TRIBUNE'S real estate section last Sunday, the question of electrification settles that, just as the question of electrification is going to force the same roads to give up their own terminal ideas and move over to the I. C. terminal, we believe.

"You see if Randolph street were used as a terminal these tenant roads would have to use electricity for motive power north of Roosevelt road after a certain date. This already applies to the Illinois Central for all of its service, both freight and passenger, north of Roosevelt road. I don't believe the other roads would accept this burden; they'd rather use steam and stop at Roosevelt road."

Through Trains to Use Steam.

Although rather generally understood that through trains on the Illinois Central right of way must be electrified within five or ten years, this is incorrect.

"When our suburban service is completely electrified some time next year," Mr. Markham explained, "the ordinance calls for electrification of our freight service, to be completed a few years later.

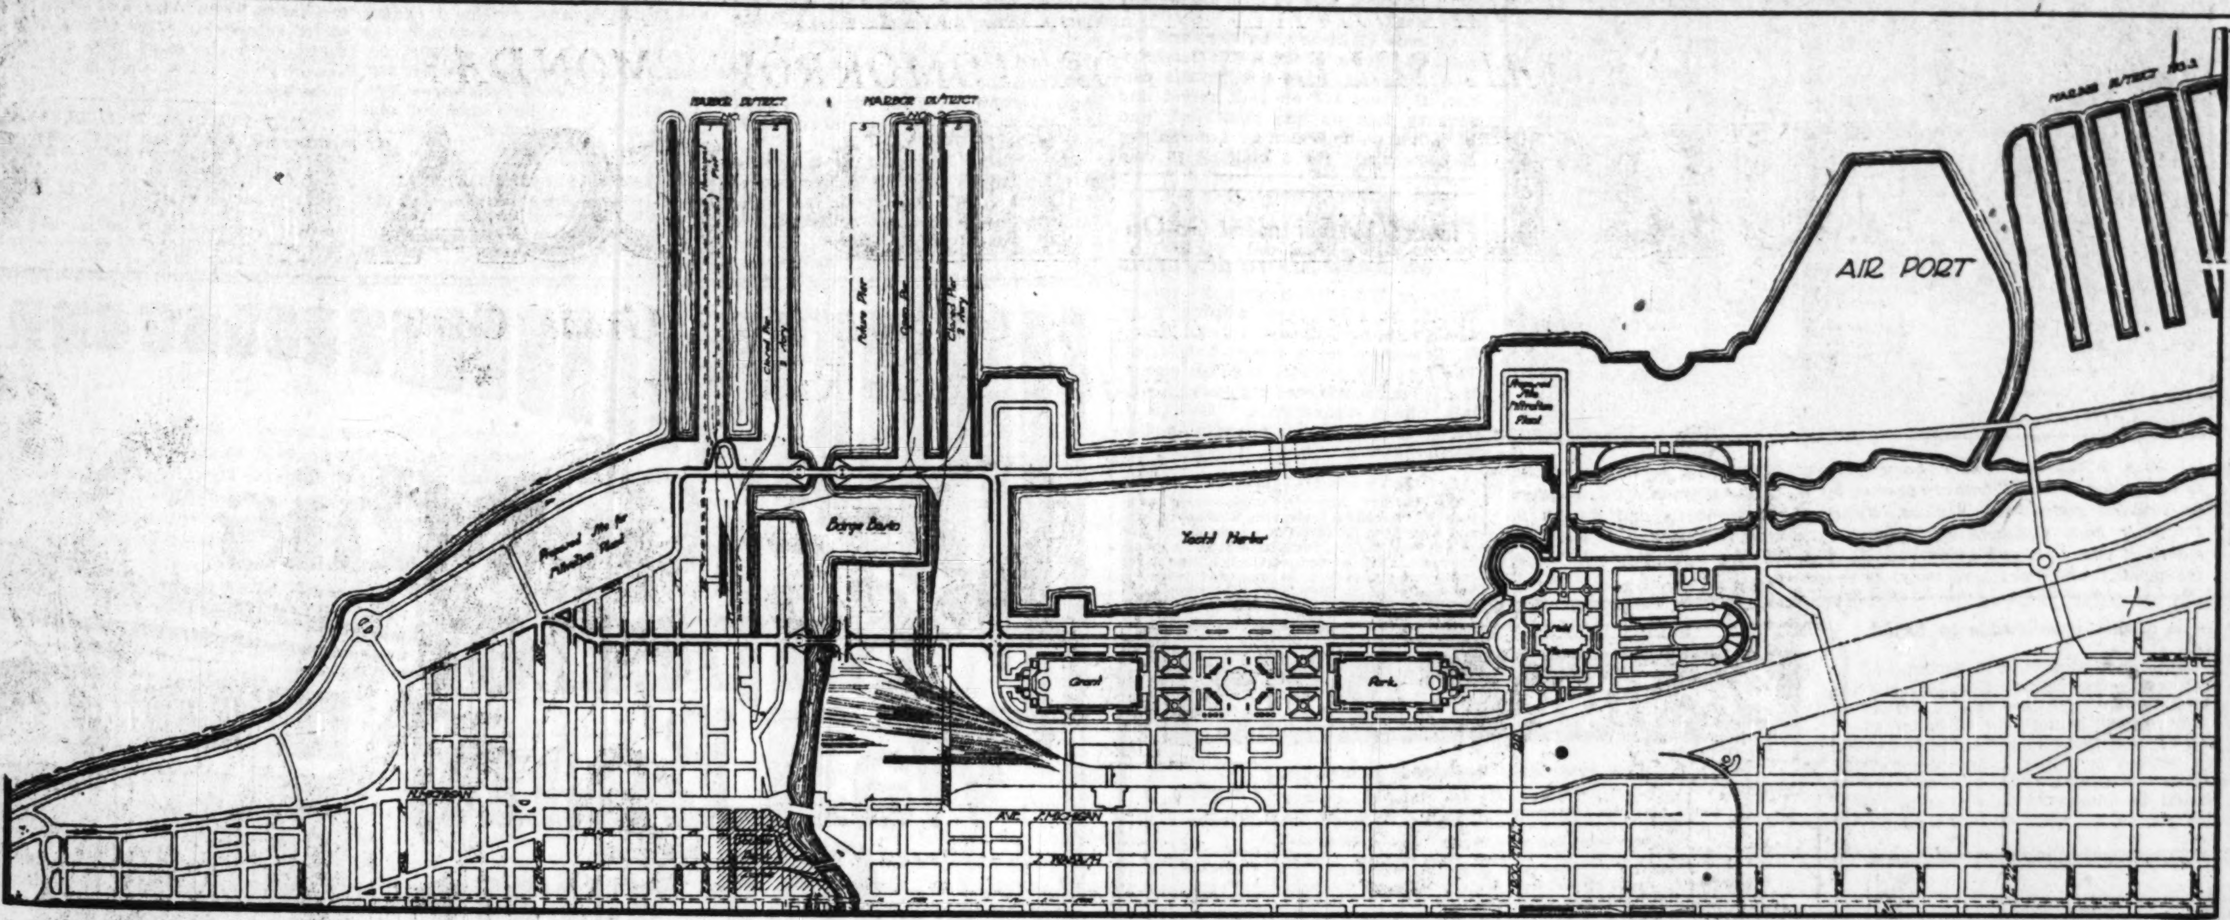
"The ordinance specifies that we need not electrify our through train service until 80 per cent of the foreign roads using our right of way are electrified—and then the city carefully avoids forcing electrification on them.

Wouldn't Have to Electrify.

"This means, of course, that trains of foreign roads could use our right of way without electrification, north as far as Roosevelt road. No through trains, however, could run north of Roosevelt road without using electricity as a motive power and neither the Illinois Central nor its prospective tenant roads would want to go to that expense.

"That points to Roosevelt road as the logical place for our terminal, rather than Randolph street."

LATEST STUDY FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF CHICAGO'S LAKE FRONT



Above is a new study of Chicago's lake shore development between Lincoln park and 25th street, just made by the North Central association, which contains several novel suggestions, and which is published for the first time.

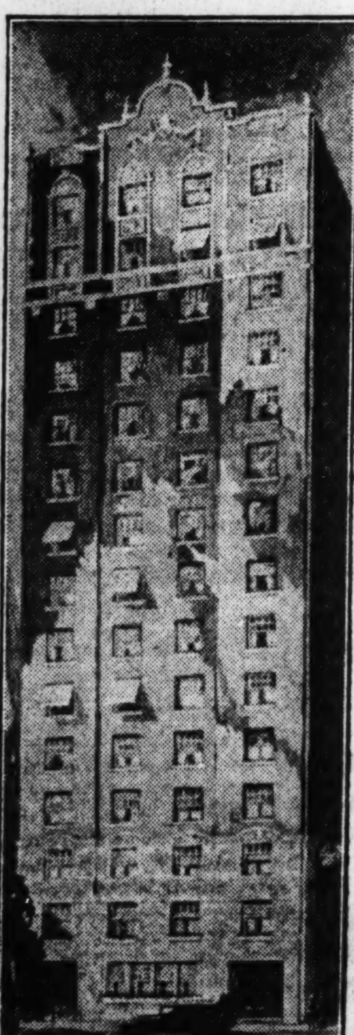
In a letter to Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, the association urges the importance of building the new boulevard bridge at the mouth of the river before construction is begun on the more recently suggested bridge linking McClurg court with a drive leading directly to the Field museum.

The association suggests, however, that McClurg court be widened at once by taking fifty feet off the east side between Ohio and Huron streets, prepartory to the erection of the second link bridge across Grant park later on, so that property owners may have definite building lines for new projects. The American Furniture mart, for instance, is holding up its big annex till it knows how wide McClurg court is to be made.

The above study shows a proposed new outer drive from North avenue to the Municipal pier; also a brand new outer drive as the eastern line of the harbor in front of Grant park. This would allow motorists to drive from the north to the south sides over the bridge at the mouth of the river and on across the harbor boulevard without using either Michigan avenue or Grant park.

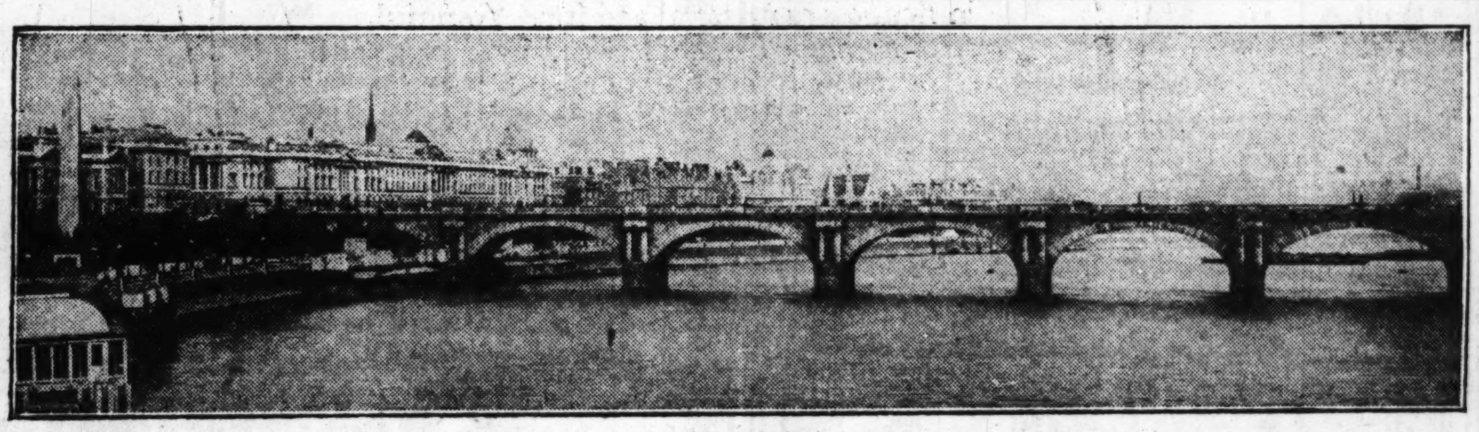
The study also shows several new piers as big as the present Municipal pier in the harbor districts provided for by ordinance.

Cass Street Hotel



Oldesfest & Williams designed the above 210 room Cass Street hotel, told about in this department recently, work on which will start in a few days. It'll be at 644 Cass, between Erie and Ontario, and will cost an estimated $800,000. H. L. Wenzel, who operates the Planters and other hotels, will manage it. Leight, Holzer & Co. have underwritten a $485,000 bond issue at 6½ per cent. It'll be ready for guests Nov. 1, 1926. Paul F. Gerding made the above rendering for the architects.

Chicago Architects Try to Save Waterloo Bridge, London



Chicago architects have protested to the London county council against the plan to wreck the famous old Waterloo bridge across the Thames at London. The above view is looking down the river from Victoria embankment. The dome of St. Paul's can be seen dimly above the south end of the bridge. "Cleopatra's Needle," an obelisk from Egypt, standing on the embankment, is seen at the other end of Waterloo. More is told about this on page 2 of this section.

WIDOW ZANDER TO HAVE SUITE IN 29 STORY WOMEN'S HOTEL

Don't shed any more tears or breathe any more sighs over the Widow Zander's dreary home life. We'll tell you something confidentially that even she may not know about yet—Sid Smith is arranging it so she can have one of the niftiest suites in a nifty twenty-nine story hotel exclusively for women to be erected in Streeterville.

HEAVEN EYES.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Sid is associated with Martin A. Howell, owner of the Chatelaine hotel, at 4911 Winthrop avenue, at present said to be Chicago's only women's hostelry, in the project. It calls for a $2,000,000 Gothic structure, designed by Roy F. France & Co., to be known as the Chatelaine Tower and is to stand on the south side of Chestnut street, 100 feet east of Seneca.

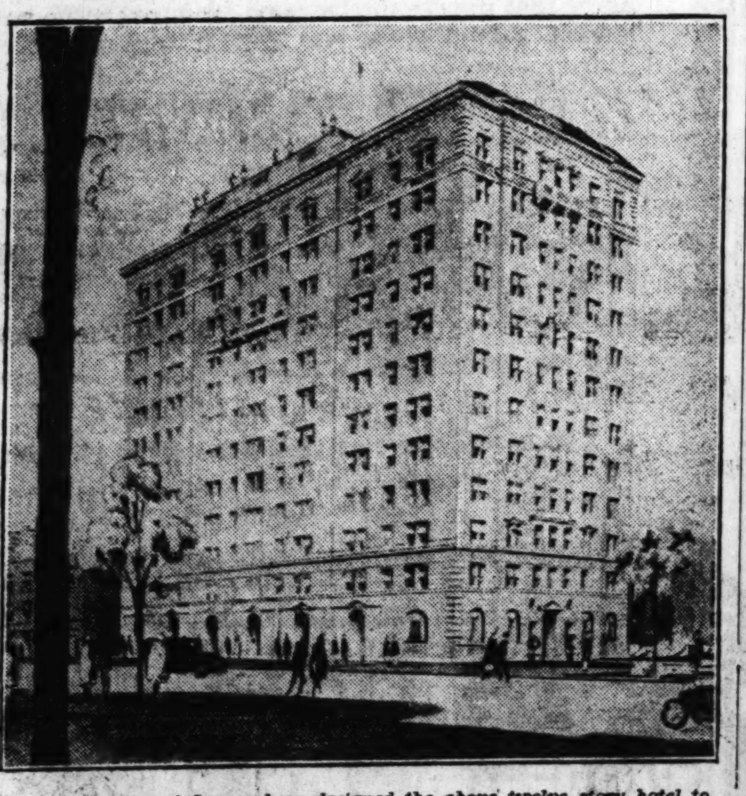
Work is to start in the spring on the Tower, which will have 418 rooms, all with bath. They're to rent at $16 a week for one or $19 for two, up to $25 for one and $28 for two.

With those prices it seems as though Mrs. Zander could go back to comfortable living, if Carlos would quit hounding her and Sid make her a special rate. While we're telling Sid how to run his strip we'll suggest he bring Uncle Bim to the Allerton, only a few blocks from the Chatelaine, have Carlos fall off The Tribune Tower, and then—wedding bells!

Chatelaine Tower, and is to stand on swimming tank in the basement, Turkish baths, a lobby, possibly a library, etc. Each one room suite will include a bedroom with wall bed, a small dressing room, and a bathroom.

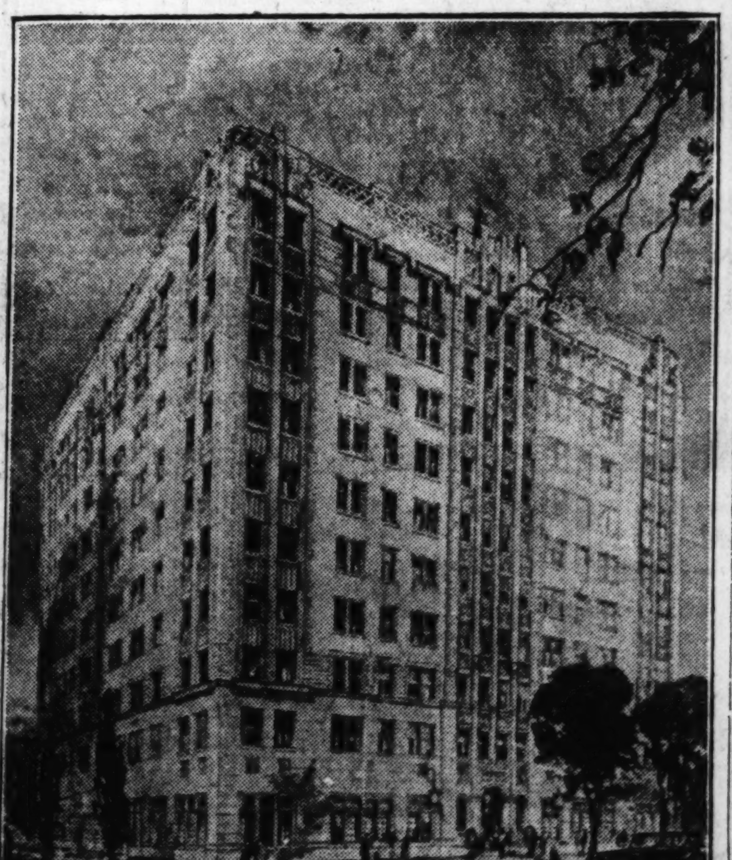
To the tip of the Tower will be 300 feet. On this will be a fifty-four foot flagpole. The Chatelaine will open Jan. 1, 1927. Frank E. Price of Detroit, Edward Berglund, W. L. Howell, and Miss Hastings, loop restaurateur, who will operate the Tower's café, also are interested in the project.

At 55th and Hyde Park Boulevard



Loewenberg & Loewenberg designed the above twelve story hotel to be erected at the northwest corner of Hyde Park boulevard and East 55th street by Charles F. Henry and Joseph H. Buttas at a total cost of $1,500,000. It will be of brick and Bedford stone on all four sides. More is told about this building in another column.

Fairfax Apartment Hotel



John A. Nyden designed the above 235 room hostelry now being erected at the southwest corner of Hyde Park boulevard and Dorchester avenue on a 150x100 site. It will be of Bedford stone with gray pressed brick and terra cotta trim. Further details are given elsewhere in this department. The above rendering was made for Mr. Nyden by Charles Morgan.

PLAN $1,000,000 BUILDING PROGRAM IN NEW OAK PARK SUB

Thelin & Thelin have bought a ten acre tract in Oak Park on each side of Oak Park avenue, between Division street and North avenue, from Charles Gillispie for a reported $84,000. They intend to subdivide and spend in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 in a building program which will include twenty-five or thirty residences.

BANK PRESIDENT PLANS BUILDING IN MORGAN PARK

Eugene E. Ford, president of the Kenwood National bank, 47th street and Grand boulevard, has bought the northeast corner of 111th street and Western avenue, 255x350, in Morgan Park.

He probably will improve with a store, office, and flat building, from plans by Leichenko & Esser. Tutules & Dignan were brokers.

Twenty-four Story Hotel Announced for Pearson St.

Streeterville's tall building bulletin of last night disclosed two more big projects almost ready to go ahead. Both are on Pearson street.

Plotke & Grosby, who purchased a site at 210-18 Pearson street on Thursday, announced their definite plans for a twenty-four story hotel, to be designed by Hussagh & Hill, with special reference to the new medical and law schools of Northwestern, a block to the south.

There'll be a gymnasium on the second floor, two squash courts and two handball courts, as well as a room for indoor golf. On the tenth floor will be a library and six study rooms. There'll be several private dining and clubrooms on the twenty-fourth for use of college fraternities. The main dining room will be on the same floor.

The two upper floors are set back from the building line and will be made into a two story lounge, with a terrace surrounding it where meals may be served out of doors.

Another tall one for the "Deestrick" was announced last night—a sixteen story building to be erected at the northeast corner of Pearson street and De Witt place.

Timothy A. Ryan, contractor, bought this site, 100x107, in September for an indicated $200,000, through Earle A. Shilton. Phillip M. Gordon, it is now announced, will be the owner of the proposed building, which is to be designed by Guske & Foster and will cost a reported $2,450,000. The apartments will have three, four, and five rooms. A ten room bungalow is planned for the roof.

PLAN $300,000 HOSTELRY FOR WINTHROP AVE.

John S. De Puy and Marcel E. Dey of the Sovereign hotel have bought the 50x150 at 6250 Winthrop avenue from Charles R. Stearns. Plans have been drawn by Quinn & Christiansen for a four story hotel to be erected for the Winthrop Beach Hotel corporation by the Central States Construction company, of which Mr. Dey is president and Mr. De Puy vice president.

The hotel will have eighty rooms, all furnished. Work will start the latter part of this month, with completion date set for April 30, 1926. It is claimed the total investment will be $300,000.

SELL 95 NORTH SHORE ACRES FOR $258,750

Ray Rice and A. R. Shekleton have sold for a reported $258,750 the following tracts near the new Skokie interurban line now building: To Oliver Salinger, thirty acres opposite the Dundee road station, at $4,500 an acre; Baird & Warner and Gilbert D. Johnson & Bro. were brokers; to Arthur Dunas, thirty-two acres west of the line in Highland Park, at $2,300 an acre; to the Chicago Tile and Trust company, twenty-three acres on Half Day road, three blocks from the Half Day road station, at $2,250 an acre.

ARCHITECTS MAY KID 'SHIRT FRONT' HABIT TO DEATH

The Architects' club of Chicago, of which Alfred Granger is acting president, announces a competition for cartoons on "Dickey" architecture. This refers to what THE TRIBUNE has called "shirt front" buildings—structures with elaborate fronts and other walls of ordinary brick.

ALFRED GRANGER.

"Our city can never become 'Chicago beautiful' unless we abandon the bad habit of building structures of which some of the exposed walls are unsightly," reads the announcement.

"Some bad habits can be cured by ridicule that cannot be cured by logic or sermons. The object of this competition is to help cure our bad architectural habit by ridicule."

Cartoons must be in colors and mailed to the Architects' club, 1801 Prairie avenue, before midnight, Nov. 21. The first prize will be $250; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $50, and fifth, $25. The prizes are contributed by the Chicago Face Brick association and will be awarded Dec. 3.

NIXON-ZELOSKY CLOSE RECORD BREAKING DEAL

Pay $5,000,000 for 2,000 Acres.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Definite details about Chicago's mystery suburb, the illusive "Westchester" of Proviso, were made public last night, and indicate that the largest and most comprehensive suburban division development in the city's history is about to be launched.

WILLIAM ZELOSKY
[Walinger Photo.]

George F. Nixon & Co. have joined forces with the William Zelosky company in consummating what is said is the largest subdivision deal in local realty history—$5,000,000 for approximately 2,000 acres. This big holding was purchased from a syndicate headed by Thomas Conway Jr., president of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin R. R., popularly known as the Third Rail line and also as the "Roaring Elgin."

GEORGE F. NIXON.

But the purchase by Mr. Nixon and Mr. Zelosky of the property, to be marketed by their respective firms, is only the initial step in a town development which is expected will run up close to the $100,000,000 mark in building operations alone. Millions more will be spent in civic improvements, with the idea of making Westchester one of the most attractive communities near Chicago.

Westchester is north of La Grange park, south of Bellwood, and west of Broadview, and it's to be linked up with the loop some time next February, when "L" trains will run over the new line being built south from Bellwood by the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad. At present the terminus of this line will be at Roosevelt road. Later it will be extended south to 22d street and then west to York road.

Will Cross Dupage County.

From that point it has been definitely announced that the Third Rail will continue a new line across Du Page county and connect with its main line at Warrenville. It is claimed no right of way has been bought and it also is stated that no date for this extension has been set. Meanwhile, busses will run south from the Roosevelt road terminal and west to York road till rails are laid that far.

Mr. Zelosky, who has built up approximately 2,000 acres of various Chicago subdivisions, announced that work would start next spring, as soon as improvements would permit, on 1,000 buildings, both two flat and single residences, to cost in the neighborhool of $8,000,000.

$90,000,000 in Homes.

These will only cover a part of the new community. When the entire building program is completed, Mr. Zelosky says, about $90,000,000 will have been invested in homes.

Westchester is to be laid out by Jacob L. Crane Jr., city planner, with Emil Rudolph and Robert W. Hoffman, of the Nixon and Zelosky forces, associated. Roosevelt road, 22d and 31st streets, which all cross parts of Westchester, will be 108 feet wide, with plazas provided at strategic points.

Ten Per Cent for Parks and Schools.

Approximately ten per cent of the entire town site will be dedicated to the use of parks, playgrounds and school sites. And one of the first things done following the village election, to be held shortly, will be the naming of a plan commission to carry out the village plan now being worked out by the experts. The town will be zoned against factories of any sort.

A certificate for the incorporation of Westchester has been issued by the County court.

PAYS $232,000 FOR STATE AND 79TH CORNER

Weymouth Kirkland of the law firm of McCormick, Kirklank, Patterson & Fleming has bought the southwest corner of 79th and State streets, 122x467, from M. J. McNally and T. J. McNally for a reported $232,000 through Cramer, Foot & Co. and John R. O'Connor.

Cramer, Foot & Co. also report selling the southeast corner of 79th and Langley, 107x125, for the Washington Park National bank, as trustee, to Max Rubenstein for $133,000. The buyer may build.

Bartlett Buys 300 Acres at 75th and Cicero Avenue

Frederick H. Bartlett & Co. have purchased a 300 acre tract at the southeast corner of West 75th street and Cicero avenue from Charles D. Evans, title being taken by John W. Sturtevant.

CHICAGO TAKES A HAND IN SAVING WATERLOO BRIDGE

(Picture on page 1.)

Two Chicago architectural bodies — the Illinois Society of Architects and the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects — have taken a hand in the attempt to save the world's famous Waterloo bridge, London, from the hands of the wreckers.

H. B. WHEELOCK.

Harry B. Wheelock, president of the Chicago chapter of the A. I. A., recently received the following communication from the secretary of the Royal Institute of British Architects:

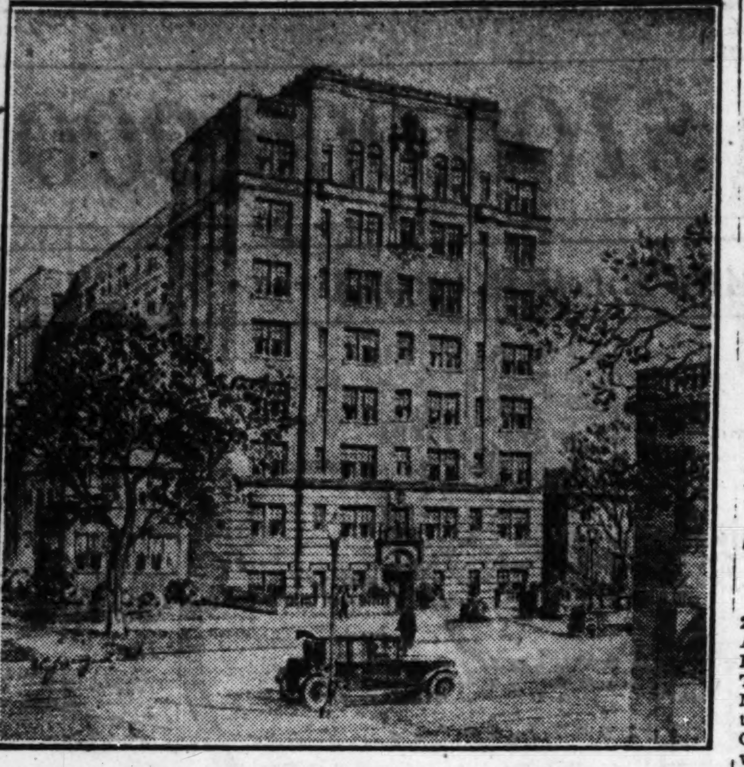
"It has occurred to me that your members might be glad to know the result of your recent communication to the London county council with regard to Waterloo bridge. The inclosed cutting from yesterday's Times, our most influential newspaper, indicates the deep impression that was made by your communication which has been a great help to us in our efforts."

The "cutting" tells how Chicago is protesting against the tearing down of the famous old bridge.

In the letter to the London county council, signed by Mr. Wheelock, as president of the Chicago chapter of the A. I. A., it says: "To have our mother county [so called, and in fact], richest of all the rich countries of the world in works of art and tradition historical structures of architectural and engineering wonderment, decree, as it has come to our notice, through action of your honorable body, the destruction of the world famed Waterloo bridge would be, to our minds here in the United States of America, a catastrophe of such magnitude as to be almost unbelievable in its import.

"Monumental as it is in design, and architecturally ranking ahead of anything similar anywhere as a model for study in the upbuilding of true art in its application to service, the Waterloo bridge is most conspicuous; it stands alone in a class by itself and should be preserved at all costs for the glory and good of mankind forever."

Northmoor Hotel



This is the Northmoor hotel, told about in this section recently, to be erected at 6165 Winthrop avenue by W. C. Bannerman & Co., builders as well as general contractors. Quinn & Christiansen and Robert S. DeGolyer have designed a structure to contain eighty-five kitchenette suites of one, two, and seven rooms. There'll be a swimming pool, café, lobby, etc. The total investment is reported to be $600,000.

More Tall Hotels Planned for Hyde Park Boulevard

Two more big hotel projects for Hyde Park were announced last night, both on Hyde Park boulevard. One will be at the northwest corner of 55th and the boulevard, and the other at the intersection of Dorchester.

The 55th and Hyde Park boulevard corner, a favorite site for paper hotels, is actually to be the location of a twelve story structure which has been financed and will be under way this week.

Charles F. Henry, builder, and Joseph H. Buttas of the B.-W. Construction company have bought the corner, fronting 150 on 55th street and seventy feet on the boulevard, and have had plans drawn by Loewenberg & Loewenberg for a building to contain 110 furnished apartments of two, three and four rooms.

The first floor will contain a lobby, dining room, etc. Wreckers this week will start demolishing the old improvements now on the corner.

According to the Straus Brothers company, which has underwritten a $950,000 twelve year loan, at 6¼ per cent, the new hotel will represent an investment in land and building of $1,600,000. Completion date is set for Oct. 1, 1926.

Work has just started on the ten story Fairfax apartment hotel at the southwest corner of Hyde Park boulevard and Dorchester. John Nyden's plans call for 235 rooms, an elaborate lobby, reception rooms, tea room, dining room, etc. The investment is said to be $1,250,000.

The Fairfax is owned by a syndicate headed by Charles L. Anderson and Paul A. C. Anderson, his son. Wollenberger & Co. have underwritten a $675,000 bond issue. Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke will be renting agents.

Plans 90 Apartment Co-Op on Lake Shore at Jarvis

Walter Wille has bought the vacant 287x152 at 1212 Jarvis avenue, from Abe Smith, Sam Eisenstein, and Harry H. Grossman for a reported $177,500. The property includes riparian rights. Mr. Wille intends erecting co-op to contain ninety apartments. George J. Gross of George M. Forman & Co., was broker.

BUYS HOOSIER FACTORY.

The Chicago Nipple Manufacturing company has bought a factory at Rochester, Ind., and will move its Cenco stamping plant, now at 16 West Kinzie, to its new Hoosier establishment. Management of the business of the combined plants will be managed from the Chicago office at 1966 Southport avenue.

Will Improve North Robey Block with Apartments

Robert C. Schrader has bought a block of frontage on North Robey street, between Melrose and School streets, from John Lang, for a reported $50,000, and will improve with three and six flat buildings to cover the entire property. Matteson & Conran and Nicholas Langknecht were brokers.

The property had been in Mr. Lang's possession since 1886, when he built his greenhouses there. The buyer's grandfather, William L. Schrader, originally subdivided the property.

Japanese Firm Buys Five Story North Side Building

Shinsaku Nagana, president of the Fugi Trading company, has bought the five story building, 25x100, at 317 West Austin avenue for a reported $47,000, or at the rate of $9.40 per square foot. The building is to be remodeled and used by the new owner. Louis A. Snitzer was broker.

ROSEMONT AVENUE FLAT DEAL.

The recently completed six apartment building at 1357 Rosemont avenue, has been sold by Samuel Fox to Albert Hoffman for $60,000, subject to $25,000, according to John J. Kern & Co.

News of the Architects

Guske & Foster, composed of James Guske and R. G. Foster, have moved from 2754 Kimball avenue to larger quarters at 750 Upper Michigan avenue, suite 410. This is at the southwest corner of Chicago avenue. Their phone is Delaware 6083.

Walgreen Drug Company Leases Roseland Corner

The Walgreen Drug company has leased the corner store in the new building at the southwest corner of 111th and Michigan, in Roseland, for ten years, from Alex and Fred Bernstein, attorneys. The rental will be $100,000 for the term, plus a percentage of gross sales. Cerf & Ehrenhalt were brokers.

MAY BUILD AT 75TH-COLFAX.

Edward J. Russell has bought the southeast corner of 75th street and Colfax avenue, lot 10x197, from John F. Hough and Dr. William F. Larkin, a dentist, for an indicated $145,000, subject to an incumbrance of $53,000. According to J. C. Jorn & Co., brokers, the old improvements, a garage and three residences, were not considered of any value. Mr. Russell may build.

Green Parrot Inn Owners Plan New West Side Cafe

Toy Don, Lee Jaw, and Eng Hop, who operate the Green Parrot inn, have leased the property at 2333-35 West Madison street and will remodel it into an elaborate eating place, with dance floor. M. O. Nathan will be architect. C. A. Ogden & Sons and Marks & Co. were brokers.

Bohn Refrigerator Rents Store on North Michigan

The Bohn Refrigerator company has leased the first floor corner store in the building at the southeast corner of North Michigan avenue and East South Water street. This has been the location of two restaurants, neither of which interested the public enough to warrant their keeping open.

Sells Two South Side Flat Buildings for $190,000

Maurice W. Kulwin has bought the twenty-two flats at the southwest corner of 54th and Prairie and the thirty-seven apartments at 5220 Calumet from Joseph Rosenberg at a reported $190,000. Maurice W. Kulwin & Co. were brokers.

PLAN $680,000 FLAT BUILDINGS, 79TH-WESTERN

Twenty-one Will Have 3 Apartments Each.

Tutules & Dignan, who have subdivided the southeast corner of West 79th street and Western avenue, comprising more than 1,200 feet of business frontage on 79th street and 264 feet on Western avenue, as well as 377 feet of residential property on 79th place, are contemplating improving the West 79th place frontage with modern apartment buildings.

Leichenke & Esser are drawing plans and specifications for the erection of twenty-one apartment buildings of three flats each, and two buildings containing twenty-seven apartments each, on 79th place.

The two twenty-seven flat buildings will be erected on lots 97x125 at South Oakley avenue and West 79th place and will be three story court structures. The apartments will all have four rooms. They will cost $130,000 each.

The three flat buildings will be 24x60 and will contain five room apartments with enclosed sleeping porches and sun parlors. These will cost $20,000 each, according to the architects. Construction is to begin as soon as the estimates are received by the architects.

KEWANEE

Are You Eskimoing It This Winter?

Are you living over a Kewanee Firebox boiler? If you are, you didn't feel that advance blast of Winter. If you are not, you did. Such weather as that either shows up a heating boiler or proves its value to the human race.

Being an Eskimo in the midst of civilization, and sipping your morning coffee through the collar of your fur coat, is one of the "luxuries" in flats equipped with timid boilers that can't stand the cold. Janitors are sworn at oftener than umpires, in flats like that.

Kewanee All-Steel Firebox boilers are Eskimo-proof. They are built of steel (riveted). The coldest blast the North wind can send down, can't crack'em or leak'em. They make a warm, snug, comfortable home of a flat in the Winter time. They are financial investments for the flat-owners and health-investments for flat-dwellers.

That's why we ask you to LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST. Pick your flat according to the boiler you find. If it's a Kewanee, you play the ace. If it's not, you play the deuce in more ways than one.

The Old Man Behind the Boiler will sit down and write you a long personal letter about the big difference in boilers and their effect on life, health and the pursuit of happiness anytime you ask him. He will give you the benefit of his 40 years of experience in boiler building.

INSULATED GARAGES

The garage you build should protect your car not only from rain and snow but from frost.

In a Union Insulated Garage (unheated) we guarantee your car will not freeze even when the outside temperature is 15 degrees below zero.

Our garages are insulated like a high-grade refrigerator, with four inches of cork and half an inch of Celotex.

Yet the cost is not much more than you would pay for an ordinary uninsulated garage.

Get in touch with us before you build and let us show you how to get a better garage for your money. Our prices are moderate and time payments can be arranged if desired.

PLAN $100,000 CHURCH EDIFICE IN RIVER FOREST

Christ Episcopal to Have Imposing Group.

Ground will be broken some time this month for a $100,000 church and parish house for Christ Episcopal parish, at the northeast corner of Franklin avenue and Lake street, in that suburb. E. Norman Brydges of Chicago is the architect. The Rev. Francis J. Tromp is pastor of the church.

Members of the parish have raised sufficient funds to begin the building program, which calls for the construction of the parish house first. A year or so later, according to the pastor, the church building will be erected. It is expected to have the parish house ready for occupancy some time next spring.

The church and parish house will be of stone construction in the English Gothic style of architecture, with a square stone tower. The lot is 97x180.

The parish house will care for all the parish activities and will include facilities for a gymnasium, auditorium, kitchens, dining room, guild hall, choir rooms, and offices.

Christ Episcopal church is now holding services in the quarters of the River Forest Women's club.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

ALL ABO-O-ARD for Valparaiso, Florida!

Round trip, including all expenses for 5 days— $79.50

INCLUDING all train fares, Pullman, meals, busses and hotel accommodations. A five days' joy-ride—fully paid. The thrill of a lifetime! The Valparaiso Transcontinental Special, leaving Chicago, first traverses the western end of the Hoosier state, then back thru the great corn lands of southern Illinois, already prepared for the cold wintry blasts—perhaps blanketed with snow and ice. A short stretch of Tennessee mountains into Nashville, the railway center of the South.

Thru the blue-grass of Kentucky, thru pine-clad hills of northern Alabama—into Birmingham, the Pittsburgh of the South. On to aristocratic Montgomery, Alabama's capital city—and then—Florida's fourth largest city and its western gateway, Pensacola, early settled by the Spanish pirates. Finally Valparaiso—on the Gulf Coast—where, with the sunshine, you can laugh at the north winds left far behind. We go thru six states and the heart of Dixie in less than 30 hours.

See Before You Invest

Remember this—the titles to property in Pine Crest Addition to Valparaiso are guaranteed by the Chicago Title and Trust Co. Join the Valparaiso Special on December 1st—and see for yourself why the Valparaiso property on the Gulf Coast is destined to be Chicago's own city in Florida. Fill in the coupon below for complete information or call at our office any time during the day or evening. Registration closes 5 days in advance of the trip.

The Greater Chicago Title Service for Greater Chicago

The CHICAGO TITLE & TRUST COMPANY announces an extension of its title insurance service to cover the three adjoining counties: namely, Lake County and DuPage County, Illinois; and Lake County, Indiana.

This new and greater service of the CHICAGO TITLE & TRUST COMPANY has been brought about by special arrangement with the local abstract companies:

LAKE COUNTY TITLE & TRUST COMPANY
Waukegan, Illinois
DUPAGE TITLE COMPANY
Wheaton, Illinois
ALLMAN-GARY TITLE COMPANY
Gary and Crown Point, Indiana

Abstract methods uniform with those of the Chicago company prevail in each of these organizations. On such abstracts the Chicago company will prepare an opinion of title and issue insurance on the same basis as on its own Cook County abstracts.

Chicago rates for such title insurance and for trust and escrow service will be in force throughout except that on property outside Cook County, the fee of the local abstract company must be added to the insurance premium.

This expansion—made essential by the growing industrial and suburban areas of the metropolitan district—places at the disposal of real estate owners in adjacent counties the proved value of title guarantees by the largest company in the west—one which in less than twenty-five years has written over one million policies!

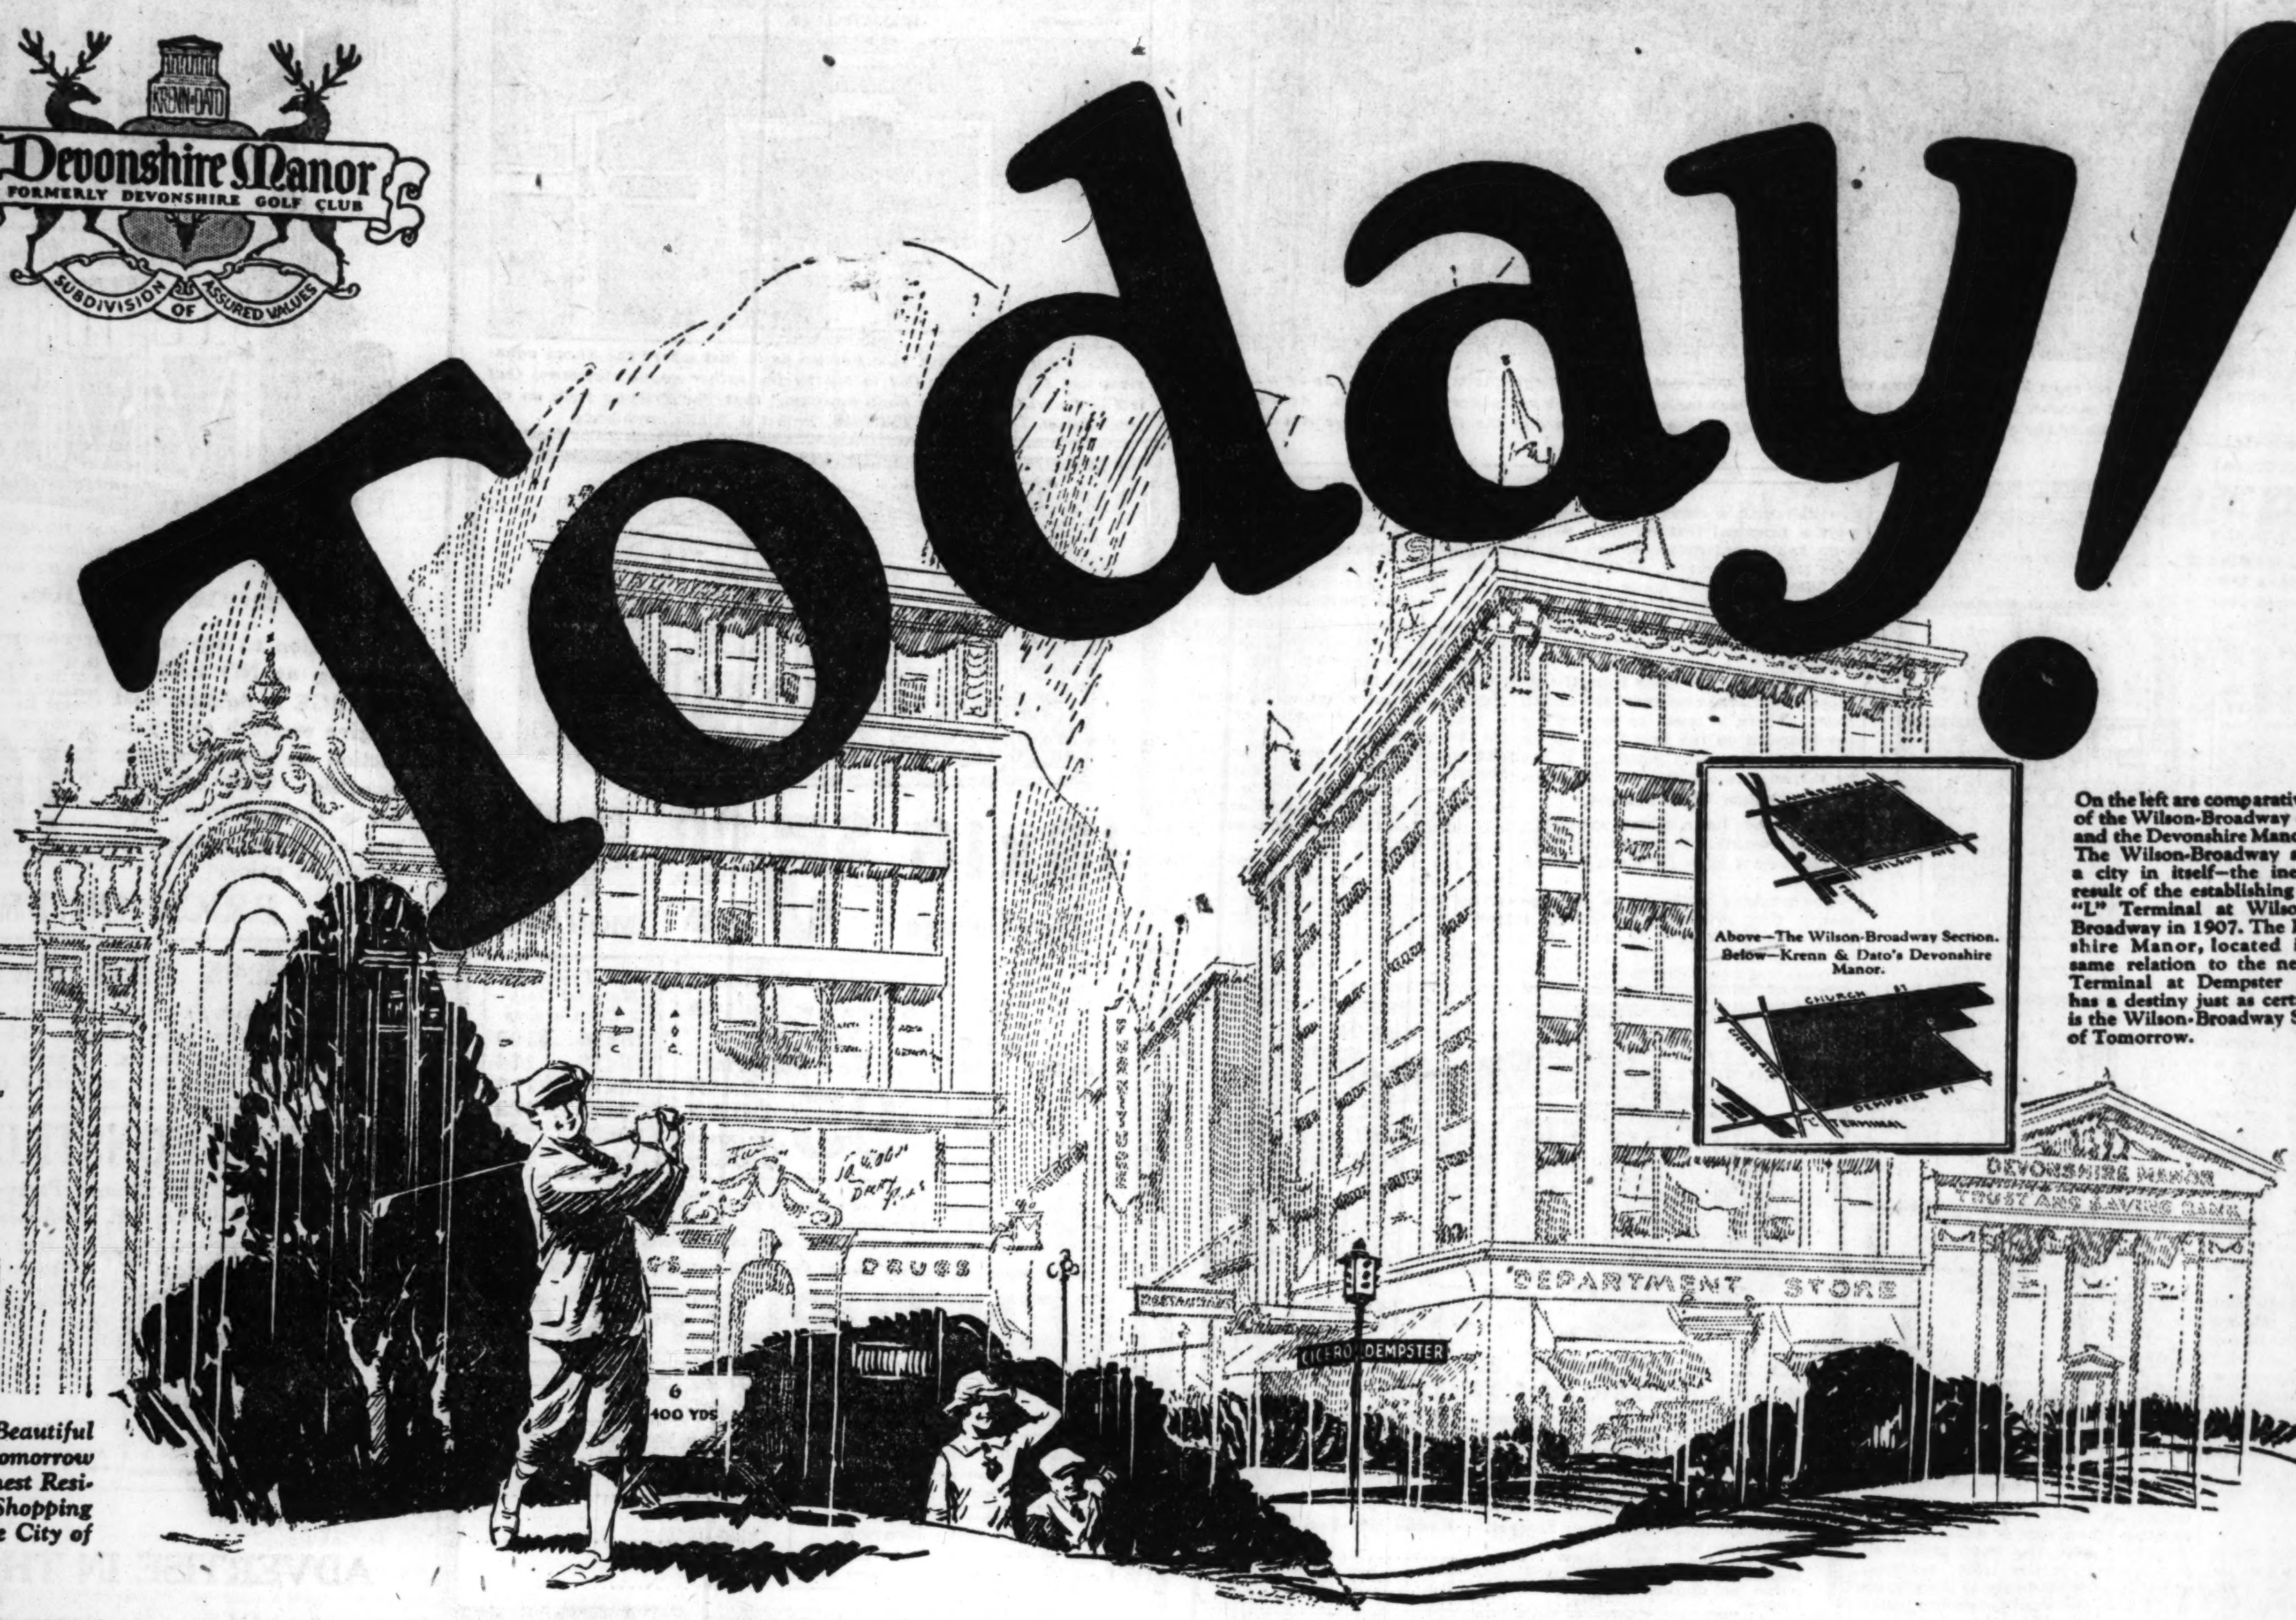
SUBDIVISION OF ASSURED VALUES



Above—The Wilson-Broadway Section. Below—Krenn & Dato's Devonshire Manor.

On the left are comparative plats of the Wilson-Broadway section and the Devonshire Manor area. The Wilson-Broadway section, a city in itself—the inevitable result of the establishing of the "L" Terminal at Wilson and Broadway in 1907. The Devonshire Manor, located in the same relation to the new "L" Terminal at Dempster Street has a destiny just as certain—it is the Wilson-Broadway Section of Tomorrow.

Yesterday a Beautiful Golf Course. Tomorrow One of the Finest Residential and Shopping Districts in the City of Chicago.

All Roads Lead to the Great Devonshire Manor Sale

Your Opportunity Has Come

CHOICE APARTMENT SITES

Between Dempster and Church Streets and bounded on the west by Niles Center Road, lies the choicest apartment site section in the whole northwest development of Greater Chicago. Already fine modern apartment buildings are rising all about it. Here experts see an apartment and hotel section of tomorrow comparable only to the section that now exists between Wilson and Lawrence, Broadway and the Lake. This "Wilson-to-Lawrence Section of Tomorrow" is Devonshire Manor—Krenn & Dato's new $4,000,000 subdivision available now at low winter prices and easy terms.

TODAY—rain or shine—Devonshire Manor, —a new "Wilson-Broadway Section,—goes on sale to the wide-awake investors, of Chicago. Before night new fortunes will be established, and many men and women will have taken their first step toward financial independence. Let it rain, let it pour, but the men and women who know opportunity when they see it will be there.

Today is the day to see Devonshire Manor, to make a wise and careful selection and to take your pick of the most desirable lots while the whole magnificent $4,000,000 Subdivision is available.

Very Little Cash—Very Easy Terms

In accordance with our dominant policy to render a real service to the real estate investors of Chicago however modest their investment may be, we have arranged terms for the purchase of the wonderful business frontage and apartment sites that places them within easy reach of all. Just a small payment down and a small amount monthly, and you are in "on the ground floor" in the development of this new "Wilson-Broadway section" the greatest investment opportunity in Chicago in years.

Rapidly Rising Values

Just east of the Dempster "L" Terminal—the same relative location as the original Wilson-Broadway section is to its terminal. East—toward the lake—that's the way higher values always go in Chicago. Devonshire Manor is already surrounded by building activity—beautiful ultra modern apartment buildings, and imposing business structures are going up on every hand. All improvements are included in the price—ready to build. Here you have fast Express "L" Service to the loop—a faster service right now than is available from many sections well within the city limits.

Take the "L" or Drive—Today

Take your "L" to the Howard Street Station and change to a Niles Center Express. Get off at Terminal and there is "Devonshire Manor" to your right. Or drive to Evanston and west on Dempster Street direct to Devonshire Manor.

EXCELLENT BUSINESS FRONTAGE

Dempster Street is proclaimed the Wilson Avenue of Tomorrow, Niles Center Road the Broadway, Church Street the Lawrence Avenue. These three streets—business arteries of the coming northwest Greater Chicago—bound Devonshire Manor. Stores, office buildings, banks, theatres and all the buildings of a bustling business center are destined to rise along these limits. Here is a great opportunity for profitable investment. If you cannot come out just send the coupon and learn all the facts—facts that will surprise you—about conditions that already exist. Your chance to make money is here.

The Way to Make Money in Real Estate, is to Know the Facts Soon Enough and Act Promptly

ORIGINALITY IS OFFERED IN THIS SIX ROOM HOUSE

And You Can Build It for $9,000.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Are you about to build your house, after years of planning and saving and dreaming? Have you at last the money to buy the lot and attack the problem of construction?

You want an honest house, one that will show in service and attraction every dollar you are going to put into it. And yet, looking around, you see so many that are all you do not want, poor in design and inconvenient in plan, that you wonder if you can really get what you desire in an inexpensive house, at once small and unpretentious.

"What chance is there for originality in a six room house?"

Well, there is all the chance in the world. It takes a cleverer architect sometimes to design a small house than a large, but it is being done more and more. The small suburban, city, or country house, costing from $7,000 to $17,000, is an interesting one for it is a representative one.

Yankee Type of Architecture.

That shown today is an example of the case in point. Designed by Francis C. Sullivan of Chicago, it is a six room house, constructed with a view to economy, convenience, and attraction—the sort a dead-in-earnest man builds who wants an honest home.

It is of cream colored stucco, with a flat shingle tile roof shading from soft tans to deep browns, and is essentially a product of the American school of archietcture. There is a double garage, not attached, of the same stucco. This is an economical idea, as half of the garage can be rented, if the owner has only one car. According to the architect's estimate the house and garage can be built for $9,000.

Wails About Cost.

Now whenever the cost of a prospective house is mentioned, the future owner is immediately beset with fears the quoted price will not cover it.

"A house always costs more than you plan," you hear him say. He has heard the same wail from the lips of his friends. He has seen it in print, and heard it shouted by dozens of worried owners who find when they proceed with the task of building that estimated expenses mount instead of remaining stationary.

The architect is not to blame for this. The chances are the owner's ideas grew along with the house.

Details That Count.

A small house, the size of that shown today, can be built on a forty foot lot, but fifty feet of ground or more, if you can afford it, would be preferable.

Often a single striking feature will make an otherwise unpretentious dwelling into a spot of distinction. In the above note the wood grilled enclosed porch at the side entrance, which lifts the house out of the average at the first moment of stepping inside.

On the ground floor there is a reception hall with a closet for wraps, always a practical feature. The living room has a real fireplace, and also a nook for a radio outfit, if desired.

There is plenty of space in the living room for furniture—an important factor. It is a safe plan to make a lay out, specifying every piece of furniture.

A small bedroom opens from the reception hall and also from the dining room. There is much to be said for the bedroom on the first floor, which is again being made popular. It can be turned into a library or playroom.

Kitchen Well Planned.

The kitchen has a cabinet for utility, an east breakfast room opening from it, and also a place for electric refrigeration.

The windows of the house are casement. One advantage of this is it looks well either open or shut and is weatherproof.

There are two bedrooms on the second floor, generous in size; also three closets. Bedrooms should be light, airy, and simple, and much depends upon closets. Size alone is only part of the need. They should have drawers and outside ventilation, if possible.

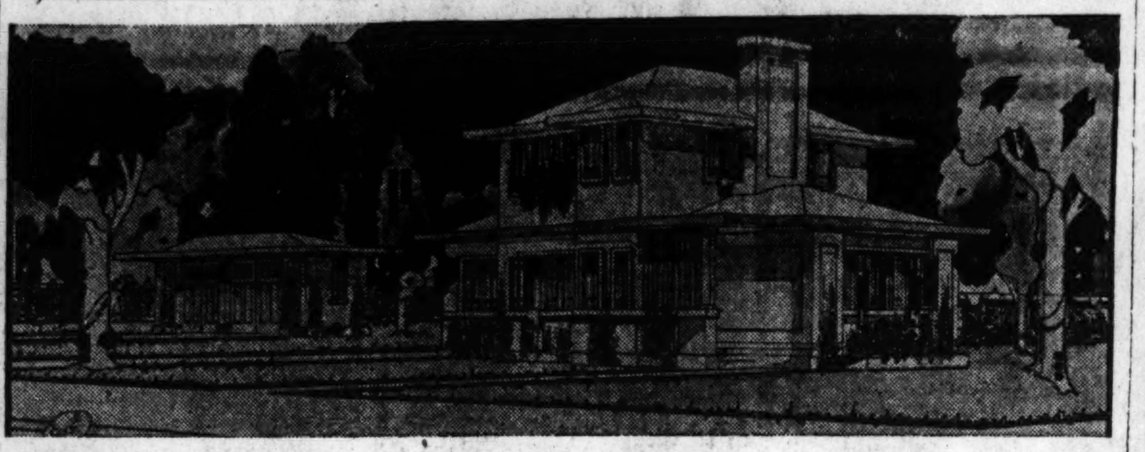
The bathroom—white porcelain and enamel—is large and well equipped. It has the stationary tub setting square on the floor.

One thing to reflect on in building a house is in the saving of space. On the second floor of this house the hall space might be economized and a wardrobe closet installed, with drawers, and poles and an outside window for ventilation. No woman can have too much of this sort of space in a house as small as this.

A sun parlor could be added to the living room, an extremely desirable addition where there is no provision made for a porch, if heated, it makes an extra room all year.

The floor space of the house is 28x44 feet.

Arresting, but Not Pretentious



This six room house is in cream colored stucco. The roof is of flat shingle tile in tan, shading to deep brown. Casement windows open out, and the wood grill which incloses the porch is a picturesque feature. According to the estimate of the architect, Francis C. Sullivan of Chicago, the house and the two car garage can be built for $9,000.

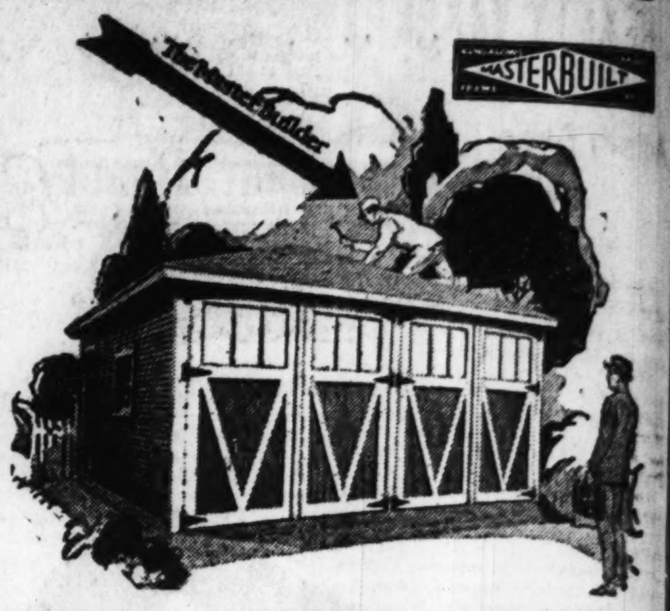
ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE



Never Before Such a Delightful Florida Tour!

Live on the shore of the rolling Atlantic! Surf bathing—deep sea fishing—golf and all other sports—beckon you to Florida's new All-Year Wonder Resort City

HOLLYWOOD-by-the-Sea
"Florida's All-Year Resort City"

All yours—only $150. for ten glorious days

At noon you are here—two mornings later you can be strolling along the gleaming shore of the Atlantic—thrilled by the fresh salt breeze of a mighty ocean—shaded by the waving fronds of the lofty palms—transplanted as if by magic from the world of humdrum and cold to the world of tropic zephyrs, romance, enchantment, and myriad alluring recreations.

Truly—this is all tours rolled into one. You go by fast all-Pullman special train, through the Cumberland Mountains. You spend your days and nights within sight and sound of the ocean. Bathing, fishing, golf, motoring, all are yours. You live in the privacy of a cottage in the enchanting beach city—a city which has itself sprung as if by magic into full beauty with every means of entertainment.

And the price—only $150. Believe it if you can—it is true! $150 takes you down and back. The same $150 pays for your room accommodations—gives you the freedom of the golf courses and beaches—everything, with one small exception of dining car meals. And that is the only exception—there are no other "extras."

The Glory of November and December in Hollywood-by-the-Sea

Fall and winter are the seasons to enjoy Hollywood-by-the-Sea. The prevailing winds are soothing—sweeping across thousands of miles of salt water to fill your days and nights with health and enjoyment. Now also is the season of fine fishing. The sailfish and tarpon answer the challenge of your bait—and give battle royal to those who seek them—within sight of Hollywood.

Do not pass by this wonderful opportunity through a mistaken idea that it will be an ordinary tour. We do not invite you to Hollywood-by-the-Sea for any direct profit—we just want you to know and praise Hollywood-by-the-Sea as a wonderful all-year resort when you come back. And it is obvious we do not want your money—for common sense will show you that the railroad gets most of that, even at Florida special rates. The truth is, we want you to know the amazing fact—that Hollywood-by-the-Sea is a complete and beautiful city; for this reason, you are made this remarkable, limited offer—limited in time, but unlimited in possibilities of enjoyment.

No Matter What Your Other Plans—This One Is Better!

Compare this with any tour you ever took before. Compare it with any trip you can take this year. You can always tour the East or visit the West. You can always tour the Great Lakes. But to Florida—and Hollywood-by-the-Sea for $150—that is an offer which may never be repeated!

Don't miss this opportunity simply because your plans are made. You can afford to cancel your plans—in order to replace them with this most remarkable journey of all. Compare the attractions—compare the cost—compare the opportunities—to see the South—to see the ocean—to know Florida with its mystic old-world charm and its romantic tropical foliage—to enjoy all the delights of this wonder-trip, for very little more than it would cost you to stay at home!

Send the coupon now and get full information—the more you investigate this offer, the more eager you will be to take this remarkable tour.

To the Limited Few:

Who can afford a Winter Home above the average

An Investment Extraordinary

107 Residence Lots at Miramar, within the City of Biloxi, Miss., to be sold below present value

ALWAYS known as the Summer Resort of the South, now through the extension of Illinois Central Service the famous Gulf Coast Section becomes quickly accessible to the North.

Millions of northern capital are being invested here in improvements. Everywhere real estate activity is shown. Many buildings, homes, hotels, etc., are being constructed.

Only these 107 lots are available at Miramar—one of the choicest locations on the entire Gulf Coast. Miramar presents to the limited few who can afford a winter home in this exclusive development an extraordinary investment—one of substantial worth with every evidence of quick increase in value.

Lots next to Miramar, on the beach, are held at 25% above our highest price. Only a very fortunate purchase makes this offering possible. At these prices not more than two lots will be sold to an individual.

There are reasons for this value—reasons to believe that prices will continue in their upward trend. Here is substantial evidence:

Along the coast from Gulfport to Biloxi the U. S. Government is building a magnificent sea-wall.

The Edgewater Gulf Hotel—the $2,500,000 hostelry—the property of the owners of the Edgewater Beach Hotel of Chicago, will be completed in 1926. Homes are being built, streets paved, sidewalks laid and gas and electricity brought to many homes. These are not projected improvements—they are actualities. Activity in real estate transfers is marked. Values show a constant upward trend.

Amid all this activity, at the very heart of it all, is Miramar—within the City Limits of Biloxi—the resort city of the South.

The entire plot consists of 107 lots. There will be no more. These are offered below present valuation. Investors, familiar with the Gulf Coast, will instantly recognize the possibilities of this property. Those who have wintered here, know the Gulf Coast to be the Fisherman's Paradise—a playspot where salt water, sporty golf courses, a balmy climate and miles of balsam pines and modern improvements combine to produce a winter homeplace hardly equaled here or abroad.

Values on improved property are high, and rising daily. The announcement of the extension of Illinois Central Service to the Gulf Coast had a marked effect on prices. This brought Miramar to less than 24 hours from Chicago—the closest salt water wintering place. The beginning of work on the 14-mile sea-wall had its exhilarating effect. The Edgewater Gulf Hotel and 24 other hotels will combine to care for the steady stream of people who come here seeking and finding the ideal winter playground.

Now, with the influx of northern capital and the coming of great numbers of winter tourists from the North, those who purchase homesites in Miramar will profit from every advance that added development brings. Most liberal terms may be arranged.

The hour has struck on the Gulf Coast. Always considered among the finest of wintering places, now with perfect transportation, a great influx of northern pleasure seekers and millions being spent in improvements, ownership of a homesite here carries with it not only an ideal wintering place but the probability of substantial profit.

Communication by letter or telephone will result in all the facts being laid before you for judgment.

Miramar is the property of Holmhaven-On-The-Gulf, Inc. A glance at the directors and stockholders of this organization should be conclusive proof of the integrity and stability of this offering:

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi; C. Bascom Slemp, formerly secretary of President Coolidge; A. L. Jagoe, Vice-President, First National Bank, Gulfport; Thomas M. McHale, Secretary, Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.; Dr. Geo. Mueller, Surgeon; Estil Scott, Gen. Motors, Kansas City, Mo.; T. V. Beckwith; O. O. Carpenter, Pres. Builders Club; B. K. Edwards, Edwards-Bradford Lumber Co.; Herbert G. Shimp, Pres. Holmhaven-On-The-Gulf, Inc., and others of equal standing.

A long step forward in ending fuel waste

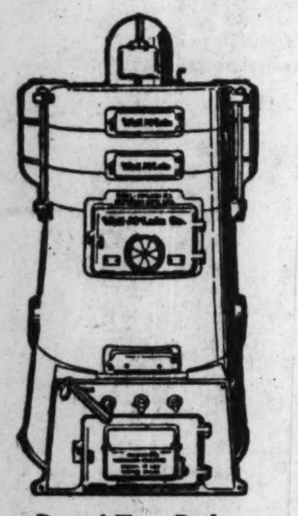
The hottest point around any flame is directly above it.
Weil-McLain
Weil-McLain
WEIL-McLAIN CO. MICHIGAN CITY, IND.

Weil-McLain heating surfaces are corrugated like this〰〰 instead of straight like this——————



Round Type Boiler

For steam, vapor, vacuum and hot water heating; made in sizes for bungalows, residences and small apartments.

Sizes for Oil Burners

The quick, intense heat produced by modern oil burners demands in a boiler a great amount of concentrated heat-absorbing surface and a long fire travel. You get all this in Weil-McLain Boilers. The "5 section" and the "6 section" sizes of round-type boilers and the longer sizes of square-type boilers are most suitable for use with oil burners.

Weil-McLain Boilers, as built today, surpass the best of the fine types which we have produced in the past. Five years ago we held the belief that a forward step in home heating was in order, that old ideas and standards must be cast aside and new ones adopted to take their places. What our engineers have since accomplished is making history in the heating industry.

Two great savings

For several years we have made the claim, which we now repeat, that this boiler takes a long step forward in ending fuel waste.

It conquers the two greatest enemies of your coal pile and home comfort. By combating waste, both DOWN INTO THE ASH PIT and UP THE CHIMNEY, it sets up new economy standards.

How ash pit waste is ended

In designing this boiler our engineers were faced squarely with the fact that fuel prices are extremely high. So they built the Weil-McLain Boiler to meet, rather than avoid, this modern condition.

The result of their efforts is now known as Scientific Combustion—an achievement of perhaps as far-reaching effect upon modern home heating as is the effect of the automobile or radio upon other phases of modern life.

Scientific Combustion means complete burning of the fuel. It means a bright burning fire that burns clean, and a long lasting fire that does not require frequent attention. It means a fire that prevents most clinkers, and one that ends waste of valuable, unburned fuel DOWN into the ash pit.

Waste up the chimney also conquered

But Weil-McLain engineers went further. They had the belief that in addition to this visible waste, there were possibilities for further economy through conquering that invisible but perhaps even more costly waste of valuable heat units up the chimney.

To the solution of this problem they brought more than thirty years of boiler manufacturing experience and long months of research. They endeavored to embody in this boiler an element of economy and efficiency never before attained in any boiler of this type.

No one can doubt that they have succeeded. The Weil-McLain corrugated "double-surface" crown sheet section directly above the fire and the corrugation of all other vital heating surfaces are outstanding developments.

The heating surfaces are corrugated like this 〰〰, instead of straight like this——————, thus increasing the heating surface and resulting in more heat units being absorbed and fewer wasted up the chimney.

The corrugated design of the Crown Sheet Section is of special value. The candle test shows that this surface, because directly above the fire, is the most valuable heating surface in any boiler.

Doubling the heating surface at this important point and corrugating the other vital heating surfaces in all sections, greatly increases heating efficiency and reduces chimney waste.

A second means of ending chimney waste

The final proof that Weil-McLain engineers have succeeded, is the principle of long "back-and-forth" fire travel which they have applied in a new and better way.

This improvement is the fruit of long experience and the manufacture of many thousands of boilers. The illustration shows how, due to this feature, the hot gases are forced to travel backward and forward between the corrugated surfaces. Thus the hot gases are held longer in contact with the heating surfaces. Heat units are sent to your radiators which would otherwise be wasted up the chimney.

Home owners who have studied the question say they never before realized that such boiler results were possible.

Other Weil-McLain features

There are many other features which place the Weil-McLain Boiler clearly in a class by itself. Among them are:

—Triangular grates which crush out stubborn clinkers.
—Lower one-third of firepot smooth and non-clogging, so fire shakes down easily and clean.
—Large fire and slicing doors for your convenience.
—Handy front clean-out doors in each section.
—And more heat from less fuel with oil, or any other kind of fuel or any method of firing.

Eyes of Radio World Focused on Washington This Week

RADIO DIANA TO AID IN SELECTING MISS RADIO HERE

Feminine Fans of Three States Eligible.

Applications for the honor of being Miss Radio at the fourth annual Chicago radio show, which will be held in the Coliseum Nov. 17 to 22, continue to pour into the office of the show, Clay Irwin, manager of the exposition, announced yesterday.

RENA JANE FREW

Miss Rena Jane Frew, winner of the radio Diana contest recently held at the Radio World's Fair in New York City, will steal away from her studies at Geneva college, New York, long enough to attend the festivities of the Chicago show.

Miss Frew got an early start in radio, having built her first set when she was only fourteen years old. Since then she has built more sets than most radio fans ever dream of building. While in high school she had charge of the radio clubs and station, and has done her bit in making future radio fans by teaching a class in radio.

Help Choose Miss Radio.

When she comes to Chicago she will occupy the unique position of an elector of the middle west Radio Diana. Miss Frew will be one of the judges who will decide the fate of those who have entered their names in the Chicago contest.

The most important point to remember about the contest is that it is not to be a beauty contest in any sense of the word. The winner will be selected solely on the basis of merit as an ardent and efficient radio fan, and also on the strength of the appeal in her letter on "What radio has done for me."

Three States Eligible.

All feminine radio fans from Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin are eligible to compete in the contest.

The winner of the contest will be presented to Mayor Dever and Chicago will outdo itself in paying her homage.

The time for sending in entries is rapidly drawing to a close, so all aspirants to the title of Miss Radio are urged to send in their applications at once to the Chicago Radio Show office, 127 N. Dearborn street.

OUT TO SHOW UP BOYS

Girls of the Waller High school, Chicago, and the set they have constructed for the set building contest to be conducted at the fourth annual Radio show, which opens Nov. 17 in the Coliseum. The girls are out to show the judges that boys have no monopoly on set building. [R. A. Atwell Photo.]

Ford Experiments with Radio for Airplanes

The Ford Motor company is now experimenting with radio in connection with the development of its cargo airplanes.

RUSSIA BRISTLES WITH ANTENNÆ; ALL FOR RADIO

Soviet Gets Profit from Owners of Sets.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Bolshevik Russia itself is now finally beginning to fall victim to the radio craze, according to word received here.

Although radio is still scarcely more than a year old as a public institution in Russia, broadcasting has already become an established feature of life in the larger cities, and is steadily forcing itself more and more into the life of the people throughout the country.

Moscow is already bristling with newly-erected aerials. Leningrad, Kieff, and other principal cities are rapidly becoming more and more addict to this latest fad.

Aid to Propaganda.

Realizing the great propaganda possibilities in radio, in a country with a population of more than 130,000,000, scattered over a vast territory, the Bolshevik government has finally taken up radio broadcasting on a serious scale. Three large stations are already sending out programs from Leningrad, Kieff, and Moscow.

A government edict in September 1924, placed radio broadcasting at the disposal of the civilian population, but at first the restrictions were so many that only a limited number of Communist clubs were affected.

Government Monopoly.

Control of the radio industry has remained a government monopoly, but private citizens are permitted to acquire sets and put up aerials upon payment of the government license fee of six roubles a year. As in England, this fee is employed to pay the expenses of operating the broadcasting plants. Concerts are broadcast every Sunday from the Moscow stations, and the Soviet government is making tests which may result in the Russian stations tuning in with the large stations in England and France. All of the programs of course have a worthy seasoning of political propaganda features.

CONFERENCE SECRETARY

PAUL S. CLAPP.

Herbert Hoover, secretary of the interior, has selected Mr. Clapp to be secretary of the fourth national radio conference, which convenes in Washington tomorrow. Although only 35 years old, Mr. Clapp is Secretary Hoover's right hand man on radio questions.

[Harris & Ewing Photo.]

CANARY SOLOISTS OF KOA TRILL FOR APPLAUSE

Appearing before KOA's microphones is a canary bird choir of twenty virtuosos which includes two feathered soloists—Pete and Archie—are starring.

They are heard every Saturday evening during an instrumental program of orchestra music under direction of Ed. Wurtzebach which is featured from 9 to 11 o'clock.

Though a surly bird, Pete is rated the leading triller of the feathery ensemble and, therefore, his cage is mounted nearest the microphones. Archie, a diminutive songster and keenly intolerant of rivalry, is noted in bird circles as a two-voice singer.

FINDS PATIENTS HELPED BY RADIO IN HOSPITALS

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Physical, emotional, and spiritual effects follow the use of music in hospitals, declares Mrs. Isa Maud Ilsen of the New York Tuberculosis and Health association, who was formerly director of music in the military hospitals under the war department.

Believing that music is an adjunct to medicine, Mrs. Ilsen is now conducting a campaign to install radio receivers in every hospital. She found that many institutions in and about New York were lacking in such equipment, and patients were delighted at the information that receivers would be installed.

BIG CONFERENCE ON AIR PROBLEMS OPENS TOMORROW

Secretary Hoover Will Be Keynoter.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The little group of pioneers who gathered in Washington three years ago for the first Radio Telephone convention would rub their eyes with wonder if they could attend the Fourth National Radio conference for the voluntary regulation of radio, to be held here this week. Then it was the talk of the country because there were 50 broadcasting stations. Today there are upwards of 550.

At the time of the first conference the power limitation was 500 watts and such an operating plant was looked upon with admiration and awe. Today more than 200 stations are using power of 500 or more watts, and numerous superpower stations are using 5 000 to 10,000 watts, with two great new 50 000 watt stations at Schenectady and Boundbrook, N. J.

Many Amazing Developments.

During those three short years there has been the most amazing development of programs. President Coolidge, who seldom ventures from the White House, is heard by a larger number of persons than was our most energetic President, Theodore Roosevelt, or the greatest Presidential traveler, William Howard Taft, in their entire lifetimes. Gen. Pershing made history by talking simultaneously through a country-wide hookup to every commanding general in the United States.

Three years ago it was a novelty to hear a piano, a singer, or an ordinary brass band on the air. Today the greatest artists and the finest orchestras in the world are at the disposal of the humblest listeners. About 6,000,000 homes have receiving sets, and the expenditure of the industry during this year will possibly be more than $600 000,000.

Three years ago there was yet to be perfected the radio fog signal, so com-

Some One Is Singing!

YES, some one is singing, but not in the next room. It is McCormack, and the great tenor is standing before a microphone but his voice is in the next room.

Of course it's a Day-Fan—the one musical instrument among radio receivers capable of doing full justice to the magnificent music that fills the air these days.

Speech or song, violin or piano, saxaphone, drum, or flute—from the highest to the lowest note, Day-Fan is clear, distinct, glorious.

And so easy to tune! Day-Fan simplicity is one of its outstanding characteristics.

Don't put it off any longer.

Radio is filling the air with entertainment—why miss any of it? You won't miss any of it, or any of its beauty—if you own a Day-Fan.

Did you hear every play of the World's Series? Did you get each thrilling moment of the big football games? Have you a dance orchestra in your home whatever evening you want it? Are you listening to Bonci, McCormack, Kreisler? If you want all these things in reality or their full musical beauty, Day Fan is the one radio receiver for you. You can have one for as little as $75.00. Other models, 4 and 5-tube, single and triple dial control, up to $300.00. Model illustrated is Daycraft, 5-tube single dial control long distance receiver, with self-contained Day-Fan loud speaker—a remarkable value at $145.00.

EYES OF RADIO INDUSTRY SET ON WASHINGTON

4th Annual Conference Opens Tomorrow.

forting to mariners, and the radio compass, to guide navigators of both sky and sea. During that time the short wave has been expanded to a point where we may hear half way around the world.

Progress Brings Problems.

This kaleidoscopic development, however, has brought with it unusual problems. One of the main questions which the forthcoming convention will grapple with will be to limit the number of broadcasting stations which are springing up like mushrooms throughout the land.

Notwithstanding the fact that the wave channels have long been exhausted, about 200 inquirers have signified to Secretary Hoover their intention of installing broadcasting stations, a number of which are actually in the course of erection, or have asked for information concerning necessary requirements.

Another important topic the conference will consider will be super-power, but there will not be the hysteria about this that there was a year ago. Then 1,000 watts was the limit. A bombshell was thrown into the conference by the talk of a 50,000 watt station.

It created so much excitement that Secretary Hoover issued a special statement to assure the listening public that its rights would be safeguarded. And he has lived up to this in every sense of the word.

Super-Power Is Here.

Nevertheless, super-power is here and, as said at the beginning, it is a common thing for stations to be operating on 5,000 and 10,000 watts. Likewise the first 50,000 watt station is with us and a second is soon to start, but the announcement of these stations evidently caused more excitement than interference by their actual operation.

The conference is expected to bring forth another discussion of the use of broadcasting stations for advertising purposes. Also the conference will probably afford a meeting place between the warring factions of the broadcasters and the composers on the subject of copyright payment for the use of copyright compositions.

More adequate funds for putting down interference and policing the air will be urged. Proposed congressional legislation will come in for its share of attention.

Hoover the Keynoter.

Secretary Hoover will be the dominant figure and as usual will deliver the keynote address, very probably on Monday. In addition to this, he will preside at all sessions. Mr. Hoover has already announced that an effort will be made to conclude the conference within three days, excepting perhaps a few continued committee meetings.

Paul S. Clapp, one of the assistants to Mr. Hoover, will act as secretary. Mr. Clapp was once described by Secretary Hoover as one of the most promising young electrical engineers in the United States. During the world war he was a captain in the signal corps and subsequently attracted the attention of Mr. Hoover by his work in reestablishing telephone and telegraph service in southeastern Europe.

During the sessions the delegates will be received at the White House by President Coolidge. Besides the governmental departments, such as the army and navy, the following organizations will be among those represented:

Institute of Radio Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Steamship Owners' association, National Electric Light association, National Broadcasters' association, American Society of Composers, American Newspaper Publishers' association and Radio Manufacturers' association.

London Studio Plans Armistice Day Prorgam

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The London studio is planning a novelty "air" night on the eve of Armistice day. The program will begin with an hour's concert by the Royal Air Force band, following which there will be an hour of transmission from the air. Two great air liners will fly over London, one carrying a troupe of theatrical artists, the other a tango band.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

BY QUIN A. RYAN, W-G-N ANNOUNCER.

WHILE down east for the Illinois-Pennsylvania game we peeped into a few radio stations. It is with a burdened heart and a sense of lost faith in Santa Claus that we have to report that the New York radio studios are not as gaspworthy as the radio magazines would have you believe. They all have nice davenports to sit on, but we liked the aquarium.

We had been given to understand that the New York studios were models of showmanship, statesmanship, and table d'hôte, but we found them just like all other radio stations. They are not all that they have been cracked up to be.

There is as much comparison between New York studios and the Chicago studios as there is between two decks of cards.

They are not the impassioned laboratories of drama and music we had pictured. With Broadway's bonanza of showmanship at their disposal, with ten times the talent and the entertainment material that Omaha or Cincinnati has, their programs and their methods are not ten times better than Omaha's or Cincinnati's. Nor five times as good, nor three. For methods and studio layout and such matters, station WOC, at Davenport, can teach them plenty. The WOC studio, by the way, is almost the ideal radio workshop.

Oddly enough, the most satisfying studio on our route was the one which is oftenest scolded. That is the municipal station, WNYC, in the city hall. It is handsome, serious, and efficient; not gaudy, not haughty, nor silly, as are the studios of many a radio station. And one interesting fact is that the personnel had no particular interest in the mayoralty election of last Tuesday, in so far as it had any bearing on their jobs.

Some New Yorkers in the radio business seem unaware that there are other stations west of the Hudson. One of the most prominent announcers in town had never heard of Charlie Erbstein or the late Elgin station, WTAS.

And, speaking of announcers, the New York boys are eclipsed for ease and humanness and literacy by announcers of other sections, such as the aforesaid Erbstein, the Fort Worth Hired Hand, the Kansas City Leo Fitzpatrick, the Atlanta Lambdin Kay, and the Nebraska Bill Hay.

In New York the radio announcers stand while announcing, on the theory that the voice doesn't get in its full quota if the speaker is seated. They should watch a ventriloquist or a stock salesman work.

We wonder that some New York station does not attempt to put Broadway itself on the radio in a thorough and permanent manner. Numerous writers, such as O. J. O. McIntyre, Karl K. Kitchen and S. Jay Kaufman, devote themselves to transmitting New York as Broadway day after day to the newspaper syndicates and the magazines. The American public somehow, the country over, is fascinated by tales of Manhattan and Broadway. The eccentric characters, the famous personages, the little grotesque happenings and the human interest stories. These could be done into a daily feature, presenting most of the characters in person to talk a bit and with some of the motley noises of the thoroughfare picked up by a microphone on the scene.

In Philadelphia the stations we dropped in on are located in department stores. And having a radio studio in a department store is rather rough on all parties concerned. If the studio is in operation during the daytime it has hot competition, through the thin walls, from the phonograph and radio demonstration sections just outside the door. The radio salesmen outside are trying to demonstrate their sets, and all they can get is the station twenty feet away because it is so powerfully close, and if the station is broadcasting after store hours then the performers have a sweet time trying to get into the building. First, they must knock on every door until a grumpy night watchman hobbles over to inquire through the locked portal what they want. Then they must advance, give the ribbon countersign, and write their own names in a bold free hand. Then they are searched for bombs, and if they hold lighted cigarets they must swallow them. Who could carol merrily into a microphone after all that?

DAMROSCH HOLDS RECORD OF 4,000 MUSICAL EVENTS

Walter Damrosch, veteran conductor of the New York Symphony orchestra, who will direct the Steinway concert to be heard from New York tonight, has conducted more than 4,000 musical events, with an average of two rehearsals for each, making a total of 12,000, which, at two hours' duration, makes a grand total of 24,000 hours of conducting.

Perhaps this remarkable record surpasses that of his famous father, Dr. Leopold Damroasch, one of the greatest orchestra conductors of his day, and interesting in other ways, as is evident by this side light some one wrote.

"No one can ever forget those spasmodic, but tremenodusly eloquent, jerks of his chin with its long beard with which Dr. Leopold Damroasch used to aim at his men when there was a staccato to be played."

Walter Damroasch, however, has never worn a beard. Rather in appearance he has been likened to William Gillette, the well-known actor. He is a fine public speaker.

Japan Continues as U. S. Best Customer

Although Canada is still second, Japan continues to be our best radio customer, as revealed by the purchases of the two countries during the last fiscal month, amounting to $227,687 and $163,381, respectively. The United Kingdom comes third, with Australia and Brazil next.

FLOOD OF CHEAP FOREIGN GOODS ALARMS LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 7. — British radio supply manufacturers are becoming alarmed at the quantities of "cheap" foreign goods which are said to be flooding the British market at present. It has been estimated that more than five million dollars have been lost to British manufacturers during a short period recently by the "dumping" tactics of French and German factories. It is claimed, also that the foreign goods are so poor that the public has lost in the bargain. The manufacturers are planning to ask the government for protection against this competition.

Wrangell, Alaska, Listens In on Japan Stations

WRANGELL, Alaska, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Claude A. Blackington of Wrangell is hearing the radio stations of Tokio and Nagoya regularly, according to a report sent to Japan. His success resulted in a cable inquiry from Tokio giving details of his reception. The first time he heard Japan he called in Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] other Japanese friends, who translated the announcements. This was the first time the newly established stations in Japan had bridged the Pacific. Mr. Blackington also hears WMBF, Miami Beach, Fla., WJZ, New York, WGY, Schenectady, and other stations at very long range, including Honolulu.

EVA GAUTHIER TO BE HEARD IN RADIO CONCERT

Microphone Debut to Be with John Powell.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Eva Gauthier, Canadian singer, and John Powell, well known concert pianist, will share honors in the sixth Atwater Kent radio program to be broadcast from station WEAF, and twelve other connected stations, tomorrow at 9:15 p. m., eastern standard time.

Miss Gauthier has had one of the best rounded out careers of present day concert artists. Born in Ottawa, she manifested from childhood such pronounced aptitude for singing that, at ten, she had already made a reputation as a child prodigy.

Educated in Europe.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then governor general of Canada, and Lady Laurier, devoted patrons of music, decided to send Eva to Europe to complete her education. After four years under the greatest teachers of Paris and three years with the famous Oxilia, of Milan, Italy, Miss Gauthier made her operatic debut in Covent Garden, London. She also sang in concert in Italy, Belgium, France, Holland, and Denmark.

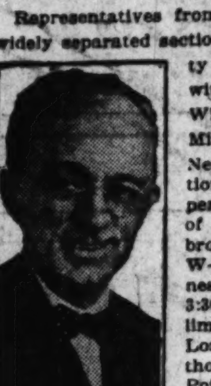
She has spent three years in the Orient and mastered the music of India, Siam, Japan, China, and the Philippines. Under the protection of the Dutch government, she obtained permission to mingle with the 300 wives of the sultan of Java. Her concert tour of Australia included more than 400 concerts.

Unique Program Scheduled.

Miss Gauthier sang in the Berkshire festival, held under the patronage of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, in the spring of last year. Special interest attaches to her radio debut, Sunday, not only because of her remarkable voice but also for the unique program scheduled.

John Powell, who will join Miss Gauthier in the radio concert, is a native of Richmond, Va. He there began the study of piano, followed by years of study in Vienna under the Austrian masters of harmony and composition. He made his debut in Berlin, 1907, and later appeared in London, Paris and Vienna. He has since concertized in the leading cities of Europe and America.

CITIES WIDELY APART WILL PARTICIPATE IN RADIO BRIDGE CONTEST



W[illegible] C. MORRIS.
[Woodcock Photo.]

Representatives from two cities in widely separated sections of the country will compete with Wilbur C. Whitehead and Milton C. Work, New York auction bridge experts in the series of radio games broadcast from W-G-N next Wednesday from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Willima C. Morris of Los Angeles, author of "Pithy Points in Auction Bridge," a close student of the game and known as one of the leading players of the Pacific, and P. R. Richards of Detroit, prominent in auction bridge councils and considered one of the chief exponents of the game in Detroit, will participate.

As a result of the series of radio auction bridbe games, hundreds of letters asking for reprints of the games following the broadcasting are being received by stations using this feature. Radio fans throughout the country say that the feature of bridge games is one of the biggest events put on the air.

The plan of broadcasting is to have listeners-in in their own home secure four players around a table with cards ready and then follow each bid and play as made by the experts playing the game. Time has been arranged so that those playing the game in their homes or clubs can follow with ease the explanation given over the radio.

MISS CROCKER TO TELL U. S. HOW TO COOK MEALS

Friday morning, Nov. 6, housewives of the United States will be introduced to the first national radio cooking school, which will be broadcast by WHT, together with eleven other of the larger broadcasting stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts.

The school will be conducted by Betty Crocker, who already has several thousand listeners to the home service talks which she broadcasts from WHT at 10:45 a. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays

Registrations for the school, which may be made without any fee or cost whatsoever, are now being accepted. Final date for registration is Nov. 4.

LISTENER TO BE LEADING FACTOR IN CONFERENCE

"Service" to Him Paramount to All Else.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—"Service to the listener" will be one of the first points to be discussed at the coming fourth national radio conference to be held at Washington on Nov. 9, and will possibly be the easiest to pass upon, according to Henry M. Shaw, president of the National Radio Trade association.

"The radio listener has already protected himself against advertising of objectionable quality through broadcasting stations," Mr. Shaw said. "By refusing to listen to uninteresting advertising and propaganda programs, he has censored the radio programs of even the greediest broadcaster and his protests to the better class stations has been the greatest factor in the improvement of radio programs that the industry can find.

Protests Yield Results.

"The listener's protests against interfering stations has evolved the principle that power of broadcasters shall be restricted only when the power causes interference 'in the receiving set of the listeners,' which was one of the proposals the National Radio Trade association offered at the last Hoover conference.

"By the same token the listener will regulate the poorer broadcasting stations out of existence by refusing to listen to them, or by rather listening to the better stations; that is, stations which present programs stronger from the viewpoint of entertainment value."

Must Serve Listener.

Broadcasting stations now operating which are providing interesting programs should be given some assurance of their right to continue to broadcast, he further stated, but "no broadcaster should be given the right to broadcast indefinitely on any given wave—without some method being devised of keeping the broadcasting up to a standard that will interest the public and that will serve the listener as well as other broadcasters in the same district who, perhaps, are on restricted time."

WILL BROADCAST K. C. LIVE STOCK 'MOOS' AND 'BAS'

Arrangements have been completed by WLS to broadcast the proceedings of the American Royal Live Stock show, to be held in Kansas City Nov. 14 to 21. A studio will be installed in the Sears, Roebuck booth, and a microphone also will be placed in the arena, from which the mooing of the cattle, the neighing of the horses at the horse show, and short talks by winners of the championships will be broadcast. The programs will go out over WDAF, the Kansas City Star station.

Jazz Missing from Philhormonic Program

Another indication that jazz will have to fight for its radio supremacy is the announcement of the new series of twelve concerts by the New York Philharmonic orchestra, one of the oldest and most outstanding musical organizations in the United States.

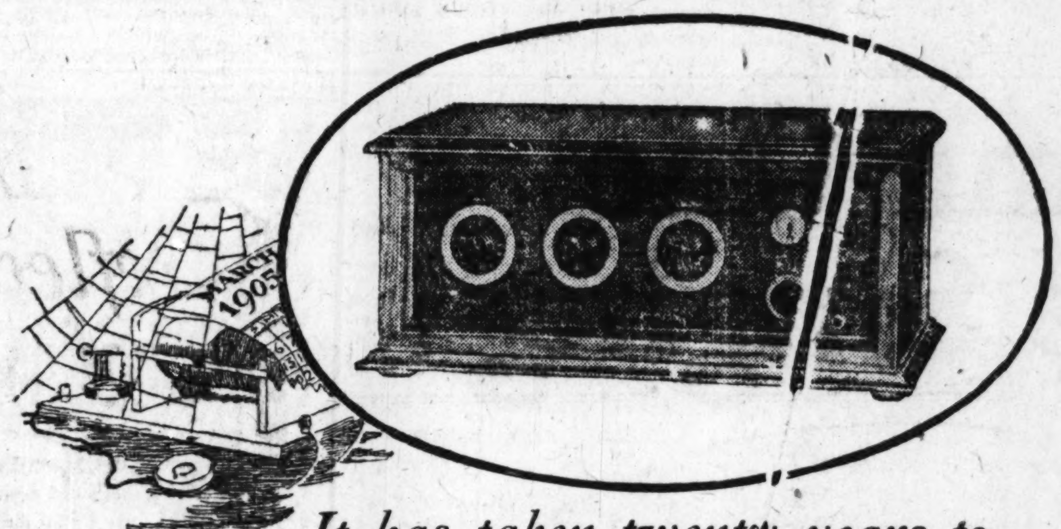
It has taken twenty years to build the NEW COLONIAL!



Dr. Fulton Cutting and Mr. Bowden Washington were learning about radio, experimenting with radio and teaching radio more than twenty years ago.

Today they offer THE COLONIAL! Today they offer the fruit of their twenty years of effort. Today they offer an improved development and refinement of radio.

Many thousands will this year hear the COLONIAL under exacting comparisons. Many thousands will buy the COLONIAL because of its unfailing performance, which is the result of superb radio engineering.

Only substantial, reliable dealers in this territory will sell COLONIAL. It will pay you to see the one nearest you.

Every COLONIAL is absolutely guaranteed. You will have no regrets with a COLONIAL, but you may regret any radio purchase made without hearing and investigating the COLONIAL.

Seven models priced from $58. to $175. Every one an engineering masterpiece in its class.

Hear the COLONIAL before you buy any radio. There are no obligations and it pays to be sure.

KYW TO OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY ANNIVERSARY

City's Oldest Station on Air Four Years.

Chicago's radio birthday is KYW's birthday, and it is also an anniversary of the world war armistice. There are three big reasons for a real celebration. When KYW went on the air for the first time—Nov. 11, 1921 — the Westinghouse company assisted Chicago in introducing radio to the west, and how wonderfully radio has advanced since that time the world knows.

KYW will "carry on" during the day with programs that are patriotic and symbolic of Armistice day. From 12 noon to 1 p. m. the Edison studio, under direction of Morgan Eastman, gives the first armistice program, and from 8 to 9 p. m. the Congress studio, under the direction of Ed Borroff, will give another program of the same nature, both of them made up for classical and semi-classical artists.

Typical Trench Program.

Starting at 10 p. m., the studio will put on the ether a typical trench program offered by the Advertising post of the American Legion. The sketch worked up is intended to tell the story of the war and Armistice day, and much of the music will include popular songs known at that time. Lee Sims is to play a medley of all the war songs the boys "over there" used to sing.

Maj. Reed Landis, the American ace and son of former Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, as well as Commander John Rogers, whose ill fated expedition was forced to be adrift in the Pacific for nine days during the flight from San Francisco to the Hawaiian islands, and others of war-time fame will be there to help draw a radio mental vision of the recent conflict.

Just Four Years Old.

On this day, when a suffering world was given peace, it is Chicago's privilege to celebrate its radio birthday. It was just four years ago tha KYW gave the west its first radio voice, and that same voice is now daily traveling the mystic planes of the ether wave, bringing cheer, happiness, and news to a countless number of homes, many of them isolated beyond immediate human reach.

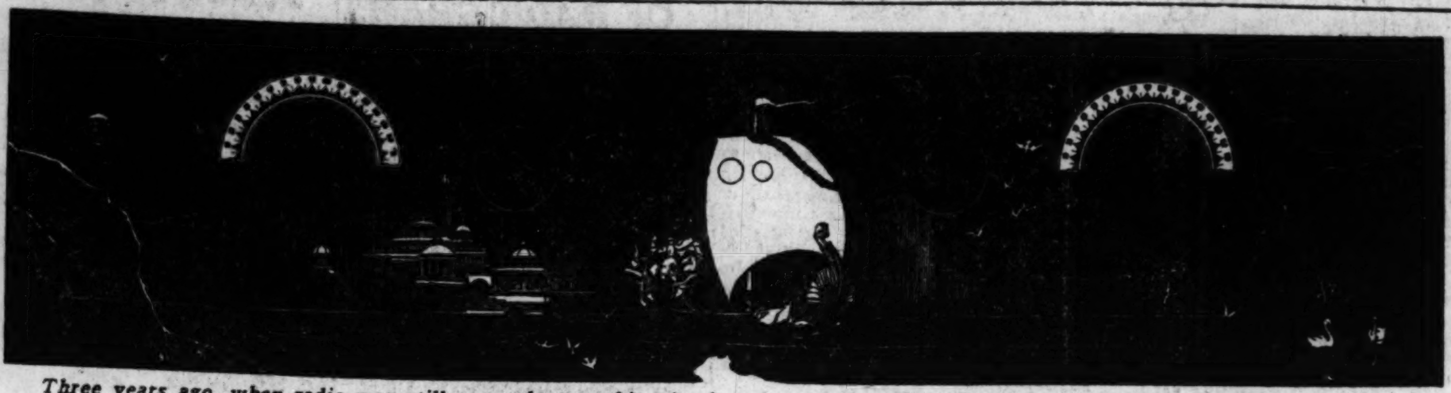
Walter C. Evans, the station's present chief engineer, was also the chief engineer when KYW first went on the air. Wilson Wetherbee, a pioneer with KYW, is also its present director, and others of the KYW staff who helped make radio history for Chicago can recall when the infant station of four years ago broadcast about two hours' programs each day. Today KYW is a twenty-four hour service and broadcasts everything known to radio.

ARMISTICE DAY AT WOC TO BE BIG OCCASION

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A special Armistice day program is being arranged by Bernie Schultz, leader of the Crescent orchestra, which will be broadcast from WOC at Davenport, Ia., on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10, at 9:30.

This special armistice feature is known in radio parlance as a continuity program. It is a story with musical setting of the struggles of a clever composer to complete what he fondly hopes will be regarded as his masterpiece. It vividly portrays his futile struggles to complete his theme—futile until the great war, in which he "does his bit," seemingly destroys the fetters restraining his ability to complete his masterpiece. Not until his return to New York from France is his secret hope fulfilled.

BEAUTY IN RADIO



Three years ago, when radio was still a novelty, anything in the way of a receiving set that would work could easily be sold. Now, however, buyers of sets are looking for beauty as well as reception. The above is the latest thing in decorative panels, and next year's sets will probably all be equipped with something similar.

LOCAL STATIONS IN BIG HOOKUP FOR RADIO SHOW

Opportunity for Fans to See Artists.

The most elaborate system of broadcasting stations ever attempted in Chicago will be a feature of the fourth annual Chicago Radio show, which opens in the Coliseum a week from next Tuesday. Already the following stations have arranged to be connected with a model broadcasting station in the Coliseum: W-G-N, WMAQ, WLIB, WGES, WLS, WENR, WJAZ, WHT, WIBO, and WJJD, the latter two will pick up and rebroadcast the programs from the show.

J. Elliott Jenkins, technical director, will install a system by which any or all of the stations may be cut in or out at any time. Frank L. Bennett is the program director.

All of the Chicago stations will have their leading artists at the show, as well as most of the famous announcers. The studio on the second floor of the Coliseum Annex, built under the direction of Clay Irwin, manager of the show, will be the last word in studio construction. There the public can see its favorite artists.

The opening program will have as a feature an opening address by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling. Mayor Dever has been invited to represent the city and Senator William B. McKinley will be the guest of the Radio Manufacturers' association.

SUBSEA RADIO COMMUNICATION FOUND USABLE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—If during a battle in the next war the air becomes jammed or for other reasons radio communication must cease, due to progress recently made it is very likely warships will be able to successfully communicate with each other under water.

The U. S. submarine S-18, operating off Block island, in the Atlantic ocean, reports that ranges of 16,000 yards for code communication and 400 yards for phone communication have been obtained with the experimental underwater sound apparatus, using a supersonic frequency.

SENSITIVE TUBE

THE new thermionic photo-electric tube, the invention of V. K. Zworykin of the Westinghouse electrical research laboratories at East Pittsburgh. This tube is one of the most sensitive known to physicists and will send out electric currents and radio impulses whenever a ray of light falls upon it. It is applied for a wide variety of purposes, such as steering ships, controlling railroad trains automatically, recording the light from variable stars, and promises to provide the means for transmission of moving pictures by radio.

EASTERN CANADA HAMS TO MEET IN CONVENTION

F. H. Schnell to Tell Story of His Work.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—This city has been chosen the headquarters for a convention of amateur radio telegraphers of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island, which is to be in session for three days commencing Thursday, Nov. 26.

Visitors are expected from all of the provinces mentioned and from the adjoining states of the United States. Officially the gathering is to be known as the Eastern Canada American Radio Relay league convention.

Officers from the international headquarters of the league at Hartford, Conn., are to be represented in the persons of Treasurer A. H. Herbert and Traffic Manager F. H. Schnell. The latter, who has just returned after six months of notable radio work as operator of experimental short wave station NRRL, on duty with the United States fleet in the Pacific, will tell the story of his work on this cruise.

During his absence from headquarters he established an excellent record of reliability in communication, working constantly with amateur stations on all of the continents as well as with many official United States navy stations in various parts of the U. S.

Commander C. P. Edwards, director of radio in the department of marine and fisheries, will be the official Canadian government representative. The American Radio Relay league, to which practically every Canadian amateur belongs, will also have as a representative the Canadian general manager, A. H. K. Russell of Toronto.

It is expected that there will be discussion by experts in the various technical phases of radio and a considerable share of the time will be given over by the delegates to the consideration of amateur problems.

Keep Paint Out of Radio Receiver

Paint should not be used in a radio receiver. It will cause leakage. If the instruments are mounted upon wooden baseboard the wood should be left dry. In the coils and condensers no liquid of any kind should be used to improve their appearance.

HOW NOT TO BE HUMILIATED BY SET IN COMPANY

One of the trials of the radio DX hunter is the inability of his set to perform for company. Invariably when the friend to whom he has bragged about getting the coast drops in to be shown, local stations are all the fan can get.

An eastern radio enthusiast, however, has developed a system which has earned him quite a reputation as a DX hunter and rarely, if ever, does he fail on visitors' night—thus attaining a unique position in fandom. This is his secret:

"Select a test station about 300 to 500 miles away that is consistently heard, weakly or strongly, early in the evening," he says. "Mine is KDKA. If KDKA is heard only with the headphones, at 7 o'clock, I know that it will be a comparatively poor night in radio. If KDKA comes booming in, like a local, I know conditions are right, and will pick up 20 to 40 other stations by midnight or before. Then I phone the crowd and they troop in to hear, probably as opening number, WLW or WSAI, then WMBF, and so on. Ordinarily, I hear these stations and others every night, but unless they come in extra volume I cannot thrill the folks, and so I do not ask them around until KDKA is whizzing in."

So get your test stations and see how it works in your part of the country.

Radio Manufacturers to Send Carter to Conference

The Radio Manufacturers' association has sent A. J. Carter as a delegate to the Hoover radio conference, which is to be held in Washington tomorrow. E. N. Rauland and C. D. Boyd have been chosen as alternates. Radio manufacturers are vitally interested in the outcome of the conference and are attending in the interests of the listening public.

BRITISH SHOW DEVICE TO SET ELECTRIC CLOCKS

A device was displayed at the British wireless exhibition in London for the synchronization of electric time clocks by means of a broadcast signal. It is described as follows:

"The invention consists of a master clock which can be tuned to operate automatically from any time signal, such as that from Greenwich or Arlington. At a fixed moment, about thirty seconds before the time signal would be due, the master clock automatically switches on the tubes of a receiving set and at the same second opens the aerial earthing switch.

"A particularly intricate and ingenious device is provided which discriminates infallibly between the warning signal which precedes the time, and the actual time signal itself. When the signal is over, the clock automatically switches off the tubes and re-earths the aerial, everything being reset for the next signal."

No Need to Apologize

YOU won't have to apologize to anyone at any time for the way Akradyne performs.

Akradyne Receivers can be depended upon for perfect reception and quality reproduction whenever you want it. The voice of the singer or speaker, the strains of the orchestral music, come to you as faithfully as they are created.

DERESNADYNE II

A superlative 5-tube receiver

FOR those who want a radio receiver second to none the Deresnadyne will settle the question of which radio set to buy. It does not choose between tone quality and volume, nor between distance and selectivity. It combines them.

DERESNADYNE II, illustrated above, makes available to those who already own battery and speaker equipment the same performance as Deresnadyne I and III, which operate from the light socket. Specially priced at $125—little more than the cost of an ordinary set.

DERESNADYNE III—a complete 5-tube receiver operating from the light socket. The last word in radio convenience. Equipped with permanent guaranteed power units which furnish all current from the lighting circuit. Built-in loud speaker. All equipment but aerial included in cabinet. Price complete with matched tubes.

Every 'DIATRON' reflects the achievements of Walter Armstrong

A RADIO tube is an electric light in an advanced stage. To make a good tube a man must have had years of experience in the art of producing good lamps.

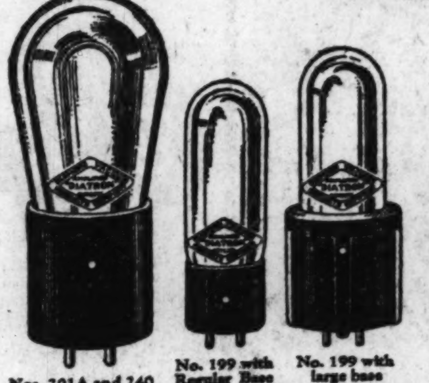
THIRTY-EIGHT years ago Walter Armstrong began his unparalled experience with the pioneers of the electrical industry. In all these years there is, probably, no man whose experience has brought him to that enviable position where he now is—without an equal as a manufacturer of the highest quality radio tubes. He can blow and shape his own glass, treat his own metals, make his own filament, construct his own vacuum pumps, test his finished product and overcome all troubles.

SINCE 1887 with such pioneers as Swan Lamp, Shelby Lamp, Federal Miniature Lamp Division of General Electric and as the head of his own lamp works, he has been responsible for many of the outstanding developments in electric lamps, x-ray and radio tubes.

DIATRON radio tubes are made under the direction and personal supervision of Walter Armstrong in a modern plant, built exclusively for their manufacture. Their inherent qualities and special construction always assure satisfaction. They are sold under the most liberal and common-sense guarantee.

Price for all types $2.50 EACH

YOU'LL thoroughly enjoy radio with DIATRONS. Ask for them at any good radio store.



Nos. 201A and 240 | No. 199 with Regular Base | No. 199 with large base

DIATRON Special Feature

This illustrates the grid and filament with the plate removed. The filament is so supported that filament and grid must move together and cannot short circuit if the tube is jarred to an extent that would change the position of either element. Every turn of the grid is electrically welded. Patents applied for.

DIATRON No. 240 is the only tube manufactured for the Radio Frequency side of Neutrodyne and Tuned Radio Frequency Sets made before January 1, 1925.

EYES OF RADIO INDUSTRY SET ON WASHINGTON

4th Annual Conference Opens Tomorrow.

forting to mariners, and the radio compass, to guide navigators of both sky and sea. During that time the short wave has been expanded to a point where we may hear half way around the world.

Progress Brings Problems.

This kaleidoscopic development, however, has brought with it unusual problems. One of the main questions which the forthcoming convention will grapple with will be to limit the number of broadcasting stations which are springing up like mushrooms throughout the land.

Notwithstanding the fact that the wave channels have long been exhausted, about 200 inquirers have signified to Secretary Hoover their intention of installing broadcasting stations, a number of which are actually in the course of erection, or have asked for information concerning necessary requirements.

Another important topic the conference will consider will be superpower, but there will not be the hysteria about this that there was a year ago. Then 1,000 watts was the limit. A bombshell was thrown into the conference by the talk of a 50,000 watt station.

It created so much excitement that Secretary Hoover issued a special statement to assure the listening public that its rights would be safeguarded. And he has lived up to this in every sense of the word.

Super-Power Is Here.

Nevertheless, super-power is here and, as said at the beginning, it is a common thing for stations to be operating on 5,000 and 10,000 watts. Likewise the first 50,000 watt station is with us and a second is soon to start, but the announcement of these stations evidently caused more excitement than interference by their actual operation.

The conference is expected to bring forth another discussion of the use of broadcasting stations for advertising purposes. Also the conference will probably afford a meeting place between the warring factions of the broadcasters and the composers on the subject of copyright payment for the use of copyright compositions.

More adequate funds for putting down interference and policing the air will be urged. Proposed congressional legislation will come in for its share of attention.

Hoover the Keynoter.

Secretary Hoover will be the dominant figure and as usual will deliver the keynote address, very probably on Monday. In addition to this, he will preside at all sessions. Mr. Hoover has already announced that an effort will be made to conclude the conference within three days, excepting perhaps a few continued committee meetings.

Paul S. Clapp, one of the assistants to Mr. Hoover, will act as secretary. Mr. Clapp was once described by Secretary Hoover as one of the most promising young electrical engineers in the United States. During the world war he was a captain in the signal corps and subsequently attracted the attention of Mr. Hoover by his work in reestablishing telephone and telegraph service in southeastern Europe.

During the sessions the delegates will be received at the White House by President Coolidge. Besides the governmental departments, such as the army and navy, the following organizations will be among those represented:

Institute of Radio Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Steamship Owners' association, National Electric Light association, National Broadcasters' association, American Society of Composers, American Newspaper Publishers' association and Radio Manufacturers' association.

London Studio Plans Armistice Day Prorgam

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The London studio is planning a novelty "air" night on the eve of Armistice day. The program will begin with an hour's concert by the Royal Air Force band, following which there will be an hour of transmission from the air. Two great air liners will fly over London, one carrying a troupe of theatrical artists, the other a tango band.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

BY QUIN A. RYAN, W-G-N ANNOUNCER.

WHILE down east for the Illinois-Pennsylvania game we peeped into a few radio stations. It is with a burdened heart and a sense of lost faith in Santa Claus that we have to report that the New York radio studios are not as gaspworthy as the radio magazines would have you believe. They all have nice davenports to sit on, but we liked the aquarium.

We had been given to understand that the New York studios were models of showmanship, statesmanship, and table d'hôte, but we found them just like all other radio stations. They are not all that they have been cracked up to be.

There is as much comparison between New York studios and the Chicago studios as there is between two decks of cards.

They are not the impassioned laboratories of drama and music we had pictured. With Broadway's bonanza of showmanship at their disposal, with ten times the talent and the entertainment material that Omaha or Cincinnati has, their programs and their methods are not ten times better than Omaha's or Cincinnati's. Nor five times as good, nor three. For methods and studio layout and such matters, station WOC, at Davenport, can teach them plenty. The WOC studio, by the way, is almost the ideal radio workshop.

Oddly enough, the most satisfying studio on our route was the one which is oftenest scolded. That is the municipal station, WNYC, in the city hall. It is handsome, serious, and efficient; not gaudy, not haughty, nor silly, as are the studios of many a radio station. And one interesting fact is that the personnel had no particular interest in the mayoralty election of last Tuesday, in so far as it had any bearing on their jobs.

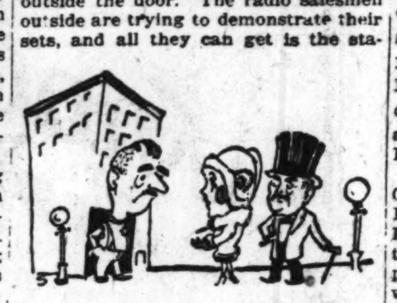
Some New Yorkers in the radio business seem unaware that there are other stations west of the Hudson. One of the most prominent announcers in town had never heard of Charlie Erbstein or the late Elgin station, WTAS.

And, speaking of announcers, the New York boys are eclipsed for ease and humanness and literacy by announcers of other sections, such as the aforesaid Erbstein, the Fort Worth Hired Hand, the Kansas City Leo Fitzpatrick, the Atlanta Lambdin Kay, and the Nebraska Bill Hay.

In New York the radio announcers stand while announcing, on the theory that the voice doesn't get in its full quota if the speaker is seated. They should watch a ventriloquist or a stock salesman work.

We wonder that some New York station does not attempt to put Broadway itself on the radio in a thorough and permanent manner. Numerous writers, such as O. J. O. McIntyre, Karl K. Kitchen and S. Jay Kaufman, devote themselves to transmitting New York as Broadway day after day to the newspaper syndicates and the magazines. The American public somehow, the country over, is fascinated by tales of Manhattan and Broadway. The eccentric characters, the famous personages, the little grotesque happenings and the human interest stories. These could be done into a daily feature, presenting most of the characters in person to talk a bit and with some of the motley noises of the thoroughfare picked up by a microphone on the scene.

In Philadelphia the stations we dropped in on are located in department stores. And having a radio studio in a department store is rather rough on all parties concerned. If the studio is in operation during the daytime it has hot competition, through the thin walls, from the phonograph and radio demonstration sections just outside the door. The radio salesmen outside are trying to demonstrate their sets, and all they can get is the station twenty feet away because it is so powerfully close, and if the station is broadcasting after store hours then the performers have a sweet time trying to get into the building. First, they must knock on every door until a grumpy night watchman hobbles over to inquire through the locked portal what they want. Then they must advance, give the ribbon countersign, and write their own names in a bold free hand. Then they are searched for bombs, and if they hold lighted cigarets they must swallow them. Who could carol merrily into a microphone after all that?



DAMROSCH HOLDS RECORD OF 4,000 MUSICAL EVENTS

Walter Damrosch, veteran conductor of the New York Symphony orchestra, who will direct the Steinway concert to be heard from New York tonight, has conducted more than 4,000 musical events, with an average of two rehearsals for each, making a total of 12,000, which, at two hours' duration, makes a grand total of 24,000 hours of conducting.

Perhaps this remarkable record surpasses that of his famous father, Dr. Leopold Damroasch, one of the greatest orchestra conductors of his day, and interesting in other ways, as is evident by this side light some one wrote.

"No one can ever forget those spasmodic, but tremenodusly eloquent, jerks of his chin with its long beard with which Dr. Leopold Damroasch used to aim at his men when there was a staccato to be played."

Walter Damroasch, however, has never worn a beard. Rather in appearance he has been likened to William Gillette, the well-known actor. He is a fine public speaker.

Japan Continues as U. S. Best Customer

Although Canada is still second, Japan continues to be our best radio customer, as revealed by the purchases of the two countries during the last fiscal month, amounting to $227,687 and $163,381, respectively. The United Kingdom comes third, with Australia and Brazil next.

FLOOD OF CHEAP FOREIGN GOODS ALARMS LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 7. — British radio supply manufacturers are becoming alarmed at the quantities of "cheap" foreign goods which are said to be flooding the British market at present. It has been estimated that more than five million dollars have been lost to British manufacturers during a short period recently by the "dumping" tactics of French and German factories. It is claimed, also that the foreign goods are so poor that the public has lost in the bargain. The manufacturers are planning to ask the government for protection against this competition.

Wrangell, Alaska, Listens In on Japan Stations

WRANGELL, Alaska Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Claude A. Blackington of Wrangell is hearing the radio stations of Tokio and Nagoya regularly, according to a report sent to Japan. His success resulted in a cable inquiry from Tokio giving details of his reception. The first time he heard Japan he called in Mr. and M s [illegible] other Japanese friends, who translated the announcements. This was the first time the newly established stations in Japan had bridged the Pacific. Mr. Blackington also hears WMBF, Miami Beach, Fla., WJZ, New York, WGY, Schenectady, and other stations at very long range, including Honolulu.

EVA GAUTHIER TO BE HEARD IN RADIO CONCERT

Microphone Debut to Be with John Powell.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Eva Gauthier, Canadian singer, and John Powell, well known concert pianist, will share honors in the sixth Atwater Kent radio program to be broadcast from station WEAF, and twelve other connected stations, tomorrow at 9:15 p. m., eastern standard time.

Miss Gauthier has had one of the best rounded out careers of present day concert artists. Born in Ottawa, she manifested from childhood such pronounced aptitude for singing that, at ten, she had already made a reputation as a child prodigy.

Educated in Europe.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then governor general of Canada, and Lady Laurier, devoted patrons of music, decided to send Eva to Europe to complete her education. After four years under the greatest teachers of Paris and three years with the famous Oxilia, of Milan, Italy, Miss Gauthier made her operatic debut in Covent Garden, London. She also sang in concert in Italy, Belgium, France, Holland, and Denmark.

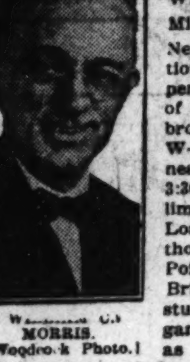
She has spent three years in the Orient and mastered the music of India, Siam, Japan, China, and the Philippines. Under the protection of the Dutch government, she obtained permission to mingle with the 300 wives of the sultan of Java. Her concert tour of Australia included more than 400 concerts.

Unique Program Scheduled.

Miss Gauthier sang in the Berkshire festival, held under the patronage of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, in the spring of last year. Special interest attaches to her radio debut, Sunday, not only because of her remarkable voice but also for the unique program scheduled.

John Powell, who will join Miss Gauthier in the radio concert, is a native of Richmond, Va. He there began the study of piano, followed by years of study in Vienna under the Austrian masters of harmony and composition. He made his debut in Berlin, 1907, and later appeared in London, Paris and Vienna. He has since concertized in the leading cities of Europe and America.

CITIES WIDELY APART WILL PARTICIPATE IN RADIO BRIDGE CONTEST



[illegible] C. MORRIS.

Representatives from two cities in widely separated sections of the country will compete with Wilbur C. Whitehead and Milton C. Work, New York auction bridge experts in the series of radio games broadcast from W-G-N next Wednesday from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Willima C. Morris of Los Angeles, author of "Pithy Points in Auction Bridge," a close student of the game and known as one of the leading players of the Pacific, and P. R. Richards of Detroit, prominent in auction bridge councils and considered one of the chief exponents of the game in Detroit, will participate.

As a result of the series of radio auction bridbe games, hundreds of letters asking for reprints of the games following the broadcasting are being received by stations using this feature. Radio fans throughout the country say that the feature of bridge games is one of the biggest events put on the air.

The plan of broadcasting is to have listeners-in in their own home secure four players around a table with cards ready and then follow each bid and play as made by the experts playing the game. Time has been arranged so that those playing the game in their homes or clubs can follow with ease the explanation given over the radio.

MISS CROCKER TO TELL U. S. HOW TO COOK MEALS

Friday morning, Nov. 6, housewives of the United States will be introduced to the first national radio cooking school, which will be broadcast by WHT, together with eleven other of the larger broadcasting stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts.

The school will be conducted by Betty Crocker, who already has several thousand listeners to the home service talks which she broadcasts from WHT at 10:45 a. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Registrations for the school, which may be made without any fee or cost whatsoever, are now being accepted. Final date for registration is Nov. 4.

LISTENER TO BE LEADING FACTOR IN CONFERENCE

"Service" to Him Paramount to All Else.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—"Service to the listener" will be one of the first points to be discussed at the coming fourth national radio conference to be held at Washington on Nov. 9, and will possibly be the easiest to pass upon, according to Henry M. Shaw, president of the National Radio Trade association.

"The radio listener has already protected himself against advertising of objectionable quality through broadcasting stations," Mr. Shaw said. "By refusing to listen to uninteresting advertising and propaganda programs, he has censored the radio programs of even the greediest broadcaster and his protests to the better class stations has been the greatest factor in the improvement of radio programs that the industry can find.

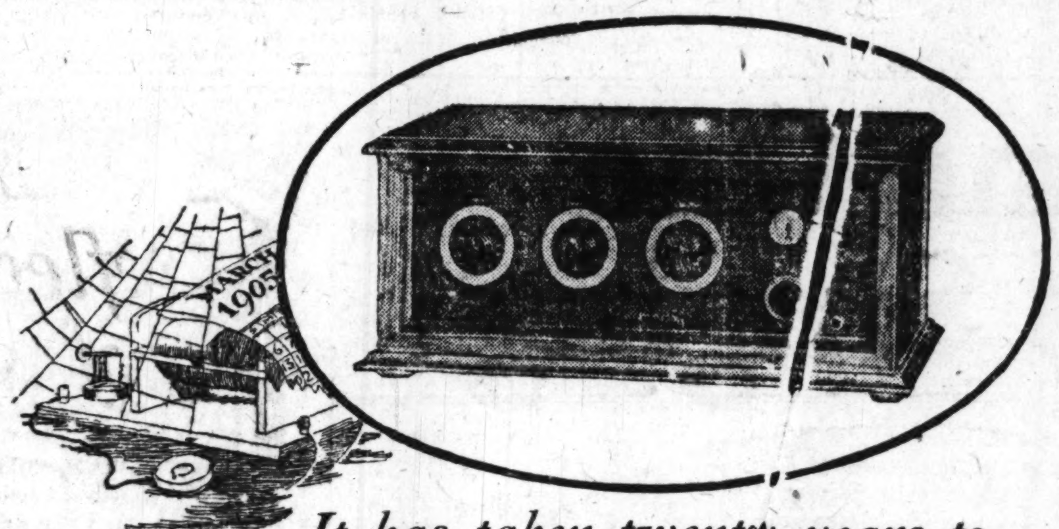
Protests Yield Results.

"The listener's protests against interfering stations has evolved the principle that power of broadcasters shall be restricted only when the power causes interference 'in the receiving set of the listeners,' which was one of the proposals the National Radio Trade association offered at the last Hoover conference.

"By the same token the listener will regulate the poorer broadcasting stations out of existence by refusing to listen to them, or by rather listening to the better stations; that is, stations which present programs stronger from the viewpoint of entertainment value."

Must Serve Listener.

Broadcasting stations now operating which are providing interesting programs should be given some assurance of their right to continue to broadcast, he further stated, but "no broadcaster should be given the right to broadcast indefinitely on any given wave—without some method being devised of keeping the broadcasting up to a standard that will interest the public and that will serve the listener as well as other broadcasters in the same district who, perhaps, are on restricted time."



It has taken twenty years to build the NEW COLONIAL!

Dr. Fulton Cutting and Mr. Bowden Washington were learning about radio, experimenting with radio and teaching radio more than twenty years ago.

Today they offer THE COLONIAL! Today they offer the fruit of their twenty years of effort. Today they offer an improved development and refinement of radio.

Many thousands will this year hear the COLONIAL under exacting comparisons. Many thousands will buy the COLONIAL because of its unfailing performance, which is the result of superb radio engineering.

Only substantial, reliable dealers in this territory will sell COLONIAL. It will pay you to see the one nearest you.

Every COLONIAL is absolutely guaranteed. You will have no regrets with a COLONIAL, but you may regret any radio purchase made without hearing and investigating the COLONIAL.

Seven models priced from $58. to $175. Every one an engineering masterpice in its class.

Hear the COLONIAL before you buy any radio There are no obligations and it pays to be sure.

WILL BROADCAST K. C. LIVE STOCK 'MOOS' AND 'BAS'

Arrangements have been completed by WLS to broadcast the proceedings of the American Royal Live Stock show, to be held in Kansas City Nov. 14 to 21. A studio will be installed in the Sears, Roebuck booth, and a microphone also will be placed in the arena, from which the mooing of the cattle, the neighing of the horses at the horse show, and short talks by winners of the championships will be broadcast. The programs will go out over WDAF, the Kansas City Star station.

Jazz Missing from Philhormonic Program

Another indication that jazz will have to fight for its radio supremacy is the announcement of the new series of twelve concerts by the New York Philharmonic orchestra, one of the oldest and most outstanding musical organizations in the United States.

KYW TO OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY ANNIVERSARY

City's Oldest Station on Air Four Years.

Chicago's radio birthday is KYW's birthday, and it is also an anniversary of the world war armistice. There are three big reasons for a real celebration. When KYW went on the air for the first time—Nov. 11, 1921 — the Westinghouse company assisted Chicago in introducing radio to the west, and how wonderfully radio has advanced since that time the world knows.

KYW will "carry on" during the day with programs that are patriotic and symbolic of Armistice day. From 12 noon to 1 p. m. the Edison studio, under direction of Morgan Eastman, gives the first armistice program, and from 8 to 9 p. m. the Congress studio, under the direction of Ed Borroff, will give another program of the same nature, both of them made up for classical and semi-classical artists.

Typical Trench Program.

Starting at 10 p. m., the studio will put on the ether a typical trench program offered by the Advertising post of the American Legion. The sketch worked up is intended to tell the story of the war and Armistice day, and much of the music will include popular songs known at that time. Lee Sims is to play a medley of all the war songs the boys "over there" used to sing.

Maj. Reed Landis, the American ace and son of former Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, as well as Commander John Rogers, whose ill fated expedition was forced to be adrift in the Pacific for nine days during the flight from San Francisco to the Hawaiian islands, and others of war-time fame will be there to help draw a radio mental vision of the recent conflict.

Just Four Years Old.

On this day, when a suffering world was given peace, it is Chicago's privilege to celebrate its radio birthday. It was just four years ago tha KYW gave the west its first radio voice, and that same voice is now daily traveling the mystic planes of the ether wave, bringing cheer, happiness, and news to a countless number of homes, many of them isolated beyond immediate human reach.

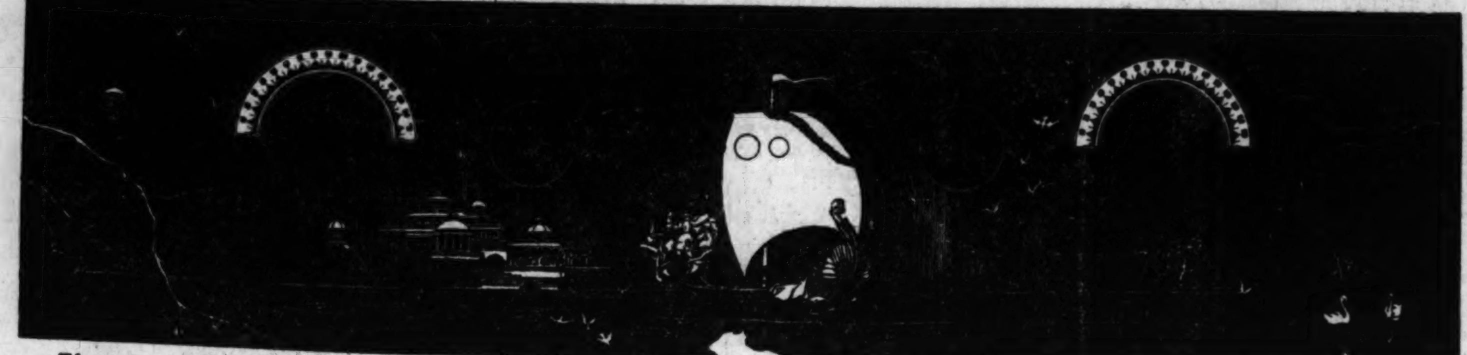
Walter C. Evans, the station's present chief engineer, was also the chief engineer when KYW first went on the air. Wilson Wetherbee, a pioneer with KYW, is also its present director, and others of the KYW staff who helped make radio history for Chicago can recall when the infant station of four years ago broadcast about two hours' programs each day. Today KYW is a twenty-four hour service and broadcasts everything known to radio.

ARMISTICE DAY AT WOC TO BE BIG OCCASION

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A special Armistice day program is being arranged by Bernie Schultz, leader of the Crescent orchestra, which will be broadcast from WOC at Davenport, Ia., on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10, at 9:30.

This special armistice feature is known in radio parlance as a continuity program. It is a story with musical setting of the struggles of a clever composer to complete what he fondly hopes will be regarded as his masterpiece. It vividly portrays his futile struggles to complete his theme—futile until the great war, in which he "does his bit," seemingly destroys the fetters restraining his ability to complete his masterpiece. Not until his return to New York from France is his secret hope fulfilled.

BEAUTY IN RADIO



Three years ago, when radio was still a novelty, anything in the way of a receiving set that would work could easily be sold. Now, however, buyers of sets are looking for beauty as well as reception. The above is the latest thing in decorative panels, and next year's sets will probably all be equipped with something similar.

LOCAL STATIONS IN BIG HOOKUP FOR RADIO SHOW

Opportunity for Fans to See Artists.

The most elaborate system of broadcasting stations ever attempted in Chicago will be a feature of the fourth annual Chicago Radio show, which opens in the Coliseum a week from next Tuesday. Already the following stations have arranged to be connected with a model broadcasting station in the Coliseum: W-G-N, WMAQ, WLIB, WGES, WLS, WENR, WJAZ, WHT, WIBO, and WJJD, the latter two will pick up and rebroadcast the programs from the show.

J. Elliott Jenkins, technical director, will install a system by which any or all of the stations may be cut in or out at any time. Frank L. Bennett is the program director.

All of the Chicago stations will have their leading artists at the show, as well as most of the famous announcers. The studio on the second floor of the Coliseum Annex, built under the direction of Clay Irwin, manager of the show, will be the last word in studio construction. There the public can see its favorite artists.

The opening program will have as a feature an opening address by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling. Mayor Dever has been invited to represent the city and Senator William B. McKinley will be the guest of the Radio Manufacturers' association.

SUBSEA RADIO COMMUNICATION FOUND USABLE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—If during a battle in the next war the air becomes jammed or for other reasons radio communication must cease, due to progress recently made it is very likely warships will be able to successfully communicate with each other under water.

The U. S. submarine S-18, operating off Block island, in the Atlantic ocean, reports that ranges of 16,000 yards for code communication and 400 yards for phone communication have been obtained with the experimental underwater sound apparatus, using a supersonic frequency.

THE new thermionic photo-electric tube, the invention of V. K. Zworykin of the Westinghouse electrical research laboratories at East Pittsburgh. This tube is one of the most sensitive known to physicists and will send out electric currents and radio impulses whenever a ray of light falls upon it. It is applied for a wide variety of purposes, such as steering ships, controlling railroad trains automatically, recording the light from variable stars, and promises to provide the means for transmission of moving pictures by radio.

EASTERN CANADA HAMS TO MEET IN CONVENTION

F. H. Schnell to Tell Story of His Work.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—This city has been chosen the headquarters for a convention of amateur radio telegraphers of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island, which is to be in session for three days commencing Thursday, Nov. 26.

Visitors are expected from all of the provinces mentioned and from the adjoining states of the United States. Officially the gathering is to be known as the Eastern Canada American Radio Relay league convention.

Officers from the international headquarters of the league at Hartford, Conn., are to be represented in the persons of Treasurer A. H. Herbert and Traffic Manager F. H. Schnell. The latter, who has just returned after six months of notable radio work as operator of experimental short wave station NRRL, on duty with the United States fleet in the Pacific, will tell the story of his work on this cruise.

During his absence from headquarters he established an excellent record of reliability in communication, working constantly with amateur stations on all of the continents as well as with many official United States navy stations in various parts of the U. S.

Commander C. P. Edwards, director of radio in the department of marine and fisheries, will be the official Canadian government representative. The American Radio Relay league, to which practically every Canadian amateur belongs, will also have as a representative the Canadian general manager, A. H. K. Russell of Toronto.

It is expected that there will be discussion by experts in the various technical phases of radio and a considerable share of the time will be given over by the delegates to the consideration of amateur problems.

Keep Paint Out of Radio Receiver

Paint should not be used in a radio receiver. It will cause leakage. If the instruments are mounted upon wooden baseboard the wood should be left dry. In the coils and condensers no liquid of any kind should be used to improve their appearance.

HOW NOT TO BE HUMILIATED BY SET IN COMPANY

One of the trials of the radio DX hunter is the inability of his set to perform for company. Invariably when the friend to whom he has bragged about getting the coast drops in to be shown, local stations are all the fan can get.

An eastern radio enthusiast, however, has developed a system which has earned him quite a reputation as a DX hunter and rarely, if ever, does he fail on visitors' night—thus attaining a unique position in fandom. This is his secret:

"Select a test station about 300 to 500 miles away that is consistently heard, weakly or strongly, early in the evening," he says. "Mine is KDKA. If KDKA is heard only with the headphones, at 7 o'clock, I know that it will be a comparatively poor night in radio. If KDKA comes booming in, like a local, I know conditions are right, and will pick up 20 to 40 other stations by midnight or before. Then I phone the crowd and they troop in to hear, probably as opening number, WLW or WSAI, then WMBF, and so on. Ordinarily, I hear these stations and others every night, but unless they come in extra volume I cannot thrill the folks, and so I do not ask them around until KDKA is whizzing in."

So get your test stations and see how it works in your part of the country.

Radio Manufacturers to Send Carter to Conference

The Radio Manufacturers' association has sent A. J. Carter as a delegate to the Hoover radio conference, which is to be held in Washington tomorrow. E. N. Rauland and C. D. Boyd have been chosen as alternates. Radio manufacturers are vitally interested in the outcome of the conference and are attending in the interests of the listening public.

BRITISH SHOW DEVICE TO SET ELECTRIC CLOCKS

A device was displayed at the British wireless exhibition in London for the synchronization of electric time clocks by means of a broadcast signal. It is described as follows:

"The invention consists of a master clock which can be tuned to operate automatically from any time signal, such as that from Greenwich or Arlington. At a fixed moment, about thirty seconds before the time signal would be due, the master clock automatically switches on the tubes of a receiving set and at the same second opens the aerial earthing switch.

"A particularly intricate and ingenious device is provided which discriminates infallibly between the warning signal which precedes the time, and the actual time signal itself. When the signal is over, the clock automatically switches off the tubes and re-earths the aerial, everything being reset for the next signal."

Every 'DIATRON' reflects the achievements of Walter Armstrong

A RADIO tube is an electric light in an advanced stage. To make a good tube a man must have had years of experience in the art of producing good lamps.

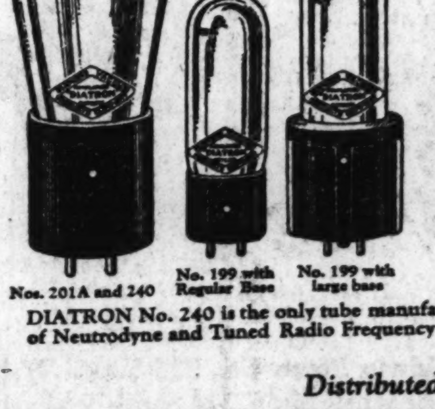
THIRTY-EIGHT years ago Walter Armstrong began his unparalled experience with the pioneers of the electrical industry. In all these years there is, probably, no man whose experience has brought him to that enviable position where he now is—without an equal as a manufacturer of the highest quality radio tubes. He can blow and shape his own glass, treat his own metals, make his own filament, construct his own vacuum pumps, test his finished product and overcome all troubles.

SINCE 1887 with such pioneers as Swan Lamp, Shelby Lamp, Federal Miniature Lamp Division of General Electric and as the head of his own lamp works, he has been responsible for many of the outstanding developments in electric lamps, x-ray and radio tubes.

DIATRON radio tubes are made under the direction and personal supervision of Walter Armstrong in a modern plant, built exclusively for their manufacture. Their inherent qualities and special construction always assure satisfaction. They are sold under the most liberal and common-sense guarantee.

Price for all types $2.50 EACH

YOU'LL thoroughly enjoy radio with DIATRONS. Ask for them at any good radio store.



Nos. 201A and 240 — No. 199 with Regular Base — No. 199 with large base

DIATRON Special Feature

This illustrates the grid and filament with the plate removed. The filament is so supported that filament and grid must move together and cannot short circuit if the tube is jarred to an extent that would change the position of either element. Every turn of the grid is electrically welded. Patents applied for.

DIATRON No. 240 is the only tube manufactured for the Radio Frequency side of Neutrodyne and Tuned Radio Frequency Sets made before January 1, 1925.

DERESNADYNE II

A superlative 5-tube receiver

FOR those who want a radio receiver second to none the Deresnadyne will settle the question of which radio set to buy. It does not choose between tone quality and volume, nor between distance and selectivity. It combines them.

DERESNADYNE II, illustrated above, makes available to those who already own battery and speaker equipment the same performance as Deresnadyne I and III, which operate from the light socket. Specially priced at $125—little more than the cost of an ordinary set.

DERESNADYNE III—a complete 5-tube receiver operating from the light socket. The last word in radio convenience. Equipped with permanent guaranteed power units which furnish all current from the lighting circuit. Built-in loud speaker. All equipment but aerial included in cabinet. Price complete with matched tubes.

ORGANIZATIONS OF WOMEN LOOK FOR RADIO AID

Voters' League Urges Special Programs.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The American woman, answering the increasing demand for her, help and participation in the important affairs of the community, state and nation, is looking more and more to radio as an indispensable assistant, and plans are being made for a far more widespread use of radio by women's groups and organizations. The "radio tea," recently used for the first time when Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt broadcast a talk to groups of the National League of Women Voters, has come to stay, it is said.

To Be Permanent Feature.

Leadership in the movement to bring radio into action as a permanent aid to women in the furtherance of their work as citizens and community leaders has been taken by the league. Mrs. Caspar Whitney, first vice president, will have full charge of the organization's radio activities. Broadcasting stations throughout the country will be asked to coöperate to the end that programs of particular interest to women shall be broadcast at regular intervals.

The plans include provisions for close coördination of women's groups and clubs with local stations and for participation of radio manufacturers and dealers in the work. The "radio tea" will be made a permanent feature of the coördination program. Weekly women's hours are contemplated, the programs for these periods to include music as well as discussions on topics of intense and particular interest to American women at home, in business and in the professions.

Urge Special Programs.

"The scarcity of good programs for and by women," Radio Retailing, a radio publication, says, "leads to the belief that radio broadcasting stations must give serious attention to programs of that nature. Contact is now being made with the directors of the 600 stations in the United States urging them to send out programs supplied by women's organizations. We believe a plan may be worked out that will be the biggest step yet undertaken to get American women interested in radio and acquaint them with the incomparable service it can render to them."

VOTE SOUGHT ON AMENDMENT TO COPYRIGHT LAW

Broadcasters Asked to Take a Stand.

A ballot has been sent to every broadcasting station in the United States by the National Association of Broadcasters with a request that the owner vote upon the proposal to submit to congress a petition to amend that portion of the copyright law having to do with mechanical reproduction. It is desired that it may be applied to broadcasting, that recognition be made of the rights of the copyright owners, but that fair payment be stipulated for the use of such rights by broadcasters.

As Law Stands.

"Congress in the year 1909 enacted the present copyright law, placing therein a special paragraph having to do with mechanical reproduction, by which is meant phonograph records, piano player rolls, etc," said Paul D. Klugh, speaking for the broadcasters. "The aim was to prevent monopoly, and to fix a statutory payment which would make copyright music available to all mechanical reproducers upon the same terms and conditions. A special provision permits a copyright owner to refuse to release his copyright for mechanical reproduction, thus giving the copyright owner full control of his property. But the law further provides that if the copyright owner release his copyright to one mechanical reproducer, then he is compelled to release to all others at the rate which the law provides. This law has now been in operation sixteen years and has protected the interests of all parties concerned with fairness and equity, including the public."

It is explained to broadcasters that their filling out the ballot will in no manner affect their present status on copyright music, and leaves them free to act individually as they may desire.

Association Seeks Relief.

"It will, however," Mr. Klugh concluded, "place the National Association of Broadcasters in a position to proceed upon a program which has for its purpose, first, a fair recognition of the rights of copyright owners; second, a fair payment for the use of such rights; and lastly, the making of the proposed arrangement permanent and beyond the control of any one to change, through asking congress to amend the present copyright law."

"B" Battery Connections Vital to Their Life

When connecting up more than one "B" battery, be sure they are wired correctly. The current in the batteries will buck each other if the negative is connected to the negative and positive to the positive.

FRANCE FIXES LOCAL PRICES OF RADIOGRAMS

Hereafter ordinary radiograms in France will cost 30 centimes per word, minimum 3 francs, plus a fixed surcharge of 50 centimes per radiogram. Urgent radiograms, 60 centimes per word, minimum 6 francs, plus a fixed surcharge of 50 centimes per radiogram.

Actual Wave Length GLOWS from Illuminated Disc

Another Step Forward in Simplifying Radio

Six Tube "Overtone" Receiver With a Single Dial Control

You can tune it blindfolded

PEOPLE want single dial control. It is so obviously desirable. The difficulty has been to design one which is electrically as well as mechanically efficient.

Pfanstiehl overcame the electrical handicaps last year when he invented a system of reception which prevents stray inter-circuit coupling. It so controls the forward stream of radio energy that none of it spills over between circuits to spoil the pattern of vibrations transmitted. The flow of energy is absolutely even. There are no electrical inequalities in the circuits. Therefore they can be accurately tuned with a single dial. No auxiliary controls are needed.

The Trouble-proof Instrument People Want

Another advantage of the Pfanstiehl system is its freedom from complicated devices, extra condensers, wiring, etc., ordinarily required to neutralize stray energy. It does not need them. The set is so simple it can not get out of order unless abused. A very desirable feature in the hands of inexpert users, who want enjoyable and dependable service. With the single dial they can turn to the wave length desired immediately and get very accurate results.

A Panel Unlike Any Other

The Pfanstiehl panel is made of specially treated wood instead of the usual bakelite or hard rubber. The wood is five ply and finished with a subdued handsome lustre. The tuning dial and volume control are of wood. The panel is swept clean of non-essentials. The few exposed metal parts are gold plated. The translucent and illuminated station finder disc adds a brilliant touch to the panel assembly.

The Beauty of "Overtone" Reception

The outstanding merit of the Pfanstiehl is its matchless tone. It is all in the overtones. They are as perfectly reproduced as transmitted. Every musician knows that it is the overtones which make color tone, the rich, resonant quality of fine music or of the human voice. The integrity of these overtones in turn depends upon an undistorted radio stream passing through the set. Any leakage of energy between circuits conflicts with the forward radio stream and mars the delicate pattern of electrical super vibrations which make overtones. In the Pfanstiehl such circuit disturbances are prevented. None of the radio stream can spill over between circuits. That is how the Overtone Receiver was perfected—an exclusively Pfanstiehl feature.

An OVERTONE Loudspeaker— Separate or Built In

To give to overtone reception the final touch of tone beauty, an overtone speaker has been developed and built into the set itself. The two are sympathetically adjusted and operating as a single unit produce a smooth, even flow of tone hitherto unattainable. A choice of cabinet models is given—with and without an inbuilt speaker.

The new Pfanstiehl models are designed especially for home use by inexpert operators. They are utterly simple in design, easy to tune, and of the finest workmanship.

Leave It to Us!

You are more interested in what is on the air—than what is in the cabinet.

Leave the question of "what is in the cabinet" to us.

We have spent many thousands of dollars—employed experts—equipped laboratories—and gone into hundreds of painstaking researches to settle this question.

There is no more need for you to know what is in a Stewart-Warner Radio cabinet than there is for you to know what is in your telephone, your vacuum cleaner, or your player piano.

We have invested millions of dollars in the name "Stewart-Warner" and that name on the cabinet means that we give you the big thing you want—Radio Satisfaction.

Your nearest Stewart-Warner Blue Ribbon Representative will prove this beyond any doubt and to your entire satisfaction. See him to-day.

Super-Zenith De Luxe Spanish Model

The Finest Radio Instrument Made!

Above is shown the ten-tube Zenith De Luxe, Spanish Art Model, priced at $2,000. It is the finest radio instrument on the market—in artistry of design, elegance of finish, superb performance. On exhibition at our display rooms.

Other ten-tube Zenith De Luxe Models from $500 to $1,500—each equipped with multiple built-in loud speaker, Bates Rotary Log, illuminated dial, single control specially constructed Zenith radio circuit.

Prove Zenith Supremacy In Your Own Home!

Among all the different radio sets on the market it is inevitable that there should be one which stands head and shoulders above all others.

To our mind—and we make this statement on the strength of many side-by-side comparisons—the one outstanding radio instrument today is ZENITH—and we are going to tell you why.

I High Purpose

In the first place, the avowed aim of the Zenith makers is to make the finest radio instrument that can be built—then and then only to affix a price. Here's just an instance: Every Zenith set, before it leaves the factory, is subjected to 153 gauge tests and 25 electrical tests. It is our judgment that Zenith thoroughness cannot be matched throughout the industry. Zenith instruments are made right—and they stay right.

II Performance

Zenith tone is clear and flawless. Noises that would otherwise impair the quality are sifted out before the tone is amplified—this by means of a radio circuit that is distinctively Zenith's. Zenith control is simplicity itself. Its range and selectivity will amaze you. On two successive expeditions Commander Donald B. MacMillan, world-famous explorer, chose Zenith exclusively for his explorations in the Arctic. On each occasion Zenith made new radio history.

III Real Artistry

Zenith designs are by distinguished artists of fine furniture construction—each absolutely faithful to the period type it represents. Cabinet work is by master craftsmen. No least detail is slighted. The result is artistry that truthfully expresses Zenith character—beauty in keeping with fine radio performance.

To make the statement that one has listened to the "best in radio" without having listened to Zenith is like calling a violinist the "greatest in the world" without ever having listened to Kreisler.

Whatever else you do—see Zenith—listen to Zenith—before you finally select your radio set! For somewhere in the Zenith line there's the instrument you want. You want it because you want the best—in beauty of design and matchless performance.

Come in and name the style you prefer—then let us demonstrate it to you in your own home. No obligation. Simply tell us where you live and the evening that is most convenient.

IS CHICAGO TO LEAD WORLD IN RADIO MAKING?

Commerce Body's Report Indicates It.

Is Chicago to become the world's center for the production of radio apparatus?

This question is seemingly answered in the condensed report of the special anniversary committee on metal trades and allied industries of the Chicago Association of Commerce. This report is one of ten which are to make up the stupendous inventory just completed by the association. In full, it is to be presented during the general discussion to be held Anniversary week, Nov. 16 to 20, and while some phases of the reports of other committees may not be so optimistic, that part of the foregoing report which deals with electric apparatus leaves little to conclude but that Chicago is even now the radio leader.

Generally speaking, according to this report, this city is now the world's largest producer of electrical equipment. The growth in this industry has been so rapid that few people have fully understood its extent.

$1,000,000 Weekly Pay Roll.

Chicago today houses three of the largest telephone apparatus manufacturing concerns in the world. These three have aggregate pay rolls amounting to well over $1,000,000 a week. In all, the 600 electrical apparatus enterprises employ more than 70,000 persons. More pertinent in so far as radio is concerned is the fact that great sums are being spent for research and development work. This phase of the industry has never received any publicity.

In the matter of dollars, Chicago's electrical industry in 1924 did a combined business of almost $750,000,000. In the electrical machinery apparatus and supply industry alone there was an increase of 262 per cent in ten years. During the last year more than 100 representative manufacturers of radio apparatus have established centers in Chicago. Other manufactured articles include everything from the electric door bell to the most powerful of motors and power generating apparatus.

90% of Phone Equipment.

In so far as telephone equipment is concerned 90 per cent of the "hellos" of the world find their way through speech transferring machinery that was manufactured in Chicago. In one plant alone, the Hawthorne plant of the Western Electric company, there will be required for this year approximately thirty billion feet of copper wire and one hundred and forty-five million pounds of lead.

The committee in charge of the report is headed by Edward P. Welles, chairman, and Charles G. Stevens, vice chairman. The other members are C. W. Bergquist, E. L. Essley, Harold Smith, John T. Llewelyn, John W. O'Leary, Joseph T. Ryerson, Charles K. Knickerbrocker, Judson F. Stone, and A. L. Waterman.

Irish in Quandary Over New Announcer's Accent

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Following the Irish Free State's recent advertisement for an announcer for the new broadcasting station at Dublin, radio enthusiasts are speculating regarding what kind of an accent test the successful candidate will have to pass. Will he be obliged to have a pronounced Irish brogue? Under the circumstances, it is pointed out that a proper English accent in the new Irish station would be an irony which the Free State could hardly be expected to countenance.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Sunday, Nov. 8.)

(Standard time throughout.)

GOV. GIFFORD PINCHOT of Pennsylvania, eastern champion of the drys in the fight for enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, will speak this afternoon at 2 o'clock from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. Gov. Pinchot is in Chicago attending the convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, and his brilliant fight for enforcement despite the opposition of a hostile legislature lends particular interest to his talk.

W-G-N's Sunday program starts at noon, when Uncle Walt will read the eight pages of TRIBUNE comics to the children. This is followed by the broadcast of a complete performance from the Chicago theater, starting at 12:45 p. m. The program of the performance includes the overture by the Chicago theater symphony orchestra, directed by Josef Koestner; the organ solo by Milton Charles, the Balaban & Katz productions, and the music incidental to the novelty and topical movies. It is ordered as follows:

Overture. "Mignon"..................Thomas
Chicago Theater Symphony Orchestra.
Music incidental to news weekly.
Balaban & Katz production, "A Trip to Hawaiian Islands."
Imperial Hawaiian Singers.
Organ solo, "Save Your Sorrows."
Milton Charles, Organist.
Balaban & Katz production, "Harvest Moon."

Upon the conclusion of Gov. Pinchot's talk at 2:30 p. m. the Sunday organ recital by Edwin Stanley Seder, broadcast direct from the Lyon & Healy concert hall, will next engage listeners' attention. Assisting Mr. Seder will be Kirste Gallen, cellist.

The Sunday concert by the Chicago Musical college begins at 3:30 p. m. and continues until 5. Artist-student soloists and instrumentalists are to be heard during this broadcast.

Between 9 and 10 o'clock Henry Selinger and his Drake concert ensemble are to present the following program:

Voice of the Chimes..................Luigini
Three Hungarian Dances..................Brahms
Colonial Song..................Grainger
Piano Solo, Sparks..................Moskowski
Leon Lichtenfeld, cellist.

Assisting the ensemble will be Mark Love, basso, and Earl Alexander, tenor.

DETAILS OF TODAY'S W-G-N PROGRAM.
[Wave Length, 370 Meters.]

12 noon—Uncle Walt reads The Tribune comics to the children.
12:45 p. m.—Broadcast of complete performance from the Chicago theater.
2 p. m.—Talk by Gov. Clifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania.
2:30 p. m.—Organ recital from Lyon & Healy concert hall by Edwin Stanley Seder, assisted by Kirste Gallen, cellist.
3:30 to 5 p. m.—Recital by the Chicago Musical college, from the Central theater.
9 to 10 p. m.—Mark Love, basso, and Earl Alexander, tenor; Henry Selinger and his Drake concert ensemble.

WLIB PROGRAM

Another of those snappy Sunday afternoon jazz concerts is promised for today by Fred Hamm and his Liberty orchestra over the new Liberty Magazine station, WLIB, starting at 5 and lasting until 6 o'clock. On the schedule with Hamm and his gang, who are to present their snappiest jazz selections in contrast to jazz symphonic numbers, are Evelyn Simmons and Florence Clifford, the WLIB harmonizing songbirds, and Jack Little, singing his own novelty compositions.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock tonight Fred Hamm and his co-workers will offer a syncopated show of unusual proportions that is to feature several new Hamm novelties, as well as the numerous soloists who compose the orchestra, including Jess Sutton, the pianist; Vincent McCauley, the trombonist; Dave Bennett, saxophonist; Elmer Harvey, banjoist, and Fred Hamm, himself.

Owing to the fact that Monday night is silent night in Chicago, WLIB will be off the air after 8 o'clock this evening until Tuesday night at 7 o'clock.

CANADA NOW SEES RADIO AS NEW INDUSTRY

Public interest in radio broadcasting and the consequent demand for apparatus has created a new industry in Canada. Production of radio sets and parts in Canada during 1924 amounted to $3,201,103 and imports of similar commodities from the United States in the same year were valued at $2,413,687.

In Canada there are thirteen plants, all located in Ontario and Quebec, producing radio sets or parts.

These plants are engaged solely in the manufacture of radio apparatus; three large electrical concerns make radio goods on a large scale in special departments, while the remainder of the reporting firms make only parts for which their plants were fitted in conjunction with their regular production.

Radio is playing a great part in the life of the farmer and he is finding increasing benefits in it every day. Constantly in touch with the big centers of the continent, he has instantaneously the latest market reports while the diversion of cities can be brought to his isolated home. With the sweeping progress of the radio the farmer has lessened any disadvantage he may be expected to sustain by reason of his position.

Is there a more exacting test than this?

The Howard Neutrodyne is built and tested in the midst of a group of the most powerful broadcasting stations in the country.

KYW, WGN, WMAQ, WLS, WQJ, WEBH, and others are all so close to our plant that it is a real achievement to tune in clearly any one of these stations while the others are operating. (Ask any radio owner on the near North Side whether this is true.) To break through the wall and pick up distant stations with utmost clarity and volume is the test on which we ask Howard owners to base their satisfaction.

A severe test indeed. But we actually welcome an opportunity to prove Howard qualities under such unfavorable circumstances. We know that Howard owners will seldom have to contend with conditions anywhere near so exacting.

If we were content with ordinary tests it would take much less time, less care to produce a Howard. Our product would go out faster, and probably give "satisfaction"—as generally understood.

But the Howard "Six" must do more than give average satisfaction. It must produce extraordinary results—performance that is beyond anything previously experienced. We make certain of this by proving that each set is capable of such results before it leaves our plant.

That wall of high-powered stations is formidable, but if it were possible to subject the Howard to a more rigorous test we would gladly do so.

Write us, 469 E. Ohio St., Chicago, for name of nearest Howard dealer who will gladly demonstrate the new "Six" at your convenience

BRIGHTSON TRUE BLUE RADIO TUBES

HEAR Brightson True Blue Radio Tubes. Ask the nearest dealer to demonstrate their superior qualities. Have him check up on the following statements and prove to yourself that they are "The Finest Radio Tubes in the World".

Brightson True Blue Tubes consume one half the "B" battery current required by the old fashioned tubes. They are evenly matched—no switching is necessary to get best results. Special filament makes them last two to three times longer. Because they are non-microphonic they operate noiselessly. Coined silver contact points eliminate corrosion and frying noises common in ordinary tubes.

Be sure the words "BRIGHTSON TRUE BLUE" appear on the base of every tube you buy. Price, $3.50 each.

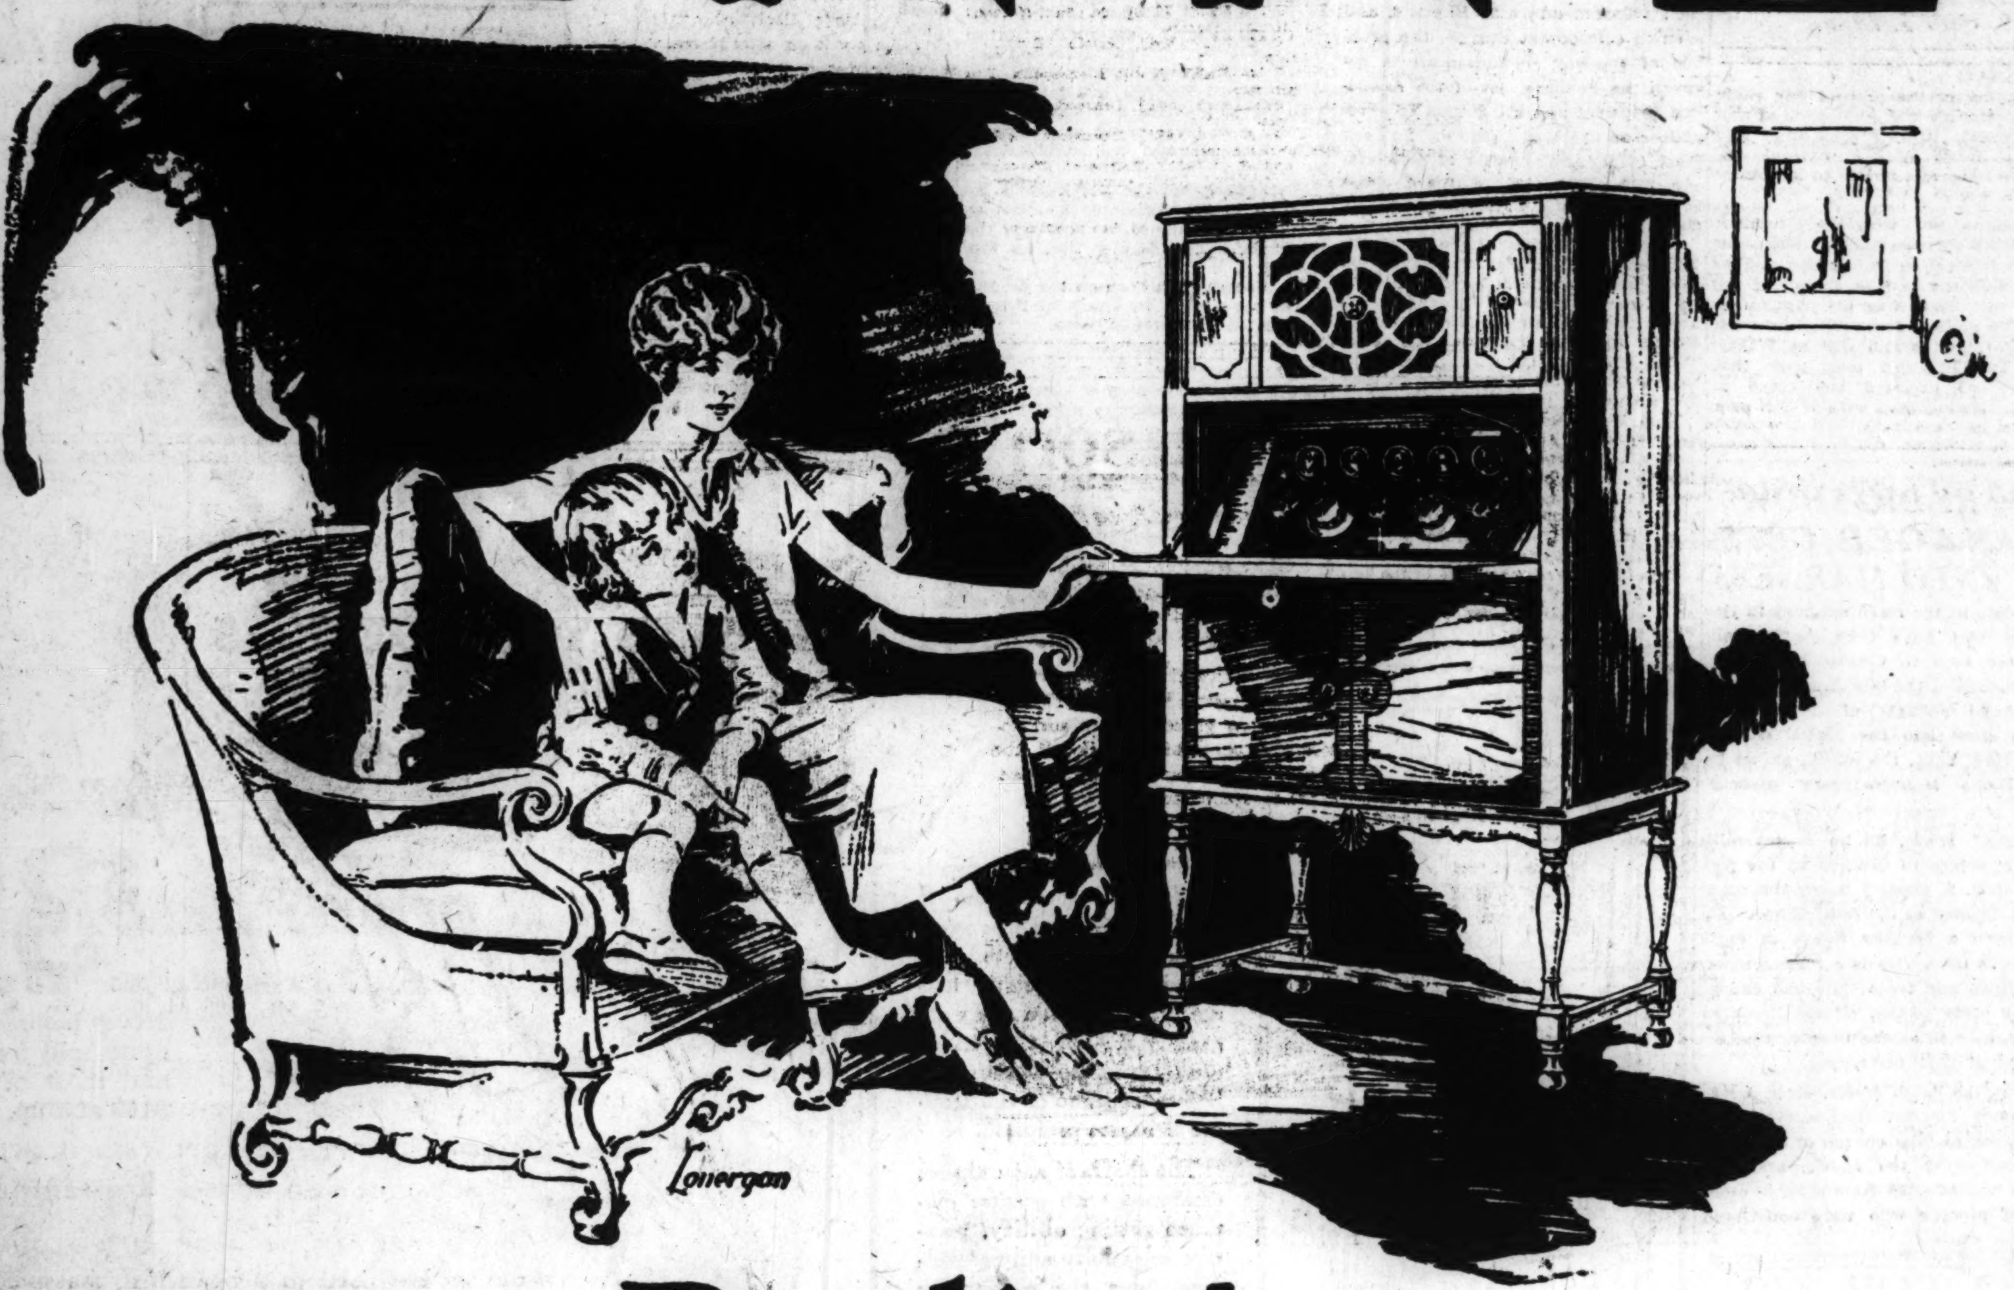
The Royalty of Radio

KENNEDY



Reality!

Radio Forgotten as You Listen to Artists of Your Choice

Beauty... Reality... Life! Turn two dials of a Kennedy Royal Sixteen and you can almost see a mellowed Strad, caressed by the fingers of genius. Concert sopranos stand before you, radiant in a flood of song. A harp thrums idly. Orchestras scintillate. Voices—human, warm—grip you and hold you . . . All so actual, so real, so alive, that you forget Kennedy—forget the years of experience, the patient research, the engineering, the designing that have brought this thrilling reality to your home. A fine example of skill that conceals itself—the only "secret" of Kennedy success.

Outstanding Features of the Royal Sixteen

A Masterpiece of Furniture! Gracefully proportioned—finished in two-toned walnut—pleasingly decorative. Tone chamber and reproducing unit built in and acoustically balanced. Space at the botton for batteries and accessories. Extremely Selective! With the movement of a single knob you can choose what you want, rather than take what you get—actually cutting through powerful local studios and reaching out. Volume Smoothly Varied! One small knob controls the "quantity" of its pure tone. Simple to Operate! Two dials for tuning—no more. Uses Any Aerial—inside or outdoor. Adaptable to the new current-supply devices that plug into your home-lighting socket or with any standard "A" or "B" Battery. Price, $235 without accessories.

Have Your Dealer Demonstrate—After all, you are the final judge of any Kennedy receiver. Talk to your Kennedy dealer. He will gladly arrange a demonstration at your convenience and at his expense. You will not be obligated. But you will have an undisturbed opportunity, in the quiet of your home, to learn why Kennedy is everywhere known as "The Royalty of Radio."

WOK OFFERS A "SOLUTION" FOR SILENT NIGHT

Wants Suburban Stations to Rotate Mondays.

WOK is the only radio station in the Chicago district which broadcasts on Monday nights, as the other stations, one by one, have come into the "silent night" fold. Several days ago officials of WOK offered the following "solution" of the silent night problem.—Editor's note.

A solution of the problem whereby Chicago may practically have a silent night on Monday night, without depriving thousands of fans, whose radio sets are not large enough to get outside stations, of all enjoyment of radio on that night, was offered to the Chicago radio public in a statement broadcast from station WOK last Monday night.

WOK is the only Chicago radio station now broadcasting on Monday night. In offering the proposed "solution" to the radio fans Homer Ring, assistant to the president of the Neutrowound Radio Manufacturing company, which owns and operates station WOK, explained the position of the management in remaining on the air on Monday nights and asked the radio fans of Chicago to write letters to the station expressing their opinion of the plan put forth.

Wants Others on Air.

The solution is this: That the suburban stations rotate on Monday nights, one or two of them being on the air each Monday night.

The suburban stations, Mr. Ring declared, are all "far enough from Chicago so that the wave from each one can be very easily tuned out."

At the conclusion of the announcement the WOK official stated that if the letters from the fans prove that station WOK is wrong in believing that a larger part of the public desires some radio from local stations on Monday night it will also "get off the air." Dec. 1 was the date set for the final decision in the matter.

Is Not "Poor Sport."

Mr. Ring did not claim that the proposed "solution" originated with the management of WOK, but said that it already had been projected in the press. He laid particular emphasis on the fact that there are thousands of owners of radio receiving sets in Chicago who cannot get outside stations and that the only radio they are now enjoying on Monday nights is that furnished by WOK. If WOK went off the air they would be entirely without radio, he declared. He backed this statement up by an assertion that for every letter criticizing the station for broadcasting on Monday nights several are received from the fans who appreciate WOK's being on the air on that night.

Mr. Ring told the fans who were listening in that in remaining on the air on Monday nights WOK has not done so to be "arbitrary" or because it is a "poor sport," and that it is perfectly willing to remain off the aid in its turn, under a rotation plan, provided some other Chicago suburban station is broadcasting.

W-G-N Announcer Once Was a Newspaper Man

BY CHARLES WARNER.

QUIN A. RYAN.

While it may be a little early, perhaps, to draw general conclusions as to the underlying motive that drew into the new profession of radio announcing the men at present presiding over Chicago stations, we have gone far enough to note one general characteristic among them.

Those met thus far are men who early in life manifested a desire to entertain large masses of people.

So the announcers thus far in this series have come from the ranks of actors, newspaper men and the movies. The announcer presented today, Quin A. Ryan of W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, is no exception.

A Native of Chicago.

Mr. Ryan is a native of Chicago. He is the son of the late Judge Joseph E. Ryan, who in his lifetime was prominent noto noly as a member of the Municipal bench but was a leader in the German-Irish Alliance.

Quin had his schooling at Northwestern and Loyola academy, and at an early age was threatened with a tendency to write "pieces" for the paper. He fell to writing campus notes for THE TRIBUNE and even undertook football reporting.

Runs a Column.

Later he was connected with the advertising copy service of THE TRIBUNE and wound up by starting a column on the Journal of Commerce under the title, "Top of the World." Later he was guilty of a column in the Examiner under the title, "After All Is Said and Done."

In the meantime all the elements for the making of the present day radio were in the air but undiscovered and unharnessed. Quin's disposition and training made him a natural announcer. He was bound to announce in some way.

Mr. Ryan was with the Examiner when WLS went on the air. His paper had an interest in the station and he was designated to take charge of the programs. That was his baptism in the radio game. From WLS he went to other stations and was at WDAP when THE TRIBUNE took over that station and changed the name to W-G-N. He has been with W-G-N ever since.

AUSTRALIA WILL HAVE SYSTEM OF RELAY STATIONS

The announcement has been made that the New South Wales State government proposes to establish a central station in Sydney and a number of relay stations throughout the state, to be used not only for the despatch of government messages, but also for all purposes, says Trade Commissioner E. G. Babitt, Sydney, in a report to the department of commerce. As the commonwealth law at present stands, neither a state government nor a private company can transmit business or private messages, but it is stated that should a Federal Labor government be returned at the next elections this law would be altered.

NEW RADIO SHOW MANAGER GETS INTO HARNESS

Leaders in the radio industry in the middle west have been getting acquainted with G. Clayton Irwin Jr., who succeeded the late James F. Kerr as general manager of the Chicago Radio show and the Radio World's Fair, New York, the official shows of the Radio Manufacturers' association.

"Clay" Irwin, as he is generally known, comes to Chicago as the protégé of U. J. [Sport] Herrmann, managing director of the radio shows. He has been a familiar figure in radio for some time. He is a former newspaperman and for a time had charge of the radio section of the Brooklyn Eagle, as well as the broadcasting activities of that newspaper.

Upon the death of Mr. Kerr it was necessary for Mr. Herrmann to find some one to take charge of the work of conducting the shows, and Mr. Irwin was selected from a large number of persons who were considered for the place.

LONDON HAM IN LONG CHAT WITH PACIFIC COAST

Amateurs Succeed in 2-Way Conversation.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 7.—While it has been the customary thing for several years for members of the American Radio Relay league on the east coast of the United States and Canada to carry on nightly conversations with their fellow-members in England, and even in continental Europe, the problem of two-way communications between the Pacific coast of the American continent and the British Isles remained an unsolved mystery. To Jack Nutt, owner and operator of radio station 6VC and 6BAN, of this city fell the honor of first establishing reliable communication.

Other Pacific coast radio amateurs had successfully copied messages from their British brethren, but the perversity of nature seemed always to stop any attempt at reply. The plight of British amateurs was much the same. They could hear the Pacific coast but seemed unable to answer the man they heard calling.

This long record of difficulty was very effectually broken when Nutt succeeded in establishing contact with British amateur radio station 2SZ, owned and operated by C. W. Goyder of Mill Hill, London, and carried on a conversation with the British amateur continuously for forty minutes.

Another interesting phase of the conversation was the fact that it was carried on with each operator working a diffierent calendar day. It was 6 o'clock Sunday morning in London and only 10 o'clock Saturday night in Los Angeles.

DR. CHAS. R. ERDMAN TO SPEAK TONIGHT BEFORE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

CHARLES R. ERDMAN

Dr. Charles R. Erdman, frequently described as "the most beloved man in the Presbyterian church," who was elected moderator by the warring factions of that denomination at the general assembly last May, will be the speaker at the Sunday Evening club tonight. James H. Douglas, a trustee in the club, will have a part in the service, and Clifford W. Barnes will give the informal Bible talk at seven on "Some Old Letters." Mark Love, John B. Miller, and Mabel Sharp Herdien will be soloists with the choir of 100, and Stanley Martin will give three organ selections at 7:40. The program wil be broadcast by KYW.

Chicagoans will be particularly interested in Dr. Erdman's address, as it was largely due to the action of the delegates from this city that he was elected.

Dr. Erdman has been on the faculty of the theological seminary of Princeton for the last twenty years.

AMATEUR RADIO IN NEW LAURELS OF ACHIEVEMENT

S. Africa and U. S. in 2-Way Communication.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Amateur radio, which has achieved many enviable records in international and transoceanic communication, has added to its laurels with the completion of two successful attempts at two way code communication between South Africa and the United States. Such two way work has been the aim of amateur radio enthusiasts in both countries for many months, but it remained for J. S. Streeter, owner of station Q-A4Z, Cape Town, South Africa, to accomplish the feat.

Already Distinguished.

Streeter has already distinguished himself with his two way short wave communication with the British Isles and continental Europe.

Streeter, who is a member of the American Radio Relay league, trying to get in touch with fellow league members in the United States, first got his "CQ" into station u-1CMX, owned and operated by J. Borden, 291 Cherry street, Fall River, Mass.

Is Again Successful.

This first link-up by radio between the two continents was followed a short time later by another effort on Streeter's part. Again he was successful. This time he got in touch with W. R. Ebensperger, owner and operator of station u-3JW of Gloucester City, N. J. Ebensperger took a message of greeting from Streeter and his colleagues in South Africa to the American membership of the American Radio Relay league.

Both times Streeter worked on 36 meters, once more demonstrating the efficiency of short waves in long distance low powered communication.

Middies Get Special Radio Manual to Study

By way of keeping the midshipmen at the Naval academy at Annapolis on their toes, a new edition of the radio manual for their instruction has just been issued. It was prepared by Commander G. S. Bryan, Commander R. F. Freilsen, aid Lieutenant Commander S. Cochran. The book is issued by the Naval academy.

GET READY FOR INTERNATIONAL RADIO EVENTS

More Nations to Participate This Year.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Broadcasters of the United States will gladly stay off the air one hour each evening during International Radio week, Jan. 24-30, 1926, according to advance information received by the executive committee handling this event.

Formal action by the broadcasters of the United States will come at a meeting of the National Association of Broadcasters early in November, this body being expected to handle the broadcasting features of the week from the American side.

"While there is no official word from the broadcasters' society," L. A. Nixon, secretary of the radio week committee, said, "we have had advance assurance from some of the more prominent broadcasters of the country that there will be no question of a hitch in observing the silent hour so that American listeners may hear the overseas stations.

"The official silent hour will be from eleven to twelve, eastern standard time, according to present information, and while this will not work a tremendous hardship on eastern stations, it represents a rather important hour to the broadcasters in the central and western states.

"The coöperaion of the broadcasting stations of the country in past international tests has been one of the most important factors, and it is believed that this same coöperation extended for the coming event will continue to be one of the greatest factors in helping thousands of American listeners to add another foreign station or two to their lists.

"The change of date from late in November to Jan. 24-30, which was authorized at the recent meeting of the radio week committee, was made so as to bring the event and the accompanying international radio broadcasting tests into the best possible season of the year, January being conceded a better radio month than November for overseas broadcasting.

"Last year more than fifteen foreign countries participated in the overseas tests. This year we expect broadcasting from every country where there is a transmitting station."

HANDS OFF YOUR CRYSTAL IF YOU WANT ITS WORK

It is highly important that a crystal detector be kept clean, but the bureau of standards cautions listeners that the surface should not be touched with the fingers. When a crystal is found to diminish in sensitiveness, or is known to have been subject to oily contamination, it should be washed with soap and water.

Galena is generally found to be the most sensitive crystal detector. It is used with a very light contact with a fine metal point. Galena is a very common ore and is found in many parts of the United States. Different specimens of galena vary widely in sensitiveness, even when from the same mine or from different parts of the mine.

Pyrite of a silver or nickel color throughout is, in general, much more sensitive than the duller, somewhat copper colored pyrite.

Pyrite will stand a firmer contact of the "cat whisker" and is in consequence used in many of the so-called fixed detectors. Pyrite may be mounted in ordinary solder, while galena requires the use of a metal.

A chapter is devoted to the operation of crystal detectors in a book entitled "The Problems Underlying Radio Communication," Radio Communication pamphlet No. 40, issued by the government. A copy may be obtained for $1 from the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C.

NOW 'CORN ON THE EAR' RESULT OF PROLONGED USE OF HEAD PHONES

Dr. Francis Blinn of New York, reports having recently treated several cases of what he terms "corn on the ear." The affliction is peculiar to radio fans who use headphones.

It appears that when tight fitting headphones are used by a fan during long sessions, fishing for distant stations, calluses form on the ear. Repeated irritation night after night results in a corn of the same character as those which form on the feet.

The ear corn has a root and core exactly like its pedal brother and is just as tenacious of life. The remedy is said to be a shield of soft rubber placed over the earphones.

FIND METHOD TO GLUE SPEAKER BEFORE "MIKE"

Denver, Colo., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Broadcasting officials have concocted psychological remedies which are guaranteed to glue public speakers before the microphone during an address and otherwise cure pernicious pacing and wandering about the lecture platform. A fence, or corral, was considered impractical.

Credit for the unique discovery—called "the magic rug remedy"—goes to technical staff members at KOA. First announcement of the cure was made today following a ten month trial involving the worst offenders among national and western speakers who have appeared before radio listeners.

"Not once has our magic device failed to turn the trick," asserted Alfred Thomas, resident engineer in charge of technical operations.

Need Soft Rug.

"Most any type of rug fills the bill if it is soft and of contrasting color with the floor," he said. "It should, however, be of small dimensions, say three or four feet. It is placed a few feet from the microphone, the distance depending wholly upon the voice of the person to be heard.

"Unconsciously, the speaker assumes a position on this rug before the microphone and there remains until his remarks are concluded. Subconsciously, he regards this piece of floor covering with its imaginary boundaries, as an island of safety and is disinclined to venture elsewhere about the stage. As a result, broadcast listeners are enabled to hear the talk in full. Otherwise, some of the speaker's comments would be lost to the invisible audience."

Ministers, it was pointed out, are the best behaved before the microphone, while political speakers are the worst.

Psychology of It.

"KOA's plan to prevent a speaker from taking gymnastic exercises on the lecture platform is indeed novel," declared Dr. D. E. Phillips, psychologist of the University of Denver.

"The small rug upon which he stands gives him the unconscious or dimly conscious suggestion that it was intended for that specific purpose. As he proceeds with the talk, any tendency to step off likewise gives an unconscious warning.

"The opposite is also true—a wide open platform gives a stimulus to parade about."

The Greatest Response We Have Ever Had to a B-T product, has been the chorus of approval for the B-T Euphonic Audio Transformer.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

Many people in Austin heard their first radio three years ago in O'Grady's Pharmacy (now Kogan's) at 5401 West Division St. Many of them are now fans themselves and they bring their radio troubles by the hundreds to Mr. Roe, an employee of the store. He began filling prescriptions for radio troubles when the first broadcasting stations in Chicago were started. Mr. Roe's first contact with radio was in experimenting with a wireless station which his brother, an officer in the British army, had captured from the Germans. Since then he has made radio a study and now keeps scores of sets in his neighborhood working. If there is one thing Mr. Roe knows, it is batteries.

"Staying power is what you want in Radio batteries"

Says Mr. Roe, as he tells of his many experiences in radio repair work

"I remember the time I made my first one-tube set and I was in need of a first class battery for both 'A' and 'B' current. A friend of mine recommended Ray-O-Vacs, so I installed a Ray-O-Vac 'A' and a Ray-O-Vac 'B' on this one-tube set.

"When my 'A' Ray-O-Vac ran out, I was unable at the time to replace it by another Ray-O-Vac, so I put in an 'A' battery of another make. It wasn't long before I realized the mistake I had made. On my third purchase, I bought a Ray-O-Vac and had the same satisfactory results as with the first.

Ray-O-Vac "B" batteries have Staying Power

"The 'B' Ray-O-Vac lasted as long as I used my one-tube set. I remember that at the time I discarded this set I wondered whether or not the 'B' battery would last a lifetime.

"Since taking up looking after other people's radio troubles I have never yet had one complaint regarding the kind of batteries I install. In many cases the readings taken by my Weston voltmeter show higher voltages on Ray-O-Vacs than on other batteries that have been put through the same degree and length of service. They certainly have staying power, and staying power is what you need in radio batteries.

"I have found the use of a 1 MFD condenser across the terminals of a Ray-O-Vac 'B' battery to be entirely unnecessary, as Ray-O-Vacs give out no internal noise.

Ray-O-Vac "C" is not an extra expense

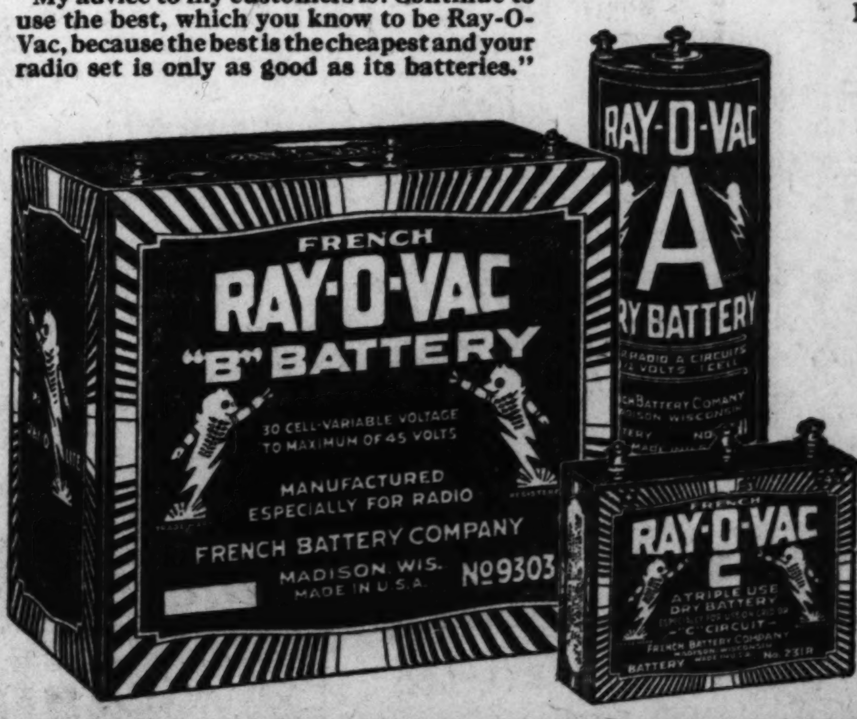
"The Ray-O-Vac 'C' is not to be considered as an extra expense in a set that requires one, as I have had one on the shelf now for over a year and the readings still show 3 and 4½ volts respectively.

"My advice to my customers is: Continue to use the best, which you know to be Ray-O-Vac, because the best is the cheapest and your radio set is only as good as its batteries."

If the radio "trouble shooter" in your neighborhood or the stores where you usually buy your radio supplies cannot furnish you with Ray-O-Vacs, write us for the name and address of the nearest dealer or jobber who can supply you. We will also send you a free copy of "French Radio Manual and Broadcasting Station Directory."

The same dealers handle Ray-O-Lite flashlights and flashlight batteries.

FRENCH BATTERY COMPANY
Madison, Wisconsin



Ray-O-Vac "B" batteries in all standard sizes, both flat and upright.

Ray-O-Vac "A" batteries recuperate during rest periods, lasting longer and giving excellent reception.

Ray-O-Vac 4½ volt "C" batteries with 3 variable terminals give voltage adjustment of 1½, 3 and 4½ volts.

"You're the Bestest Daddy in the World"

FROM the dimness of the far corner, a beautiful "voice" is telling the lullaby story. On the floor, in a circle of "nighties," the kiddies sit with faces aglow. To them it is the best hour of the day. Daddy is there. Now the sweet "voice" is singing the little prayer and "good night." But ere mother bundles them off to bed, a soft little arm creeps around your neck, and a pair of cool, moist lips whisper into your ear, "You are just the bestest Daddy in the world for getting us the nice radio."

That is only one of the priceless features of the Federal Ortho-sonic Radio. Yet it costs no more to have this lifelike presentation than the ordinary radio. Are your kiddies going to miss the "Lullaby Hour" this winter?

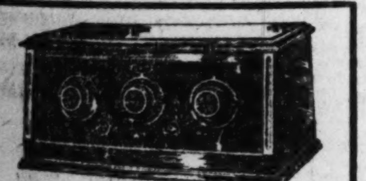
The new Federal Ortho-sonic Radio is the latest product of Federal wireless telephone engineers—makers of telephone, telegraph, wireless and navy radio apparatus for many years.



A-10 Five tubes—199's or 201-A's. Balanced tuned radio frequency. Federal standard parts used throughout. Without accessories. $75

The complete Federal line comprises nine beautiful models—from $75 to $350. "B" and "C" Models have space for all batteries, also for current-supply devices which operate from most electric light circuits. "C" Models are completely self-contained and portable.

B-20 Five tubes—199's or 201-A's. Balanced tuned radio frequency. Genuine mahogany cabinet with rich finish. Micrometer tuning controls. Space for batteries. Without accessories - - - - - $100

ATWATER KENT RADIO

Radio brings companionship

It wasn't very exciting for her before radio came

YOUNG people have young lives to lead and they go away from home to lead them. Old people are alone mostly. They are left without the friends of their youth as they are without the children of their middle age.

To the everlasting credit of radio, put down this additional service: Radio has brought the world to the old and solitary. Radio has provided new interests, new breadth of vision, a new viewpoint on life.

It it had done nothing else, if it had not provided music and education and entertainment for those who would otherwise have had to do without, this one contribution would be enough: Radio has relieved loneliness.

Have you a mother or a father, an aunt, an uncle, a sister, a brother, or just a friend, who lives alone? Think of a radio gift for the one who is sick, of course. But think of it, too, for the one who is lonely.

It is in your power this year to give more happiness than you have ever given before.

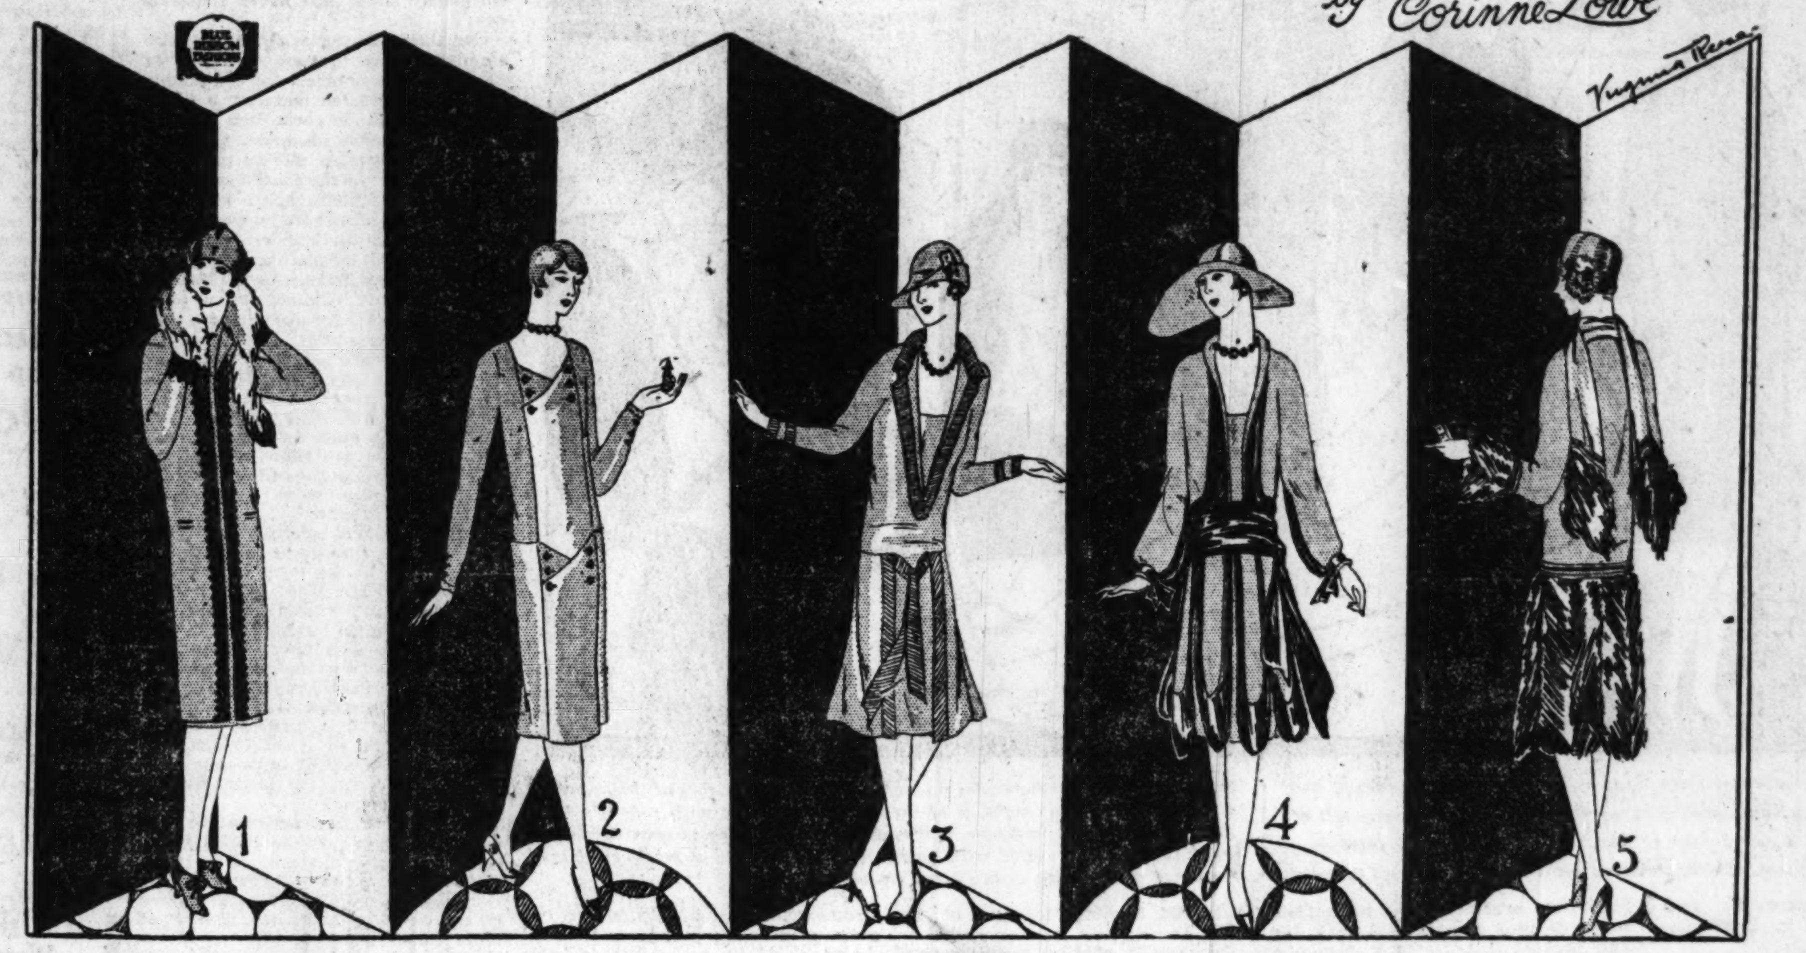
ONE TOUCH OF ART MAKES WORLD OF FASHION KIN-ETIC

by Corinne Lowe



NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—"O, my dear, how perfect! I suppose that if one read the meter of your hem, it would register at least a thousand watts."

"O yes, to be sure; but how about your scarf? Most dynamic, angel! Really most dynamic. I'm sure there must be ions of energy there."

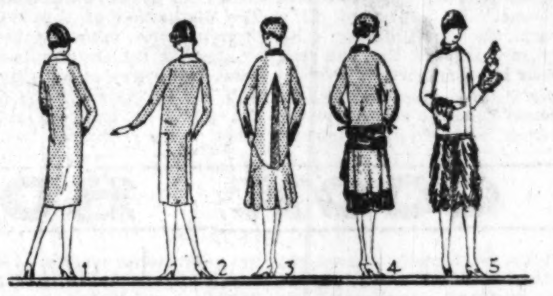
Here's an imaginary conversation of the future if here in America we're going to adopt the phraseology of Monsieur Lucien Lelong, head of the French dressmaking establishment bearing his name. Monsieur Lelong is now in our midst, and he is talking a great deal about kinetic costumes. Now kinetic—if I remember my Greek aright—means simply powerful or energy stored, and it goes without saying it has been applied much more frequently to scientific processes than it has to women's frills.

However, why not? I, for one, shall certainly not protest against any enrichment of the fashion writer's vocabulary. I shall be the last to cry out against any chiffon aid to the wounded. Especially is this true since there is good hard sense back of the phraseology. And what is this buried significance? Well, it's this. When M. Lelong mentions kinetic dressing, he means simply a costume with a movement. Flowing lines, flaring lines, lines with energy, and consequently ones which are opposed to the static (ah yes, indeed, I can toy with these dainty little scientific terms as well as M. Lelong himself) tubular silhouette. We may rest assured the celebrated couturier is himself a partisan of this kinetic costuming. And, indeed, he has good reason for his favoritism. He feels, as do many of us, that the true art of costuming should reflect the spirit of the age. And since this age—well, after all, how could airplanes and Fitzgerald heroines and subways and futuristic painting and free verse be expressed by a mere meek, monotonous, straight line?

M. Lelong's visit to America merely serves to emphasize the issue between those old combatants, the flaring line and the tubular. Still this conflict wages as furiously as ever and it is hard to predict which side shall be ultimately victorious. Not long ago I went for guidance to a friend of mine, one of the leading fashion experts in New York, one who is in constant contact with the Parisian springs of inspiration, and she was emphatic in declaring that the flare had reached its peak of popularity and that hereafter the silhouette would decline to a modified version of the flare. In substantiation of this theory she pointed to some of the midseason openings on the other side—that of Molyneux especially—which indicate a strong reaction toward eiether the straight line or the modified flare.

In spite, however, of this testimony, I can't renounce my faith in that kinetic dressing. It does seem to me, too, that we have many indications that the flare has not yet worn out its welcome. For one thing, there is the growing prominence of the cape. Separate capes of circular cut, big bold capes to replace the coat in sports and formal ensembles, coats to which capes or capelets are attached—here is one of the newest and most emphatic features of present style history. It doesn't make any difference where you go or to whom you talk, you hear of some new triumphant adventures of these capes. A friend of mine just back from Biarritz tells me how awfully smart they were over there at that September playground of fashion. Another friend has just brought back with her from Paris a new Cyber coat from which a seven-eighths circular cape with fitted yoke averts any suspicion of being "straight line." As for the Palm Beach things now being shown, these are replete with cape suggestions both as details of a costume and as separate entities.

Here is one proof of the vitality of the kinetic impulse. For what has more movement than a cape? But there are a hundred others equally authentic. Among these we may name the gypsy girdle. This feature of dress, which wandered in upon many a fall opening, seems to have pitched its tents for the winter and to have temporarily renounced its nomadic existence. It has every air, in fact, of settling down to be a good citizen of the world of Fashion.



OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S MODELS.

The gypsy girdle which I shall illustrate in tomorrow's sketch is, as many of us realize, that tight binding of the hips with a broad fold of material which is familiar to us as part of the costume of the Spanish dancer. At all events, it is essentially related to this kinetic movement. One can't fancy it officiating in connection with a perfectly straight line skirt. It is, in fact, a sort of diving board from which your energetic skirt plunges off to create its wide ripples below. And it has been taken up here in New York by some of our most fashionable. Even in wedding gowns it is sometimes utilized, and one New York bride of this last month sponsored it as part of her lovely creation of satin.

Then there are all the other details that go to make up the swing and movement of a costume. The flowing scarves and draperies and jabots; the floating panels and intricate seaming; the numerous sleeve fantasies of the season. Perhaps your coat or frock may be perfectly straight in line, but it is bound to register a few ions of energy through some such detail.

Yes, truly, one touch of art makes the whole world kin-etic. I am thinking now particularly of some of the new sleeves. Sleeves are as full of restless energy as your office boy just before Christmas. Lately a version of the puffed sleeve has come in for quite a bit of prominence. This is known as the lantern sleeve, and derives its title from the fact that the puff is executed in fine plaits that make it resemble exactly the Chinese lantern of the summer festival. A newer and more original treatment which concerns itself with fur is stressed by one of our leading New York designers. This Fifty-seventh street creator trims a coat sleeve with a circling band of pelt that hangs far below the sleeve proper and that makes the wearer appear as if she had just slung a life preserver over her wrist. Extremely kinetic!

And when a dress nowadays does happen to be straight line, don't for a moment let it impose upon you with its passivity. Take, for example, the Chanel model of pencil blue Ottoman silk in heavy quality sketched second from the left. This shows you what a power house can be centered in mere seams and panels. For it is through the triangular effects at neck line and waist line coupled with the addition of side panels—these latter result in pockets—that we find the movement of the gown. These simple, but original touches make this frock one of the smartest of straight line frocks which I have seen and one conforming entirely to the new spirit. Of course, I don't think M. Lelong would call it dynamic, but my interpretation is broader.

In the third model—also an imported one—we find the new system enunciated more literally. This is a charming afternoon frock of satin-back crepe in absinthe tone which concentrates the fulness at sides and back and which proves once more the virtue of making front and back views absolutely different. The bands used to trim sleeves and collar and skirt are of the dull side of the fabric. Before leaving this model, please glance at the back view to note the band of this crepe surface drawn down the center of the back.

The bolero, along with the gypsy girdle, seems firmly ensconced in the costuming of the season, and fourth we present an afternoon model in violet-blue crepe-back satin which embodies the bolero idea skillfully in connection with one of the approved petaled skirts. In this case it is the shiny side of the fabric which is employed for the trimming touches, and we find it bordering each of four loose and rounded panels of the skirt as well as supplying most of the scenery around the bolero. It also bands the skirt in the back and attends to some extra duties in connection with the sleeves. Here you see that the hips are tightly girdled and, although the sash has not the narrowed movement in the center which is characteristic of the gypsy girdle, the effect is practically the same. It intensifies that outward swing of the skirt from the hips downward which is the salient of the new impulse in clothes.

Also it may be added that the bolero assists in this worthy enterprise, for without the flaring skirt the bolero seems to loose all of its dash and purpose.

All of these three models are suggested to the woman expecting to attend a wedding in the near future. So also is the ensemble at the extreme left. This shows you the gray broadcloth coat made to accompany a gray crepe frock. The clever note about this coat consists of appliqued bands of silver kid which are pinked, you see. The wrap is untrimmed with fur, and gives you an opportunity to show the silver fox, whether real or plaited, which you are now assumed to own.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

DIVIDING SPORTS FROCKS INTO TWO PIECES.

By Bettina Bedwell.

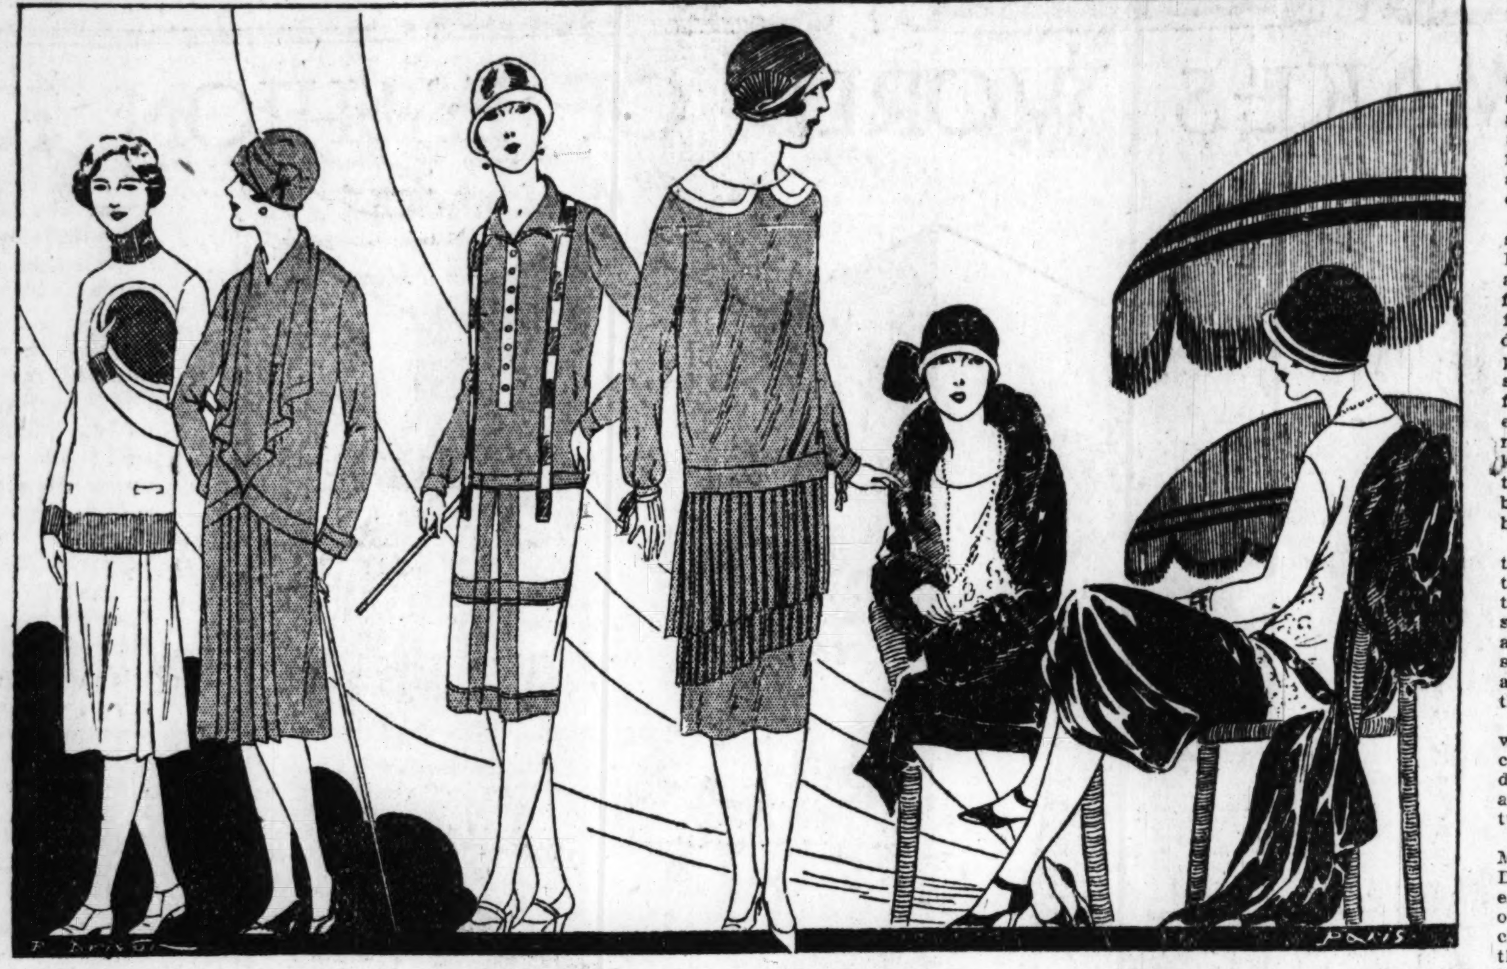
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Sports dresses are undergoing a course in division. Whether it is long or short division is a matter of couturier and where he places the waist and hem lines. In any case, the sports frock is being divided into two pieces and two materials. All this started at Biarritz, in September, where autumn styles generally get a good impetus before the smart world returns to Paris some time in October. I saw only a scant half dozen of true one piece sports dresses during my stay there, and the wearers of these looked sort of droopy and unhappy, as if they had been badly used like an overworked napkin. Most of the really fashionable women at Biarritz wore two piece dresses, and in a great many cases these dresses displayed two contrasting fabrics.

Formerly we called a two piece costume—particularly in differing materials—"waist and skirt." Now nobody would think of doing this—it is a distinct sartorial error—for these two piece creations from the grands couturiers are just as intrinsically one frock as if scissors and fabrics had not entered into a division contest at all. They are sold and worn as dress, frock, gown or robe, according to price and couturier, but they gain a novelty, a flair, and chic by the elementary arithmetical process which creates a separation, subtracts banality, and adds interest all around.

You see nothing but sports clothes at Biarritz from the noon aperitif hour, when the smart Parisienne puts in her first appearance at the Basque bar, until long after the informal tea time tables are deserted. After luncheon, or dejeuner, they go to the polo field without changing their clothes, and at tea time when they come trooping back, sports clothes are still controlling the costume display that is part of the charm of Biarritz.

Our first offering shows a sports costume that usurped about fifty per cent of the favor during my stay in the Basque capital. It might appear at first glance to be simply a sweater and a skirt, but cursory observation is usually erroneous. It is a sports frock, composed of a turtle necked sweater of bois du rose jersey-tricot, and a skirt of classic jersey in slightly deeper tone.



At Biarritz the smartest single unit of sports clothes consists of the turtle necked sweater and wool skirt, as sketched at the extreme left of the drawing. Next a sports frock of tilleul green jersey boucle displays a new version of the jabot. Third, plaid and plain kasha, in several tones of beige and brown, distinguishes a sports frock. Another sort of this type of dress, third from the right, is of green crepe de chine with a double box plaited tunic. The last two figures are showing a sports coat of rough wool, collared and cuffed with opossum, to accompany a frock of rough wool and jersey with embroidered blouse.

This particular sweater is worn by at least half of the smart feminine visitors to Biarritz. It appears almost exactly like jersey, but a close examination shows it to be a tricot, with ribbed collar, wrists, and lower edge clinging close to the body.

Its only ornamentation, aside from its turtle neck arrangement, is in the two pockets that are inconspicuously placed at the side front. The skirt is given ample width and freedom of movement in its double box plait placed on the left side. These plaits are slightly circular and remind you of the lower part of a flattened funnel. It is as classic in its simplicity as the traditional hunting costume of the Greek Diana.

Our second offering makes several bids for fame. It is first of all a tilleul green, a slightly deeper color than chartreuse, and one that can read its title clear to an important place in the autumn mode. Secondly, it is made of jersey-boucle, a sort of velvety de luxe jersey, and one of the chosen autumn fabrics, and, thirdly, it is two-piece, with its hip joining so well concealed as to be practically invisible. The distinction of this frock is due largely to its unusual jabot, designed by Cheruit for the Comtesse de Polignac, and a sort of wedding of the old time cowboy handkerchief of the western plains in the '80s and the true jabot of the turbulent Directoire. In one, both in color and fabric, with the blouse it forms a particularly flattering type of collar.

The curved waistline, arising in front and descending in back, also merits special comment, and its front-plaited skirt is one of the kinds of flared skirts that continue to be a great favorite among women who are conspicuously smart but never conspicuous.

Our third offering is one of the outstanding sport dresses produced by Biarritz. It combines, for one thing, a plain and printed material, a union favored by grands couturiers and the femme du monde as well. Comtesse de la Rochefoucauld chose a plain and plaided favric as the smartest expression of the athletic spirit in sports frocks. The extra short jumper bodice, extending only an inch or two below normal, is made of plain grayish beige kasha, buttoned trimup to the base of the throat and trimmed by a plaid band that circles the collar and hangs below the bodice at its side front.

The sleeves are so nearly tight that they are only nominally bishop, but the name, in sports clothes, is one extremely favored and important. Your sleeve may be quite as tight as style and circulation will allow, but in your sports dress you put a cuff at the wrist all the same and name it bishop in the interests of chic.

The skirt is a straight line affair with fullness introduced only at the center front, in the form of an extra deep inverted box plait, which allows all the necessary freedom, without disturbing its simple straight line.

Our fourth offering was worn by Madam Jacques Blasan, formerly Duchess of Marlborough, and is an example of the sports frock created of one material. It is made of crêpe de chine in a sort of reseda green, and the double box plaited tunic that gives it so much distinction is attached to the waist portion.

The diagonal line described by this double tunic is one particularly important at the moment. The waist blouses in a rather pronounced manner, an item of increasing importance in the forming mode, and it is fitted quite close about the hips by means of its girdle that is made extremely tight. This frock has the true bishop sleeves, loose and soft, and caught into a close fitting band at the wrist. Organdy wrist ties and a double organdy collar give the model a touch of irresistible daintiness.

A sports dress, as autumn advancea naturally demands a coat, and our fifth offering shows the type of sports coat most popular with Parisiennes, and a companion to our sixth model that is the dress half of the ensemble. The coat is made of a rough mannish woolen fabric in a purely feminine color or of corinth red. It is a coat that flares gently from its shoulder seams, in a smart and comfortable flare, and its opossum collar cut shawl fashion is also tres chic. The deep cuffs are of the same fur.

Worn under this is a two piece sports dress with a skirt of the same rough printed woolen material as the coat, cut with a long tunic and tight under portion. The almost sleeveless jumper waist is made of jersey in a much lighter tone of the same color, and is embroidered in severel in-between shades of red, developed in wool. A belt of corinth red suede completes the costume.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington, with current market materials, and are indorsed by her.

CHICKEN WITH PARSLEY SAUCE.

IT was the poet Emily Dickinson who said a "bone has obligations," and part of the theme of the following is that a chicken bone has obligations. The obligations of a bone in cookery are that it yield a meat stock or broth. If this liquid is strong enough to jelly it makes all the better broth, and is otherwise highly serviceable. A little jellied broth on hand is of great resource when a quick meal must be served. With or without vegetables, it may be made into a soup. If there is some meat of its kind, it may be heated up in the thickened meat liquid and served on toast, or as you please. If with the chicken jelly there is some cold chicken, a quick fricassee, or a chicken pie (for Thanksgiving), or chicken a la king, etc., can be made.

We have known for a long time that we could get a second or a third extraction from currants and other fruits in making jelly. It has also been known, but the matter has passed out of practice that a second and third stock—three extractions—can be easily secured when we cook a chicken, or three when the chicken is cooked in a certain superior way.

And what do you suppose that way is? It is one adapted from a rather old book. The chicken, trussed, is cooked in a double boiler with only one-half cup of water to a pound of the meat and a little salt added to it. When the chicken is done—in about two hours—you have about the finest "boiled" chicken you can imagine, excellent for many services, with something more than a cup of the clearest and whitest of liquids, which will form a stiff jelly when cold, with an excellent fat on top.

Origin of the Recipe.

The name of the old book from which the recipe comes is "Good Cookery," by the Right Honorable Lady Llanover. It was published in London in 1867 by Richard Bentley, "publisher in ordinary to her majesty." Do not ask me where you can get a copy, for I cannot guess. I found mine by much snooping, and it is a gem. The larger part of this book is put in more or less story form, and the recipes which run along through it are repeated in the appendix.

Lady Llanover presents us with a "hermit" in his cell, with four Welsh widow aids. He, on his own account, feeds the poor of his community with cooked food, and some man of estate also engages the frugal anchorite or recluse to do a similar work for him. This "Good Cookery" is true to its title, and is all through a story of frugality, as well as good cooking

The story begins with "once upon a time." The aged Welshman, of ancient lineage, in his cell, is at once introduced as one who was remarkable even in his youth "for acquiring a practical knowledge of whatever art he deemed it useful to understand. One day as he sits near his door the "traveler" approaches, and the two fall into a discussion about modern improvements which sounds as though they were talking about things of yesterday.

Finally the hermit asks to be told about the improvements in "the arts of life." He says he supposes everybody from noble to peasant has a dinner "which combines delicacy of flavor with the greatest economy and the utmost attention to health, with tempting appearance." But the traveller knows this is not true, and is inclined to maintain his statements about the great progress made by fibbing. After some hedging, and need to answer directly what has been "the progress and improvement in cookery," he says: "The very recollection of what I have suffered from the universal, indeed cherished, ignorance of the culinary art in the kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, occasions a faintness which I cannot overcome." He confesses that he is dyspeptic and suspicious about almost any food. But he has now fasted and though he fears what his delicate digestion may suffer from what may be offered by this old man, there is no alternative. He must eat or starve.

When they reappear, after an "admirable repast," they have entered into a pact in which the hermit's part is really to give his now departing guest cooking lessons. When the traveller returns, he has been through a railroad wreck with severe injuries, and his health has been so shaken by the disaster and the subsequent diet at a railway hotel, kept by a company where no one was master "that he could swallow nothing but chicken and even that he thought of with disgust, from the recollections of the greasy water which had been called chicken broth, and of the nauseous fluid which surrounded the fowl he had last eaten, and which was denominated 'parsley and butter.'" The last words are printed in italics.

The Old Recipe.

Now, of course, it happens that the hermit has a pullet ready for boiling. The traveller is taken into a kitchen where there is every convenience for cooking, and congratulates himself upon the happy opportunity for "seeing an exemplification of what the hermit considered one of the most practical proofs of civilized life, and great was his astonishment when he saw his host take a dainty chicken ready trussed, and weigh it—it was fat, and the weight was three pounds and a half; it was then placed in a tin vessel, and one fourth of a pint of spring water to every pound, and a sprinkling of salt.

The vessel was then placed in an iron vessel, an inch larger in circumference, which is well known in Wales and called Ffwrn fach, in which boiling water was poured until it rose within an inch of the top. The inner and outer vessels, having their lids put on firmly, were placed over the slow heat of the hermit's stove, where they remained undisturbed for nearly two hours, while the traveller was getting his conviction strengthened 'that he had at last found a man who practiced what he understood." The hermit ascertained with a fork that the chicken was done, and proceeded to prepare the sauce, allowing the traveller to help in picking the parsley leaf from leaf and washing it.

Testing This Recipe.

First, the chickens presented for choice by an excellent butcher were not attractive. The pinions had been folded back and where they touched the flesh had begun to deteriorate. But it was Hobson's choice and the one I took home had head and feet on and was undrawn. The feet when removed were washed and scalded and peeled, and I could make with them one more bit of jellied stock than the hermit did. I picked out the new feathers as best I could, and before cutting the chicken anywhere singed it over the highest gas flame—at the point on the stove where the gas enters. Then I cleaned the skin further, made an opening for removing the crop and one for drawing the chicken.

Up to now I had used no water, but had wiped the skin. Then it was thoroughly washed and trussed and weighed—I had paid for over three pounds and it now weighed about two—and I could put it into the top of a four quart double boiler, which I did, tying the cover on tight. The Welsh kettle is frequently referred to as a "double" as the hermit's lessons in cooking go on.

I added one cup of water and just a sprinkling of salt. A great many people do not know what real chicken is because they salt it too heavily. The salt stiffens the meat. The fine and stiff jelly that the water formed with the chicken juices would be almost worthless if too salty.

Circumstances made it necessary for me to leave the chicken cooking a little more than two hours, and that was too long, although the meat was dainty and juicy. It was too long because it almos dropped to pieces when I tried to take it up, so I easily slipped the meat off the bones, and what was not used for further experiment was packed into a small and covered earthen casserole. When cold it was exceedingly dainty of flavor and suitable for fine chicken sandwiches, for chicken salad, and for various uses in a gravy made of the liquid.

Parsley Sauce Model.

"The hermit placed two ounces of fresh butter in a tin saucepan, which fitted into another holding boiling water; he added a teaspoonful of flour, which he mixed with the butter as it melted, adding also by degrees two tablespoons of milk. When well incorporated he added six tablespoonfuls of water, stirring it around the same way till it attained the thickness of moderate—not too thick—cream. He had previously requested his companion to assist the widows by washing some parsley and pick it leaf from leaf, this he put into boiling water for a few minutes, then minced it fine and bruised it to a pulp in a small mortar: after which it was put into his own wooden sauceboat, the work of his own hands, which had been previously heated with hot water, and pouring the melted butter upon the parsley stirring the whole together rapidly."

The traveller said that "boiled chicken wih parsley and butter was the last choice he himself would have made, as he thought the latter the worst sauce he knew; but he believed, as now prepared, it would be neither unpleasant in taste nor unwholesome. The result proved his supposition to be correct; the chicken was tender, juicy, and retained its full natural flavor, while the sauce was, of its kind, irreproachable."

Testing Out Parsley Sauce.

This sauce is just the thing for dainty chicken if prepared 'pon honor, and, indeed, "irreproachable." The formula is: Two ounces unsalted butter, one teaspoon flour, two tablespoons of milk—Cream is all the better perhaps—six tablespoons of water, two tablespoons of parsley after it has been reduced to a pulp by chopping and mashing. Follow the hermit's directions exactly. I did not, but had skill enough or faith enough to come out all right. I read over the directions and then set about the task, forgetting that the milk was to be added by degrees. So the sauce separated and looked hopeless, but it came all right after the water—cold—was added and it was stirred until it came thick and as smooth as cream. I added but a little salt.

Chicken Jellies.

The hermit considered it sinful to waste a grain of good food. He tells the traveler how to make a fricassee of what is left and the cooking liquor, but the latter thinks it sounds "remarkably nasty." He is told that this is because he is "totally ignorant of cookery," and there follows a preachment because, despite his studies, it has never occurred to him to "make out what was the cause of cooked food being bad or good."

The hermit has weighed the bones of the chicken, and he finds they weigh a pound and a half—the chicken with them, and before cooked you will remember, weighed three pounds and a half. These are broken small with an iron hammer, one pint and a half of spring water is added, and the whole put into a digester—a valuable sort of soup pot used to be called that—to stew slowly for two hours. "The liquor was then poured off, the bones taken out and rebroken, another pint and a quarter of spring water added to them, the vessel replaced on the stove for two hours more." The guest by this time thought his host was mad making "broth out of bones which contained nothing." Again he did not know.

The jellies finally were: A pint of thin jelly with a clear oil on top which was taken off to use for various purposes; a pint of still firmer jelly; and a cup of more opaque jelly.

Chicken Fricassee.

The jelly from the stock around the chicken the hermit said was the finest preparation of broth for an invalid, when dissolved. With all the jellies together, plus celery, leeks, turnips, and carrots each in less quantity than the first mentioned and with one potato—the vegetables chopped and heated for about ten minutes in chicken fat to which flour was added to make a stiff paste and stirred with the vegetables for five minutes, till the fat, the vegetables, and the flour were thoroughly incorporated; then they were put into the stock and cooked for three-quarters of an hour in the double sauce pan. This made excellent chicken soup when sieved. From a soup it was turned into a sauce and two tablespoons of cream added to diminish its flavor. This was the sauce for the fricassee, into which the cold chicken, cut and pulled lengthwise with pieces pointed at each end was put. It stewed in a double vessel for half an hour. The traveler said: "It is perfection. Never do I remember a fricassee which combined the whole flavor of the chicken with the most perfect consistency, and was thus rich without being nauseating, thus pure without being insipid, thus relishing yet thus delicate."

The next lesson the hermit gives is on the cooking of a leg of Welsh mutton. It, too, is a wonderful lesson, and in a sense covers the whole art of roasting meat. From the bones, too, are taken more than one extraction of their virtue. I love this "Good Cookery," and shall get infinite gain from it.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

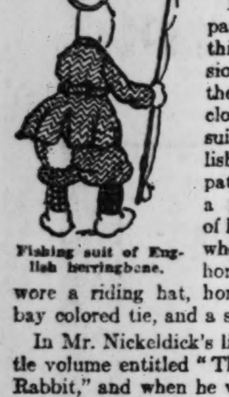
BEAU NICKELDICK
THE WELL DRESSED RABBIT
BY WM. DONAHEY

MR. ALEXANDER NICKELDICK was certainly a well dressed rabbit. He always dressed in the latest style. He would just as leave step out without his skin as to appear in the evening without his dress clothes.

When he played croquet, he always dressed in the latest croquet clothes. When he played golf, he wore the proper cut of golf trousers.



Fishing suit of English herringbone.

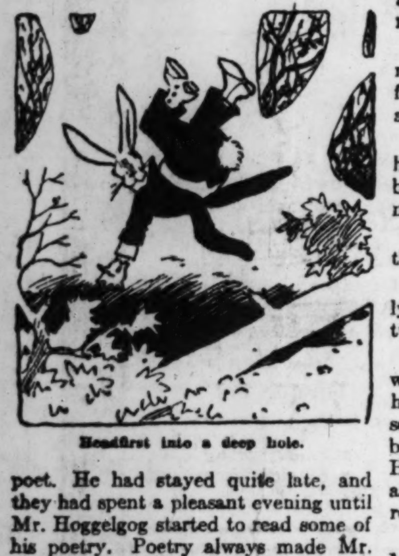
He was always particular to have things fit the occasion—for example, the design in the cloth of his fishing suit was an English herringbone pattern. He wore a fashionable suit of horsehair cloth when he pitched horseshoes. He also wore a riding hat, horsehide boots, a bay colored tie, and a sorrel vest.

In Mr. Nickeldick's library was a little volume entitled "The Well Dressed Rabbit," and when he was in doubt as to what would be proper to wear, he always looked it up.

He always set the styles along Snuffers lane. If he had appeared wearing tomato cans for shoes, all the woodchucks, rabbits, minks, and opossums for miles around would have been clumping about in tomato cans.

Mr. Nickeldick would have considered it just as bad to be seen after six o'clock in the morning wearing his dress suit as to have been caught stealing cookies out of a kitchen safe. That is why he happened to fall into the hole, but that's getting ahead of the story—the story started when he called on Mr. Hoggelgog.

He had dressed in his evening clothes and had gone over to visit with the poet. He had stayed quite late, and they had spent a pleasant evening until Mr. Hoggelgog started to read some of his poetry. Poetry always made Mr. Nickeldick sleepy, and he went sound asleep. When he awoke it was nearly daylight. He glanced at the clock. Horrors, it was after six. If any one should see him in evening clothes in the day time, he'd die with shame. Thank goodness, Mr. Hoggelgog was asleep.



Headfirst into a deep hole.

Mr. Nickeldick slipped out the door and started to run for home.

"I'll go the back way and sneak in the kitchen door," he muttered to himself. "I—I—I'd be ruined if any one saw me in these evening clothes."

He dashed madly along, and just as he leaped over a fence he saw Tantrum Quid coming towards him. Mr. Nickeldick's heart nearly stopped beating. He turned into the woods and crashed through a thicket. In his wild efforts to keep from being seen he ran blindly into a fallen tree, stumbled over it, and fell head first into a deep hole.

Luckily he wasn't hurt—he was too scared to be hurt. He crouched against the side of the hole and waited breathlessly, fearful that Mr. Quid might look in and see him.

Poor Mr. Nickeldick shook in his shoes as Mr. Quid's footsteps drew near, but the old fox passed by, and Mr. Nickeldick heard him thump off into the distance.

"I've got to get out of this place," Mr. Nickeldick muttered to himself.

He looked around for some means of escape. The hole was quite deep, the walls were too steep to climb; so he tried to jump out, but he could not quite make it.

He could have called for help, but that would have brought some one to the hole and the last thing Mr. Nickeldick desired was to be seen in evening clothes in broad daylight.

"Well, I'll just have to stay here until night—then my evening clothes will not be out of place and I can call for help and get some one to pull me out," said Mr. Nickeldick.

He lay down and pulled some leaves over himself, and presently he fell asleep. He had not slept long when he was awakened by a slight noise.

He opened his eyes and was much disturbed to see a badger grinning over the side of the hole. It was Johnny Wattels, and he grinned as though he considered Mr. Nickeldick's plight very funny.

"He's laughing at me because I'm in evening clothes," though Mr. Nickeldick, and he covered up his face with his paws to hide his shame, but suddenly he remembered he was entirely covered with leaves and Johnny had not seen how he was dressed. He felt wonderfully relieved.

"Why, if it isn't Mr. Nickeldick!" exclaimed Johnny with a grin that reached nearly to his ears. "What you doin' down there?"

"Why, I fell in," answered Mr. Nickeldick, rather brusquely, for he was a trifle vexed at Johnny's grinning. "Do you think I swam in?"

"Well, I hope you took off your hat when you went in," retorted Johnny, and he grinned and chuckled a great deal over his joke.

Mr. Nickeldick could see nothing funny about Johnny's joke, for he was a gentleman and he always removed his hat when he went into a place.

"I'll be glad to rescue you," said Johnny.

"I don't want to be rescued," answered Mr. Nickeldick. "That is, now. You may come around this evening, any time after six o'clock, and rescue me."

"You'd better let me rescue you now," argued Johnny. "I'm liable to forget you or somethin' and not get around tonight."

"Well, if you will go over to my house, get my tweed walking suit, and bring it back here, I'll let you rescue me," agreed Mr. Nickeldick.

"Did you tear your pants or somethin'?" asked Johnny with a grin.

"No," answered Mr. Nickeldick stiffly. "I just prefer to be rescued in my tweed suit."

Johnny agreed to get the suit and he waddled off towards Mr. Nickeldick's house. Now, Johnny was a shiftless sort of person, and it was late afternoon before he secured Mr. Nickeldick's suit. He loitered on his way back to the hole, and it was nearly dark before he reached it.

"Here's your suit," he called down to Mr. Nickeldick. "I've got a rope here to pull you out with."

"What time is it?" asked Mr. Nickeldick.

"About half past six," answered Johnny.

"Never mind the suit now. I'm dressed properly for evening. Let down the rope and you can rescue me."

Johnny threw the rope into the hole, and when Mr. Nickeldick had caught hold of it the badger quickly pulled him out.

"Why, you've got evening clothes on!" exclaimed Johnny when he hauled Mr. Nickeldick over the edge of the hole.

"Well, it's evening, isn't it?" asked Mr. Nickeldick stiffly. "You have the occasion, have you?"

"Here's your suit."

"N-n-n-no. I don't believe I have," answered Johnny.

"Mr. Wattels," said Mr. Nickeldick, "no matter where you see Mr. Nickeldick, you will always see him properly dressed. I thank you for your kind rescue and I wish you good evening."

He set off towards his home with the tweed suit tucked under his arm, leaving Johnny staring after him.

"By jimminy," muttered Johnny as he sat down on a stone, "I believe if Mr. Nickeldick fell into the river with a dress suit on he'd come up in a bathing suit."

The Impression He Makes Means Much to You

Men are so apt to get careless in their appearance. Not that they forget to put on a fresh collar—but they neglect the little things. They forget about little spots here and there on their clothes. And so much depends on a man's appearance. Other men judge him by it.

ENERGINE THE PERFECT DRY CLEANER

A FRIEND IN NEED
by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct Church Library Needs.

"Has some reader a bookcase to donate to our church library? We are endeavoring to circulate books on teacher training and Bible study among our Sunday school teachers that they may better present their lessons to the children, and are in need of more bookcases to care for the books. We will be thankful to any one who can make the gift. E. R."

The moving season often finds an unwanted bookcase, or other such article of furniture, which does not fit into the new rooms attractively If you happen to have a bookcase to donate to this Sunday school, we shall be glad to put you in touch with it.

Bare Basement Floors.

"I wonder if some reader of your column has an old rug or discarded bit of carpet to pass on to me? I have three small children—1, 2, and 3 years old. It is so hard to keep them off the floor, and we have had no heat so far. We are living in a basement, so you can see how afraid I am that my babies will catch cold. Any gift will be gratefully received.

"W. M."

I wish I could picture to you the uncovered basement floors I have seen, so that you would realize what the donation of a rug or a strip of carpet means to these poverty stricken mothers.

Golf for Health.

"I am a young man, 22, and am working indoors. I have just been told by the doctor that my lungs are weak and that I should get out of doors every possible moment for air and exercise. I want to follow his instructions and am anxious to take up golf to keep my mind off myself. I wonder if some of your readers have golf sticks I might use? I shall be glad to call for them. E. G."

We shall be glad to put this young man in touch with you if you have a stick or so to donate.

Ballet Costume Wanted.

"I wonder if among your readers there is a ballet costume, size 16-18, or even a 14, to be discarded. I am a young girl and am anxious to go on with my dancing lessons, but with my tuition paid I find I am barely able to get the slippers I need. It would make me so happy if some one has an extra costume to pass on. ELSIE."

If you have it in your power to make our little friend happy, you'll do it right away, won't you?

Aged Couple in Straits.

"I hope some of your readers will come to our assistance, even if we are not Chicagoans. My husband and I live in a little town in Illinois, and are both 90 years old. We have no one to help us now, and are in actual need of fuel, either coal or wood, and sometimes of food. We need blankets for we are using old coats now to keep warm. Will appreciate anything.

"E. O."

This aged couple will be made comfortable for the winter. if enough of us give a little toward helping them Have you a blanket or some other gift?

Crippled with Rheumatism.

"I am a young girl, 19, and have rheumatism all over my body. I have had it for months now. My mother, who is a widow, works all day, and I am alone and cannot help myself, because I have no wheel chair and mother cannot afford to buy one for me. I get so tired and lonely and a wheel chair would really mean a lot to me if some one has it to give.

"STELLA."

Isn't there a discarded chair somewhere awaiting a call like this one? If there is we'll be more than happy to give you Stella's full name and address.

Shortening the Hours.

"There are twenty-eight of us, in a cottage out here at the sanitarium, desirous of having a radio, to shorten winter hours to come, but between the twenty-eight of us there is not enough money to buy a set, and we surely would be grateful for any assistance from the outside world.

"MEN'S UNIT."

This radio gift will need a loud speaker, of course, but if you want to give a radio, and it's just a crystal set, please write in to me. We have shut-ins and shut-ins longing for radios.

Children Thinly Clothed.

"If some of your readers have clothes to give me for my children, I shall be grateful indeed. I work by the day, and find my earnings do not stretch to pay for warm winter clothes. I have a boy, 10, and two girls, 11 and 6, who are wearing such thin little clothes to school that I am afraid for them. Our basement flat is not warm either, so I would certainly appreciate any gift of clothing. De L."

Children outgrow their clothing so soon. Do you know of some outgrown garments, warm and comfortable still, that you can pass on to this needy family?

$5 APIECE FOR BRIGHT SAYINGS

Nan, our neighbor was quite put out at the coming of a sister.

She looked at it and said, "Well, we will take this one home, but we don't want any more."

Now a baby brother has arrived to her great disgust. It is a small baby and quite red.

Nan looked at it a long time, then said, "Mother did you pick this one out, or did they just give it to you this way?" M. M. DE C.

The young man living next door to us purchased a fox terrier dog which he called Booze, and every youngster on the block became almost a daily visitor, somewhat to the annoyance of the young man's mother, who was a busy housekeeper.

One morning my son called unusually early, and in answer to his knock at the kitchen door the neighbor said, "Now, Arthur, you must run home. I'm busy this morning."

"Well," replied Arthur, looking down longingly at the dog, who was wiggling with delight at sight of him, "but Boozie isn't busy." M. T.

Katherine had been visiting Aunt Alice, and she and Cousin Bobbie who lived close by, were invited to a party.

When they were ready to go Aunt Alice explained to Katherine that she could carry both presents because Bobbie was so little.

The hostess met Katherine, who handed her the two packages, saying: "This one is from me and this one is from Bobbie. Bobbie didn't have sense enough to bring his." M. T.

HOW SHE PROPOSED

Tell us how your wife proposed and if the letter is used The Sunday Tribune will pay you $1. Address How She Proposed Contest Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

She Was Ready.

I had been going with a girl for some time, but had never thought anything about marriage. One day when I dropped in to see her, I found her up on a ladder, putting up some new window shades. I remarked in an admiring way, "Say, you'd be a handy little thing to have around, wouldn't you?

She replied, "O, Martin, do you really think so?" and nearly fell off the ladder. Of course, I agreed and have never been sorry. M. N.

Surprising Mother.

It was back in the good old days when a fraternity pin on a shirtwaist meant something. I don't know yet how much guile there was in the loss of her collar pin; quite innocently I suggested my frat pin as the only fastener in the emergency. Imagine my consternation at her gleeful churckle, "O, won't mother be surprised!" as she, with nimble fingers, accomplished the transfer of the pin from my vest to her shirtwaist! R. A. T.

Just What She Wanted.

Well, it happened this way. I liked the girl—do yet, for that matter—but I had no intention of proposing just then, due to the low condition of my bank account and to a love of freedom. But you know what fate can do when a man's off guard. We were looking in a jeweler's window—yes, I know, but I was young then—at a wonderful display of diamond and wedding rings. The girl's eye lit on a diamond as big as my head, and in her sweet I'll-have-it-too voice said, "It's my greatest wish to have a ring like that."

"And it's my greatest desire to give it to you."

No one else was near, so it must have been my voice that said it, and the girl must have thought so, too, for she gave me the opportunity to fulfill my desire, for which I am everlastingly thankful. S. C. E.

ISN'T IT ODD?
By William Atherton Du Puy.

ISN'T it odd that the worker bees in a hive, when they feel there is need of it, can take an orlinary young one of their kind and develop it into a queen bee.

The old queen, it seems, has nothing to do with the coming of the new queen. She is, in fact, strongly against it. So deeply does she feel about the matter that, when the new queen appears, the old one forthwith attempts to kill her and, if prevented from doing so, leaves the hive, taking half the colony with her. This is what happens when bees "swarm."

There is but one queen to the hive, and her chief duty is to lay eggs. In her lifetime she may produce hundreds of thousands of them. They are put in chambers in the honey comb and carefully tended by the worker. They developed into grubs and, finally, into worker bees.

In due course it comes to pass that the hive grows too crowded. There are too many bees. The queen herself does not seem to realize this. She does nothing to relieve the congestion.

It is the workers who act when it gets too crowded. They go into the nursery, take an ordinary worker grub, and develop it into a queen. Exactly how they accomplish this is not known. However, bee scientists have learned that the workers give these favored grubs larger cells, called "queen cells" to develop in, and they feed them with a special food called "royal jelly," which the grubs destined to be workers do not get.

The reigning queen in a hive hates all rivals. She hates them even in their cradles, and seeks every opportunity to tear down the queen cells and destroy the sleeping princesses inside. Usually this assassin's behavior on the part of the queen is thwarted by the workers, who hustle and shoulder her away from the royal cradles.

But she bides her time, and when the young queens finally emerge, fully developed, she attacks them furiously, and a duel to the death is sure to ensue, unless the workers again intervene. If the workers are ready to "swarm" they throw themselves upon the young queen, protecting her with their bodies. Thereupon, in great indignation, the old queen marshlals her forces and leaves the hive. She will not live under the same roof with another queen.

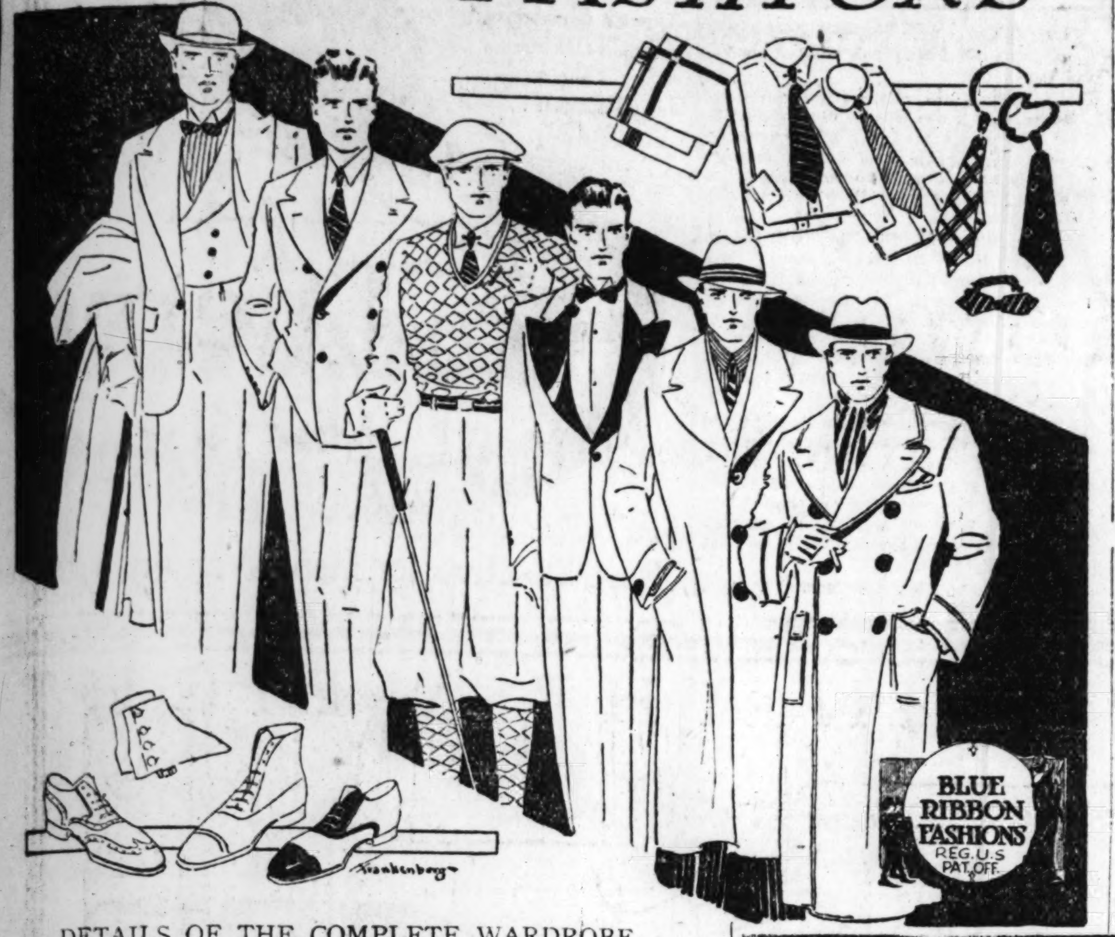
MEN'S FASHIONS



DETAILS OF THE COMPLETE WARDROBE.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions, the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—A young friend of mine was recently burnt out of house and wardrobe and, finding it necessary to get in a complete new sartorial outfit, came to me for advice as to just what to purchase to make up a wardrobe that would fill every fall and winter need.

As I believe many of my readers are interested in the same question, although they have not necessarily been deprived of their old clothes by fire but are merely anxious not to be found wanting in any detail of the complete wardrobe, I shall devote the following paragraphs to an outline of what the average man needs in order to find himself properly clothed for the average walk of life.

This wardrobe is not meant to be the least a man can get along with; nor is it in any manner a wardrobe that would satisfy many men of the world—but it will satisfy the needs of the man who goes to business every day, theater now and then, an occasional formal evening function, and more frequent dinner parties and small dances; in other words, a representative American citizen.

In the first place, the average man needs at least two business suits in good condition. If three can be managed, all the better, for the more rest a suit gets in the closet the better it will wear. If there are but two, one of dark blue is always a good idea, for a dark blue suit is a staple that every man finds a comfort at some time or other. The other one should be of some shade of brown or gray, depending upon which color is more becoming to the individual. If there are but two suits, both should be simple of pattern and color, so that they will not become tiresome to the owner. If a third suit is in the wardrobe it may be of some more pronounced pattern, such as a glenuyquhart check, for it need not be worn any oftener than fits the mood of the owner.

At least one overcoat, of course, fits into this wardrobe. If there is only one, it must be of a style that will serve for both day and evening wear, therefore not a heavy informal looking ulster type of coat, nor yet a strictly evening coat, but a simple patterned, dark colored coat of the tubular or Chesterfield model, which can be worn with evening dress as well. If you can have a coat for evening and formal day wear, and another rougher one for bad weather and informal day wear, so much the better. In color the coat should be one which will harmonize with both or all suits.

The shirt supply for the average man should contain enough shirts so that he won't have to figure too closely on laundry day. He should count on one a day, even if he does manage to make a colored shirt go two days. In color the shirts should be chosen with all suits in mind. For instance, if he has a dark blue suit and a gray suit, the same shirts will go for both. Blue, gray, blue and white, gray and white, black and white, lavender, green, and pink will harmonize. If there is also a brown suit, add a brown and white shirt. It is well to have one or two or three shirts of the plaited or stiff bosom style, in the colored patterns, for wear when more formal appearance is desired.

Especially is this advisable if a suit of semi-formal day wear—striped trousers and black jacket combination—is included in the wardrobe. This, by the way, either this or a cutaway and striped trousers, is necessary if a man expects his life to include any daytime formal activities, such as formal Sunday calls, afternoon receptions, or the like. A plain white plaited bosom or stiff bosom shirt is a good thing to have in the shirt drawer for occasional wear with this outfit.

Then, of course, there must be a dinner coat, for wear to the theater and to dinner and dance parties. If a man expects to attend many highly formal evening affairs, he will need a swallowtail also, but the average man can manage to get along with just the tuxedo or dinner coat. I will not go into the accessories that go with the evening dress, as this has been done at other times in this department.

In the way of shoes, a man needs one pair of evening dress oxfords, for wear with the above mentioned dinner coat, and at least two pairs of street oxfords, unless the high shoes are preferred at this time of the year. It's a good idea to have one pair of black and one pair of tan shoes or oxfords. If it can be managed, it is still better to have more than two pairs of shoes, since they can always be in neat repair. If the formal day attire is included in the wardrobe, it is necessary to have a pair of shoes suitable for wear with this outfit, either button fancy top shoes or black oxfords worn with spats.

The sock supply must include black silk for evening, and for wear with the business suits anything harmonizing that meets with the personal taste of the wearer, whether it be wool hose, lisle, or silk.

Then there must be two or three pairs of gloves, something in a dressy gray mocha or white kid for evening wear, and tan cape or buck or chamois for day wear, whatever happens to harmonize in color with overcoat and suit.

There should be an evening muffler of light gray or white, or black and white effect, and one or more for day wear, to harmonize with coat and hat. Hats should include one or two for daytime and a suitable one for evening.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"It is a mistake for old people to take strong cathartic medicines, as they are seldom necessary.

"Just because you are old, doesn't mean you need strong physic."

—DR. CALDWELL

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils every day or two.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels of old folks. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

2533—Women's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 40 inch material.

2507—Women's and misses' dress. Size 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 36 inch material and ¼ yard of 27 inch plain material for the contrasting one.

2075—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 40 inch material.

How to Use the Patterns

ALL wool challis is shown in some attractive colors and designs this fall, and would make up charmingly in a dress for afternoon wear by pattern No. 2533. The front is cut in panel style, and there are side front pieces, and a back that comes to a low waist line. To this back and the two side pieces, circular skirt sections are joined that give a smart flare to the lower part of the dress—not interfering with the flat, straight front.

In putting the dress together, turn in the long edges of the panel and then baste the underarm seams of the waist together and the circular skirt parts to the side fronts and back. Baste the turned in edges of the front panel in place on the side fronts and skirt parts, slash the dress down at the neck, and try on. After the alterations are made—if any are needed—make the tie strings and set them in place under the panel on each side.

If you use a printed material, it will be pretty to use a piping of one of the colors where the panel joins the rest of the dress. The facing and collar can also be made of this same color. The pattern provides for long or short sleeves. After the seams are finished, the dress should be hung up for several days to allow the circular part to stretch.

Pattern No. 2075 is for a young girl's dress; and the design is one just suited for school wear. Any of the light weight woolens will make up attractively, and either length sleeve appropriate. Front and back are each in one piece; and the plaited side sections are cut and set in. Instead of having the belt go all around, it is cut simply to cover the tops of the plaited sections, finishing in a point at each end. There is a small inset front, cut in one with the facing. This is joined to the collar and rolls back in the front, forming revers.

The short sleeves are cut longer than most—ending just about at the elbows, and finished with prettily shaped, turned back cuffs. It would be pretty to bind the edges of the cuffs, belt, and collar with silk braid, and with the right buttons on belts, cuffs, and in front, the result should be pleasing.

Pattern No. 2507 is for a long waisted frock with drooping shoulders forming short sleeves. If desired, these sleeves may be lengthened with one piece sections, gathered at the wrists into narrow, close fitting bands. The fronts of the upper part of the dress are underfaced and left open, showing a slip; and at the neck, joined to a collar and rolled back, forming revers. Narrow ribbon serves to hold the waist together at the top.

The circular skirt is cut in two pieces.

Flat crepe would make up beautifully in this design, and a solid color chosen. Face the fronts and make the collar of a contrasting color—set waist and skirt together with a piping of the same—bind the sleeves and bottom of the dress with this contrasting color, and the pocket opening also. is no slip pattern included in this dress pattern.

A dress of this kind is easy to make. but it must be accurately put together and finished with care. There

Of course, the dress cannot be finished at the bottom for several days after the rest of the work is finished; and when putting the binding on be careful to handle the circular part of the skirt carefully so as not to stretch or get out of shape.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

DEAREST: As I sit here by my cheerful grate fire this cold autumn evening, you seem nearer and infinitely dearer than you have in the long months we've been apart. It seems years since I've felt your lips on mine and heard that dear voice telling me to be patient—that love will find a way, and that somewhere, some time, we'll find happiness together.

Have you thought me cruel because I have not written? If only you could know the heartache I've suffered! And tonight the rain has loosened my tears. Tender memories go by on wings of flame, and again I feel the old thrill and think of the trysts we had, as I live over the days when a smile from you could raise me to soaring heights and a frown plunge me into depths of unhappiness. Those were happy times; as I look back it seems to me we were strangely close together.

An then I went away. I vowed you would never hear from me again. I wanted you to forget me. But tonight the old longing for you is so poignant, I must unburden my soul to the only one who ever understood me. Sometimes I think I cannot bear it longer; I must go to you and feel your cheek against mine; hear you call me sweetheart.

If I had not run away from your entreating voice, I'd have given in to your pleading, and my day dreams of curly haired children and a cottage would have been realities instead of mists, which always turn into a desk, decorated with a typewriter.

But, although I broke two hearts by my hasty departure, surely you, with your brilliant future, must realize what I did was for the best. Your father really meant to disinherit you if you married me; and, although in your ardor, you thought you didn't care, always you'd have blamed me in your heart.

I have followed your success in the newspapers, and I'm so proud of you, my dear.

Please, if you love me, do not try to find me, for one sight of your dear face would cause me untold anguish and break down the wall of stone that surrounds my heart.

But you think, sometimes, of the girl who was once. YOURS.

Thousands of Women Have Wanted, and Waited For, This Perfect Aluminum Roaster

THINK of buying a roaster that will serve you perfectly throughout your lifetime. Year after year, it will retain its newness, never lose its shape, because it is almost indestructable. Note the smooth, round sanitary-tight edges. The comfortable, large handles and top vent, easy to open or close. These features contribute to the real satisfaction that makes LIFETIME a lasting pleasure. With this Roaster in your kitchen, you are sure it will never be necessary to buy another.

Why Some Aluminum Ware Fails

Those who have bought thin, lightweight aluminum ware have been taught an expensive lesson. Heated through, it is soon bent out of shape. Many a hopeful cook has experienced keen disappointment. It renders a service barely equivalent to its price. Practically speaking, such aluminum ware is worthless.

It is pure aluminum—no denying that—but made too thin, too light, in the effort to meet thoughtless demands for inexpensive utensils.

Good Aluminum Ware Saves Money

The new, low price of LIFETIME Aluminum Ware makes it more attractive than ever before. Aluminum buyers are beginning to realize that LIFETIME utensils represent a genuine saving in kitchen up-keep. Every piece is made to last a lifetime.

Begin to Acquire Your Set Today

Prepare to experience a new pleasure, once LIFETIME Ware becomes a part of your home equipment. Its beauty of design and its beautiful finish make LIFETIME a grateful companion for the housewife who happily combines good taste with good cooking.

Depend upon LIFETIME Ware, always. And depend upon the good merchant who sells it.

ALWAYS CATCHING SOMETHING?

At least two vitamins are known to exist in cod-liver oil which promote growth and normal nutrition and favorably influence the formation of strong bones and teeth.

Scott's Emulsion of vitamin-tested cod-liver oil assures an adequate means of fortifying the system. It supplies the essential health and body-building nourishment that you and your children need everyday.

If your child is peaked, listless, frail, underweight or perhaps always "catching something," give Scott's Emulsion liberally three or four times daily for a reasonable season and watch how efficiently it builds up strength and invigorates the whole body.

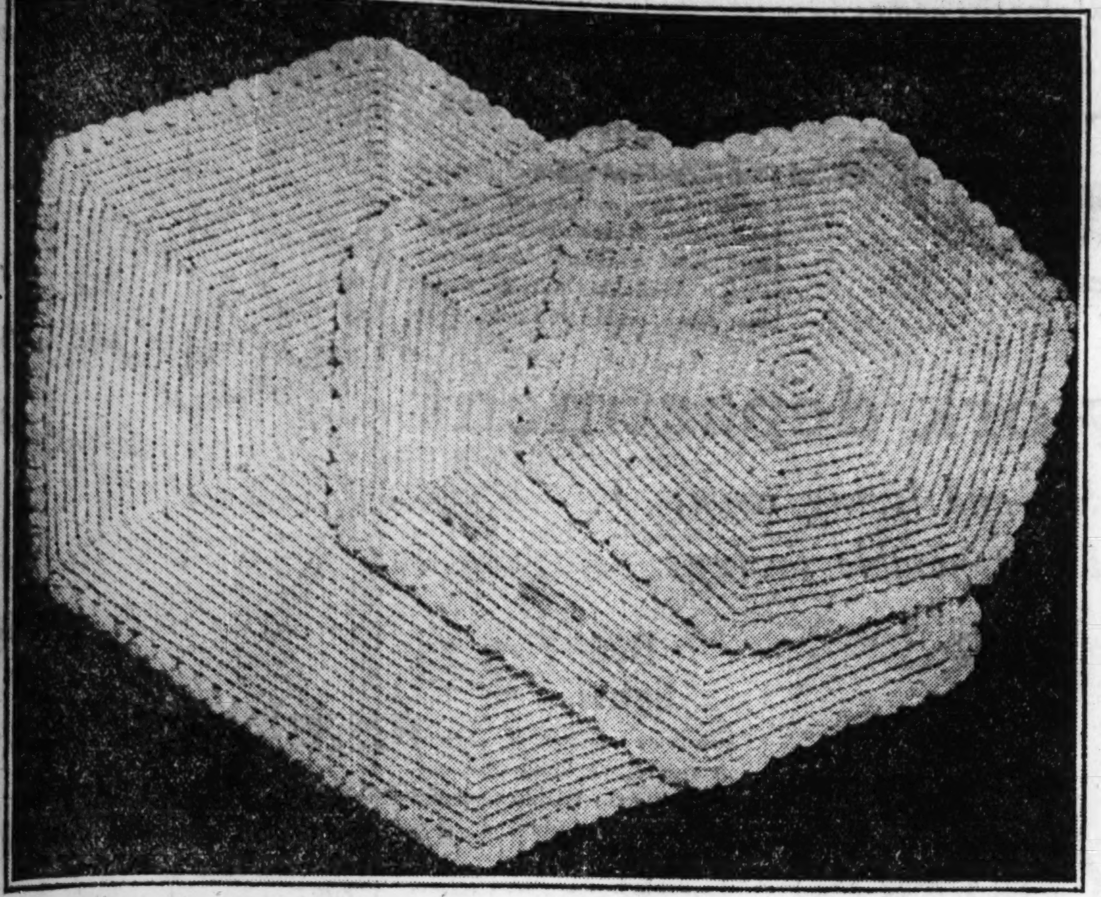
PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE



What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

CROCHETED TABLE MATS.

HIGHLY polished dining tables are difficult to keep looking well, and too often one sees the imprint of hot dishes on the surface. The table mats shown today are rather old fashioned but pretty, and if asbestos mats are put underneath them the table will not be marred. There can be as many as one wishes in the set.

The oval mats measure 15 by 10½ inches and 7 by 11 inches; and the round one measures, nine, seven and four inches across. Carpet warp and a No. 7 crochet needle are all that is required, unless, of course, you wish to use a color at the edge, for which you would need heavy crochet cord No. 4 or 6.

For the oval mats make a chain of stitches measuring 2½ inches for one, and 3½ inches for the other.

After the chain is the right length crochet entirely around the chain, using the single crochet stitch, and going into each stitch of the chain once on each side. The only exception to this is at each end, when three stitches are taken in the same place.

Now continue with this single crochet stitch until the mat is ready for the border. After you have gone around the beginning chain, and have put three stitches in each end, turn and go back the way you have just come, always putting the needle in the back of each stitch, to give the ribbed appearance. In turning to begin another round make a chain of two stitches, then make one stitch, then two in the same place, and then continue around until you come to the opposite end, when you will put two stitches into the second stitch of the group of three.

Then take one stitch in the next place, and three at the end as before. The next time around there will be two single stitches before the two stitches are put in the same hole; and so on, always going entirely around with the same number of stitches between the widening places; and after going entirely around, always making a chain of two and turning, go around the way you have just come.

For the round mats you start with a chain of two stitches, and make ten or twelve stitches in the first of the chain and then join it to the remaining stitch. This gives it a round start.

The next time around widen in every other stitch, taking two in every widening place. This gives six places to widen—the same as in the oval mats. Each time around there will be an added stitch between the widening places.

The border consists of two rows of shells. These are made with the double crochet stitch, putting four of these stitches into the same hole. These four stitches make one shell. It is a good idea to make one chain stitch in the middle of each shell in the first row, as this gives a better place for the second row of the border.

Sulphur Clears Skin Right Up

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist.

Let a trial of Mentho-Sulphur show what this means to you. Send the coupon for it. Clip it now.

What Is a Bargain?

THE dictionary says: "Anything bought cheap." It also says: "An advantageous purchase." Both definitions seem to mean the same thing—but they do not. At Spiegel's we try never to lay too much stress upon so-called "bargains," especially bargains that are advertised to hurry you into purchasing. It's against our policy to advertise cheap things at cheap prices, with the idea of luring a prospective customer into our store and then attempt to sell them something else at a higher price. Our idea of a bargain is a piece of merchandise that is honestly made—that will give the utmost of service and satisfaction for which it is intended—honestly priced, so that, by comparison, it is a self-evident value. We believe that price, in all instances, should include service and ultimate satisfaction, so that truly, in the long run, it lives up, in every way, to the dictionary's best definition of a bargain—"An advantageous purchase." That's what we offer you at Spiegel's in everything you buy. We invite comparison. We bring you advantageous purchases on long, liberal credit, so that you do not need, through lack of ready cash, deprive yourself of having a beautiful home, furnished throughout with honestly guaranteed quality home-needs.

Boudoir accessories, 1.88

There are mirrors, comb sets, hair brushes, trays, picture frames, powder boxes, telephone screens, glove and handkerchief boxes. Available in orchid, rose and blue, they have French ribbon rosebuds and metal lace trim.

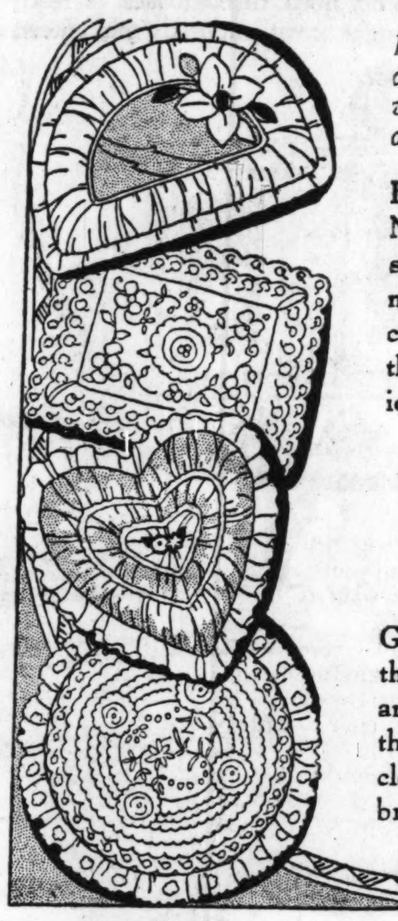
Hand-made chair backs, $1

Imported from France, these chair backs are of fine meshed, pure linen filet and are finished with effective tassels.

Filet table scarfs, 8.95

Imported, hand-made scarfs in beautiful antique designs are finished with fringe. For medium and extra large tables. Third floor.

Cushions—remarkably low priced



For boudoir, chaise lounge, window seat and davenport. 2.75 pictured at left Of exquisite Normandy pattern lace with colored backs.

Hundreds and hundreds of boudoir cushions of fine Normandy patterned lace—decorative cushions of soft georgette, in new shapes to be tucked into the many corners of the boudoir and sun room. Crescent, round, square, oblong and heart shapes. For the living room are large, fancy shaped rayon cushions, trimmed with brilliant hand-made flowers.

Changeable and lustrous taffetas 4.95 pictured at right All notably low priced and lovely

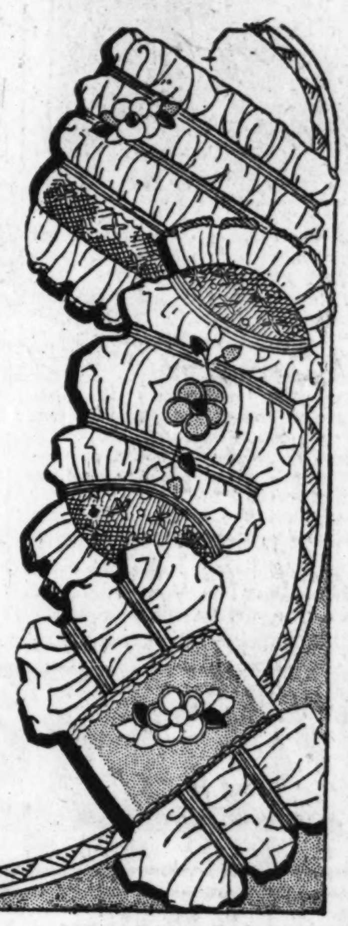
Gifts that add pleasure to the giving—because of their dainty usefulness. Many new styles, shapes and colors that have never been offered before are thickly shirred and gaily trimmed with laces, metal cloth and dainty ruffles. Effective new shades to brighten the living room and beautify the boudoir.

Third floor, Wabash.



Large size bed lights, 3.25

New shaped bed lights of pleated georgette have ruffles and crystal bead finish. Rosebuds and tinsel braid lend a dainty decorative touch. Available in rose, sand, blue, green, orchid and gold.

Bed lights, 2.75

Exquisite shades of shirred georgette are lined with colored sateen. Richly trimmed and decorated with a large gold metal braid bow knot. Available in many new colors.

Cigarette dolls, 3.35

Dressed in pajamas of green felt these quaint dolls have real hair. Jazz dolls have silky colored bodies and fluffy hair.

6-piece desk sets, 1.55

Outstanding values for the home sewer—

54-inch all-silk black satin souple, 2.98

A special purchase—with unusual concessions from the manufacturer—enables us to offer this exquisite satin at a price which, to our knowledge, is the lowest ever quoted in Chicago.

Following Parisian style dictates, black is today enjoying its greatest vogue, and in this soft, supple, glove-finish fabric it finds most graceful expression.

Deep, rich, raven black—in the correct weight, luster, and finish for handsome dresses, slips, linings and foundations.

50-inch French bordered velvets, 9.95

Direct from Lyons come these novel creations, including brocaded borders—printed borders—two-tone colorings—multi-colored effects. Expressive of the ultra-smart tendencies in French designing, these velvets have the added advantage of extra width, thereby curtailing labor and numerous seams.

DEMPSEY TALKS ON REDUCING

Exercises Are Effective, But Nothing Is Better Than a Good, Brisk Walk, Jack Says

by Antoinette Donnelly

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—(Special Correspondence.)—On Los Feliz Heights, within the confines of Hollywood, a diminutive Spanish hacienda backs up to a narrow mountain ledge. There is breathing space between the back door and the hillside for a handful of orange trees, walnut and flowering oleanders. A brief, well manicured lawn slopes down a few yards from the side of the house, halted suddenly by the street pavement. A cute Romeo balcony looks out over this grassed plot. A hedge of golden privet flanks the front of the house on either side of the tiled porch steps. The doorplate inscribes its tenant as Jack Dempsey.

"How about calling on Jack and getting a story from him?" suggests my guide, clamping the brakes down on our Lizzie's Hollywood speed.

"A beauty story, Mr. Bones?" we query.

"He had his nose made over, didn't he?"

"Yes, but that's been done by every scribe who's seen him since the operation."

"Well, then, the boy knows how to fight, you know! There ain't a guy out here in Hollywood this minute who'd step up to him and tell him he didn't. I betcha Doug Fairbanks wouldn't, and they say he trains with a prize fighter every day."

Fighting and the Gentle Sex.

"We wouldn't, either, if we were Doug and wanted to make another million dollar picture with the same face," we agreed. "But what has fighting to do with the gentle sex that does us the honor of reading our column of a dull Sunday, Mr. Bones? Do you want us to raise our fair readers to be prize fighters?"

"You don't have to raise 'em to be," responds Cavalier Bones. "Who's doin' all the fighting these days but your so-called gentle sex? Fighting for their rights at home and abroad! Fighting for alimony! Fighting for something or other all the time. They might as well put a little technique into their work when they're at it."

"Who says wimmin are doing all the fighting?" we challenge with blood in our eye.

"If they ain't fighting anything else," argues Mr. Bones, "they're fighting fat, ain't they? I tell you they just gotta be fighting something!"

"Fat! Now you're shouting, Mr. Bones. You're talking a language we wimmin do understand. Drive on to the Dempsey manor, James. We'd ride a mile any day for a tip on how to roll your own figure back a few years."

And that was how our chariot came to steer its way over Los Feliz avenue to the house that Jack built, or occupies with Mrs. Jack, a couple of Pekinese, a huge blue Dane, a parrot, and the necessary servant equipment.

That Obstreperous Ford.

If you have a child in your family who never does what you want him to do when he does it, you'll understand our chagrin over Lizzie's conduct upon our arrival at the Dempsey door. You'd think she'd have better manners than to bark her shins on the royal wheels of a foreign car, monogrammed with the Dempsey initials, and standing there minding its own business. Not our Lizzie. She has no regard for caste or social distinction. She's just that kind of a modern gal. You've got to keep the brakes on her all the time. She'd try to pull a petting party with Rudolph Valentino's red morocco lined Italian racer if she thought she could get away with it. After her unrequited love attack upon motor gods, she backs off with her left fender hiked up, so her gartered wheels are brazenly exposed and calmly proceeds to smoke right there in public.

DOROTHY DULIN

"You can't do nothing with this younger generation. They got no respect for position nor nuthin', not even themselves," wails Mr. Bones, righting Lizzie's fenders and covering her wheels.

"Hello, there! Come in!" calls Mr. Dempsey from the doorway. "Let the girl have her smoke. They're all doing it!"

"Mr. Dempsey," says we after the introductions were passed round and all agreed we were acquainted, "what do you think about lean women, fat women, and how lean and how fat should they be to make a perfect type of woman?"

"Don't get you," says Mr. Dempsey. "Go a little slower!"

Naming the Ideal Height.

"What's your idea of the ideal height and weight for a woman?"

"Five feet four or five and 125 pounds," answers the champion.

"Are those your wife's measurements?" sly-digs Mr. Bones, his twin soles poised for emergency flight.

"No, they're not! She's about 10 pounds overweight!" says Mr. Dempsey.

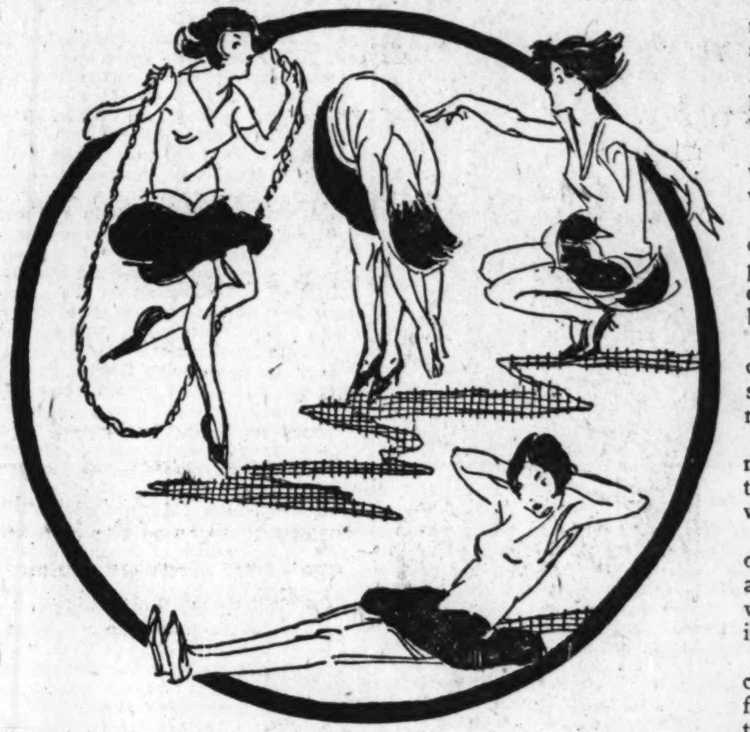
"Geewhiskers!" exclaims Mr. Bones. "You say that right in front of her and they all say she's bossing you. Now my wife——. I was just saying the other day we fellows ought to all get together including the fellow who thinks his wife doesn't boss him, and show the world who has the last word in our respective——

"The ideal type of woman," Mr. Dempsey interrupts, "doesn't wear the whatdoyoucallit shingle; that masculine one—prizefight shingle will do to call it."

"You don't like it, eh?" chuckles Bones.

"If my wife had it I'd shoot her," says the champion. "A woman ought to be feminine. Smoking is bad."

"Say, Jack, you ain't afraid of any of 'em, are you? Put it there, old man! You're all right. They ain't abossing any of us as to what we like about women, with all their barber shop sniping!"



"Mr. Bones, Lizzie is calling you," we had to remind him. "You run along outside to her. We want to find out about how to get down to that 125 mark."

"Exercise is the trick," volunteered the world champion exerciser. "It doesn't matter what kind of exercises you do so long as you do them. None of us gets enough exercise. If we did there wouldn't be all this need of dieting and starving back to a figure.

"As long as you exercise you can eat, if you exercise enough—leaving out pastries, candies, and starchy foods, of course. Meat, they say, is bad. I find it O. K. It gives me strength and muscle. But I eat steaks, beef—no greasy meats, no rich, greasy soup. It makes you fat.

"The trouble with most people when they take up exercise is they start off with a bang. They do it too strenuously at first, and get so doggone tired of it they chuck it all over.

"If you haven't been exercising any you are not fit to start in with strenuous work. You should take it easy to start with and slowly add until the soreness and lameness is completely worked out. You have to work up the strength to keep at it gradually, and add to it.

"You can't spend 10 years putting on weight, then expect to work it off in ten days. Honest to God fast walking you can't beat as an exercise to fit you for other forms of exercise, or to keep you in good form. Loping along won't do: fast walking is what you need.

Average Person Needs Help.

"Having some one command your exercises for you helps the average individual. You get better results than taking your own orders. The radio instructions and reducing records are good for these. You need something or some one to get you interested.

"Diets are all right for those who are overweight. Spinach and milk on two meal a day assignments make a good reducing diet. But any diet will surely show results if you stick to it and don't cheat. I think, though, you can keep yourself in better health and better physical condition generally by exercising before you get to the weight that calls for dieting.

"Everybody would benefit from a 10 minute workout mornings with a pair of pully exercisers. These movements are good for the waist, arms, stomach, and legs."

Mr. Dempsey does not classify swimming in his list of best exercises for himself. His objection is that it tightens the muscles. People with soft and flabby skin, for that very reason, might, on the other hand, find swimming extremely beneficial, he thinks, particularly in salt water.

We asked him to outline a brief series of exercises that would cover all the muscles of the body, reduce where reduction is necessary, develop where development is needed, and that would keep at right weight those who are neither under or over developed.

"Walking goes first," he answered my request, "if not in the morning, then some time during the day, and at every chance one has to step along briskly. Jumping the rope is good for nimble footwork and slender ankles. Begin easily; don't jump long.

"Rising up and down on the toes will take the fat off the legs if done briskly and regularly enough. Another exercise for the legs, also for the hips, thighs, and waist, is to grasp the back of a chair with the hands and go through a running motion with the legs, bringing the feet up in as high a back kick as you can.

"For the stomach, waist, shoulders, in fact the entire body, you cannot do better than this exercise: Lie flat on your back on the floor. Bring your hands up from your sides and try to touch your toes with them, the body to be raised forward without the aid of the hands. Then as you get better at this put your hands behind your head, come up the same way, and project the head as far in the direction of the toes as you can.

"Now flop over. With the palms and the toes on the ground, lower and raise the body. Go easy with this at first, but keep at it until you can do it many times without fatigue.

Complete Unit Exercise.

"For the waist, hips, and arms stand up straight, with your hands upraised and together over the right shoulder. Bring them down with a swing and touch the floor back of the left heel. Reverse, bringing the hands down outside the right foot.

"Then the squatting exercise is a complete unit in itself. Until you are able to do it alone, use a support of your hands, grasping a chair back. Rise on tiptoes, then squat down as low as you can, keeping the upper body as erect as possible. When you have acquired balance, squat with your arms extended shoulder length, up and down, up and down."

Complicated movements are not necessary, in Mr. Dempsey's opinion, to keep the muscles in trim, nor a knowledge of many kinds of exercises. A few well chosen ones done briskly and consistently are enough—with walking.

TAKING THE ROCKY ROAD

Hazel Keener Tells Her Own Vivid Story of the Long, Up Hill Road to Success in Pictures.

by Doris Blake

HAZEL KEENER.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Hazel Keener won a beauty contest prize of $1,000 and the title of Iowa's most beautiful girl about five years ago. Contests with movie contract plums were not so commonplace five years ago as today. How rich and juicy the plums are today is a debatable question. Sometimes, it is true a contest winner succeeds only in upsetting the course of her life for a brief period, to be thrown back into the regular channels of job seeking, a disillusioned young person. And again entrance gained via the beauty contest route may lead to the hiring of a publicity agent, a Hollywood bungalow, a sports roadster, and fame. It has been done.

But for the benefit of the young women who think it one quick leap from obscurity to fame, with no intervening hardships, Miss Keener's experience may shed an interesting light. Her approach on Hollywood was in a day when beauty contest winners were not numbered by the hundreds. To have been voted the most beautiful girl in a state meant more then than it does today to casting directors. But the path wasn't lined with roses any more those days than it is now.

"As the winner of the $1,000 prize from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the title of Iowa's most beautiful girl, my mother and I set out for Hollywood," confides Miss Keener. "We arrived with exactly $26.50 in cash. There were expenses to be met before we departed, a wardrobe to be bought, and $300 to be applied on a little farm we were buying for my invalid father in Missouri.

Blissfully Ignorant.

"I did not expect immediate success. I knew I should have to work hard for anything I might achieve. But I had no conception of the hard struggles and privations one encounters on this high road to fame. If I had realized the experiences I was to go through I would never have had the courage to tackle it. How true is that old adage: Ignorance is bliss, for a career in pictures has more ups and downs than the busiest elevator in a business building.

"One of the directors told me early in the game that there were more heartaches in this profession than in any other. I believe it. The more sensitive a person, the harder the bumps seem. One of the most difficult things I had to learn was how to let unkind criticism slide over my head; also, how to take criticism given in the right way for what it was worth in correcting my mistakes. Constructive criticism is more helpful than praise, even though it is harder to take.

"My first picture engagement was doubling for a star. I had to do a boat scene, dressed in her clothes Doubling is dangerous work, and consequently affords better pay for a beginner than ordinary extra work. I couldn't swim, but needed the $15 a day, so I took it. It was an interesting experience, except that my first view of the Pacific was accompanied by an accidental overturning of the boat, and I had to be fished out of the water, terrorized because I could not swim.

"This engagement did not come until I had spent days and weeks acquainting myself with the locations of the various studios, for, contrary to my expectations, they were not grouped together, but scattered as much as 10 and 15 miles apart, which meant sore and aching feet, as often I could not afford to ride. I found the fact of my having won a beauty contest gained me admittance to the casting directors, but that was all. The letters of introduction served the same purpose, but did not materially aid me, as I had no actual experience. That was the wall I bumped into everywhere. 'We can't do anything for you until you have had experience. Come back then, and we can use you.' What a problem! To gain the necessary experience when no one seemed willing to give me the opportunity to do so!

When Beauty Hindered.

"Finally I was called for a set during the holidays. I reported five days without ever being used before the camera. I asked why I had not been used and was told that I photographed well and they couldn't use me in a prominent place, as they could not have anything detract from the principals. That might be construed as conceit, but I am only telling the truth about what a beauty contest winner may be up against. This happened often while I was doing extra work. I practically backed my way into the films. My back adorned a number of scenes. If it had been a beautiful back I might have become as famous as Kitty Gordon. It was certainly photographed enough.

"But I stuck it out and finally was chosen for bits. In the meantime my makeup improved and I was learning something of camera technique. I did my first small part with screen credit almost a year after I reached Hollywood. After the twinkle in this star of hope faded I had to go back to extra work and while working in a mob scene tore a ligament in my ankle, which bothered me painfuly for a couple of months. I had to work on when work was available. It was getting scarcer, and as my ankle had to be kept strapped I could not do any fashion work, which was really the work that kept bread in our mouths during the time.

"Finally the day arrived when we were down to our last quarter and no work in sight. I had a string of pearls, not valuable ones, you may be sure, but I thought good for a dollar loan, perhaps. I walked to the doctor's for a treatment, then 18 blocks to the home of an elderly friend who had told me she would befriend me if I needed help. Arrived at her home I found she had departed for the week end. Mother was with me. We started back at low ebb, you may believe. We were so blue we couldn't talk.

Weary and Hungry.

"I never saw so much food displayed in windows before. Every window we passed seemed to have a pie, a bread loaf, fried chicken, or something to tease. We came to a Western Union office. I decided to wire my uncle to send me a few dollars. I wrote out the telegram, and handed it to the clerk to be sent C. O. D. She told me I would have to make a deposit covering the charge, as they did not take telegrams for money C. O. D., otherwise. I was so reduced I couldn't afford to send a telegram collect.

"We managed to get home and to bed. About 11 o'clock the phone rang. I was asked to report at 12 o'clock that night for a try-out at a downtown theater. I borrowed car fare from the landlady and went.

"There were 100 or more girls there, all in bathing suits. I had never worn a bathing suit on a stage before, but the review was to pay $30 a week. I needed the money. So it had to be done. I was embarrassed, but I went through with it and was one of the 30 girls chosen. This gave me three weeks salary.

"Then I was entered in the contest for Miss Los Angeles, who was to go to Atlantic City for the big contest. I came second, and the next day I signed a contract to do the second lead in "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" with Elliot Dexter. That was my first real part. In this picture they changed my name to Barbara Worth, as they thought it a better screen name, but I changed back as I was known to the studios by my own name. I finished the year doing bits in pictures and fashion shows, just earning enough to get by on.

Success Finally Came.

"Later I won another beauty contest and the title of Miss Hollywood, after which I got my first real lead in a comedy with Harry Langdon. Other leads were offered me and I kept on until I did the blond vamp in Harold Lloyd's picture, "The Freshman," which gave me work for five months. Since finishing it I have had two other contracts that were satisfactory, so that now my salary ranges from $125 to $300 a week, which isn't large compared to some of the stars' salaries, but is, after all, a much better one than I could make in any other business.

"The work is hard and sometimes dangerous. There is no eight hour law in pictures. I have worked from 8:30 one morning until 7 the next. Having won several beauty contests, it would be natural to expect that my work would be along those lines. As a matter of fact, I have done more westerns than anything else.

How She Managed.

"When first starting picture work the calls usually required me to furnish my own clothes, and even with a moderately nice wardrobe of every day things it seemed as though they always asked for something I did not have. I had to rent them. The rent would dig into the $7.50 a day earned. Then when car fare, lunch money and a 50 cent commission to the extra bureau that called me was counted out of the day's pay I considered myself lucky if I came out even. When I discovered I couldn't pay my living expenses out of my salary as an extra I had to find other means of earning money. This is why experienced actors and actresses always advise beginners to come with a few hundred dollars saved up.

"Fortunately I had had a little experience posing and got commercial photography work to do, which paid me $5 a sitting. I hardly got more than one or two a week, so I applied for work as a fashion show model. I could never have remained in pictures if I had not been able to bolster up my income with this extra money.

"There are picture people making big salaries who are actually poorer than others on a modest but steady income. It takes a great deal of money to live up to their reputations and to keep up appearances.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for only 75 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Wyeth Chemical Co., Inc., New York City

Healthy Hair

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy—Full of Life and Beauty

Modern style in hair dress, particularly constant curling and waving, is slowly burning the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; often the hair roots shrink, then the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy, and appears twice as thick and abundant.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

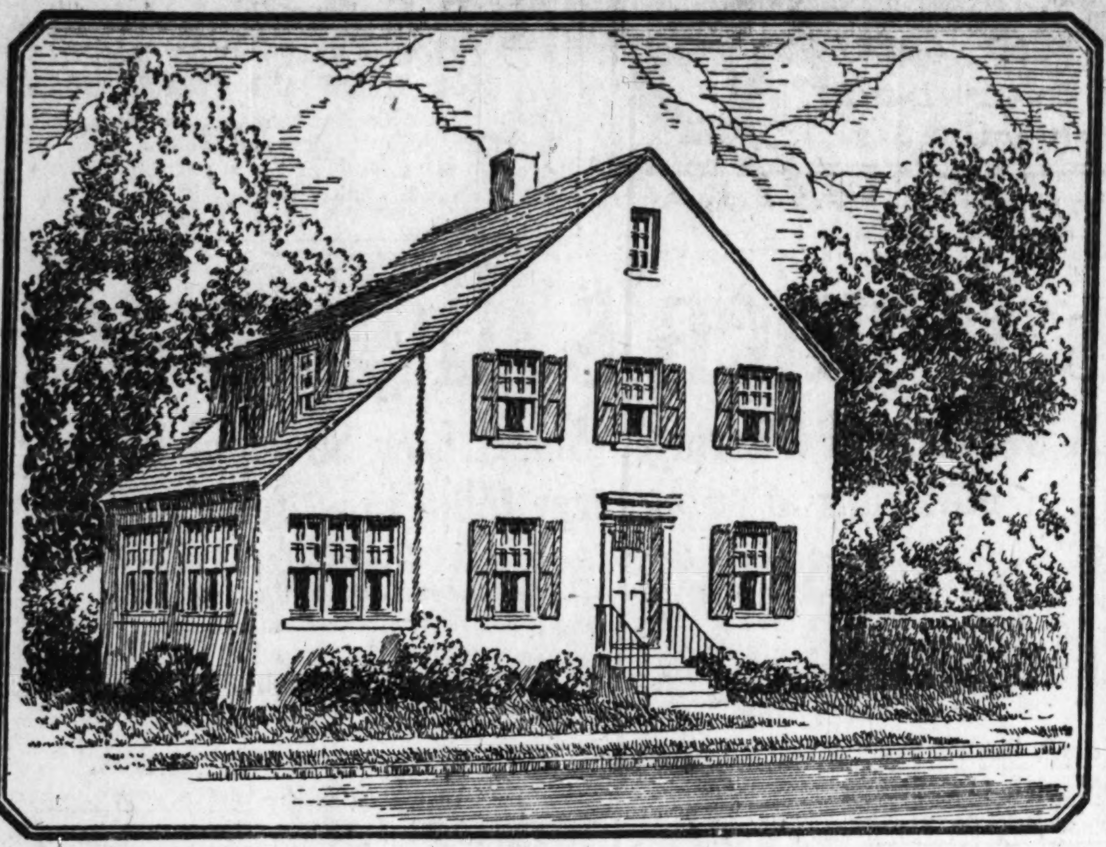
DUTCH COLONIAL IN STUCCO.



MANY persons who contemplate building and are taking a deep interest in home architecture for the first time labor under the misapprehension that there is but one type of Colonial home. This, in their minds, is represented by the house of oblong shape, of nice proportions, and distinguished mainly by the much used Colonial type of entrance, usually marked by fanlights and side lights in the doorway.

The early craftsmen of America, however, placed no such limitations upon the builders who were to follow them. There were numbers of types of homes used in the colony. A representative one is shown here.

Designed by Architect William S Wick of Middleton, N. Y., this home makes use of stucco for exterior finish. This may seem strange to those who are not thoroughly familiar with the activities of the early builders. It is a common belief that the Colonial house invariably was built of wide clapboards or of brick. It is not at all true. Hand driven shingles were used at an early date, and stucco almost equally as soon. This last was particularly true in Pennsylvania and parts of New England where the material often was applied on homes built of field stone. The early builders took advantage of the additional warmth afforded by the stucco, as well as of the delightful texture effects procurable. There is one finish in particular for the exterial of the home which is well known to experts in the plastering trade as the colonial finish.

The home designed by Mr. Wick might well have found its inspiration in Pennsylvania or those parts of New York where the Dutch colonial type had its origin. The well proportioned plane surfaces, the long, interesting room line with its low dormer, and the green shutters make a pretty picture in any setting. A definite invitation is extended to approaching guests by the carefully worked out colonial entrance with its interesting hand rails of iron.

Inside the simple doorway is a pleasing arrangement of rooms. The colonial idea of symmetry is carried out in the hall and in the front rooms. The main staircase is shifted to the back of the living room. Almost a separate unit is the kitchen.

In the hall is a roomy closet, which serves for the disposal of wraps and extra clothing. The hall opens directly into both living and dining rooms, separating the two most effectively.

Unusually pleasant features are embodied in the well proportioned living room. The fireplace is well placed in the center of the wall opposite the inclosed porch. Carefully designed stairs at the end of the room make a charming impression upon guests as they enter. An inclosed porch virtually doubles the livable space of the house. Of adequate dimensions is the dining room on the other side of the hall. It is exceptionally well cared for as to light and ventilation, having windows on two sides. These rooms should be finished most carefully, since they represent the entire home to the greater part of those who are entertained in it. Plastering on a base of metal lath will insure permanence to all of the walls and ceilings.

An unusual feature of the home is the fact that the kitchen opens into both the living and dining rooms, insuring easy access to the upper floors for the household worker. The kitchen itself is one which will delight the woman who takes an interest in the workshop of the home. Of pleasant size, it is efficiently arranged. The sink is directly under a double window, with cabinets at each side. A charming dining alcove is worked into the plan.

On the second floor are three well proportioned bedrooms and an exceptionally large bathroom. All of the bedrooms are provided with good closet space, as is the bathroom. An additional closet in the hall increases the storage facilities.

This house calls for a wide lot, which should face the south or east for the best setting. However, by shifting the inclosed porch to the front, a 40 foot frontage to either the south or the west could be utilized. For exterior color scheme it is suggested that the stucco be light ecru, doors and window sashes cream color, and shutters deep turquois green, with a roof of variegated shingles.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

KITTY: YOU WISH TO BLEACH your elbows? Apply peroxide of hydrogen. If you find this too strong, dilute it with water, half and half. Apply and leave on to dry, or, you may massage with cold cream. It keeps the skin from wrinkling and removes the grime and dirt.

HELEN: COLD CREAM WILL soften the lips and render them less susceptible to chapping. Or apply a camphor stick. Sometimes so-called cold sores are fever blisters, due to some digestive disturbance.

H. E. R.: BRUSH THE EYEbrows night and morning with an eyebrow brush or a small fine toothbrush. This trains them into shape and promotes their gloss. Rub yellow vaseline into them before brushing, if they are thin, but be careful not to let any of the vaseline get into the eyes, as it is most irritating.

N. N. T.: FOR SCALY EYELIDS, dissolve a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda in a glass of warm water. Dip a piece of absorbent cotton in the solution and apply. This is not a cure, but it dissolves the scales. It would be well for you to see a specialist and have the condition treated.

Home-Made, but Ends Coughs In a Hurry

A family supply of dependable cough medicine. Easily made and saves about $2

If you have a severe cough or chest cold, soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up at night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes a pint of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough instantly. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle, and soothes and heals the irritated membranes of the throat and bronchial tubes with such ease and promptness that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

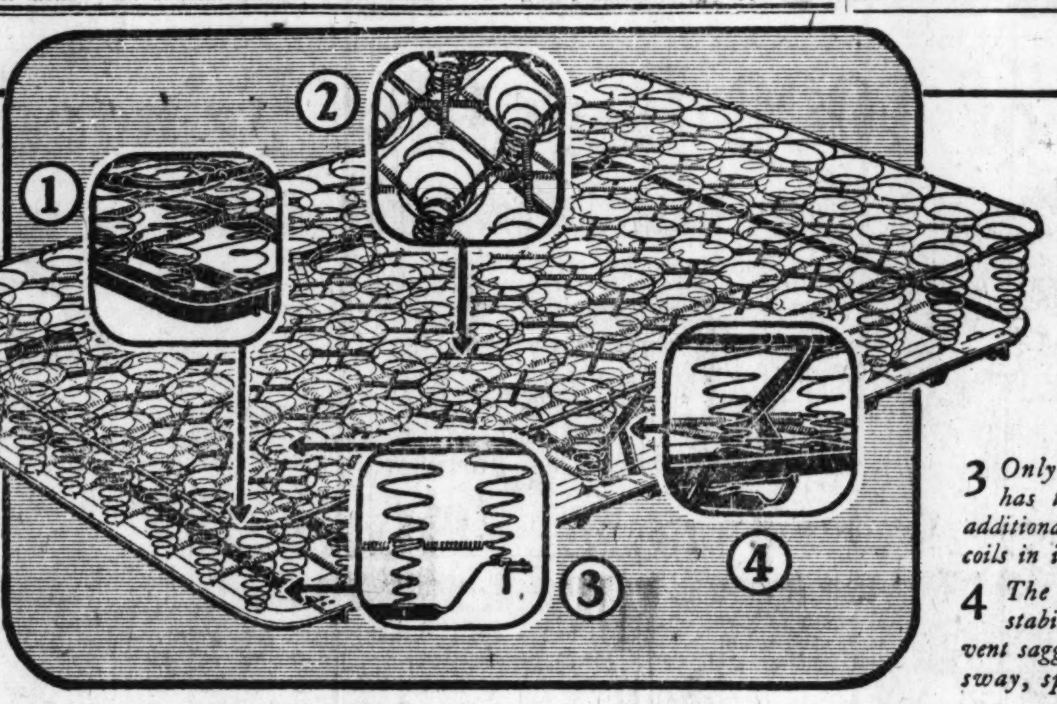
Cuticura Talcum Is The Ideal Powder

Its purity, smoothness and fragrance, combined with antiseptic and prophylactic properties which help to overcome disagreeable odors, make it an essential toilet requisite.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 40F, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.



1 Round-cornered frame fits both straight-end beds and bow-foot beds.

2 302 sensitive coils tie the 99 big spirals at tops and also centers.

3 Only The Ace has these 142 additional flexible coils in its depths.

4 The patented stabilizers prevent sagging, sideway, spreading.

See The Ace before you buy greater value for less money $19.75

Designed without thought of price, The Ace was built to be the world's finest open-box spring. Nothing short of perfection would do for Simmons' leading spring. It had to be worthy of the maker who pioneered bedding "built for sleep".

In our country the demand for quality is great. So when people learned how this master spring cradled the body in luxurious comfort, coaxing every nerve and muscle to relax, sales grew quickly.

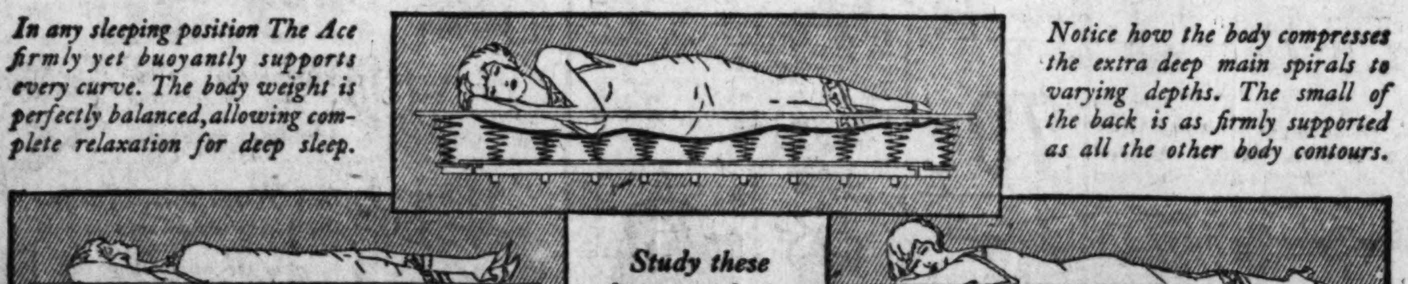
So the savings of huge production in the world's largest bedding factories made possible a price of $19.75. At this price, The Ace, always unmatched in quality, is unmatched in value for the money.

Its 99 deep main spirals are made of the finest tempered spring steel, cross-tied at the tops with 160 sensitive coils. Adding to their comfort and lifetime service, the centers of The Ace spirals are also spring-tied. This gives each spiral complete freedom of movement under its own load. All other springs, if at all center-tied, use unyielding wire or steel strips.

At first glance you might miss these 142 extra springs. Sleeping on The Ace, however, will tell you they are there. Look for them before you buy. Look, too, for the patented Simmons stabilizers, which prevent sidesway, spreading and sagging.

Examine your own spring tonight. Then compare it with The Ace at your dealer's. Its lifetime comfort is yours for only $19.75. Also see the Beautyrest inner-spring mattress, matchless in value at $39.50.

THE SIMMONS COMPANY: NEW YORK · CHICAGO · ATLANTA · SAN FRANCISCO



In any sleeping position The Ace firmly yet buoyantly supports every curve. The body weight is perfectly balanced, allowing complete relaxation for deep sleep.

Notice how the body compresses the extra deep main spirals to varying depths. The small of the back is as firmly supported as all the other body contours.

Banish Excess Fat

In This Pleasant Way

No abnormal exercise or diet. People are now using a million boxes yearly. Druggists guarantee it

You should learn what millions know about an easy, pleasant way to reduce.

You see the results in slender figures wherever you look today. Your own friends can tell you about them. Excess fat is now the exception, slenderness is the vogue.

The way is prompt and pleasant. It has proved itself for 18 years. So many have used it and told others about it that people are now taking over 100,000 boxes monthly. It is so reliable that every druggist now signs a guarantee.

Try it at our cost. Then consult some of the users who are all about you. Fat is a blight to style and beauty, health and fitness. It is very unpopular today. It has no excuse.

The Modern Way

The modern, scientific way is Marmola Prescription Tablets. Simply take four a day. No abnormal exercise or diet is required.

Marmola combats the cause of the trouble, which usually lies in a gland. It reduces weight to just the point desired, and that normal weight continues.

The method is not secret. Our books publish every ingredient. Every user knows just what she is taking, how it acts and why.

Thank You for Keeping Thin

Reduction is not too rapid. It rarely exceeds a pound a day. So the body adjusts itself to new conditions. Wrinkles are avoided.

Our guarantee, which your druggist signs, warrants you that within 45 days you'll be completely satisfied.

A Duty to Yourself

Every man or woman who is over-fat should learn about Marmola. Fat crowds the heart, checks the circulation, reduces longevity. It makes one conspicuous in these days when slenderness is the vogue.

Strenuous exercise and restricted diet can bring results, of course. But the way is hard and risky. It may overtax the heart or lead to malnutrition.

Consider this better way. Learn what it has done for millions, and for 18 years. People who know the facts are taking 100,000 tablets daily. Judge if you wish to join them.

The coupon will bring the samples free, our books and our guarantee. Clip it now, in fairness to yourself.

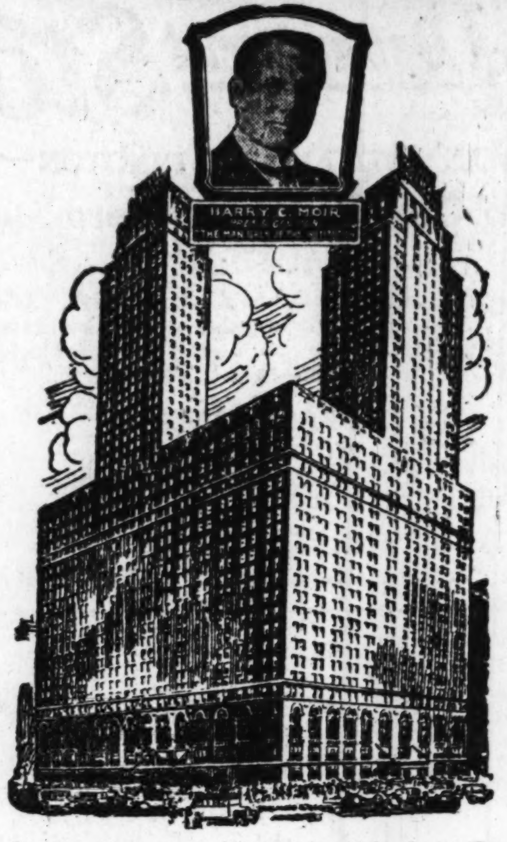
"Keeping Pace with the Growth of Chicago"



The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel, 46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

THE MORRISON HOTEL

With Its New Section Ready for Guests

TWENTY floors of the Morrison Hotel's new Clark St. section are now ready for occupation, and the remaining floors of the 46-story tower will shortly be available for guests. As a result, the Morrison has greatly extended its policy of renting rooms for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in any other foremost hotel. This has long been possible in a more limited way through valuable store subleases. Every room in the new section has bath, running ice water and Servidor, and all guests have the privilege of the hotel's garage.

The Morrison's present capacity is 1,944 outside rooms, each with bath, eventually to be increased to 3,400—the largest hotel on earth.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, celebrated throughout America for its cuisine, dance music, and clever entertainments. The following artists will appear during the week beginning Monday, November 9:

HENRI THERRIEN
The Marvelous Tenor
CUBA CRUTCHFIELD
And His Educated Rope
CLARINDA DREW
Charleston and Oriental Dancer
Dancing Between the Acts to the Music of GUS C. EDWARDS AND HIS ORCHESTRA

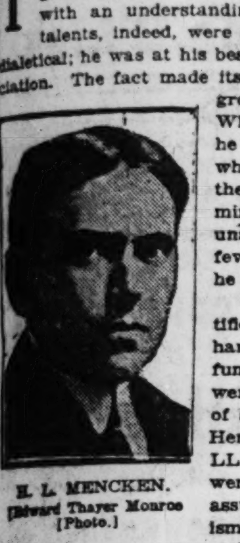
NOVEMBER 8, 1925.

Cousin Jocko

By H. L. Mencken.

THE late William Jennings Bryan, LL.D., always had one great advantage in controversy: he was never burdened with an understanding of his opponent's case. His talents, indeed, were always far more homiletical than dialetical; he was at his best, not in argument, but in denunciation. The fact made itself felt brilliantly during his last great combat with the evolutionists. Whenever he stated their doctrines he stated them inaccurately, and whenever he undertook to refute them he resorted to nonsense. His mind was of the sort that is simply unable to grasp scientific facts. They fevered him as flies fever a bull, and he got rid of them by lashing his tail.



H. L. MENCKEN.
[Edward Thayer Monroe Photo.]

Unfortunately, some of his scientific antagonists played into his hands by trying idiotically to perfume their own case. Of such sort were all the more fatuous reconcilers of science and religion, led by Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, Sc. D., D. Sc., LL.D., Ph. D. And of the same sort were the professors who hastened to assure the booboisie that Darwinism, after all, did not mean that man had descended from the monkey. These earnest gentlemen, I believe, went a great deal too far. They admitted too much, and so played into Bryan's hands. And by the same token they gave an air of dubiousness and uncertainty to the doctries they ostensibly defended.

There is, in point of fact, no possibility of reconciling science and religion—that is, religion of the sort preached to the peasantry by Bryan. If the one is sound, then the other is bilge. He himself, for all his ignorance, was well aware of the fact. When the biblical narrative collided with a known fact he instantly rejected the known fact. I myself, with my own ears, heard him argue violently against the notion that man is a mammal. To maintain that such "religious" ideas can be reconciled with science is to maintain that the Volstead act can be reconciled with the bill of rights. The two things are not only different; they are squarely and eternally antagonistic.

The yokels that Bryan preyed upon, when they thought of the evolutionary hypothesis at all, thought of it as the doctrine that their own grandfathers were gorillas. They could not grasp the concept of great spaces of time; moreover, most of them had seen their grandfather—and so the plausibility of the notion made them shiver. Bryan took advantage of the fact. Discreetly disregarding their grandfathers, he based his case upon their grandmothers, thus appealing powerfully to their chivalry. They responded by whooping for Genesis, in which Eve, though she is depicted as a somewhat loose woman, is at least 100 per cent human.

The professors of scientific apologetics responded by attempting an elaborate and none too convincing explanation. It was no longer contended, they said, that man was descended directly from the monkey; all that was argued was that man and monkey, in some remote past, had a common ancestor. The remoteness of that past was sufficient to make the connection aseptic. It ran to hundreds of thousands, millions, perhaps, even billions, of years. Long before the civil war, even before the revolution, the separation was complete. It was rammed home, so to speak, by man's acquirement of a soul—no doubt in early biblical days.

Proof by the Blood Test.

This explanation, I believe, failed to fool the fundamentalists, and I see no reason why it should fool any one else. Its defect was that it simply begged the question. What difference did it make whether man was descended from a monkey, or from some remote ancestor of all the monkeys—a more primitive and hence obviously more unappetizing quadruped than any monkey ever heard of? All the scientists accomplished by their nonsense was to make the fundamentalists even more skittish than they had been before. Some of the harder hearted of them had begun to be reconciled to the notion that their grandfathers had tails and lived in cages. But when they began to hear talk of remoter ancestors it made them think of skunks, rats, pigs, and other such abhorrent creatures, and so they shivered again, and resumed their whooping for Bryan.

The truth is that the biological relationship between man and monkey, whatever the precise lines of descent, is quite as close as even the most frantic fundamentalist ever accused scientists of believing, and that increasing knowledge tends to make it appear closer and closer. I turn, for example, to the latest authoritative work upon the subject, "The Morphology and Evolution of the Apes and Man," by Dr. Charles F. Sonntag of University college, London, and point to page 255. There Dr. Sonntag announces the pleasing news that the blood of man and that of the higher apes is chemically almost identical.

This is an accurate and an extremely subtle test. In its more refined forms it is sufficiently delicate to differentiate between one man and another. As between man and, say, the horse or the dog it is infallible. A horse's blood or a dog's blood can never be mistaken for the blood of a man. But when one comes to the higher apes the test begins to grow unreliable. The blood of a common organ grinder's monkey (Cebus capichinus) is easily differentiated from man's, but that of the baboons begins to show similarities, and that of the gibbons, chimpanzees, orangutans, and gorillas is so nearly identical that one begins to sympathize with the shivering of the fundamentalists.

Such proofs of extremely close relationship—and there are others—make all questions of descent seem academic. Whether man is a glorified grandson of the ape, or the ape is a degenerate man, or the two are descendants of a common ancestor—this problem, perhaps, will never be solved. Nor is it important. The important thing is that ape and man are biological cousins and as closely related as duck and canary bird. The anatomical and physiological differences between them are mainly trivial; the likenesses are innumerable and profound. Shave a gorilla and it would be almost impossible, at twenty paces, to distinguish him from a heavyweight champion of the world. Skin a chimpanzee, and it would take an autopsy to prove he was not a theologian.

Mental Powers of Primates.

Dr. Sonntag's investigations into the physical makeup of the primates have been admirably supplemented of late by elaborate studies of their mental powers. This work has been done chiefly by Dr. Wolfgang Köhler of the University of Berlin, who spent four years at Teneriffe, in Canary islands, studying a collection of chimpanzees gathered there. But important additions to the knowledge thus gained have been made by Dr. Robert M. Yerkes of Yale, who worked at Quinta Palatino, Cuba, where Mme. Rosalia Abreu has an immense collection of all sorts of monkeys—the largest, indeed, in the world. Dr. Köhler's conclusions are printed in a book called "The Mentality of Apes," and Dr. Yerkes' in three volumes: "The Mental Life of Monkeys and Apes," "Chimpanzee Intelligence and Its Vocal Expression," and "Almost Human."

What these investigations demonstrate, in brief, is that all the higher apes actually think, and that their thinking process differs very little, if at all, from that of the lower orders of man. A gorilla, true enough, cannot write poetry and neither can it grasp such a concept as that of Americanization or that of relativity, but is fully equal to all of thinking that a subway guard, a bass drummer, or a chiropractor has to do, and if it could only speak English it could be made into a competent train conductor or congressman in thirty days.

In some ways, indeed, it is measurably more clever than many men. It cannot be fooled as easily; it does not waste so much time doing useless things. If it desires, for example, to get a banana hung out of reach, it proceeds to the business with a singleness of purpose and a fertility of resource that, in a traffic policeman, would seem almost pathological. There are no fundamentalists among the primates. They believe nothing that is not demonstrable. When they confront a fact they recognize it instantly, and turn it to their uses with admirable readiness. There are liars among them, but no idealists.

VILMA BANKY BOWS TO AMERICAN FANS

"THE DARK ANGEL."

Produced by First National. Directed by George Fitzmaurice. To to be presented at the Chicago theater TOMORROW.

THE CAST.

Capt Alan Trent	Ronald Colman
Kitty Vane	Vilma Banky
Capt. Gerald Shannon	Wyndham Standing
Lord Beaumont	Frank Elliott
Sir Hubert Vane	Charles Lane
Miss Potties	Helen Jerome Eddy
Roma	Florence Turner

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

The producers ask you to take special note of this picture, which opens at the Chicago tomorrow, because Miss Vilma Banky is in it and they would like to know what you think of Miss Banky.

The lady in question is the Hungarian acquisition so recently and enthusiastically received by Hollywood and especially, if one is to believe press agent reports, enthused over by Rudolph Valentino.

VILMA BANKY makes debut in "The Dark Angel."

In appearance she is a composite of Mary Pickford and Helene Chadwick—an unbobbed blonde with pleasant manners.

From this one film it would appear she has beauty, grace, and adaptability rather than any great histronic ability. It is hardly fair, however, to pass judgment just yet, for the ways of Hollywood directors are, quite likely, not like unto the ways of the megaphone men of Hungary, and it is entirely probable that in a strange land and subject to strange methods, she was a little camera shy.

Which is not saying she does not do well. She does. Not astonishingly well, but she plays her rôle in pleasing and promising fashion. Next time, it is certain, she will have learned the mistake of too much lip makeup.

* *

Tragedy of the World War.

"The Dark Angel" is a tragedy of world war days, and Miss Banky is Kitty Vane, an English girl, who loves a gallant officer, Capt. Alan Trent.

On the eve of his departure for the front they decide to marry. Discovery that it is too late to obtain a license does not turn the girl from her determination to spend the last precious hours with the man she loves, and they put up for the night at an inn that is also headquarters of Capt. Trent's regiment.

Though at the time Kitty's identity is not known, several of the men are aware that a veiled lady has accompanied Trent to his apartment. One of these is an officer and gentleman who has long and vainly loved Kitty. The other is a pest and a cad. There is much more of both these characters later in the picture.

Report comes that Capt. Trent has been killed. It is more than report for Capt. Shannon, the other man who loves Kitty, believes he has seen him die, and comes to the girl to break the news and give her her hero's last message and his medal.

After a long period of mourning Kitty, though frankly telling Capt. Shannon her heart can never be his, agrees to marry and make him as happy as she can, if he wants her with the understanding that her love is in the grave with Trent.

Then comes discovery that Trent is living and not so far away.

I don't want to tell you any more of the story, for to do so wouldn't be quite fair to you or the picture. You know when there's no suspense and you're aware of just what's coming next, and next, and next—it's not so much fun, is it?

There's thrilling drama for you, however, as events unfold—drama with a tear and a heart pull.

"The Dark Angel" is from the play by H. B. Trevelyan, and the angel referred to is the angel of death.

On the morning following the night the lovers have spent at the inn Kitty, after an agonized parting, drifts hopelessly back into the parlor. There the woman of the place finds her. A clairvoyant, Roma turns out to be, and she brings out her crystal. Gazing into its milky depths, she shudderingly tells the trembling girl to—

"Pray for your man! I see him in grave danger. I see the Dark Angel passing over him!"

More of the Dark Angel, too, later on.

Colman a Romantic Gallant.

The picture is most artistically produced with sets that satisfy the eye and scenery that charms it. The big scenes are put over with sincerity, and there are numerous poignant little touches that add greatly to the effectiveness of the film as a whole.

Ronald Colman, as Capt. Trent, has a rôle that will further endear him to the hearts of his admirers. He is a gallant and romantic figure.

Wyndham Standing, as the loyal Capt. Shannon—who proves himself every inch a man throughout—is awfully nice and awfully good to look at, and Frank Elliott, as the pesky Lord Beaumont, with his evil mind and tattling, poisonous tongue, is NOT the things Shannon is—which is what the rôle demands.

Helen Jerome Eddy—where's she been hiding lately, any way?—has a minor rôle that she plays with her usual understanding and good taste, and there are some mighty captivating youngsters in the piece.

Taken fo' and aft, "The Dark Angel" can be pretty nearly guaranteed to please the majority of fans. We'll be anxiously waiting for Miss Banky's next picture.

BITS aBOUTem.

MRS. LLOYD HAMILTON, granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from the comedian, is to receive $100 a week alimony until she marries again.

MEMBERS of a Metropolitan company engaged in filming "Rocking Moon" in Alaska came as near death as they'll ever care to recently. They were imprisoned in a glacial crevice by an ice slide while filming scenes on the famous Mendenhall glacier near Juneau. It took them seven hours, according to report, to climb over the barrier, which they did with the aid of the metal pointed camera tripods, which they pulled apart and used as climbing sticks.

SYD CHAPLIN will wear dresses again in "Nightie, Nightie, Nurse." He sure do love to play lady, and we sure do love to have him.

IRENE RICH, with her mother and two daughters, has gone to Europe. She intends putting the girls in an exclusive school abroad. When left with the two children to support, Miss Rich didn't know which way to turn, and so turned screenward. Her good looks and ability brought her success, that everybody who knew her was overjoyed to have her experience and now, at the top of the ladder, she finds she can do all she ever dreamed of doing for the youngsters she's been working for.

DOROTHY REVIER, about a year ago, was given thirty shares of Mexican oil stock—as a joke. Now the joke's on the giver, for we do hear the stock's gone up thirty points and Miss Revier recently received a nice, fat dividend check.

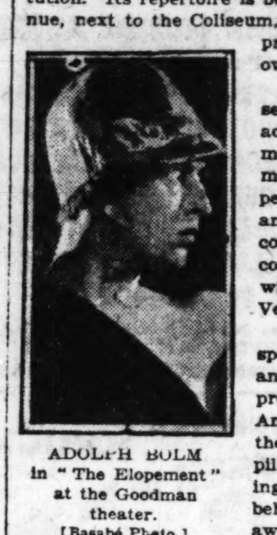
"CÆSAR'S WIFE," by W. Somerset Maugham, will appear on the screen named "Flirtation" when Corinne Griffith appears in it. If you ask me—as nobody has—I think Mr. Maugham's title is a heap the best, let alone the catchiest.

TULLY MARSHALL is resting like ever'thing in the Adirondack mountains. He says believe you him he NEEDS a rest after the [illegible] rôle he's been playing in "Clothes Make the Pirate" featuring Dorothy Gish and Leon Errol. He says he ACHES!

Two Views of the Drama of China

By Edward Moore.

WONDER how many people know there is a Chinese theater in Chicago—how many, that is, outside of the Chinese themselves. There is one, it is in nightly operation, and it bids fair to be a permanent institution. Its repertoire is being unfolded at 1515 Wabash avenue, next to the Coliseum, but after the first of the year its promoters expect to move into its own home and stay there indefinitely.



ADOLPH BOLM in "The Elopement" at the Goodman theater.
[Basabé Photo.]

It is worth a visit, and this for several reasons. You will find the actors' costumes several degrees more gorgeous than in occidental musical shows. Surmounted with peacock feathers, trailing long pheasant plumes, clad in silks of all the colors of the rainbow, they make a continuous splash of color that you will have to go to the Lido in Venice to equal.

The actors come out of one door, speak their lines, do their actions, and go out through another. The property man, in flannel shirt and American trousers, circulates among them, setting a table, placing a pillow for them to kneel upon, holding up a banner for them to die behind—and then get up and stroll away—imperturbably calm, even when a flourished spear threatens to jab his eye out.

Over at the left side of the stage there is an orchestra of five, and these players are apparently in full possession of the secret—it stopped being a secret centuries ago in China—of how an opera ought to make musical comment on the happenings of the drama. One cannot help being impressed with the dexterity of the leader, thundering out deafening dithyrambs on the cymbals when the name of the emperor is pronounced; then, with what looks to be one single, economical motion, laying down the cymbals, picking up his cigaret, and resuming his fiddle, the last being evidently the Chinese equivalent of the viol di gamba. Meanwhile, the hero on the stage is being what the program calls "fouled played."

Allied Arts Programs.

It was almost startling to see how accurately this native, and therefore authentic, Chinese dramatic art checked with what Adolph Bolm was able to do when he staged the ballet, "The Rivals," last season, which, by the way, he is going to do again at the Goodman theater this afternoon. In the course of the ballet he and Ruth Page have occasion to fight a duel with spears. Both there and in the Chinese play you see precisely the same movements, a thrust forward, a complete pirouetting turn, another thrust, to be continued until the battle is over. The only difference between the Chinese fight and its occidental reproduction is that Mr. Bolm and Miss Page are considerably more agile, and to our eyes considerably more graceful. But essentially they come near to being duplicates.

The Allied Arts, by which is meant the Bolm ballet and Eric De Lamarter's Solo orchestra, will give three performances at the Goodman: one this afternoon, another on Tuesday night, and the third on Wednesday night. Mr. De Lamarter has an orchestral program of several interesting new pieces. Mr. Bolm promises Karol Szymanowski's "Mandragora" and Erik Satie's "Bal des Marionettes," both of which are new, and revivals of Mozart's "The Elopement" and of "The Rivals." Here Henry Eichheim, who wrote the music, will conduct. It, too, is authentically Chinese, though played on modern orchestral instruments and though the orchestra will be in the pit and not on the stage. Ronny Johanssen, who has fame in the Stockholm Royal Opera and elsewhere, will appear as guest artist in a number by Glazounoff.

Opera Schedule for the Week.

There is still a bit of repercussion in the air over the Civic Opera company's start last Tuesday with "Der Rosenkavalier." In speaking of it at the time, this department hazarded the opinion that one way to make the company popular would be to play the von Hofmannsthal-Strauss work early and often. It still believes the advice to be good, its meaning, of course, being to present it to as many of the organization's subscribers as possible.

It will be repeated this week on Friday night. Nothing else in the week's program classifies in the novelty list, though several of the artists do. Richard Bonelli, the American baritone, is to make his debut this afternoon as the elder Germont in "Traviata," along with Claudia Muzio and Antonio Cortis. Eleanor Sawyer, the American soprano—one is almost right in saying Chicago—will appear for the first time on Wednesday as Nedda in "Cavalleria Rusticana," to the Turiddu of Forrest Lamont, the Lola of Irene Pavloska, and the Alfio of Ernesto Torti, also as Tosca in the like named opera on Saturday night with Fernand Ansseau and Cesare Formichi. Louise Homer, a distinguished artist who makes a few appearances here each year, will do the first on Thursday night. It will be Azucena in "Il Trovatore," with Muzio, Lamont, and Bonelli.

When John McCormack sings at the Auditorium tonight, it will be almost an anniversary for him. Fifteen years ago, the autumn of 1910, he came here as a member of the old Chicago Grand Opera company, and after a year or two amid the grease paints and the wigs started out on his concert career.

In these days, though it did not take him anywhere near fifteen years to accomplish it, his popularity is measured only by the size of the concert halls in which he appears. They say that when he sang at Carnegie hall, New York, the other day, 5,000 people were turned away from the doors, unable to find foothold inside.

He will give one of his typical programs tonight, an old German Minnelied and a Mozart excerpt at first, a group of modern art songs, a group of Irish songs, a final group of ballads, and, of course, as many encores as his audience can induce him to add. Having heard him in most of his Chicago appearances throughout his fifteen years here, it is safe to make a prediction: you will find considerable difficulty in saying which in this wide variety of songs he sings the best.

Symphony Orchestra Novelties.

The first soloist of the season and a novelty will appear on this week's programs of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The soloist is Alexander Brailowsky, the pianist, who was good when he appeared in that capacity last season. He will play the Chopin Concerto in E minor and also the Liszt "Todtentanz," two works of about as opposing manner as the schools of a former day can provide. The "Todtentanz" was last heard at these concerts fifteen years ago when Feruccio Busoni, since deceased, played it.

The novelty will be Felix Borowski's tone poem, "Semiramis." Other orchestral numbers will be Beethoven's second "Leonore" overture and Mozart's Symphony in D. A popular concert on Thursday night will add to the orchestra's activities, and this will be preparatory to the opening of two new series next week. One will be the set of "pops" at the stock yards—International amphitheater, to be exact—and the other will be the new Tuesday afternoon subscription concerts at Orchestra hall. Brailowsky will also be the soloist at this one, but with a different concerto, Saint-Saëns' fourth, which he introduced himself a year ago.

With the Melody Makers.

The Uptown Civic concerts, a quite extraordinarily successful venture of last year, will begin a second season at the Arcadia auditorium this afternoon. Briefly stated, the plan consisted in taking music to the neighborhood instead of obliging the neighborhood to come to music, and the neighborhood responded with great enthusiasm.

Six concerts will be given on six successive Sunday afternoons, and for a further cause of attendance, a season ticket for the six is priced at $5. Andreas Pavley and members of the Pavley-Oukrainsky ballet will present today's program, featuring a ballet, "Trianon," with music by Mozart and

MORE LAURELS FOR YOUNG MR. HUNTER

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Adolescence comes in for further exposure in a piece called "Young Woodley," written by John Van Druten, an Englishman, and brought here by George Tyler this week.

A good piece, too, with Glenn Hunter achieving the hit of his life as the hero. He probably will not have as wide popular success with the new drama as he had with "Merton of the Movies," but he is going to add an awful lot of pretty praises to his scrap book, for his is really a beautiful performance.

GLENN HUNTER in the title rôle of "Young Woodley."
[Nickolas Muray Photo.]

The play is an expanded episode taken from the adventure of young Woodley the time he was expelled from Mallowhurst school in England after falling in love with the housemaster's young and pretty wife.

A common enough situation. Almost trite, you might say. The red cheeked boy and the eager lady. But it loses its cheapness in the playing. It carries the essence of tragedy, this sinking of a 17 years old's illusions in the black depths of his first serious love romance.

Woodley is temperamental and shy. He writes poetry and suffers the stings of sex in the spring, puzzling and wondering the meaning of this and that. He is lonely and hungry for sympathy. And so is his master's wife. She is young, too, and the sort of motherly Candida who took young Marchbanks in. So they kiss and are caught and young Woodley is expelled, after he tries to stab one of the lads who tries ragging him.

But there is a kind of understanding at the end. You know young Woodley will probably never see his love again, and that he may even live to laugh at the incident. But his tragedy is very real at the moment, thanks to the gifts and the sincerity of Hunter and Helen Gahagan, who plays the wife. The sentimentalists stood and cheered them after the play. If there are enough sentimentalists left, "Young Woodley" is likely to be numbered with the minor hits.

Penalties of Play Production.

The season has not been kind to the outsiders who have tried a hand at play producing this year. Not at all kind, but ever so costly. And among the smiling losers is, as usual, Otto Kahn, banker.

"Arabesque" is the Kahn entry, according to the gossips. Its sinking fund is said so far to have swallowed up a little more than $150,000, which may quite reasonably be spoken of as a tidy sum.

This is the venture that was to realize the ambitions of Norman-Bel Geddes. Geddes is the artist scene designer who staged "The Miracle" and who has done many fine things hereabouts. He comes from Michigan, and when he first arrived in town some years back he brought an armful of designs, a pretty wife, and a large stock of hopeful enthusiasm.

The designs got him a chance to do others, and as his wife helped with these he attached the "Bel" of her name to the Norman of his with a hyphen. There it has remained ever since, although Mrs. Geddes no longer assists.

Norman-Bel, following the success of "The Miracle," naturally wanted to do something on his own. He bought the play that is now "Arabesque," and went into partnership with Richard Herndon. Together they raised the funds to try several artistic things. Last summer, for example, they went to Paris and produced Mercedes de Acosta's play, "Jeanne d'Arc," with Eva Le Gallienne in the titular rôle. As soon as they wanted to leave, no one in Paris tried to detain them, so they came back and prepared "Arabesque."

It is a novel and handsome production. There is but one scene, but it serves many purposes. At first it is a rough pyramid of huge white blocks, rising to the height of a Turkish city's roofs and falling away on either side.

In the foreground is a Tunisian street scene, with lounging beggars, bargaining merchants, playing children, and passing nobles. Now this is changed, while the lights are lowered, to an interior, without moving a stick of scenery and with the actors in the scene carrying on their cushions and frankly arranging the furnishings of the new room.

Again the furnishings disappear in the lowered lights, and a troupe of Bedouins, strolling in from the nearby desert, attaches tents to the walls, sets up fires, and spreads blankets for the night. It is moonlight on the desert now, and the towers of the city have faded into a sort of misty series of rocky mounds. It is all done with lights and each effect in itself carries its own illusion.

It is in the desert scene that a seduction occurs which is more daring and more sensational than any other that has been staged in our theaters. So far neither police nor reformers have protested, so I assume it will be permitted to set a new standard of brazenness disguised as art.

"This is terrible," some one wrote Mr. Geddes.

"Not half so terrible as it might be," he replied. "It is true. If it were not played truly, there would be no excuse for it."

The weakness of "Arabesque" is its story. There is a vaguely emphasized contest for the person of a veiled ingénue. An honest young Turk desires her, but her mother would sell her to a sheik (pronounced "sheck," incidentally). It is the shiek who is seduced by the handsome Bedouine in the desert, and he thereby lets himself in for a lot of trouble. The Bedouine follows him back to town and accuses him before the caid, which eventually puts him out of favor with the authorities and takes from him some of his lure as a bridegroom.

It is handsome and costly, and they are charging $5.50 a seat for it, the theory being, probably, that if the best people cannot be excited by the reports of the Bedouine's activities there is little hope of arousing the more decent commoners. The cast is huge, the genuine Tunisian properties would fill a warehouse, and there are many fine effects. But there is no play. Which, I have always found, is something of a handicap in the theater. Hortense Alden is the Bedouine, Sara Sothern the ingénue, Bela Lugosi the sheik.

Giving Anderson His Day.

The most amazing story of the outsiders, however, is that of Garland Anderson, one time colored bellboy in San Francisco. Garland, feeling the urge to write a play, after having seen Channing Pollock's "The Fool," prayed for divine guidance and got himself a pencil and a pad.

In due time the play, called "Appearances," was finished and, though crude, impressed those who read it as being a remarkable play to have been written by a colored bellboy in San Francisco.

At the suggestion of friends changes were made in the script, and finally Al Jolson became so interested he sent Anderson enough money to finance a trip to New York on a selling venture. None of the New York managers wanted to produce "Appearances," but Anderson persisted, confident the divine mind would find a way. He gave his readings from the play, took up collections, gathered in a little financial help here and there, and finally found a manager. Then he sold a half interest in the play to his former employers for $15,000.

A part of this was spent in a grand country crossing tour bearing the manuscript toward a production. Three weeks ago "Appearances" was produced in the theater that years back was the scene of the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic on top of the New Amsterdam.

It is still there—or was last week. It is a crude piece, but commands a certain melodramatic power. The story is that of a bellboy accused of rape, and his defense of himself bolstered by a great faith. Every day or two there are reports of "Appearances" closing, but some one always steps in with enough money to keep it going. The last $5,000, I understand, came from a sympathetic Texan. So, whatever happens, Garland Anderson has had his day.

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

MR. ZIEGFELD sends by telegraph thousands and thousands of words to tell me of his grief upon ascertaining that the brokers have been charging more than fifty cents as a premium on seats for "Kid Boots," and to beseech me to serve as his special deputy, to police the brokers' kiosks, and to make prompt and pitiless report to him of any charge in excess of the said fifty cents. . . . Now, next to having a nice job as a gin-sniffer under Mr. Easy Yellowley, of Prohibition and the key-holes, I should just adore being a constable for Mr. Ziegfeld, with the brokers' curb-market as my beat. But, damn it all! I'm going to New-York this week, and sha'n't have the time to do anything in the matter. And this brings me to a proposition to those readers of this department of THE TRIBUNE who, like myself, have a high sense of Service: you take over the assignment, ascertain names and addresses, with the date and seat-numbers, on all bootlegged sales for "Kid Boots," and report daily to Mr. Ziegfeld. Bring to me whatever he gives to you in the form of monetary reward, and I will divide it equally with you.

CHARLES MACK
He's the taller one in burntcork in the G. V. F., and is immensely funny.

And I honestly believe that, if you accept the offer, we shall be doing as much as anybody in Chicago has ever done to abate what is always referred to editorially as a Crying Evil.

Letter Expressing Fiscal Curiosity.

SIR: Your tale of the Smart Fellow who made a deal whereby one thousand theater-goers were soaked an average seventy-five percent premium on tickets for his show so that he could have $81.50 for himself was all right, so far as it went; but, Old Bean, you left those of us who have orderly minds without what, after all, should have been the Large Thrill. That is to say, to-wit, as it were, you failed to tell us how much the one thousand theater-goers on whose adventures you based your calculation paid in excess. We know, because you said so, it was seventy-five percent; but you may gather from my name that I'm interested in knowing just how much seventy-five percent was—in dollars-and, I mean. Or, had you been so impolite as to identify the Smart Fellow's show by telling us the box-office price of a seat, we could easily have made the calculation for ourselves.

Believe me, Mr. Donaghey, when I say that I'm writing as the representative of five million readers!

A. L. SHAPIRO.

Milwaukee: November 4, 1925.

I understand the curiosity of Mr. Shapiro and his constituency of 4,999,999 readers without discerning wherein the purpose of an improving tale is deepened by the mere quantitative aspect. However, as I have the calculation by me, he may know that the excess on one thousand seats was $3,000—or, counting in the war-tax, $3,300. If I err by three or four or even ten hundred dollars, I err in favor of the brokers. . . . Yes, Mr. Shapiro et alia: the seats at the box-office were four-forty save Saturday night, when they were five-fifty.

Miscellany.

Mr. G. Carpenter Wharton, representing "Charm," submits this: "Robert Strauss, who plays the Doctor, is the only actor in the United States who has made a study of and who speaks the language of the Commanche Indians." . . . While the statement destroys a cherished theory of mine, I am glad, in the interest of precise knowledge, to have it. And I'm hopefully wondering if Mr. Wharton be able to let me know just what language is spoken by all the other actors in the United States.

And Mr. John Montague, representing "A Lady's Virtue," says of the Italian actor in the cast of that piece: "Nadzo, by-the-way, is not a family-name, but one assumed by the actor for stage-purposes and to lessen his parents' distress as much as posisble." . . . For stage-purposes, the name doesn't matter; but, as to its value in diminishing the parents' distress, wouldn't a great deal depend upon what his name was before he called himself Nadzo?

"The play is based on Arlen's 'The Cavalier of the Streets'; and Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are the respective platers."—O. L. Hall in the Daily Journal. . . . Horse-racely speaking, Doctor Hall, I see no reason for not going along with you in this.

But I find alignment difficult to achieve in the case of Mr. Eugène Sisson, also of the Daily Journal, when he announces the discovery of a great Carmen in Madame D'Alvarez, and then explains that not only does she sing the music off-pitch, but also that she is the Carmen of neither Merrimée nor Bizet. . . . Mr. Sisson's attitude toward the vast contralto is like that of the New-York play-reporters whenever Miss Katharine Cornell takes up a new rôle: she is never suitable in the part nor a bit like what the author meant nor at all fitted for the task, they tell you, but is, nonetheless, the only actress in all the world who should be entrusted with it.

Miss Jane Atherton, granddaughter of Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, has succeeded to the ingenue's rôle in "Charm." . . . The management of the Playhouse hopes to arrange for the retention of the amusing little comedy until Christmas: shows, as I have observed ere this, are scarce.

"The Romantic Young Lady," which seems to be the next play in the plans made for the Kenneth Sawyer Goodman Memorial Theater, was staged in London in 1920 by Dennis Eadie, a pretty-good actor who has not been seen in this country. I saw a performance there, and liked the comedy immensely for its special style and manner—which may have been put into it by the adaptor: it was written in Spanish by G. Martinez Sierra. . . . The tale is of a gallant who, finding the girl he loves obsessed by the notion that she must give her heart only in circumstances of romance that shall parallel those in the love-tales she has read, indulges her in the notion. Of course, this is one of the themes of Sheridan's "The Rivals": the lover in the Spanish piece is Jack Absolute, and the girl of the title is Lydia Languish.

The most recent information on the three plays selected by John Golden's committee of come-on critics is that the manuscripts have been returned to their respective authors for revision, and that early production of any of the three is unlikely.

Four of Shaw's plays, three of them good, will soon be in concurrent performance in New-York. They are "Candida," "Arms and the Man," "Androcles and the Lion," and "The Man of Destiny": the last-named will be used to piece out the evening with "Androcles."

It is said that the Carnegie Foundation is going to spend $250,000 in exploiting Channing Pollock's "The Enemy," now on view in New-York. The idea is that the play is a strong argument in favor of universal peace. . . . And I'm recalling that, when war was fashionable, Mr. Pollock wrote "The Crowded Hour," which hadn't a word to say in favor of peace.

New in New-York

These are the new plays scheduled for the week in New-York:

"The Last of Mrs. Cheney," by Frederick Lonsdale, with Miss Ina Claire, A. E. Matthews, and Roland Young. . . . The play is said to be all kinds of a success in London, where Miss Gladys Copper and Gerald Du-Maurier are in the principal parts.

"Naughty Cinderella," by Avery Hopwood from a French farce, with Miss Irene Bordoni. . . . She hasn't much to go with, but manages to keep going.

"The Last Night of Don Juan," by Edmond Rostand, with Augustin Duncan, Miss Violet Kemble-Copper, and Stanley Logan, and, as part of the bill, a one-act comedy named "Le Pelerin," by Charles Vildrac. . . . Rostand's piece, a fine satire in verse, was not staged in Paris until long after his death.

The Charlot Revue, with Miss Beatrice Lillie, Jack Buchanan, Miss Gertrude Lawrence, and Herbert Mundin. . . . The entertainment has been specially put together for the American market.

Other matters of interest this week on the New-York stage are the revival of "Hamlet" in mufti, with Basil Dean in the name-part and Miss Helen Chandler as Ophelia, and a revival for afternoons of Ibsen's "The Master Builder," with Miss Eva La Gallienne and Egon Breecher. . . . Also, to fill a gap made by the failure there of Schnitzler's "The Call of Life," the Actors' Theater is to try another venture with "Candida," wherein the players will be those recently seen [by a few of us] in the Princess. . . . A revival of "The Bells" by an actor-manager-playright named Butler Davenport has been called off: he says he is ill.

Report from Philadelphia is that Mr. Tyler's revival of "The School for Scandal" is a popular success, and that the attendance was much larger than for "The Rivals." . . . George Arliss' engagement there in "Old English" was so popular that his receipts are being talked about wherever persons of the theater meet.

The Greatest Tribute!

Reluctance to close an absorbing book at the final chapter is not unusual; but refusal to leave the theater at the end of a play is rare indeed—yet this is what occurs at every performance of "A Lady's Virtue." What greater tribute could there be than this?

The Tribute of the Press

There is no space to quote the columns of praise written by Mr. Donaghey and Mr. Collins and Mr. Stevens and others, but a paragraph from Miss Leslie's review will indicate the critical attitude toward this splendid entertainment:

"Within the finely knit and vigorously healthy meshes of this pretty romance there are delightful touches of philosophy, comedy, pathos, satire, with openly discarded ethics, richly seasoned episodes and more piquant dialogue, easy flowing conversation and cleverness, than in any two other dramas on the kindred topics under observation."

More Laurels for Young Mr. Hunter

By Burns Mantle.

like $75,000 producing the operetta called "Holka Polka," in which Orville and his daughter, Patti, were starred and which just closed.

It was neither overconfidence nor bad judgment that brought about this family disaster, except in so far as it is always unwise for a family to back its own convictions concerning its family talent.

"Holka Polka" is an operetta with a fine Will Ortman score and a reasonably novel Czecho-Slovakian background. A good share of the Harrold money went into the purchase of costumes and scenery, and these were both attractive.

But it was a type of entertainment that needed a veritable campaign of advertising to get it fairly before the people. The Shuberts or the Dillinghams would have been prepared to spend $100,000 or $150,000 to guarantee a proper hearing for it. And they would have been in a position to cast and recast until they achieved a proper balance in their company.

But the Harrolds came dashing in, convinced the tenor's voice and the daughter's youth, with a big chorus and good music, would turn the trick. Philadelphia was fairly kind to the venture, and the business in New York was growing at the close. But by that time the treasury was empty and debts were piling up. There was nothing more to risk, and hope was dead. "Holka Polka" closed on Saturday night, and the refilling of the Harrold treasury will laboriously begin again.

Here's Good Writing.

A beautifully written comedy is called "The Man with the Load of Mischief." The title comes from the name of an inn in Merrie Old England that carried a pictured sign of a somewhat flushed boniface with a naughty soubrette astraddle his shoulders.

It was to this inn that a lady escaped from Bath one morning at 2. She had quarreled with the prince, who was her intimate friend, and was determined to have no more to do with men.

But to the inn she was followed by a friend of the prince, a noble who sought, it may be, his own favors, or hoped to keep track of her for his royal pal. Anyway, here they are in the inn—her ladyship and her maid, his lordship and his man.

They sup together and quarrel. By early evening they hate each other. And then, for comfort and understanding, her ladyship turns to the handsome man of his lordship, and his lordship in his cups is greatly taken with her ladyship's maid.

It sounds common, but it is most daintily written by Ashley Dukes, who is a critic of plays in London, and is never offensive in word or suggestion.

The morning following the strange meeting her ladyship is fairly in love with her lowly admirer, who may have turned out to be some one fine for all I know, and rides away with him to the discomfiture of the befogged nobleman.

Ruth Chatterton and Robert Loraine are co-starred as the lady and the noble. The Loraine performance is good. Miss Chatterton has little to give her ladyship that is helpful in creating interest in that character. Ralph Forbes plays the distinguished lackey nicely, and Berthe Mann is attractive as the maid.

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Movie Notes.

ELINOR GLYN is quoted as saying that never, never has she seen any conceit in Hollywood. No, the players "just bubble pleasure" in being able to put over new rôles. H'RAY!

LITTLE ANNE TEEMAN of Chicago's west side has been signed by Cecil De Mille to play a rôle in "The Volga Boatman." She had a minor part in "The Wedding Song," with Leatrice Joy, due to be shown in Chicago next week.

WE HEAR that Douglas MacLean's comedy, "Never Say Die," was hissed off the screen in Berlin at the Marmorsaal theater. Dunno why. Nobody over here seems to know why, and if they do in Berlin they're not telling.

LITTLE JULIE CRUZE, daughter of the director and his former wife, Marguerite Snow, is said to be a clever musician. She is studying piano, violin, and harmony, and works with students years older than she is. Her pretty mother is expected to become Mrs. Neely Edwards in the near future. Remember her — "Peggy" Snow, who was such a hit in "The Million Dollar Mystery"?

See you tomorrow!

ONE COMMOTES, AND ONE EMOTES

MISS FANNIE BRICE

MISS JUDITH ANDERSON

THAT the picture to the left is of Miss Brice is the averment of the gentleman who brought the photograph to this office, although it doesn't look like the girl who sang "Lovin' Joe" in the 1910 Ziegfeld Follies, nor like the one who sang "Second-Hand Rose" in the Ziegfeld Follies issued eleven years later. Of course, she expects to be with Mr. Belasco next year: that may explain. . . . Anyway, she's to be here tonight in the fourth issue of the Music-Box Revue.

Miss Anderson is known in Chicago, so far, for some burn-'em-up acting in "Peter Weston," in 1923, in the Harris, and for some more in kind in "Patches," in 1924, in the Playhouse. Mr. Belasco is said to have her about right in "The Dove," to be made known here tomorrow night.

New Playbills

THE MUSIC-BOX REVUE in the Illinois.—The fourth issue of an annual that, more than any of the others that have been the subject of managerial enterprise in recent years, has so far shown independence of the Ziegfeld Follies. The New-York reporters said the fourth was the best of the series, not excepting even the first. Miss Fannie Brice, Clark and McCullough (who were here in the second, two years ago), Miss Grace Moore, and Oscar Shaw are in it; and the music is Irving Berlin's. . . . Opens tonight.

"The Dove," with Holbrook Blinn and Miss Judith Anderson, in the Blackstone.—A melodrama of Mexican coloring by Willard Mack, based on a story by Gerald Beaumont. The venture is Mr. Belasco's; and the newspapers in New-York said that his staging of the piece was in his best vein. William Harrigan, last here in "Polly Preferred," and William Norris, long absent from Chicago, are in the cast. . . . Opens tomorrow night.

NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT:

"The Naked Man," with William Elliott, in the Garrick.—A play by Hutcheson Boyd about a successful man who got his without caring how. Miss Gilda Leary, Miss Anne Morrison, Miss Valerie Valaire, and Miss Arline Blackburn are in it.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19:

The North-Shore Theater Guild in "The Truth About Blayds."—The amateurs from the Evanston-to-Lake Forest stretch in a comedy by A. A. Milne that many regard as that playwright's best work. . . . For one performance, in the afternoon, under the Playwrights' Theater of Chicago.

"The Romantic Young Lady" in the Kenneth Sawyer Goodman Memorial Theater.—A comedy of Spanish origin by G. Martinez Sierra in an adaptation by Granville Barker. . . . The date is at present tentative: employés of the theater say that "The Forest" may be continued beyond the 14th.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 22:

"One of the Family" in the Princess.—A comedy about Boston persons by Kenneth Webb. Grant Mitchell, Miss Katherine Comegys, and Mrs. Louise Closser-Hale are in it.

"Pigs" in the Cort.—A comedy by Miss Anne Morrison and Patterson McNutt that was put through a New-York run last season.

"Land of Romance" in the Olympic.—A play with music by Raymond W. Peck and Percy Wenrich. Bernard Granville and Miss Thais Lawton are of the cast.

"The Harem" will be shown in the Blackstone after "The Dove"; the eighteenth Ziegfeld Follies will be shown in the Illinois after the fourth Music-Box Revue; Al Jolson in "Big Boy" will come to the Apollo after the sixth Greenwich Village Follies; and that seems to be about as far as the managers know. . . . The date for opening the Four Cohans is not certain.

SNAPPY

MISS FLORENCE HEDGES

She's one of the soubrettes in the sixth issue of the Greenwich Village Follies, current in the Apollo. . . . Miss Hedges does what she may, if not what she can, to make this what it is—a good show in kind.

Bits of Stage-News.

"Silence," a Chicago failure and a New-York success, was not liked elsewhere, and has been put away. . . . H. B. Warner, who has been starring in it, is to try the two-a-day.

Sam Bernard and William Collier will, it is told, go into the two-a-day as a team.

An English comedian, Gene Gerrard, is said to be so good that he has been asked by Mr. Dillingham to come here for $1,500 weekly, although a year ago he was an unknown.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published, $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Laundry Did Likewise.

Jim: "I like to hear that professor lecture on chemistry. He brings things home to me that I have never seen before."

Jack: That's nothing; so does the Student Laundry Agency." A. H.

Coasting.

An officer on board a warship was drilling his men. "I want every man to lie on his back, put his legs in the air, and move them as if he were riding a bicycle," he explained. "Now commence."

After a short effort one man stopped.

"Why have you stopped, Murphy?" asked the officer.

"If ye plaze, sor," was the reply, "Oi'm coasting." S. H.

THE CHEEKIEST PERSON I EVER MET

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

A miser who lived in a small town went into a barber shop to be shaved. After he was shaved he said to the barber: "Now we are even, as my wife gave your wife some watermelon preserves." M. W.

My neighbor came to me one day and asked me to take her to a neighboring town, about 10 miles away. I did not have time so I mentioned a taxi driver in town who did that kind of work, and she gave me the reply, "O, he'd charge me." M. F.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was always borrowing the handle of my flat irons and then going away for days at a time without returning them.

I had finally to buy a new handle, and on telling her she said, "Then I will just keep the old one!" J. M. W.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was the man who sent me roses, chocolates, and a magazine during my illness and had them all charged to me. M. B. T.

Ne'er a Party Like This of Miss Mix

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.] — Halloween festivities formed a large part of the week's social excitement in Hollywood. Headlining it all was the party given by three year old Thomasina Mix to twenty Hollywood chums. Never before was there such a party. Two of Tom's cowboys had taken possession of the Mix back yard on Carlston way, and with much gusto staged a program that enthralled the tiny tots who stood about open mouthed.

One cowboy played a mouth organ, a concertina, a zither, and a drum all at once to the utter stupefaction of little Bill Hart, who, in a snappy white flannel suit made by his mother's own hands, stood watching the proceedings.

Thomasina herself, in a yellow voile gown with smocked yoke and white kid slippers, took advantage of the music to step out and do a solo dance of her own concoction in which she soon had a teammate, little Richard Sterling. Richard, in a white, long trousered sailor suit, pulled up his trousers as Tommy did her skirt, and shook a mean ankle for a four year old.

Thomasina's own pony and one of Tom's were waiting in the yard to take the little guests saddleback jaunts along the graveled drives, and where there were two candidates at once both rode on the pretty pony under the careful supervision of a cowboy.

A remarkable clown with a large red nose juggled silk hats so that they always landed properly on his head.

The dining room proved the biggest attraction as the afternoon wore along. Pumpkins of ice cream graced each plate, and little cakes iced in white had yowling black cats in chocolate on them. Horns helped to give the little mouths something to do when swallowing had become impossible, and fanciful hats topped off the nifty boyish bobs of the four year old flappers and tow headed sheiks.

The older guests, the fond mammas, were entertained by a fortune teller who prognosticated nothing but good fortune, at least for the afternoon. Coffee was served by Mrs. Mix herself, who made a pretty picture in an afternoon gown of pale yellow silk and cream silk lace draped in loose panels falling from a boat neck. Mrs. Mix's mother, in a negre brown satin embroidered in self-colored beads, assisted Mrs. Mix in receiving.

Mrs. Winifred Westover Hart was among the guests in a black satin afternoon dress with fitted basque and ruffled embroidery collar and cuffs with tiny appliqued pockets of the embroidery. Mrs. Jack Ford with baby Barbara and her two little boys also was present.

All the Old Thrills.

Ruth Clifford [Mrs. James Cornelius] was hostess at another Halloween party on Friday night at her Beverly Hills home. Her guests were invited for dinner, the pièce de résistance being a whole roast duck for each guest, as Jimmy is a great hunter and it is now open season for ducks in these parts.

Henry B. Walthall, famous since he played the little colonel in "The Birth of a Nation," was a guest with his wife, professionally known as Mary Charleston. Peggy Hamilton and her husband, Rupert Julian and his wife, Ruth's sister, Catherine Clifford; Bobby Vernon and wife, and Winifred Westover Hart were among the others entertained.

Old fashioned bobbing for apples, pinning the tail on the donkey, fortunes, and taffy apples gave the dependable Halloween thrill until near morning, when several of the men departed, led by Cornelius, to go duck hunting. Those remaining learned the Charleston under the apt tutelage of Bobby Vernon.

Like Dempsey's Cook.

Jack Dempsey's dining room at his hotel, the Barbara, on 6th and Westlake, is proving a great drawing card for the picture folk, who enjoy the southern cooking of Jack's cook. Lew Cody, Bert Lytell, Clarence Brown, Charles Chaplin, Bill Hart, Tom Gallery, and others of the fight fans may be seen there in parties after the Tuesday night fights at Vernon, getting a late supper.

Mrs. Dempsey, Estelle Taylor in pictures, was there herself last Wednesday night in a black baby lamb coat trimmed in ermine, and bewailing Jack's absence in Mexico. It seems Jack's match in Mexico City was postponed for several days, and when Estelle wired half seriously, telling the boxer he was a bad business man to let them postpone things and make him stay longer and winding up by saying she was lonesome, Jack wired back, "That's life." Estelle is consoling herself for Jack's absence by playing the rôle of Lucretia Borgia in John Barrymore's "Don Juan," her first rôle since her marriage.

Comment and Gossip.

Wednesday night at the Montmartre proved lively. Jobyna Ralston, in flesh georgette and lace, was dancing. She dined with Virginia B. Faire and two young men, genealogy unknown. Priscilla Dean, her usual lively self, was cutting up capers with Manuel Acosta. Priscilla wore pale green georgette and had a funny paper hat with a big orange feather curling forward into one eye. Manuel wore a diminutive green hat perched on one eyebrow. Ruth Roland, in black velvet with silver grapes for trimming, was hostess to them.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter for the Dempsey-Wills match, was there at a side table. Michael Arlen, who has struck up a great friendship with Chaplin, was there, too. Joan Crawford in gray and black was among the dancers.

New strength was given to the rumors of reconciliation between Leatrice Joy and Jack Gilbert this week when Leatrice and Jack and the baby, for all the world like a happy family, were seen in a Seventh avenue fur store, Jack buying the baby a stone marten scarf. It seems the baby liked to play with Leatrice's fur, and Jack thought that one of her own would be a nice idea. All Hollywood hopes baby Leatrice will shortly be presented with a perfectly good father again.

They do say Jack's calls have been frequent lately at the former family residence, where Leatrice and the baby still live.

Michael Arlen gave a luncheon to press people on Wednesday noon at the Ambassador. Assisting him in the matter of moral support were his friend, Charles Chaplin, and Adolphe Menjou. Charlie magnanimously promised to allow the press boys to take a picture of his select and aloof baby, and Adolphe confided he is now allowed out by himself three nights a week under his new contract. A toast to the starving Armenians was proposed by some wag, after the information was circulated that the provident Michael is himself an Armenian and has cleaned up about $600,000 in the last year.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Well, Well, Well!

Dear Miss Tinée: A hypercritical person displaying a few erudite phrases and a naive view of motion picture art calls you to task for your praise of Gloria Swanson in "The Coast of Folly." Now if Miss Swanson needed defending this letter would have a point, but she doesn't, so I can only add a mere tribute.

This critical person calls Miss Swanson an exponent of the "De Mille in-artistry," and thereby spoils the effect he might otherwise have made. It is an acknowledged fact that Miss Swanson owes the greater part of her popularity to rising above De Mille's hokum.

Since Alan Dwan in one of his directorial flashes of brilliance made "Zaza," I have never missed a Swanson film and never intend to do so. Gloria's theater is not art in the sense of Pickford, Chaplin, or Von Stroheim—she is probably not a genius—but her pictures are 100 per cent entertainment.

Norma Shearer's enthusiasts who claim that she will supplant Miss Swanson in two years are all wrong. These United States give no promise of developing a continental sophistication in so short a time, and until they do the subtle shadings of Miss Shearer's work will not be fully appreciated. As I said, Miss Swanson is understood by everybody. That is what makes her the chosen one of the screen and the most famous woman in the world today.

SEVENTEEN.

[Editor's note: And you are ONLY seventeen?]

* *

Because.

Dear Miss Tinée:

When I attend the movies,
Just as sure as I'm alive,
Why is it they always tell me
Best seats are now in aisle five?

DICK.

[Editor's note: When you attend the movies, as sure as you're alive, they tell you the best seats are in aisle five because they're IN aisle five.]

IT'S THE GREATEST DRESS SALE—BECAUSE

We ourselves bought materials for many of these dresses. We had complete supervision of many of the eastern factories—in many instances we practically made the dresses.

And we advertised extensively in New York to make connections with prominent manufacturers—who are willing to sacrifice—we asked "all New York" to cooperate and they did. The values tell the story.

Two Views of the Drama of China

By Edward Moore.

Saint-Saëns, fourteen divertissements, and several orchestral numbers.

John Philip Sousa will give two concerts at the Milwaukee auditorium today in celebration of the formal opening of the new 10,000 seat concert hall of that building, completed this fall at a cost of $175,000. Gov. John J. Blaine of Wisconsin will give the dedicatory address at the evening concert, and Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee will also speak. City officials and officers of the various civic organizations of Milwaukee will attend the opening.

Formerly characterized by capricious acoustics, the great hall has been scientifically treated with sound absorbent material. Prof. F. R. Watson of the University of Illinois, the man who corrected the acoustics of the Eastman theater at Rochester, N. Y., was the expert. The acoustical treatment of the Milwaukee auditorium is regarded as somewhat unusual in that the sound absorbent has been incorporated in the decorative scheme in such a way as not to be apparent to the eye.

Entrance to the annual contest for appearances as soloists at the popular concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the auspices of the Society of American Musicians and the Orchestral association closed Oct. 31.

There are 71 entrants this year, 24 pianists, 24 women singers, 12 men singers, 8 violinists, 2 cellists, and 1 organist. Forty-one Chicago teachers are represented by these contestants. There will be nine elimination contests to determine who shall appear at the final contest, which takes place in January.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra will give its first concert of the season at the Edgewater Beach hotel this afternoon at five o'clock. The orchestra has a membership of eighty-five, and is conducted by Clarence Evans of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The principal numbers will be the Overture and Scherzo from Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream music, Wagner's Ride of the Valkyries, the Adagio from the D Major concerto of Brahms, Mrs. Avern Scolnik, soloist; and the Finalé from the Fourth Symphony of Tschaikowsky.

Something quite a bit off the beaten track in music will be presented by Laura Williams at the Playhouse this afternoon. For several years she has been studying Arabian music in Tunis and other of its native lairs, and she will now give a program illustrating them, their peculiarities of modes and rhythms, singing them to the accompaniment of native instruments.

The first part of the program will be folk songs and modern songs to show the use of Arabian scales and rhythms. She will also give a first performance of a number called "The Jazz City," arranged for her by Henry Souvaine from his Ballet Pantomime, "The City Street." The last part will be Arab songs from the collection made by her.

Edmund Zygman, violinist and conductor, sends word that the new Chicago Coöperative Symphony orchestra will give its first concert at the Studebaker theater under his baton a week from today. It has been rehearsing for nine months; it will appear under the auspices of the Polish-American Philharmonic society; its object is to present symphonic works not generally known in this country. The first program will consist chiefly of seldom played Polish works, the most important being a symphonic trilogy. "Eternal Songs," by Mieczyslaw Karlowicz.

One of Mme. Schumann-Heink's comparatively infrequent public recitals will be on Tuesday morning, when she appears at the Blackstone hotel in the opening item of the Kinsolving musical mornings. Carlos Salzedo, the concert harpist, will be associated with her on the program.

St. Louis sends the glad tidings that the operations of its seventh open air opera season at the Municipal theater, Forest park, showed a surplus of $8,908. This was for twelve weeks of operetta. A ten nights' season of grand opera in the same place lost $12,000. St. Louisians are thus convinced that they have the only self-sustaining operatic organization in the world as long as they stick to light opera.

Ambrose Wyrick's recital at Orchestra hall on Wednesday night is to be given under the auspices of the Optimist clubs of the Chicago district to raise a fund for the Optimists' work among the under privileged and consequently under educated boys, a project that the clubs throughout the country have pledged themselves to support. Milan Lusk, violinist, will be the assisting artist. The coöperating clubs are located in Chicago, Evanston, Wilmette, Oak Park, Aurora, and Gary.

The scholarship offered by Sigma chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon at Northwestern university was won by Helen Tollefson, a freshman in the school of music. The judges were Louise Robyn, Mrs. Emily Parsons Hunt, and William Middelschulte.

Mount St. Joseph Dance.

Alumnæ of Mount St. Joseph college will hold their annual dance on Nov. 27 in the gold room of the Congress hotel.

BEAUTIFY IT WITH

PRINCESS VON WERDENBERG

ROSA RAISA.
[H. A. Atwell Photo.]

SHE is sometimes the name above her picture, at others the one below, but in Richard Strauss' gay opera of old Vienna, "Der Rosenkavalier," she is both. In looks she is amply satisfying to the eye; in voice, to the ear; and never more so in both respects than this present season.

FROM TUNIS

LAURA WILLIAMS.

She is in reality a Chicago musician, but she has been pursuing Arabian music on its native heath, and this afternoon she will illustrate the results of her pursuit with native instruments and native costumes as assisting properties. She will be at the Playhouse.

Christmas Carols Will Cheer Chicago

Harry Edward Freund relays his plan to have Christmas carols sung pretty well all over Chicago during the Yuletide season, in clubs, hotels, movie theaters, and at broadcasting stations, also schools, hospitals, and jails. The Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, advertising clubs, Association of Commerce, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Salvation army, and banking, commercial, and industrial institutions and firms will be invited to coöperate, and a large and important looking committee has the matter in charge. The headquarters of the movement is with the Music Research bureau, 165 East Ontario street.

"BURGLARS"

When the burglar came, what happened? Were you scared and did you show it or—were you brave and did he know it?

We will pay $1 for each burglar story printed. Write of your experiences to the Burglar Contest Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Recognized Him.

One morning about two years ago while upstairs cleaning, I heard some one downstairs. Thinking it was one of the children home from school I called out I would be down in a moment. All I heard was a mumble. The dining room is at the end of the hall and as I came downstairs I turned to go into the room when I saw a man with a blue handkerchief over his face taking the things out of the top buffet drawer.

On top of the dustpan I had a broken toy pistol which I aimed at him. He backed out the rear door. As the handkerchief fell off his face I recognized a peddlar of needles and pins who went from door to door. M. C.

Trapped.

While in England, I was the guest at a Christmas house party given by Lord Kenyon at which many of the guests possessed valuable gems.

Just before one of the dinner parties, I was seized with an attack of gout. I retired to my bedroom, the French windows of which opened out on to a balcony easily accessible from the garden. To relieve the pain in my foot, I had a hot epsom salt footbath prepared into which I placed the end of a galvanic electric battery wire.

Not needing the light, I turned it out. Soon the soothing influence of the foot bath caused me to snooze. I was awakened by a loud yell. A burglar, not seeing me, had entered the window and stepped right into the "live" bath. I had no time to display either bravery or fright, as the unexpected guest had departed with expedition.

I retained, however, sufficient presence of mind to pull the bell cord and the prowler was caught shortly afterward. C. C.

Scared by a Doll.

My experience with a burglar, will I ever forget it? One hot summer night about midnight I awoke with a feeling that some one was in the room. I could see the figure of a man bending over the dresser near the open window.

I knew there were no valuables he might find, so I lay still as a mouse, hoping he would go as quietly as he came, when my baby daughter in her crib near me turned over and knocked her mamma doll on the floor.

At the plaintive cry of "Mam-ma" from the doll I sat up and Mr. Burglar jumped out of the window. R. T. R.

FASTEST IN THE WORLD
don't rinse don't blue
don't wring

Faster and Safer Washing! Without Wringing with the wonderful innovation—
"Spin-Rinse, Spin-Dry"

STOP all that old bothersome hand rinsing and blueing, stop all feeding heavy soaked clothes, piece by piece to a wringer! Stop standing over steaming tubs, and straining and lifting heavy clothes or parts of a washer.

Instead, let the marvelous Savage Wringerless, and the Savage "Spin-Rinse, Spin-Dry" innovation put your wash on the line ahead of all your neighbors—without slightest injury to clothes or yourself.

"Spin-Rinse, Spin-Dry" is the name of the newest, fastest method of laundering ever devised. NOW, you "Spin-Rinse" out all the soap and softener—then SPIN the clothes dry, an entire load at a time—a scalding, fresh-water rinse—just what every woman wants. No other washer in the world has this marvelous feature.

Just put in the clothes, touch a switch, and within the time it takes other washers merely to wash, the Savage washes, blues, rinses and dries them, completely—easily—safely!

It is easy to prove the Savage the fastest in the world, and safest in your own home. Make a FREE Home Test, Now. No obligation. Call the nearest of these dealers.

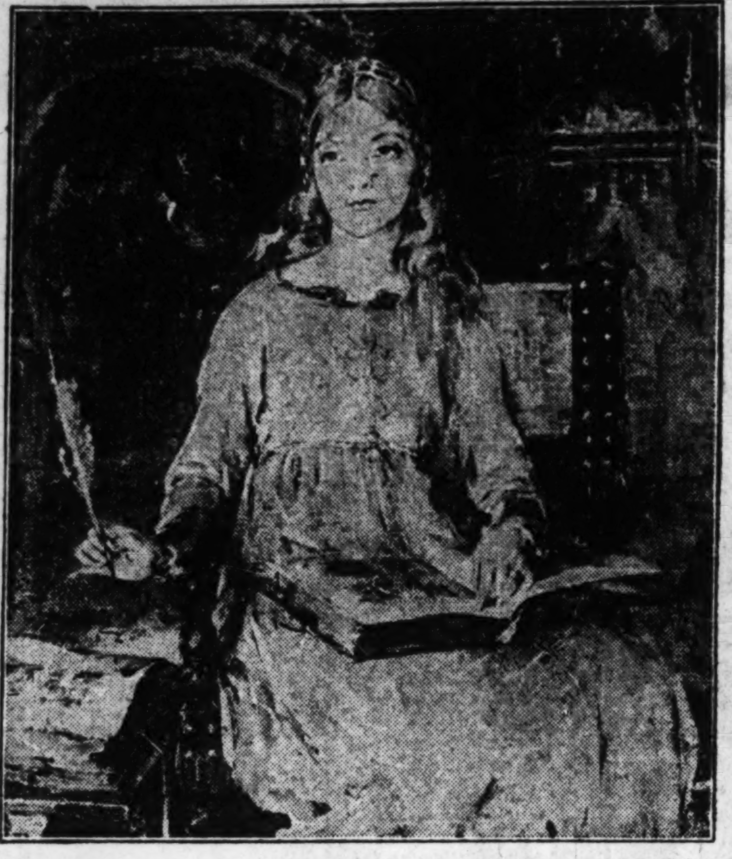
ART AND ARTISTS

Annual American Show Disappoints

By Eleanor Jewett.



"Lillian Gish as Romola," by Nicolai Fechin, has been purchased for the Art institute from the William O. Goodman fund and, beyond all doubt, is the most captivating, fascinating, and picturesque portrait in the entire exhibition of American paintings and sculpture current in the east wing galleries of the Art institute.

TEN days have passed since the opening of the exhibition of American Paintings and Sculpture at the Art institute, and I must confess that subsequent visits to the galleries have not done much to soften the impression of chill aloofness the paintings first inflicted upon me. There are horribly few pictures along those walls which are intimate or friendly; horribly few that get right down to facts and declare themselves human. The majority, one feels, were painted for exhibition purposes.

Perhaps they were not painted for exhibition purposes. The jury simply preferred them above the several hundred others they refused to hang. Their preference might be called in question. It would be interesting to see the paintings that were turned down. Possibly no really vital work was offered. Possibly the jury chose wisely. It haunts one, however, this menace of nonaccepted, when the accepted are not more obviously effective.

Two paintings which cleverly illustrate the difference between human and merely pictorial are found in the first room. One is by an artist who finds life everywhere vastly interesting and paints it with a seeing eye and a truthful brush, Wayman Adams. Perhaps you remember his portraits of Booth Tarkington and of Joseph Pennell. There were two portraits that would stand out in no matter what company they were placed. The present exhibit finds him represented by an amusing and simple study, "Photographer of Fine Arts," a pot-bellied, pursy, affable, and conceited gentleman from a Maine street studio. Simple as he is, he is human.

Just opposite hangs the portrait of a lady by Leopold Seyffert. There is excellent painting in this portrait, but, handsome as the canvas is, there is no red blood in it. The beautiful white satin gown is of soft and shining texture; the purple feather fan is an exquisite masterpiece; the pose has dignity; the face—the face is a doll's face, a mask of unfretted loveliness. Women today, even women of fashion, do not have faces like that, all their individuality ironed out. It may make a more decorative canvas to deny the ego, but the practice is dangerous, the denial leaves such a void for vacuity to fill.

There is another dead-alive painting of people in a large picture, the work of Leon Kroll. He calls it "My Wife's Family." The suggestion has been made that possibly he was giving the family a slight dig in the ribs by portraying them thus. At all events, there seems no good reason why flesh and blood should endure such caricature without protest. The group is so posed and stiff and strained and dry. No one can deny there is good painting in it—look at the marvelous quality and feel of the dress the young woman stretched on the chair in the foreground is wearing. But does that excuse the sapped father and stodgy mother? Or the sister? This mannerism of converting human people into sawdust-stomached dolls is one to be dreaded. Leon Kroll has achieved popularity. There is occasion enough in this present example of his art for a warning that too much accent on dry precision may rub the gold from his talent.

There is, looking on the bright side of the current exhibition, a wealth of charming paintings to be enjoyed. Two foreign painters, or if not both foreign then at least two painters both related to foreign schools, Mary Cassatt and Nicolai Fechin, bring good counsel to the modern young hurried artist. Mary Cassatt shows "Woman with a Fan," a fantastic and fascinating interplay of greens. Her use of color is a matter for study.

Nicolai Fechin shows a painting that was dwelt on at length last week. It is possibly the most exquisite canvas and undoubtedly the most exquisite piece of portraiture in the exhibition, "Lillian Gish as Romola."

It is not often that as many dramatic and effective still lifes are gathered together as can be found here. One of the most striking is the arrangement by Henry R. Rittenberg of a burnished brass bowl and a wide, shallow blue dish of fruit. Another still life that charms, because it is so definite and fixed, is "Still Life, No. 2," by H. E. Schnakenberg. A decorative study of flowers is seen in "Zinnias," by Dixie Selden. "Three Periods of Art," by Henry G. Keller, is another interesting still life that has, illustrative of one period, an unusually fine dish of thick ware, really beautiful.

There are a number of notable landscapes. An assertive, triumphant summer scene is "On the River," by G. Oberteuffer. An insight into family life at Taos is given in "Luncheon at Lone Locust," by Walter Ufer. A beautiful field of daisies is mirrored in "Daisy Field," by Carl Wueriner. "October Morning," by Edith K. Nagler, is one of the loveliest of the landscapes, a wood fluttering with red and sensitive green leaves, and black crows, the fairy spirits of the forest, the motif of the picture.

Another canvas that has great beauty in it is "Silvermine River," by Edith D. Leffingwell. This picture, by the way, has been sold. Another painting which has been sold is Frederic M. Grant's "Italian Souvenir."

The prettiest nude in the exhibit, and this note will close the discussion of the exhibition for today, is beyond all cavil "Jeunesse," by James R. Hopkins. It is delicate and charming and frail and delicious. From the slight body to the gossamer, colorful background [like a spilled rainbow and a flight of roses], the composition down to its least details has charm and beauty and is in no particular gross, vulgar, or assertive.

"I DO" EYE OPENERS

What do you know about your husband or wife that you didn't know before you were married? What did marriage teach you about your mate? We'll pay $1 for each "I Do" Eye Opener that is printed. Address I Do Eye Openers The Tribune, Chicago.

His Wife Knows.

What did marriage teach me about my mate? Lots of things, but the most surprising and hard to digest are these:

That the popular conception that a foreigner considers his wife subordinate to him in every way is so very true.

That woman's place in the home, and any work she does outside of necessary work is no more than she should do and is not deserving of praise.

But the bitterest of all is to work hard all Sunday morning getting dinner, while father reads the paper, and then have him find fault with little things. And to take things like that with a smile. Well, every wife knows 'tisn't easy.

Don't imagine my husband is an ogre. O, no, he is regarded as one of the nicest men around here, a square fellow. But no one knows a man like his wife knows him—a hackneyed phrase, but true. A. H.

Careless.

I love my husband, and wouldn't trade with any one, but I, too, have found "all things are not what they seem." Before our marriage one of the first things that attracted me was his politeness; I had all the attentions of a queen when we were out.

But now he scarcely seems to know I am along. He walks so fast I can't keep up with him; I hop off street cars unassisted, and he seems perfectly unconscious that he is omitting any thing that might add to my comfort. H. M. H.

The Secret OF HEALTH

A food that turns to tissue and Rebuilds the Human Body at almost any age

Mr. Ostrander travels all over the world selling high grade carpets.

Biochemistry makes new life cells. Biofood, a natural nourishment, stimulates tissues more swiftly than drugs. It builds strength day by day faster than any diet. Men and women of all ages experience amazing physical pickup; their bodies seem actually to grow young as Biofood is absorbed by the system.

"Look What Biofood Did for Me"

Says Mr. E. J. Ostrander of Chicago

"I was down and out. Just ready to give up. I had all sorts of examinations to find out what ailed me. Pains in my head were almost unendurable. My own dentist and a great specialist examined me, and of six different doctors, none seemed to get at the trouble, until one of them told me to take Biofood. That started my recovery, and now after only six months, I am again the picture of radiant health. My work—I am a traveling salesman, and I believe called a successful one—takes me all over the world. I must meet conditions as I find them, eat all kinds of food, sleep in rooms too cold or too hot, but thanks to Biofood, I'm as good as ever. Do you wonder I carry this message of health wherever I go? I consider Biofood as essential to life as the food I eat."

Want to Come Back?

Do you want to return to those days when work was a pleasure, when youth made it possible to work twelve hours a day without fatigue? Do you want to know again the joys of abounding health and vitality? Then look into this new life-giving principle. Men or women should experience perfect health well into the sixties. Any who do not, will do well to send for the book—the New A B C of Health—it's Free.

For Children

All children who appear normal are not always well. Authorities will tell you that there are almost as many cases of malnutrition among the children of the rich as of the poor. Biofood offers a solution of this great problem. It supplies those elements which the body needs to build new cells of muscle, flesh and bone. There is often a noticeable improvement even in the teeth after a short course of Biofood.

Answer Nature's Call for HELP

When you are run down, feel low or below par, it's a sure sign that nature wants Help. She never intended anyone to be sick or anything but Healthy. Modern systems of living, processed foods and unnatural habits are the cause of most illness today—but Nature always gives warning. It behooves you to heed and give her such help as she needs.

Supply those elements which the body needs to rebuild wasted tissues, to make new cells for flesh, bone and muscle and see how quickly trouble disappears.

Old? No!

But one short year ago you would have sworn that Julius Klosterman was an old man He walked with a cane, was bent and feeble and thought the door to health and happiness closed to him forever. Watch him today, and you would account him a man of not more than 30. Erect, alert and strong, he'll tell you that he owes it to Biochemistry, that Biofood has brought him new manhood—a brand new body. Such cases as his are common. Biofood seems to be a veritable miracle-worker. Learn more about this great health bringing principle.

Julius Klosterman,
Chicago, Ill.

Youth and Age Men and Women

Biochemistry is no respector of persons—all seem to benefit. Young people who because of overwork, late hours or careless diet, have lost interest, feel morose or blue, soon find themselves as well as ever; older persons who have felt age slowly creeping upon them, quickly recover new energy and vitality. Cases of rheumatism, sciatica, stomach trouble, skin diseases and even diabetes, have been said to yield quickly to this method of supplying the body what it needs.

How Biochemistry Works

The principles of Biochemistry have been known for nearly a hundred years. Long ago it was discovered that most diseases are due to something lacking, something needed by the organs—the body machine—to keep themselves in trim.

Biofood is a scientific formula combining those elements which the body needs to rebuild its own wasted tissues. Not a theory, but a proven fact attested by hundreds, yes thousands, who gladly tell of renewed Health.

To those who wish to try Biofood

If you want further proof that the principles of Biochemistry bring health, send for the book, the New A B C of Health. It was printed especially for those who want new Health. Remember, Biofood is not a substitute for food—you eat just what you want as you did before. Write for this book—it's free.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Civic Opera Opens the Social Season

Today's New York society letter will be found on page five of this section.

By Mme. X.

AT the opening performance of our Civic opera company last Tuesday evening at the Auditorium, when Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" was presented, it took those members of our gay set and opera going public who were fortunate enough to be present a little time to realize they were looking at high comedy and listening to the most tuneful of modern operas, one rippling with charming melodies, not one devoted to passion, suffering, and death, as are most of what are called grand operas. But by the time the last act was filling that splendid cavern of sound with its delicious harmonies, every one was in the spirit of the piece, and the final applause was hearty and full of understanding.

In the entr'acts people wandered about in the foyers greeting each other, scanning the impressive line of new Paris frocks on show and the recently bought jewels that some of the wanderers had brought back. Jewels are more à la mode now than they have been for many years, in fact, since before the world war. The present fashion in dress admits of lovely and gorgeous materials which add to the effect of the golden ring of boxes, but the Noah's ark cut of the frocks is not particularly ornamental. That old style low necked, tight fitting, pointed waisted, sleeveless dress, with blazing tiaras tee'd high on elaborately dressed heads; with pearl and diamond dog collars clasping the throats; with snug kid gloves pulled up to the vaccination marks—that was a fashion that became an opera box and made it something to look at.

Today's effect is rather oriental. There is no attempt to curb some of the massive forms, fell work of good cooks and automobiles. The dressmakers connive to make them passable by the loose and all too comfortable garb of the day. The opera boxes hide the short skirts, which is fortunate. Mind you, I delight in the loose frocks and the short skirts, but from an esthetic standpoint some interpretations of the mode are unsuccessful.

The French dressmakers are more careful than ours in creating costumes. They study the outline of the body; they pay especial attention to the shape of the leg below the knee, marking a spot on the calf above which it is not pretty to show the understandings. Hats they shape and make on the head; it is not good form to buy a hat already trimmed. Your headgear must be built on your nob, which is why Paris hats are more apt to be chic and becoming than their American compeers.

I think, however, that the American woman not in her first youth wears better, more suitable, and becoming hats than her French sister. Certainly there is nowhere a smarter looking woman than are some of our compatriots of this type; one can recognize them anywhere in the world. But it is of the wearers of clothes, not of the modes and fashions, that is col. is chiefly concerned today.

Superlative Horse Show.

No sooner do we get started on November and its doings and dates than December comes clamoring at our doors seeking notice. This time it's a three sided enterprise that gives us a hail and asks us to get in on the band wagon and join the party. Since long before the days of the ancient Romans and their horse shows in the forum, horses and fashion have traveled hand in hand. It remains for the energetic women who are administering the woman's board of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society to yoke philanthropy with the other two running mates.

The Chicago Riding club and these members of the I. C. H. A. S. are going to provide a superlative horse show at the Riding club from Dec. 8 to 12, inclusive. Show mounts are coming to us from all over the country, from places so remote as New York and Los Angeles, Canada and Tennessee. The club has stabling for 350 horses, and has engaged additional accommodations for 200 more within two blocks of the club. Of these, sixty horses belonging to the club are to be housed by the nearby 122d field artillery. It will be the first annual horse show of the Chicago Riding club, which makes it a historic event. There will be 123 classes and $10,000 in prizes will be distributed.

The part the women of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society play in it is that they are undertaking to sell the 159 boxes and to furnish the beau monde to the show. This last is a feature that attracts sufficient numbers to make it important, just as in the days of yore the Roman matrons and maids were a great factor in the chariot races in the Coliseum at the capital of the ancient world, their litters borne by slaves clogging the traffic of the Roman streets as they made their way to the shows.

Already nearly one hundred of the 159 boxes have been sold, and the rest will soon find purchasers. The big arena at the club holds something like 4,500 people.

Mrs. John A. Carpenter is in charge of the decorations, which insures something effective and novel. An additional attraction will be a dance hall high up above the ring at one end, which is in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham. The club's attractive lounge will be devoted to this feature. Mr. Winterbotham also is in charge of the music, a fine and sonorous band being a necessary accompaniment to horse shows. Mrs. Leander McCormick is looking after the programs.

Altogether it is safe to prophesy a fine spectacle from any point of view. All who go to it will get their money's worth, whether they are interested in horses, horsemanship, or seeing the world of fashion and social renown.

* *

Children to Benefit.

The charity which will benefit from at least one-half of the receipts is one of the most effective in this region. It is state-wide in its scope, the children in need of help all over the state being its concern.

Yearly the society cares for some 3,000 children, finding for them food, clothes, shelter, medical services, in institutions, boarding houses, and homes—especially in homes. Mr. Williams, manager, says the average number of children attended to daily is 1,650, an impressive figure. What this care and attention means to the commonwealth it is impossible to estimate adequately, so important is the work in the unending effect it must have on this and succeeding generations.

The women's committee working for the success of the horse show is headed by Mrs. Chauncey B. McCormick, chairman, and Mrs. Walter Brewster, vice chairman. The men arranging and responsible for the horse show are Capt. Maxwell M. Korpening, managing director; B. L. Behr, John Borden, Prentiss Coonley, Luther Dickey, Harold E. Foreman, Harry Goelitz, John Hertz, E. J. Lehmann, Otto W. Lehmann, Chauncey McCormick, Robert R. McCormick, Daniel Orth, Martin J. Quigley, and John R. Thompson Jr.

The clubhouse itself is well worth seeing. It is the latest thing in this kind of building, with the accommodations for man and beast of the most up to date and complete description. The riding ring is 300 feet long and 100 feet wide, which makes it the—

MISS CLARA HOLLIS.
[Moffett Studio Photos.]

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Leander J. McCormick, and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham are among the prominent society women who are working for the success of the national horse show to take place at the Chicago Riding club from Dec. 8 to 12, part of the proceeds of which will go to the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. Miss Clara Hollis is president of the Junior league, which will present "Alice in Wonderland" as the first of its winter series of children's plays at the Playhouse next Saturday morning.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick is head of the woman's committee for the horse show, Mrs. Leander J. McCormick is in charge of the programs, and Mrs. Winterbotham and her husband are to have charge of a dance hall feature of the entertainment in the club lounge at one end of the arena.

Miss Hollis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hollis, who has proven her ability and versatility during several seasons of Junior league plays, is to be the Gryphon in "Alice in Wonderland."

hate to use the expression so worn out by us Americans—but it really is the largest ring in the world for equestrian sports. A fine organ fills the vast spaciousness of the building with [illegible] on occasions. A beautifully decorated and furnished lounge overlooks the arena from one end, and there are other smaller rooms for committee meetings and so forth, while the dressing rooms are attractive and complete, both for men and women. It is altogether a model riding club, and is enjoyed accordingly by its members.

Horses in Bronze.

Apropos of horses, there is among us an extremely clever sculptor who makes horses her specialty, and who has made statuettes of some of the famous steeds in this and other parts of the world, and of their riders, too. Kathleen Wheeler is an Englishwoman with a passionate love of animals which manifests itself in every line and curve of her masterly pieces. Up to yesterday she was working in a temporary studio in the Aldis playhouse in Lake Forest. When I made a visit to her recently she showed me some spirited examples of her art.

There was a little likeness in bronze of the famous French champion racer, Epinard, which fairly breathed life. Not far off was an equally vibrant likeness of the year old stallion, Sir Barton, belonging to B. B. Smith of Virginia, an animal which holds most of the speed records in the country. There are also statues of such well known horses as Flying Ebony, the year's Kentucky Derby winner, and James Brady's Irvington Model, champion hackney stallion.

A charming portrait of Mrs. William Swift on her horse, Strike Breaker, caught my eye. It is a capital likeness of her as well as of her mount. It reproduces most effectively the slender, rather drooping grace of her figure and the quiet sweetness of her face in a manner most remarkable when one considers the small size of the group.

There is also a good likeness of Stuyvesant Peabody Jr. on his horse, Nailer, a sturdy pair, which shows character even in so small a model Nearby was a fine group in bronze, called "Out West," representing a girl and two horses, which was exhibited at the Royal academy and the old salon in Paris, and which had been purchased by King Edward VII.

I suppose the sculptor has by now finished a statue she was working on of B. L. Behr's horse, the great Burgoright, who won last year's Maryland Hunt club cup, with Joseph T. Bowen in the saddle. She was also making a portrait statue of Mr. Bowen on his famous racer. He, Mr. Bowen, took his sittings faithfully in spite of the fact that he was embraced by a plaster cast which was aiding him to mend the ribs he had broken in a steeplechase at the Detroit horse show a short time before.

Haunted by Memories.

Others whose horses are being portrayed by Kathleen Wheeler are Prentiss Coonley, whose Ananda looks very well in bronze: as do Mrs. William Swift's two horses, race winners, Miss Bunty and Hallmark. The artist, herself, is an interesting personality and passionately fond of horses and dogs. She keeps her maiden surname, though she is married, to a perfectly good husband and has a dear little boy six years of age.

The trio has been spending the last four or five weeks in that pleasant Aldis garden, haunt of artists, poets, and distinguished literary folk, where the leaves whisper poems and the birds sing the most modern songs, while the trees don colors that vie with anything the impressionists and post-impressionists ever attempted. It is a truly classic spot, haunted by memories of many visiting notabilities and many festivals, unique and charming in character.

The end of that delightful period, when the gay and frivolous of Lake Forest's summer colony stopped gambling and gossiping long enough to attend performances of the Irish and other modern dramas by the Aldis Players, in that dear little vine enshrouded theater, was a distinct blow to the social life of the community. It took from it one of those elements that gave it a many sided air. A society all highbrow would be uninteresting, but not more so than a society entirely given up to sports and games of hazard. The more diversified our interests and pursuits, the more do we get out of life—and also give back to it. Therefore, the cessation of the activities of that band of Thespians was a loss to north shore circles But the life of such an organization generally depends on the belief and fervor of one especially inspired mainstay. Such is Mrs. Arthur Aldis, which is why, although she was loyally aided and abetted by her amateur troupe, when she departed for larger fields of similar trend her mantle found no shoulders adequate to wear it, and the players disbanded. The playhouse itself became, in turn, a home for poets, then for plain and quiet folk, and now stands dismantled and empty. Sic transit gloria mundi!

Meaning the Russians.

While we in this country are warm, sheltered, clothed, fed, and entertained in many ways, over on the other side of the Atlantic a large number of people as well born and bred as are those who compose an average theater audience here are without any of these things we accept as a matter of course. They are cold, underfed, in rags, and suffering from the wounds and mutilations that were left on millions by the world war.

Among the most unlucky of these are those Russians who were stranded by the storm on enemy soil. There are thousands of them in Bulgaria. We may say, let them perish, but it makes one uncomfortable and spoils the enjoyment of comforts to think of them — those legless, armless, blinded, helpless, hopeless men in what ought to be the prime of life without some sort of succor.

So, at the urgent plea of the old Russian Red Cross, headed by a well accredited Russian, L. E. Feldmahn, devoted and tender hearted Americans in various cities are banding together to raise in each place a sum, not burdensome, but of value as aiding in the work of making life less intolerable to people who, through no fault of their own, are enduring unspeakable hardships.

In Chicago Mrs. Arthur Meeker has undertaken to do what she can to help raise a fund for these castaways in Bulgaria. She is organizing what seems to me one of the cleverest, most attractive schemes that has been devised since the old "endless chain" days. It is, in fact, rather like that old easy device to lure money from a great number of persons to be applied to alleviate sore need and suffering. Mrs. Meeker's scheme is called "vanishing luncheons." Probably you will say that all luncheons vanish. This is a scheme to make many vanish. In this case a hostess asks, say, eight guests to luncheon, with the understanding that each one will give her a dollar and promise to give another luncheon on the same basis.

The vanishing part comes that one who was a guest at a luncheon numbering eight need give a luncheon of only seven, each of her six guests promising to ask five to a similar feast who will in turn each ask four, and so on until only one is left at the end of the string.

It is an ingenious idea, and if carried out at all conscientiously should enable Mrs. Meeker to turn over a tidy sum to Mr. Feldmahn. Mrs. Potter Palmer is the treasurer for the undertaking, and all moneys collected should be sent to her.

Your Worldly Goods.

Life for the well-to-do is just one succession of collecting possessions and dispersing them. For such the White Elephant shop in East Ohio street and others of its ilk are as much a blessing as they are for a mortal with a short purse and many needs. Plethora is a terrible disease, and a needless one, too, as long as the women's board of the Children's Memorial hospital conducts this lively bazaar. It is offering those afflicted with a surplus an opportunity for relief next Tuesday afternoon at the Casino where it is giving one of its rummage teas to which you and your neighbors, with things that clutter up life and the home, may take these articles and equip the shop whose proceeds all go to the hospital and help to relieve the suffering of little children who are ill or injured or born defective.

These teas testify to our pervading prosperity, as the quality of the gifts brought there from overladen homes is astonishing not only in its quantity, but in its quality. However, don't let this discourage any one, as there are purchasers for everything imaginable and unimaginable.

Mrs. Frederic Upham is president of the women's auxiliary board, and among those interested in running the White Elephant and in other matters concerning the hospital are Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mrs. Harry Shearson, Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Mrs. Charles Dempster, Mrs. Alvin McCord, and Mrs. Augustus Peabody.

Mrs. Hamilton McCormick will be much missed this winter in this organization, as she has always been a devoted worker for and in the Rummage shop. She has a strong sense of duty, not only to the hospital, but also to the humble buyers, especially the women, who come there, with a worn and none too full purse in hand, and undertake to make necessary purchases.

Like the rest of their sex, these women are easily lured from the practical to the ideal, and some of the discarded finery that can be found there tempts them and turns them from the homely things needed by the family. When Mrs. McCormick waited on such she would try, gently, to guide their errant fancies into channels that insured the wisest expenditure of money.

"My dear," she would say, "you don't need that gay hat half as much as you need that child's warm cloak you were asking for. Look at this one, not at all faded or torn and probably once worn by so-and-so's child," mentioning some well known name, where as likely as not no child had been born for years and years.

Arts Ball Dec. 18.

The Association of Arts and Industries is giving a ball next month, namely, on Dec. 18, in the gold ballroom of the Congress hotel. These are always gay and festive affairs, with a something in them, a snappy flavoring and mixture, that artists alone know how to impart to their parties. The dance will be preceded by an elaborate pageant for which the Art institute will provide one of the groups under the supervision of Thomas Wood Stevens, director of the new Goodman theater. The proceeds of the ball will go to aid the Arts and Industries society in its endeavors to establish here an Industrial Art school, much needed in this country of widespread, but inartistic, industries. In Europe, especially in such lands as Czecho-Slovakia, these schools abound, and that is why wares from the factories of those countries are so attractive.

In the fierce competition that lies ahead of this nation, when the time comes that we have to compete with other peoples in the markets of the world, this question of the esthetic in industry will have an importance of which we have little realization today. It is up to us to prepare for that era by educating our people to a knowledge of and good taste in these matters.

William Nelson Pelouze is president, H. F. Affleck, Oliver Dennet Grover, and Paul Schulze are the three vice presidents of the society, while McClelland Barclay and Ralph Von Vechten are, respectively, secretary and treasurer.

A board of twenty-three directors guides the destinies of the association In the list of the board the many different avocations of the members are recorded. There is John M. Glenn secretary to the Illinois Manufacturers association: then there are Robert Harshe, director of the Art institute, and George F. Porter, capitalist, and Mme. Alla Ripley, president of the Fashion Art league, and Lorado Taft, sculptor, and Henry K. Holsman, architect, and Charles Herrick Hammond vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, besides any number of persons in all sorts of manufacturing business—and with that eminent legal light, Colin Fyffe, as general counsel.

The latter, by the way, is doing great work as the head of the public library board. Largely owing to his initiative Chicago may have in the not distant future public library branch buildings throughout all the far spread districts of the city, handsome structures that in themselves will give visions of architectural beauty to the dwellers in the neighborhood and an

A Secret
And sunny shampoo
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I have glorious hair, as millions of women know. Its glint is like a halo, on the stage or on the street.

I don't know how I get it. I only know that it comes to me through what they call a Fruity Shampoo.

Very wonderful men perfected it for me, but they never would give me the formula. They say that one ingredient gives that matchless glint, but they never would tell me what it is.

But they make it for me to supply to you, just as they make it for me. It is the greatest shampoo in existence. I say that after trying scores of them, and searching the world for the best.

I want you to try it. I want you to see the luster that it adds to hair. I would not take a fortune for what it has done for mine.

I cannot tell you the secrets of its wizard-like results. They have ever been told to me. But those results will amaze and delight you. Ask any toilet counter for Edna Wallace Hopper's Fruity Shampoo, and you'll get [illegible] what I use. The price is 60 cents. And your dealer will return your money if you think that any other shampoo comes within a mile of this. For your own sake, see what it does.

Women to Open Voters' League Session Tuesday

THE Illinois League of Women Voters, of which Mrs. James W. Morrisson is president, will hold its fifth annual convention at the Congress hotel on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. On Tuesday the sessions, which open at 10 o'clock, will include the annual reports of league officers and the meetings of state standing committees. These discussions will be concerned with international coöperation to prevent war, efficiency in government and public welfare in government, including child welfare, citizenship training, education, legal status of women, living costs, social hygiene, and women in industry. All meetings are open to the public. Debutantes will usher, under the chairmanship of Miss Janet Fairbank.

On Wednesday at 10 o'clock Mrs. Medill McCormick, Republican national committeewoman from Illinois, and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Democratic national committeewoman from Illinois, will speak on "How to Make Politics Vital to Women." In the afternoon the speakers will be Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, state senator, and Mrs. Katherine Hancock Goode, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill and Mrs. Rena Elrod, members of the house of representatives. Their subjects will be: "State Institutions," "The Relation of Women to Legislation," "Women's Training and Experience for Public Office," and "Greater Provision for the Insane." Mrs. Mabel Reinecke will speak on "My Job as Internal Revenue Collector," and Miss Mary Bartelme on "A Juvenile Court Judge at Work." Other women executive officials will speak on the general topic of "Women in Public Office."

At 6:30 o'clock on Wednesday, there will be a banquet, of which Mrs. Clair E. More is in charge. Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen will speak on "What the Locarno Pact Means," and Mrs. James W. Morrisson will discuss the purposes of the league.

On Thursday the business meeting of the morning will be followed by a Congressional luncheon, at which Miss Julia C. Lathrop will give an address on "The League's Congressional Program." Senator William B. McKinley will discuss "The World Court," and Representatives Henry Rathbone, Morton Hull and John J. Gorman will speak on "Important Congressional Issues."

"The Maternity and Infancy Act" will be the topic of Dr. Edward H. Lauer of Iowa and the discussion of tariff legislation and the consumer will end the program.

During the course of the convention, the election of officers of the Illinois League of Women Voters for the following term will be held, and the program of work formulated.

air of distinction to their surroundings. It will be interesting to see whether the designs will be drawn up to coincide with the national character of the neighborhood or will conform with generally accepted canons of what makes a good looking house. If the Swedes and the Germans and the Lithuanians and the Slovaks would never move from their bailiwicks, it would be safe to build there architecture which would speak to them of the lands they left behind them, but they never do stay put, which fact makes it inadvisable to build any but orthodox architecture, something that can be identified with this country and its institutions.

Authority on Antiques.

An authority on matters esthetic is Herbert Cescinsky, who, in spite of his Slavic surname, is British born and bred, and who is considered one of the world's great authorities on antique furniture, as well as in other directions, including musical composition. His writings are textbooks on artistic decoration. He is returning to Chicago to give a lecture at the Art institute next Wednesday. The evening before William E. Moore is giving a dinner in his honor. Mr. Moore has a delightful little apartment in an old house in Cass street.

With the present rage for all that is old and historic, the presence of this noted authority ought to be an occasion for many a local collector to learn more as to the real values of his or her possessions. Having recently toured Virginia with a passionate devotee of early American furniture and bric-a-brac, I acquired, through much suffering and tribulation, a certain amount of knowledge of and affection for these relics of our national past.

There was an innate sense of art, an unconscious knowledge of what was in right line and proportion, among those early settlers of this country that sets them apart from and above the rather garish and flamboyant present. They were governed by an instinctive good taste and also by the limitations of their era and materials. We of today have none of these restraints and have dissipated our heritage, a knowledge of the austere and correct, so that the best some of us can do is to gather and cherish the handmade products of those earlier times.

Many people with this instinctive love of the artistic and beautiful as it was handed down to us suffered excruciating tortures at the French Exhibition of Modern Decorative Arts. I imagine the ardent desire to create something entirely unrelated to anything that had gone before resulted in some strange and unlovely vagaries and added little to the sum of man's contributions to the genuinely admirable and beautiful.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and her committee are working unceasingly on plans to make the Red, White, and Blue ball on Nov. 28 a success. It is to be given in the new palatial ballroom of the Hotel Sherman two days after Thanksgiving day, by which time the deleterious effect of that domestically bacchanalian feast will have worn off and the world that amuses itself will be ready to tread a measure, or trip the light fantastic, or take a hand at mah jongg or bridge, or just look on at the rest of the world doing some one or all of these things.

NEWS OF NEW YORK SOCIETY

Connie's Triumph Talk of New York

By Grace Robinson.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — A great competition has come to a finish in New York, a matrimonial competition that has lasted more than five years —ever since young Philip M. Plant started on his money spending, heart breaking career in the worlds both of society and the stage.

Constance Bennett, beautiful daughter of Richard Bennett, the distinguished actor, has landed Phil, the biggest fish, financially speaking, that has been seen in society waters in many years.

Broadway declares Mrs. William Hayward, Phil's mother, will not welcome the daughter-in-law Phil has selected for her. Daughter-in-law has had many admirers during her Broadway career, which, by the way, was far from being the struggle of a young actress fighting for jobs and recognition.

Young Plant is heir to a fortune estimated at $30,000,000.

Of course, since Constance was a Bennett and Phil Plant was Phil Plant, they could not be married in the ordinary way. They must elope. And they did, to Greenwich, Conn., an hour's fast automobile ride from New York. They not only eloped — they got lost in the rain and darkness in a truly thrilling way, and had to be piloted by a policeman to the home of the justice of the peace who performed the important ceremony.

Off to Greenwich.

Phil declared the original idea of marriage struck him while he was eating dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Best, where Constance was also dining. It really was original—for Phil—who has come closer to marriage without actually committing it than any other man in New York.

In the midst of an expert gastronomical performance he remarked, "I think we've waited long enough, Constance. Let's be married tonight."

The marriage took place several hours later—at 2:30 the following morning, to be exact.

The marrying couple sped to Greenwich in Mr. and Mrs. Best's automobile, but got lost. At East Portchester, a suburb of Greenwich, they halted at a fire house for directions. A policeman climbed in the car and guided them to the home of the justice of the peace they sought.

The justice happened to be the same justice who, four years ago, married Constance at midnight to the Yale student, Chester Hirst Moorehead. The girl married him on a dare at Pickwick Arms, fashionable hotel in Greenwich. A day or two later her parents took steps towards an annulment, which was obtained a few months later.

After that experience the justice put Connie down in his mental notebook as a person who could change her mind more easily than her complexion. He, therefore, had not been surprised when at 1:30 her second wedding party had not shown up, and he had gone to bed.

He was up again in half an hour, routing out the town clerk at Phil Plant's request, so the marriage license could be issued.

Mr. and Mrs. Best were the witnesses. Connie annexed the coveted title of Mrs. Phil Plant in a few moments, and the party motored back to New York.

Breaking the News.

Adrienne Morrison, the girl's mother, was highly pleased, and professed to have known of the marriage plans. Mrs. Hayward was out of the city, and her exact attitude is still a matter of conjecture.

Richard Bennett, from whom Connie's mother is divorced, has been in California on tour. A telegram was immediately dispatched to him, and no objection is expected in that quarter.

As for Col. Hayward—he is only Phil's stepfather and is not likely to have a lot to say one way or another.

Mr. and Mrs. Plant are supremely happy in their apartment at the Gladstone hotel in New York.

And what of Judith Smith, the lovely red lipped darling of society whom fashionable Southampton, L. I., knew as Phil's fiancée? She was prepared to marry the handsome millionaire last June 3.

"My illness, given as a reason for the postponement of that marriage, was merely a stall," says Phil now. "I was not really ill. That marriage was something that just could not be."

And what of Helene Jesmer, the exquisite Greenwich Village Follies actress, who lost her beauty and her ability to earn a living through a wild ride in Plant's car? Is she eating her heart out over the success of a girl whose beauty has not been marred?

Helene sued Plant after that frightful crash in the night. She asked half a million dollars for the irreparable damage to her features. Plant was attentive after the accident—until the bandages came off. When he saw the changed Helene, it is said, his interest died immediately. Constance Bennett visited the court room when the damage suit was in trial, and it was obvious to all that gay Phil had a new flame. The case was settled out of court, Miss Jesmer receiving $75,000.

Tears and Fury.

Plant, it is said, paid much attention to Marion Stokes, Connie's girl chum, even after Connie flashed on his horizon. There was a sudden coolness between the two young women, but Miss Bennett can afford to be friendly again now.

Anne Whelan, cigar store heiress, was another young woman in whom Plant took an enormous interest. She has since married Gilbert, son of Otto Kahn, millionaire banker and patron of music.

And there were many others—beautiful girls any one of whom would gladly have accepted the dashing young millionaire.

Some may really have loved him. They are in tears.

Others wanted his money. They are gnashing their pearly teeth over Connie's triumph.

"Mother is pleased with Connie," insists Phil. "She never had any real prejudice against stage people. We are dining with mother tonight."

Investigation proved, however, that mother was out of town, that the couple was not dining with her, and that Mrs. Hayward's blessing on the union was still a desire rather than a reality.

Opera Premiere Brilliant.

New York's winter social season opened last Monday with the usual bang. The seasonal premiere of the Metropolitan Opera company brought out the scintillating members of society in a mass formation similar to that employed on the musical comedy stage when the entire company troops out for a peppy opening song. As usual, the "diamond horseshoe," more elegantly termed the parterre row, was empty when the great yellow curtains of the "Met" stage flew apart on the first act of "La Giaconda."

The lights of the first intermission revealed the most important members of New York society sitting primly in their places, glittering more brightly than the chandeliers.

This habit of delaying arrival until after the opera has started is as rigid a rule as the one that forbids hostesses in the important layer of seats to leave their places during the evening.

Only the men may circulate from loge to loge; the women must remain in their cushioned chairs and submit to the stares of the orchestra audience and the barrage of opera glasses from all parts of the house, no matter how trying the ordeal. Of late there has been much sentiment in favor of abandoning this mid-Victorian practice. It was noticeable the other night that this trying conventionality still held.

Elaborate Headgear Passé.

There is nothing in New York quite so grand as a "Met" opening. The heavy diamond tiaras that once made an opera evening an occasion for a headache have given way to jeweled bandeaux, or complete lack of ornamentation.

The boyish bob has been responsible, in part, for the passing of the elaborate headgear of past seasons. The other night there were more heads minus any decoration than ever before. The result was that the women's faces looked younger and softer than when viewed against a background of glittering stones.

Katherine Mackay, who is Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, was with her father, Clarence Mackay, the telegraph king. Mrs. O'Brien was radiant in a gown of a shade resembling old rose. Her fan was a mammoth feather affair of flame color and tan. Her hair was parted in the middle and combed smoothly over the temples, giving her the appearance of an old fashioned lady in a painting.

Antique effects have become the vogue. That was apparent. Natica Nast, daughter of Conde Nast, was the sensation of the horseshoe in a period gown of white taffeta, with a long billowy skirt that concealed not only legs but ankles.

The "glorious creature" in box 25, at which the standees stared, was Marian Wickes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth Wickes of Tuxedo and Newport.

Miss Wickes was the most distinctive young woman present. Her black hair was combed smoothly back from her face, revealing beautiful ears. Her tomato colored velvet gown contrasted strikingly with her brunette beauty.

Ellen Mackay was in white satin. Her gown, cut low in front, boasted a white satin sash scarf which was thrown carelessly about her neck. On one shoulder reposed a breath taking ornament, composed of an amethyst as large as a walnut, surrounded by rows of pearls.

Scarcity of Vanderbilts.

There was a great scarcity of Vanderbilts. The loge used for many years by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Sr. was vacant—a silent tribute to the memory of her son, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who died recently.

Another of the gorgeous boxes was empty due to a death in the family—that of J. Pierpont Morgan, whose wife died during the summer.

Mrs. Harry F. Sinclair, who represents oil in the parterre coterie of billions, wore an orange velvet gown and diamond bandeau. Her two diamond necklaces dazzled the galleries.

Frank Munsey, the publisher, had as guests his old friends, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard, besides Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Patterson and Mrs. Meldrim Coy.

Mrs. R. T. Wilson walked in wrapped in a mammoth cloak of chinchilla. Mrs. Otto Kahn's attire, when she stepped from her automobile, was concealed by a cape of silver and black brocade.

A bombardment of flashlights employed by camera men startled some of the social registerites as they alighted at the 39th and 40th street doors, as parties bound for the parterre row were recorded for the morning papers.

Many dinners preceded the opening.

Gigli sang, but not at his best, although his efforts brought thundering applause from the Italians in the higher placed and cheaper priced seats.

The Woolworth millions were represented—the millions gleaned from a well known chain store enterprise—by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. F. McCann. The latter is a daughter of the late Frank Woolworth and sister of Mrs. James Donahue, whose jewel loss was the most sensational robbery of its kind in the police history of New York.

Mme. Frances Alda, who is not a parterre box holder but who is the wife of Guilio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the "Met," had a large party of friends at the opening.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt, of the millionaire Standard Oil Pratts, has become New York's first woman alderman. She won her victory in the silk stocking Republican district, campaigning as Ruth Pratt, instead of using the more significant "Mrs. John T. Pratt," as a vote getting cognomen.

The Pratts are conservative Long Islanders who live in a family colony at Glen Cove. Their estates are enclosed in one immense section, all of which is Pratt property. They seldom go in for jazzy pleasures but, like the Rockefellers, are interested in many welfare projects. Mrs. Pratt has five children. The prince of Wales was her guest during his memorable visit a year ago.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Presbyterians in Mission Campaign

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

PRESBYTERIAN national leaders will visit Chicago churches today and throughout the week in the interest of foreign missions. Tomorrow evening at the Hotel La Salle the Presbyterian union will hold a banquet at which 1,500 are expected to be present, at which Dr. Charles R. Erdman, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, and Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary of the board of foreign missions, will be the principal speakers. Dr. Speer will also speak at a special rally of young people this afternoon at 4 at the Fourth Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Delaware place, and this evening at 7:45 he will speak at the Woodlawn Presbyterian church, Kimbark avenue and 64th street.

Dr. Erdman will be the speaker this evening at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall.

Among the officials of the board of foreign missions and missionaries from various countries who will speak in various churches are the following: A. J. Brown, Reginald Wheeler, W. P. Schell, F. G. Coan, Persia; L. M. Witherspoon, Syria; E. G. Seel, Chile; E. E. Hendrix, India; A. G. Parker, China; E. M. Mowry and W. N. Blair, Korea; Mrs. C. K. Roys, Mrs. Reba M. Graham, Miss Gertrude Schultz, Mrs. Very L. Merrill, and the following from Chicago who have traveled in mission countries: F. W. Bible, Cleland B. McAfee and A. G. Bradt.

Three banquets of special interest to church people will be held tomorrow evening. The Baptists, Hamilton club, Dr. Christian F. Reisner, New York, speaker, "Building the Temple," Presbyterians, Hotel La Salle, speakers: Dr. Charles R. Erdman, moderator of the general assembly, "Pushing the Church Walls Outward;" and Dr. Robert E. Speer, "Our World and Our Duty," the National Anti-Saloon league, Hotel Sherman.

A union reformation service of all the Evangelical synod churches of Chicago will be held at 3 o'clock in St. Peter's church, Cortez street and Oakley boulevard. The Rev. F. Umbeck and the Rev. G. Kienle will speak. Music by St. Peter's mass chorus.

◆

The Most Rev. F. E. J. Lloyd, D. D., primate of the American Catholic church, will celebrate mass and speak on the claims of the Catholic church at 10:30 today in Garrick hall of the Garrick Theater building.

The most important events in Catholic church circles today will be the reading of the appeal for the offering for the pope's charities, called Peter's pence, and the ceremony by which St. John's church at 18th and South Clark streets becomes the Basilica of St. John. In the appeal for Peter's pence his eminence Cardinal Mundelein refers to the special commendation of Pope Pius XI. given to the Chicago pilgrims in Rome during the holy year, praising Chicago for its generosity to the Holy See.

In connection with the ceremony of establishing St. John's as a basilica, allied to the basilica of St. John Lateran church, the mother church of Rome, mass will be celebrated at 10:30 by the most Rev. Albert T. Daeger, D. D., archbishop of Santa Fé, and the sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Francis C. Kelley, D. D., bishop of Oklahoma. The privilege of making St. John a basilica, which provides for many indulgencies not commissioned to other churches, was obtained by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. W. D. O'Brien, pastor of St. John's, when, with the approval of Cardinal Mundelein, he received the authority from Pope Pius XI. There is only one other basilica in the United States, in New York, and only two in Canada.

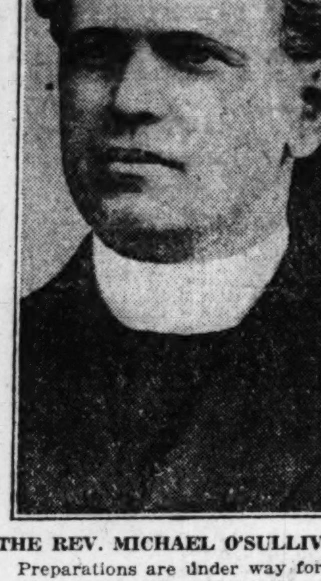
The Rt. Rev. George A. Oldham, D. D., bishop coadjutor of Albany, N. Y., will speak on world peace Armistice evening, Wednesday, at St. James church, Cass and Huron streets. Tomorrow morning at St. James, Bishop Griswold, the Rev. F. S. Fleming and Charles E. Field will speak before the Episcopal clergy round table about the triennial convention at New Orleans.



THE REV. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN.

Preparations are under way for the celebration on Nov. 29 of the silver jubilee anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Michael O'Sullivan of St. Bridget's Catholic church at Archer avenue and Arch street. The date is likewise the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the parish and the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the coming to Chicago of Father Marquette, whose encampment on what is now the drainage canal was not far from St. Bridget's parish.

The Dwight L. Moody Memorial church, at North Clark street and North avenue, will be dedicated today with ceremonies and services that will continue for weeks to come. At 9:45 the church key will be delivered to the chairman of the board of trustees. The Rev. C. S. Kerfoot will offer the prayer of dedication, and the pastor, the Rev. P. W. Philpott, will preach on the text, "What Mean These Stone?" At 3 there will be a Sunday school rally, and at 4:30 to 6 a meeting of the various organizations of the church and Sunday school. The evening meeting will begin at 7, and at 8 Dr. Charles A. Blanchard, president of Wheaton college, will preach. Tomorrow evening at 7:15 a reception will be given to Dr. and Mrs. Philpott and the officials of the church. Various ministers will speak every evening, except Saturday, until Nov. 22, when Dr. R. A. Torrey, former pastor, will begin a series of revival meetings.

Raymond Robins will speak today at 3 at the Chicago forum at the Apollo theater on "The Outlawry of War." Mayor Dever will bring greetings, and S. J. Duncan-Clark and Dean Lake Traxler will debate the entrance of the United States into the world court.

Nothing beautifies like
JARNAC
Cheek and Lip Rouge
50¢
Waterproof!

ANN: My dear, you really should use Jarnac Face Powder. So soft—and my, how it stays on. Never tried the rouge, but the powder is the best ever!

BETTY: Thanks awfully. I've been consumed with curiosity as to why your skin looks so soft and young. I'd never be without the rouge, and must try the powder, too. Where can I buy it?

ANN: I bought it at the drug store—only a dollar!

If you want what you want, remember there is no "same thing" as Jarnac. If your druggist hasn't it, sent prepaid upon receipt of purchase price. JARNAC et CIE, 540 W. Randolph St., Chicago, U. S. A.

Club Ethics

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"DID you hear the chairman of the calendar committee explain just why our year books were nearly a month late in reaching the members this fall?" the long time member asked the charter member.

"No, I didn't. I was at a conference during the business reports. What about it?"

"In the first place, she'd been away most of the summer and the work had piled up."

"That's a habit work has when it's neglected," observed the charter member.

"Her next excuse was that she wanted to have the membership list absolutely correct, and so she'd taken time to write a second letter, or to phone to the members who were slow in sending in their material."

"She needn't have bothered. I never yet saw a membership list that was absolutely correct," the charter member stated. "It may be when it goes to the printer, but the chances are that some one will move or resign before it's out, without any regard for the list."

"And then, to cap the climax, the dear lady said she hadn't taken time to re-read the last proof, because she knew we'd be in a hurry to get our books and some mistakes had slipped in. Mrs. Stewart is down as Mrs. Stewer and Rose Ward as Ross Ward. You know how people love to have their names mutilated. Mrs. McCall's name was left off the list entirely."

"All the trouble came from trying to do the thing up in a hurry," commented the charter member. "A great deal of the work of the club has to be done during the summer, and one who accepts an important chairmanship shouldn't expect to have much of a vacation—that is, if she cares anything about her reputation as a worker."

Accept this—Free an altogether
new and correct rouge
Accents beauty
most amazingly!

MONTHS have been spent perfecting this for you... the newest, most exquisite of rouge!

Marvelously effective in accenting beauty. Bewitching color in a new and perfect form. With new allure, new subtlety. Tints so lovely, so new, they will amaze you.

An extraordinary offer brings it to you free. We give you—free—a full-sized "kid-glove" compact of this superb rouge. The only condition is that you accept at once.

A new idea

This exquisite new rouge has three distinct and important advantages. It is the correct, new, moist type.

It is moisture-proof! Hence amazingly and delightfully lasting. Ordinary contacts or moisture cannot mar or remove it.

You use it for lips as well as for cheeks! New allurement in both uses.

It is good for your skin! The first type of rouge that cannot enlarge the pores—so protects natural loveliness while adding charm.

* * * * *

The name is . . . MELBA MOIST ROUGE.

Texture is supremely smooth. So it blends with the greatest evenness. No crude, abrupt contrasts.

And you've never known rouge so lasting—for lips or for cheeks.

Put it on in the morning. Then all day—all evening, too!—your appearance is flawless. It actually lasts 24 hours, if necessary. Nothing but deliberate cleansing can remove it.

New science in tints

One of the world's most famous beauty organizations has produced this true miracle of "make-up" for you. After long months' research and study.

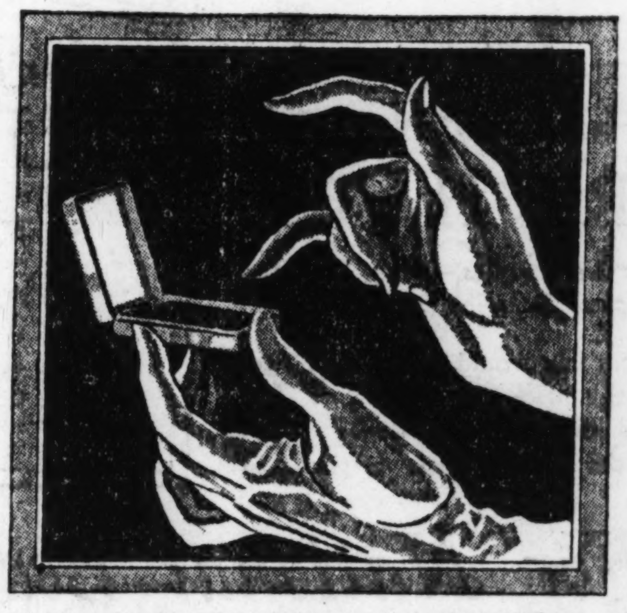
All that modern science knows about tint and color has been most successfully applied.

And so you have tints that marvelously suit—and accent—natural skin coloring, whether you are dark, fair or "in between."

Right there is the one big secret of beauty-emphasis today! Tint must be accurately right. There must be no hint of crudeness. Yet, when made up, one must be radiant, wholly alluring. As never before this is accomplished now.

Another new creation

Your free gift of this exquisite rouge comes in a compact just as new, just as adorable as the beauty-aid itself.



An adorable little compact—that fits into your glove!

A slim, aristocratic little case. It slips into your glove. No bother having it with you everywhere. Not a "sample"—but a full-sized "kid-glove compact!

You will find an illustration above.

Remember this is yours, without cost. We buy it for you. Details of how and where to get it follow.

More benefits

You further benefit by this remarkable offer in finding face powders that equally enhance and bring out natural loveliness.

You know that unless powder is infinitely fine it cannot spread properly, blend properly, or resist wind and contacts.

MELBA Face Powders add this final perfection to "make-up."

They are almost unbelievably fine—dainty. Where other powders are sifted, MELBA POWDERS are actually floated on air! It is an exclusive MELBA process. You get only the lightest, most airy particles. All others are sifted out by a filtered air current. No other face powders offer this, because none receive such care in making.

Tints, too, are absolutely correct. For blondes, brunettes or "medium types" there are the correct colorings—completely charming.

Exquisite scents—to suit every taste, every personality. And prices that suit every pocketbook. You find a list below.

New rouge free . . .
with correct powder

The offer is made to acquaint you with the correct new principles of emphasizing beauty; to demonstrate the captivating new results you may enjoy.

Simply clip the coupon below. Present it at any drug or department store. Buy one dollar's worth of MELBA Face Powders. (Or one dollar's worth of any MELBA Toilet products. There are many, all delightful. You will find a partial list below.)

You then receive the bewitching kid-glove compact—full size—of the exquisite new MELBA MOIST ROUGE, absolutely free. We buy it for you. The regular retail price is 50c. An unusual value for you.

But this amazingly generous offer is limited. You simply must act at once—to take advantage of it.

Clip your coupon right now. Present it, according to this offer, first chance you get. See what new beauty, what new charm it means.

Your choice

Select $1 worth of any MELBA products—or more, any combination—and receive your rouge free. Do it at once!

The MELBA products include: FACE POWDERS—Lov'me, 75c; Fleurs, $1.00; Glory, 75c; Ador-me, $2.00-$2.50; Bouquet, 50c; Piney Woods, $1.00; Adoree, $1.50; Lilac, $1.00; and others. There are also the delightful Melba Creams—the Skin Cleanser, 50c; the Tissue Cream, 50c; and Vanishing Cream, 50c. There are also Melba Perfumes, Toilet Waters, in a great many exquisite odeurs. Dainty talcum powders, too.

FREE—Kid-glove Rouge Compact —Limited Offer!

Fill in and present this coupon at any drug or department store. Purchase one dollar's worth of any Melba toilet products. You are then entitled to one Melba Kid-glove Moist Rouge Compact (full size, retail value 50c)—absolutely free. Only one to a person. Offer limited—

100—MEN WANTED—100

SALARY, BONUS, COMMISSION.

Your opportunity to make money is at hand!

No experience necessary. Leads furnished. If you work consistently you can increase your income more rapidly with us than with any similar organization. A. A. M., who earned only $4,000 a year before we hired him, received more than $25,000 last year, his second year with us. You can do the same if you are intelligent, willing to work, and over 21 years of age. Many of our highest paid men earned as little as $30 a week before coming to work with us. We are paying them five times as much. Now they own good cars and are enjoying big incomes every week. YOU want the best things of life. Money will buy them, and we offer you the opportunity to earn MORE MONEY in one year than you might ordinarily earn in five.

We require 100 more men to help us handle our ever increasing volume of business, already amounting to more than $1,000,000 a month. We can double it if we get the right men right away. That's why we will hire men inexperienced in selling and give them the best sales training in this business. We are not a new firm; we have 27 years of success behind us and are now ready to start the most amazing, sensational, price-smashing sales campaign "RIGHT HERE IN CHICAGO." Our advance advertising amounts to more than $100,000 worth of publicity.

LEADS FURNISHED.

Cash in on this great wave of Chicago real estate activity and at the same time know, down in your heart, that you are selling the "best on the market," that you are building a clientele of customers who will be your friends for life. This means a permanent position, a STEADY high income and the best opportunity to rise to an executive position. All our managers are chosen from our sales force. Never before has there been such a great money-making opportunity offered in these columns. It may never come again. We need 100 men. Apply TODAY.

NOTICE.

[Salesmen's big mass meeting Tuesday evening, 8 o'clock, Nov. 10. Every salesman in Chicago invited. Auditorium, 11th fl., Lake View Bldg., 116 S. Michigan-av.

AN OPEN LETTER TO SALESMEN OF CHICAGO.

Here is a message of truth; of facts; of big earnings of men who have recently joined in a campaign of the fastest selling proposition that has ever been put over in Chicago, backed by a multi-millionaire, a man whose name is known from coast to coast, a real sportsman. Proposition offered is one that comes only about every 10 or 15 years. You men now selling Chicago real estate, you fellows who are selling bonds, books, stocks, merchandise, and you traveling men who are out on the road week in and week out, I want you to heed this advice and then put yourself in line to get the full facts. Any average, every day, ordinary salesman can make $500 a week and the good ones can make better than $1,500 a week. Figure this on the year and see what kind of an income you will have. We work 12 months in the year, and in 4½ months last winter we paid out more than $1,000,000 in commission to our salesmen.

YOU SALESMEN!

Get off the dead proposition—you fellows who are selling cheap Florida lots and making small commissions—get off of it. Get off the slow going, hard grind selling field that breaks your heart and leaves you discouraged all the time. Go with the live wire man who spends millions—the man who pays out more money to his sales force than any other man in America. Go with the man who is famous for making his associates and salespeople rich. Go with the man who is a prince to work for. Go with the man who makes you feel that you own the business with him—who has your interest at heart. Make every day the pay day. You can go over the top in this campaign easier and quicker than in any other selling proposition in America. You don't have to take my word for it. Come and investigate. There are at least 1,000 men in Chicago right now who should get up early tomorrow morning and come to my office for a personal conference. Now what do you think of this? Take my advice and take time to find out. If I offered to give you $1,000 cash you probably would be here at my office by daylight tomorrow morning. I will give you more than that—I will give you an opportunity to make $10,000 cash and make it quickly. What do you think of that? See General Manager, Room 1407 Lake View Bldg., 116 S. Michigan-av.

SALESMEN'S BIG MASS MEETING TUESDAY EVENING, 8 O'CLOCK, NOV. 10, AUDITORIUM, 11TH FLR., LAKE VIEW BLDG., 116 S. MICHIGAN-AV. EVERY SALESMAN IN CHICAGO INVITED. MARVELOUS EXHIBIT AND COMPLETE EXPLANATION OF PROGRAM, POLICIES, AND PROPOSITION WILL BE GIVEN AT THIS BIG MASS MEETING.

SALESMEN.

A SALES OPPORTUNITY THAT COMES ONCE IN A BLUE MOON.

In every community there is one best opening for a salesman, and in Chicago it's at Krenn & Dato, Inc.

WHY?

First—KRENN & DATO is financially strong enough to command the best properties that money can buy. (You can't be a successful salesman without having good properties to sell.)

Second—All KRENN & DATO properties are backed by large advertising campaigns. This is co-operation given you to break down sales resistance and to help you make sales.

OUR PROPERTIES.

Devonshire Manor
(formerly known as the Devonshire Golf Course)

This property we are putting on the market today is the cream of all Chicago subdivisions. Salesmen who know Chicago and its real estate values know that only Krenn & Dato, with its great financial resources, could acquire this property, and put it on the market for sale with all improvements. Our other properties are in Highland Park, Calumet District, and North Edgewater.

LOOK AROUND

and see for yourself. No matter where you happen to be you see Krenn & Dato signs and advertisements. This tremendous advertising is only a small part of the co-operation we give our salesmen. Krenn & Dato give you every help and every chance to get ahead and make money in a clean way, which will be a credit to your self respect.

IF YOU'RE WORTH WHILE

Whether you have experience or not, every help and co-operation will be given you. All the resources of this great organization will be at your disposal and the greatest realty experts in the country will aid you to make a success of yourself.

Stop in at our subdivision Sales Offices at 1009 N. State any day or evening of the week and let us show you how we can help you to greater earnings and success.

KRENN & DATO,
Exclusive Agents for Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick Properties,

A GOOD STENOGRAPHIC POSITION PERHAPS JUST THE ONE YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR,

is open to a young woman who has had two to three years' experience. One who values the association of refined co-workers and a good environment in which to work, is the type of young woman desired. She should be neat in appearance and possess a pleasing personality.

The position has good possibilities. However, it is not one of a secretarial nature to start. The right girl could by assuming more than usual interest and responsibility, make it one which would pay more than is paid the average stenographer. $25 to $30 a week to start, depending upon qualifications.

The age of the young woman as indicated in the first paragraph should not exceed 23 or 24 years.

Answers received from applicants who have been, or are at present, associated with advertising agencies, publishing houses, advertising representatives, or kindred lines will be given preference.

Complete information is necessary if you expect your application to receive consideration — address, phone number, age, education, etc.

Address M T 570, Tribune.

GIRLS—

READ HELEN'S LETTER.

From time to time you have probably noticed advertisements for TELEPHONE OPERATORS setting forth the advantages of the work. Maybe you wonder what TELEPHONE OPERATORS, themselves, think of the work. If so you will be interested in the following:

"Imagine my amazement when I got over to the Training School and was treated so royally. I had always had long lectures on venturing into the cruel outside and business world, but it was just like stepping outside of our door and back into it again—home. The instructors were lovely and very sympathetic and considerate. Everything was for our comfort. I was, indeed, very much surprised and after a few days dubious, thinking maybe this would only last during our training period. But when I came into my office I found everything as nice there and the supervisors just as kind as at the training school. I am really surprised yet."

This is just a sample of enthusiasm that could be expressed by over 10,000 young girls.

SALARY,
BONUS,
COMMISSION.

Your opportunity to make money is at hand!

No experience necessary. Leads furnished. If you work consistently you can increase your income more rapidly with us than with any similar organization. A. A. M., who earned only $4,000 a year before coming to work for us, received more than $25,000 last year and is with us less than three years. You can do the same if you are intelligent, willing to work, and over 21 years of age. Many of our highest paid women earned as little as $30 a week before coming to work with us. We are paying them five times as much. Now they own good cars and are enjoying big incomes every week. YOU want the best things of life? Money will buy them, and we offer you the opportunity to earn MORE MONEY in one year than you might ordinarily earn in five.

We require 100 more women to help us handle our ever increasing volume of business; our sales now average over $1,000,000 a month. We can double it if we get the right women right away. That's why we will hire women inexperienced in selling and give them the best sales training in this business. We are not a new firm. We have 27 years of success behind us and are now ready to start the most amazing, sensational price smashing sales campaign "RIGHT HERE IN CHICAGO." Our advance advertising amounts to more than $100,000 worth of publicity.

LEADS FURNISHED.

Cash in on this great wave of Chicago real estate activity and at the same time know, down in your heart, that you are selling the "best on the market," that you are building a clientele of customers who will be your friends for life. This means a permanent position, a STEADY, high income, and the best opportunity to rise to an executive position. All our managers are chosen from our sales force. Never before has there been such a great money making opportunity offered in these columns. It may never come again. We need 100 women. Apply TODAY.

BEGINNERS.
LADIES WHO NEVER SOLD

We have several openings for ladies who hesitate to try selling simply because they think they cannot talk. All it takes to present our proposition is the ability to tell the facts and figures in plain words. Thousands of dollars in advertising help you to make sales. Give us fifteen minutes of your time. You may work either part time or full time. We will show you how you can start out tomorrow and earn $75 next week. No obligation. But see us—now—at once. MR. J. M., Sales Mgr., 360 N. THE BRYSON
One of Chicago's Fine Hotels.
LAKE PARK-AV., NEAR 50TH-ST.

THE BRYSON was formally opened Sept. 17, 1925. It has already created a record in attracting guests of discrimination and refinement.

Many time worn conventions of hotel life have been set aside in favor of hospitality and comfort. The quiet elegance and the unusual details of service make THE BRYSON unique among hotels.

The rooms are spacious and overlook Lake Michigan. Furnishings of quality invite relaxation and rest. The best transportation in Chicago is available. Ten minutes to the loop on Illinois Central express trains. Surface cars and busses nearby.

There is an excellent dining room in the hotel. Club breakfasts are served at moderate prices. Luncheon fifty cents, evening dinner one dollar.

A limited number of single rooms, suites and a few kitchenettes are yet available. The rates are very attractive.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

VACANT—NORTHWEST SIDE.

DEVON AVENUE INVESTMENT. $400 CASH.

Devon-av. [6400 north] is destined to become Chicago's premier northside thoroughfare, the same as 63d-st. [6300 south] is today the best business street on the south side.

Devon-av., 100 feet wide and running from the lake to Cook county's Forest Preserve, will make fortunes for the owners of its frontage. There is just so much of this Devon-av. frontage. The supply is limited.

To clean up an estate I am authorized to sell a limited number of Devon-av. lots at the unbelievably low price of $2,000 each, on terms of $400 cash and the balance to suit, over a period of five years.

In addition I am to sell 2 very choice Devon-av. corners and several 35 foot apartment lots all on the same easy terms and the apartment lots will be sold less than $1,000 each [$200 cash].

The title to all of the above property is held in trust by a large loop bank from whom the buyers will receive their deeds.

This is a real opportunity to pick up a bargain that will make money for you from a very small investment. The supply is most limited and it is a case of first come, first served.

Most people tell of what they could have bought. Here is your chance to act and later show people what you actually did. Later, when you cash in your profits, you will be thankful you answered this advertisement.

Highland Park.

ATTENTION SMALL ESTATE FOR SALE LESS THAN 500 FT. FROM THE LAKE EAST FRONT IMPROVED AND READY TO BUILD ON

Here, at the corner of Sheridan-rd. and Sheridan-rd., less than 500 ft. from the lake, is a tract of about 2 acres of heavily wooded property located on Ravinia's highest table land affording an unobstructed view of Lake Michigan; just 3 blks. to school and 4 blks. to steam and electric express sta.

I have never considered selling this property before and therefore no matter how thoroughly you know the North Shore here is a new offering for you to consider. Property can be subdivided, if you so desire, into 5 large building sites, over 300 ft. deep, available for immediate building with ample allowance for a private playground and tennis court in the rear that would overlook one of Highland Park's finest estates.

Appointments for inspection will be given in the order that replies are received. Apply Box 115, Glencoe, Ill.

Builders, Attention $50 PER FOOT WATER, SEWER, SIDEWALK ALREADY IN YOU CAN BUILD HERE IMMEDIATELY.

Over 20 new homes are completed or now under construction in this most active district of Highland Park; when transportation, schools and shopping district is handy, development always follows; will make second mtge. proposition if desired. Address E O 587, Tribune.

LOUISIANA—1,000 ACRES. ARKANSAS—1,000 ACRES.

SELL OR EXCHANGE FOR DESIRABLE APARTMENT HOUSE OR IMPROVED PROPERTY.

I have a magnificent plantation located in the Bayou Lafourche section or the garden spot of Southern Louisiana.

The estate comprises some thirty odd houses, boarding house, blacksmith shop, overseer and assistant overseer's residence and colonial home of owner, all in excellent repair and condition.

Soil is rich alluvial bottom, high in nitrogen, phosphates, and potash, and will grow crops in abundance without the use of fertilizers.

Working equipment comprises: Fifty odd head of young Missouri mules, four new tractors, cultivators, harrows, right and left hand single plows, double and four mule plows, wagons, air compressors, menge pumps, ten horse power and one hundred horse power steam outfits, No. 10 Oliver cultivator for tractor with lister attachments and everything necessary on a place of this kind. Has a stock of Berkshire hogs, White Leghorns, Black Minorca, Rhode Island Reds, Creole chickens, Barred and White Rocks, Canadian geese, Black African geese, Egyptian geese, mallard and English call ducks, turkeys and guineas, and thoroughbred black Percheron stallion 4 years old. Four saddle horses, Kentucky thoroughbreds, five gaited, from 4 to 5 years old, for use of the owner and overseers, and twenty-eight foot hunting yacht.

There is now about 8,000 bushels of corn in the crib and hay to feed through 1926. This propeyt ris in a high state of cultivation and fronts on Bayou Lafourche and gravel highway to New Orleans. Has water, rail and gravel road facilities. Lands have already been plowed and prepared for planting two carloads [Nebraskan seed Red Triumph potatoes] in the early part of February, and D-74 sugar cane has already been planted to the extent of 200 acres. A spot of paradise with everything that the mind can conceive of, or the heart yearn for, at your fingertips and disposal. Privately owned narrow gauge railroad covers the property to facilitate handling of crops, with switch tracks to main line.

The energetic individual can guarantee himself a return of $35,000 to $50,000 per year. Labor conditions are ideal, all quarters filled up, and about 150 hands on the place.

I live in New Orleans and am unable to give the required time to my farming interests. I will sell or lease this property, together with my Arkansas holdings, to responsible person, or concern, or accept in payment apartment house property of desirable nature. The Arkansas property likewise comprises a thousand acres, is suitable for cotton, corn, alfalfa and truck crops.

Why Pay $1,000 Per Acre For a Michigan Vineyard?

Men always have had vineyards and always will have them, often paying as high as $1,000 per acre for a vineyard 20 years old. Michigan excels in her vineyards and Lawton is one of the world's greatest grape markets. The average yield is 5 tons per acre and the average price $75 per ton; $375 per acre year after year. Sickness now compels the sacrifice of one of Lawton's finest vineyards at a price per acre less than the value of one year's crop. For particulars address C C Otis, Plainwell, Mich.

FACTORY DISTRIBUTORS.

A well rated, long established Illinois manufacturing corporation is organizing ten states for the distribution of its product. State managers of proven organizing and sales ability will be appointed as rapidly as selected. The State of Illinois in process of organization for less than one month, with only one county partially organized, is already showing the State Managers at the rate of $700 net monthly profits. The potential market in the U. S. for our product, according to reliable survey, is 45,000,000 units annually. The ten states now being allotted will produce for each State Manager an annual net income from $7,500 upward, depending on ability. To qualify applicants must finance themselves for sixty days. JORDAN

STEARNS-KNIGHT VERY LATE 1924 7 PASS SEDAN, 6 CYL. Cost over $3,500 just a year ago and driven short distance. Appearance and performance most excellent. Interior like new. Original finish of Brewster green like new, natural wood wheels. Has 5 new tires, wind shield spotlight, motometer and bars, bumper, 2 squeegees, mirror, etc. Cheap at $1,700.

WILLY KNIGHT 1924 COUPE SEDAN. Will appeal to the lover of the "Knight" engine. Coach, mechanical, and general details considerably above the average. Has trunk, 2 bumpers, motometer and bars, windshield spotlight; in fact, everything to make it complete. Suggest early inspection, because it will not remain here long at this figure. For this clearance, $850.

JORDAN '22 TOURING, WITH GLASS INCLOSURES. Reconditioned and refinished in Jordan's "Blue Devil Blue," bright parts renickeled. Not a dent or mar on body or fenders. Upholstery like new. Has 5 excellent tires, tire cover, 2 bumpers, step plates, squeegee, motometer, and bars, etc. Lowest price this body style Jordan, similarly equipped, ever quoted. $550.

JEWETT 1923 TOURING. Beautifully refinished in Cobalt Blue, with light cream striping; disc wheels to match; top upholstery, and general details excellent; mechanically it is exceptionally fine; has 2 bumpers, spotlight, automatic windshield cleaner, mirror, spare tire. Try to duplicate it at $350.

MOON TOURING WITH $175 STEEL-GLASS ENCLOSURES. A value the like of which is seldom offered the public. Newly painted in "Blue Devil Blue," nickeled radiator shell, disc wheels, Spanish leather upholstery, 5 excellent tires, all other equipment to make it complete. Mechanically very fine, $250 below its true value. $400.

STUTZ

SECURITY!

If you were buying a diamond, would you buy it from just anybody? Emphatically, no! You would go to a reputable jeweler and rely on his integrity to sell you a real value.

If you want to buy a high grade used car, with the same feeling of confidence—come to the Stutz Chicago Factory Branch, Inc. Our reputation for honorable dealing is vouched for by our ever increasing list of satisfied customers.

May we not supply you with a list of satisfied owners of used cars purchased from us? We invite the fullest investigation of our business methods.

Our used cars are famous for their excellence. Every car is put through our shop and placed in perfect mechanical and coach condition before they are offered for sale. No detail is overlooked. Every car is attractively finished and renovated so that the closest examination could not distinguish it from new.

At the recent Chicago Used Car Show held at the Coliseum, we sold more high grade automobiles than any other exhibitor. This is an evidence of the grade, character, and favorable price of our offerings. We now have on display at our wareroom a superior line of used cars to that shown at the Coliseum.

A Stutz gives to its owner a justifiable pride that comes with the knowledge that it is dependable, smart appearing, powerful, fast — real quality without compromise. Beauty that is more than "skin-deep" — a car of lasting satisfaction.

We have several very late models that can be bought at prices far below their original cost, simply because the first depreciation is least in actual wear and greatest in dollars. Many wise buyers have established a rule never to buy an absolutely new car, but prudently wait for these offerings.

Come in. Write or phone for particulars.

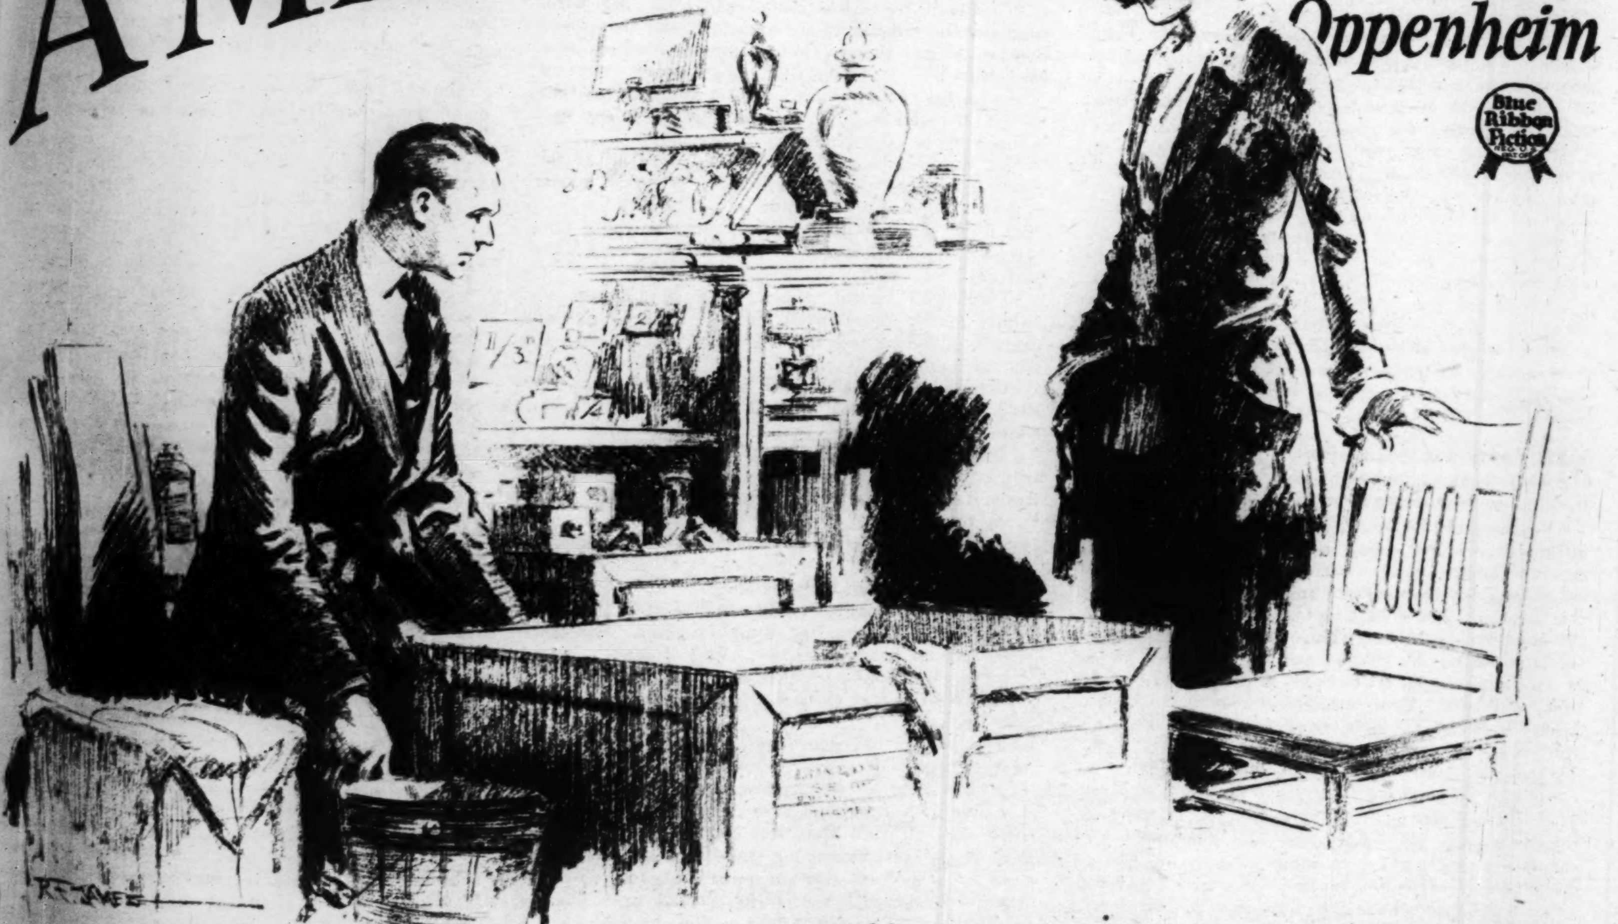
A Minor Hero

by E. Phillips Oppenheim



"I have come to have a few words with you. May I sit down?"

A Fast-Moving Tale Wherein Cupid Employs a Trade War, an Epic of Cricket, a Terrible Blunder, and an Heroic Sacrifice to Unite Two Loving Hearts

GRANFER CROCOMBE leaned upon his stick and gazed disapprovingly into the small shop window of Melhampton's latest enterprise. Owen Tonkin, the proprietor, a good looking but somewhat depressed youth, addressed him from the entrance.

"Nothing I can do for you today, Mr. Crocombe?"

The loiterer shook his head.

"Us don't hold with this sort of thing," he commented, waving his gnarled brown hand toward the shop window.

"What sort of thing?" the young man demanded.

"I do reckon that what I says is plain enough," Granfer Crocombe declared. "All these bits of cardboard with marked down prices don't go with us. Us don't like the cost of everything thrust down our throat. One and sixpence halfpenny!—two and fourpence halfpenny!—ninepence halfpenny! Why, young man, it's like a draper's shop or the stores—places that ain't fit for nobbut women folk."

Owen Tonkin smiled pleasantly.

"I don't see much wrong with the stores myself," he said, "and as for those labels, there's a reason for them. My prices are just a little lower than any one else's. That's the way I look to get business."

"Don't you reckon upon it, me lad," the other enjoined earnestly, "don't you reckon upon it. There's mostly trickiness about goods what has to have big black labels for to tell us their prices. Us is satisfied with Richard Sams and his physics—a good hearted sort of man and one much respected, although he do sit in the Swan evenings, which is a house I never crossed."

"I don't wish any harm to Mr. Sams," the young man declared. "It seemed to me, however, that in this place there was room for both of us, and as to marking my goods in plain figures, Mr. Crocombe—well, after all, there's nothing wrong about that, is there? I want people to know I am willing to sell a little cheaper than any one else."

"That's as may be," Granfer Crocombe grunted unbelievingly.

"Let me prove it. Now you use Harrison's balsam, I know, for the rheumatism in your knee."

"Powerful good stuff it be, too!"

"You pay three and threepence a bottle for it at Mr. Sams's, and there it is in the window—the same, you see—at two and elevenpence halfpenny."

Granfer Crocombe was distinctly shaken.

"I doan't hold with this cutting of prices," he insisted, "but thruppence halfpenny is thruppence halfpenny these days."

"It is the price," the young chemist reminded him cunningly, "of a pint of beer. Let me wrap a bottle up for you. You can pay me for it any time. I shall be proud to have your name upon my books."

Granfer Crocombe produced a greasy and well worn leather purse, and slowly counted out the money.

"Was you at college, young man?" he asked. "You do speak powerful eddicated like."

"I was at a very good school," the other replied. "You wish to pay for the balsam, then, sir?"

"Us isn't folks for running into debt hereabouts," Mr. Crocombe confided. "You'll make very few bad debts here, young man, unless you have truck with the dissenters and gypsies and such like. I wish 'e good-evening. How I'll be looking Richard Sams in the face, I don't rightly know, but thruppence halfpenny is thruppence halfpenny these days."

"Anything else you're wanting at any time will be at the same scale of reductions," the young man declared, as he handed over his neatly tied up parcel.

"I'm not one for physic as a rule," his customer confided, "but I'll be wanting a new toothbrush come Christmas, and I'll give 'e a thought, young man. It's a cruel business for Richard Sams, though, this price cutting!"

"Mr. Sams has had thirty years of it all his own way," Owen Tonkin remarked with a smile. "He ought to have been able to put a bit by."

Granfer Crocombe shook his head doubtfully.

"He be a poor saver, be Richard," he remarked. "They be men who do touch a bit of money, them who sits at the Swan come evenings, but it mostly melts away. I should doubt his being a warm man, though he has sold us physic for thirty-one years come Michaelmas. His darter have cost him something, too."

The young man's interest was suddenly almost intense.

"Miss Sams is a very beautiful young lady," he said reverently.

"It doan't take a young man from Lunnon to find that out," Granfer Crocombe declared. "There bean't one of the young chaps round here that she couldn't have if she wur willing. They do all complain of her, though, that she be difficult. That, in my mind, is the fault of too much schooling. If Richard Sams did sit in the Melhampton Arms evenings 'stead of the Swan, I'd have give him my views about too much eddication, and maybe she'd have been a married woman and him a grandfather before now. Here she do come a-walking down the street. Now, I ask you, young man, will you see a sight like that on any Lunnon street? It's a shame that she should be a maid."

Owen Tonkin joined his customer in the doorway, the latter making spasmodic efforts to conceal the fact that he was carrying a parcel. He managed to get his hand underneath his coat, but he fancied that there was a shade of reproach in the girl's eyes as she glanced at him.

"Good-morning, Granfer Crocombe," she greeted him pleasantly.

"Good-morning, Miss Mary," he replied. "You're acquainted, maybe, with Mr. Tonkin."

THE smile left the girl's face. She looked the young man in the eyes.

"I don't think we have met," she said. "How do you do."

He held out his hand which, after a moment's hesitation, she accepted.

"I don't feel very friendly toward you, Mr. Tonkin," she confessed frankly. "Dad complains that you are taking a great deal of his trade away."

"I'm very sorry," the young man stammered. "There ought to be room for both of us."

"There doesn't appear to be," she replied coldly, glancing into the shop window. "I suppose," she went on, with a little wave of her hand, "this is the sort of thing that attracts custom nowadays. We shall have the stores setting up a branch here before long."

"Not in my lifetime," Granfer Crocombe declared, grasping his stick tightly. "Us'd smash the windows in."

"But surely," Owen Tonkin ventured, "it is better for every one to buy at the lowest prices. They have more money to spend on other things."

"I bean't an argifier," Granfer Crocombe asserted, "and I've naught to say to you, young man, but this: us in Melhampton loikes things our own ways and we doan't want to have any truck with newfangled ideas."

"Then, if you had a chance of saving a pint of beer by buying a bottle of medicine a little cheaper——"

"I'm not an argifier," Granfer Crocombe interrupted hastily. "If so be that you're willing, Miss Mary, I'd be glad of your company as far as the Melhampton Arms. A cruel thing it is that your father he do be so fond of that Swan. Poor liquor and poor company, and that you can tell him from I."

She turned to walk down the street with him. Her nod to the young man was, to say the least of it, perfunctory. Nevertheless, his eyes followed her with admiration. She was slim and tall. She walked with the freedom of the country and the grace of the town. Her eyes were of a dark shade of blue, and her complexion, save for a slight duskiness, which many thought an improvement, was typically Devonian. The young man turned back to his shop with a little groan.

"Sits and soaks all day and then complains because I'm spoiling his business!" he muttered.

There were times when Mr. Tidd, most genial of bank managers, could be very official indeed. The first part of his conversation with Mr. Sams, conducted in his bank parlor a few mornings later, was in this strain.

"So you understand, Mr. Sams," he wound up, looking across the table at his disturbed client, "that this is the last addition to your overdraft which I shall recommend or even put forward to the head office. That is clearly understood between us, I hope."

"I reckon so," the other admitted, a little sulkily, preparing to take his leave.

Mr. Tidd waved him back to his place.

"A word or two with you now as a friend, if you please, Mr. Sams," he proposed.

The chemist resumed his seat.

"You are getting behind in your business," Mr. Tidd began. "You have told me officially that it is owing to the competition of this new man, Tonkin."

"Selling things at near upon cost price," Mr. Sams exclaimed angrily.

"Stop!" the other enjoined. "Listen to me for a moment. Please do not be offended; it is for your good. I have studied your account, and I do not consider that it is Mr. Tonkin's competition which accounts for your position. Your receipts are nearly as large as ever they were. On the other hand, you draw out almost double as much. It is not my business as a bank manager to ask you how you spend your money; as a friend, Mr. Sams, as a fellow townsman, I am going to point out to you, at the risk of giving offense, that you draw out a great deal more in proportion than any one else in this town for personal and domestic expenditure."

MR. SAMS was thunderstruck. The worst of it was that this being one of his sober moments, he knew that he was listening to the truth.

"You need not be afraid," Mr. Tidd continued, "that information which comes before me in my official capacity would ever be spoken of outside this office, but as you pay by cheque, I am in a position to know that you have lost something like four hundred pounds this year by horse racing alone. This is in addition to the large weekly sums which you disburse, presumably in entertaining your friends and in those little expeditions to Exeter. Your business will not stand it, Mr. Sams. It is not Tonkin's competition which is hitting you; it is your own extravagance."

"Here! I say!" Richard Sams began.

"If you take offense, you are a foolish man," Mr. Tidd assured him gently. "I wish to be your friend. I have a great admiration for your daughter, and I should not feel that I were doing my duty if I did not speak plainly. It is not too late. You have a pleasant home, a daughter who is one of the most popular young women in the neighborhood, and a good business. Don't fritter them all away. Get a grip on yourself. Cut out the Swan in the afternoons and business hours. Come to the bowling club oftener and cricket grounds in the evenings, and treat the hotel smokeroom as it should be treated—as a place for occasional relaxation. You'll pull yourself together in no time, Mr. Sams. Try it."

Richard Sams rose to his feet.

"You've spoken plain words, Mr. Tidd," he observed gloomily.

"They are for your good," the bank manager concluded kindly. "Think them over."

It was striking one o'clock when Mr. Sams left the bank. If he had followed his usual custom he would have returned home to the midday meal. His interview with Mr. Tidd, however, had upset him. He found his condition of mind an excellent excuse for crossing the road and establishing himself in the bar parlor of the Swan. It was half past two before he left it, and he was not altogether clear as to whether he had partaken of his dinner or not. He walked slowly and with exaggerated solemnity up the steep hill until he reached the shop of his rival. Here he paused and, gripping the angle of the window for support, studied the wares displayed.

Even to his fuddled senses the interior of the shop into which he glanced and the arrangement of the drugs, patent medicines, and fancy articles were amazingly neat and well ordered. He thought of his own dark, untidy shop, in which everything was out of place, his stock of drugs uncatalogued and uncounted, his lack of novelties, the coating of dust in odd corners, his mangy collection of toilet articles, and, curiously enough, in those few moments he realized the truth; curiously enough, too, the truth brought with it no sense of shame, no better resolutions, nothing but a sense of positive anger amounting almost to hatred against this young man who, as he put it to himself pathetically, was driving him out of his native town. A dimly conceived purpose of ringing the shop bell—it was early closing day and the door was locked—and telling this intruder exactly what he thought of him, was forming itself in his confused brain. Just then the door was opened from inside and Tonkin, dressed in flannels and carrying a cricket bag, appeared.

"Mr. Sams, isn't it?" the latter exclaimed as soon as he had got over his first surprise. "Were you looking for me? Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Nothing at all, young man," was the slowly spoken response—"nothing at all. What are you doing with that bag?"

"It's early closing day," was the somewhat surprised answer. "I'm going to the cricket ground."

"Early closing day—of course it's early closing day! Did you think I didn't know that?" Mr. Sams rejoined. "But what are you doing in that rig-out? I never heard of a chemist playing cricket."

Tonkin laughed cheerfully. He had realised by this time the other's condition.

"Well, I'm one of the exceptions," he declared. "I've played quite a great deal in my time. Are you coming up to the ground?"

"You're not playing against Barnstaple?"

"I am."

"What—the great match — Melhampton against Barnstaple? Nonsense! You can't be playing. I should have heard of it. The team's up in the Swan."

"They asked me last night at the nets," Tonkin assured his questioner. "I—they found out I've played a bit."

"I'll come up to the ground with you," Mr. Sams announced. "I'd like to see a chemist playing cricket. Besides, Mary's there. Do you know my daughter—Miss Mary?"

"I met her this morning," Tonkin admitted, as they moved off together. "If you will allow me to say so, I thought her a very charming young lady."

"No business to say such a thing," her father declared, frowning, "no business at all. What's it matter to you whether she's charming or not?"

"I didn't mean to take a liberty, sir," the young man apologized good naturedly. "We'll have to hurry along or I shall be late."

"I can walk as fast as you," was the truculent rejoinder, as Mr. Sams saved himself with an elaborate effort from falling over the curbstone—"walk as fast as you, or run, either."

"Come along, then," Tonkin urged him. "Some day, when we've more time, I'd like to have a talk to you about business."

"On the subject o' business," Mr. Sams announced, trying to light the burned out cigar which he had suddenly discovered in his fingers, "I have a few words to say to you."

"Perhaps you'd allow me to call," Tonkin suggested hopefully.

Mr. Sams was not to be caught.

"I might and again I might not," he said cautiously. "I must refer that matter to my daughter. And there she is! You must excuse me. And—I say!"

"Yes, sir," Tonkin replied, lingering for a moment.

"You're the first chemist I ever knew who tried to play cricket."

The young man, ignoring his companion's speech, cast one glance over his shoulder at the very fascinating apparition which suddenly bore down upon them. In her blue linen frock, hat with pink roses, and a dainty little parasol, Miss Mary was certainly a most attractive sight. The welcoming smile died away from her face at once, however, as she realized her father's condition. She turned her back deliberately upon Tonkin, and led him away to a retired part of the field.

COUNTY cricket was unknown in Melhampton, and a test match aroused only a limited sense of interest, as of some happening outside the direct ken of the neighborhood. Cricket to them meant the two annual matches between Melhampton and Barnstaple, and the doings of a two hundred miles distant Hobbs were as nothing compared to the never to be forgotten century which young George Melhampton had once scored in the yearly contest. But, alas, on this occasion there was no George Melhampton, nor did Melhampton possess a bowler to compare with Lampon, the Barnstaple lawyer's son, who had bowled in the varsity match and been chosen for the Gentlemen.

"Bit of a picnic for Barnstaple, this time, I'm afraid," the Melhampton captain, George Foulds, Harry Foulds' cousin, remarked, as the second ball of the match sent young Baker's stumps flying. "You know you're next, Tonkin?"

The young man nodded. He was engaged at the moment in tightening the strap of his pad.

"I'll do my best," he promised. "That last ball was pretty hot stuff."

He walked across the ground amidst a little buzz of interested murmurs. Sams clutched at his daughter's arm.

"Is that young Tonkin, Mary?" he demanded. "My eyesight—I seem wobbly this afternoon——"

"It is young Tonkin," she interrupted coldly. "Going in first wicket down, too."

"That's done it," Sams declared, in sudden and overmastering dejection. "Selling everything twenty per cent cheaper, everything finicky and shiny about his shop, now calling himself a cricketer. We're ruined, Mary."

Afterward, Mary, who was really a nice girl, could never understand what possessed her. The young man, already taking his place at the wicket, looked so self-assured, so thoroughly master of the situation, that a sense of helplessness turned to anger and from anger to malice. They were seated, apart from the rest of the spectators, a few yards wide of the white board and the fast bowler was bowling from their end. Just as he commenced his run she rose to her feet, and with the utmost deliberation walked across the screen. Lampon, with his thirty yard run, came to the crease like a tornado. Tonkin, who had taken up his position with confidence, suddenly hesitated; he half drew back, then attempted to shape at the ball—a second too late. His off stump flew into the air and there was a murmur of dismay from the crowd. The umpire looked over his shoulder and understood at once the cause of Tonkin's hesitation. Tonkin himself seemed about to make some protest. Then he recognized the blue linen frock and the waving parasol and, with a little shrug of the shoulders, turned towards the pavilion. There was nothing for him to do but to accept his ignominy. There was scarcely a soul at the far end of the field, to which Mary had, of design, conducted her parent, and probably not half a dozen people on the ground had noticed her movement.

. . . .

There were glum faces in the pavilion after the tea interval. Mr. Haselton came up to hear the whole dire story from George Foulds.

"Out for eighteen, Mr. Haselton, the lot on us. And they made a hundred and forty-six. There's a good three hours more cricket, and if us chaps play like we did the first innings we'll be out in half an hour."

"It seems scarcely fair," Mr. Haselton said consolingly, "to bring a bowler of Lampon's class down here."

"We'd do the same if we'd the chance," Foulds confessed.

The bell rang. The Barnstaple fieldsmen strolled out on to the ground. Owen Tonkin took his courage into his hands.

"I wonder if I might suggest something," he said, approaching Foulds.

"Of course. Ask away."

"Let me go in first with Baker."

THE captain stared. It was true that Tonkin had redeemed himself to some extent in the field and, being put on to bowl as a last resort, had actually taken three wickets at a moderate cost, but to those who had not noticed the incident of the screen, concerning which he had made no complaint, his debut at the wickets had certainly been ignominious. Nevertheless, it was a day of desperate chances, and so, somewhat to the surprise of the spectators, young Tom Baker, who was noted as a sticker, was accompanied to the wicket by Tonkin.

It was the latter who received the first ball and Lampon who bowled it. This time Tonkin had the air of a man who was taking no chances. He looked around him with the utmost care and took guard grimly. The little company round the ground almost held their breaths for that first ball—it seemed indeed almost an anti-climax when it was played, confidently and without effort but safely along the ground to long-on. They studied the batsman more closely. A few who understood became hopeful; those who did not joined in the rapturous applause when they saw the next one driven out of the ground for six. The following ball was watched feverishly; its predecessor might have been the result of a lucky swipe. The manner in which Owen Tonkin dealt with it, however, established forever in Melhampton his reputation as a batsman. Pitched just a trifle too far, he stepped forward like lightning and hit it out of the ground to square leg. There was scarcely a man, woman, or child upon the field, except Mary Sams, who did not stand up to clap.

After half a dozen overs, Lampon retired, knocked completely off his length and suffering from the humiliating experience of having been hit to every angle of the field by a village batsman. From anticipations of a crushing defeat the hopes of the townspeople passed to the almost unimaginable—a possible victory! True, Tom Baker's middle stump had been sent flying in the fast bowler's third over, and two other batsmen had subsequently joined him in the pavilion, but the score on the board was already eighty, of which Tonkin's contribution was sixty-four. Lampon, put on again and starting with an excellent length, was treated with a certain amount of respect by Tonkin, but with the other bowling he indulged in an orgy of hurricane hitting, such as had never before been seen on the ground. The eighth wicket fell when his score stood at ninety-six.

The interest had become so intense when Lampon started his over that people were standing up in every direction and the silence was almost breathless. The first ball, almost a wide, Tonkin left severely alone, never even moving from his place; the second, a perfect half volley, he drove clean over the pavilion, beyond the six boundary mark. The spectators gave way to a sort of frenzy. They stood up in all corners of the field, shouting and whistling and clapping. Twice Tonkin had to touch his cap before the game could proceed. Then he continued to deal with the bowling with grim determination, watching the score and glancing occasionally at the sun, hitting at everything which might possibly produce a boundary, striving by every means in his power to give his side a chance of victory.

Presently George Foulds descended from the pavilion and hestitated by the gate. It seemed wicked to end the greatest treat the cricketing public of Melhampton had ever enjoyed, but Tonkin waved his bat at once. At the end of the over, Melhampton declared their innings, Barnstaple, having an hour to bat and eighty-six runs to make to avoid defeat. It was a triumph all the greater because so utterly unexpected.

The return of Owen Tonkin to the pavilion was marked by scenes of enthusiasm such as had never been witnessed on the ground before. The spectators positively mobbed him during the last few yards, and it became absolutely impossible for him to answer the fire of questions or respond to the many congratulations he was offered. When at last he escaped he caught sight of Mary Sams, waiting by the steps of the dressing room. Instinctively he paused. She looked at him with a little flush on her face.

"I think I'd like to say I'm sorry, please," she murmured under her breath.

He had only time to stammer some incoherent words before she was gone. The incident, however, set its seal upon his afternoon's happiness.

Foulds and Tonkin left the pavilion together after the shortest possible interval.

"One of my suggestions came off," the latter observed. "I wonder whether you would care to consider another."

"Tonkin," was the cordial reply, "I'd stand on my head if you told me to."

"They're a good batting side, and in the ordinary way five or six wickets is as much as we can hope for by seven-thirty. I can keep the runs down later if necessary. To start with, will you let me try a little theory of my own and place my own field?"

"Well, why not?" was his hearty response. "Take the ball, my lad, and do what you will with us. Young Tom Baker will bowl from the other."

Tonkin's setting of the field was sufficiently puzzling. There were three men in the neighborhood of short leg, a deep square leg, an extra slip, and scarcely a man on the off side. The first two batsmen gazed at the field in amazement, especially as Owen Tonkin's essay at bowling in the first innings had been medium pace, good length balls without a great deal of swerve; and, although good enough stuff, scarcely remarkable.

This time he approached the crease with hardly any run at all, tossed the ball high, apparently with so simple and easy an action that the two outfielders braced themselves for an effort. The batsman squared his shoulders, stepped forward, and swiped the air. The ball, which pitched about a foot and a half on the leg side, broke nearly wide of the wicket on the off. The batsman went out and patted the crease, returning to his place with a marked diminution of confidence. Again the little toss into the air, seemingly much farther up than it really was; another terrific swipe to leg, and the ball fell into the long slip's hands amidst a roar of applause. The batsman paused to speak to his successor.

"He's breaking 'em two feet and a half," he declared. "Get in front of your wicket and poke at 'em for a bit."

It was perhaps good advice, but like his predecessor, the newcomer was deceived. He went out to hit what seemed as though it must be a full toss, realized that he couldn't reach it, scurried back, and found his stumps down, while he was still a yard out of his place. At ten minutes to seven the last Barnstaple wicket was down for thirty-nine. Melhampton had won by thirty-eight runs, and Tonkin had added to his batting triumphs by taking seven wickets for fifteen.

TRADE competition in Melhampton was a thing almost unknown. No venturesome person, for instance, had ever dared to attack the supremacy of Meeke's drapery store. In ironmongery, Tom Baker remained supreme. There was a second butcher, it is true, but nothing in the shape of competition existed between the two. Mr. Scroggins supplied the gentry; Mr. Podmore the poorer folk and many of the farmers around. The establishment of Tonkin's Chemist Stores within a few yards of Mr. Sams' shop was the first real example of a trade fight which Melhampton had ever known. Selling for the most part standardized goods, both firms appealed to the same class of customer. Probably young Tonkin would soon have dropped behind if his great exploit on the cricket field had not brought him a clientele and patronage which his lower prices could never have done. As it was, however, the struggle, commenced in a half hearted way, soon became a real one. Sams, incited thereto by his daughter, who was now helping him in the shop, made the effort of his life. For days he forbore to cross the threshold of the Swan and was to be found hour after hour behind his counter. There were lapses, but only temporary ones, and they became rarer after one occasion upon which Mary Sams had braved the little company in the Swan bar parlor and boldly fetched her father out to attend to an important customer.

The tranquillity, half stolid, half dignified, of the bar parlor at the Melhampton Arms was, for the first time since the night of the cricket match, disturbed. There was a buzz of eager conversation. Mr. Scroggins, arriving late from an outlying farm and demanding the news, was assailed by statements from every side.

"It's John Craske, the postman's child, poisoned by Owen Tonkin and like to die!"

"It sure is an awful death. They do say the young man's carrying on like a lunatic."

"Him what was reckoned to be so careful, too!"

Mr. Scroggins looked around him, bewildered. Tom Baker rapped with his knuckles upon the table to obtain a hearing.

"'Tis a simple happening, Mr. Scroggins," he explained, "but a rare unfortunate one. It seems that one of the Craske children was sent to Owen Tonkin's store for some sort of a teething powder for that two year old baby of theirs. What he brought back is not known for sure, but poison of some sort it was, and it's most certain the child will die."

Mr. Scroggins, who had been one of Owen Tonkin's warm supporters, gave a little exclamation of dismay as he sank into a chair.

"Well, that do sound terrible," he admitted.

"The young man seems to have done all he could to make up for his mistake," Baker continued. "The doctor was away, so they sent for him, and he's been with the child for hours, but the last report we heard was that it was nigh all over."

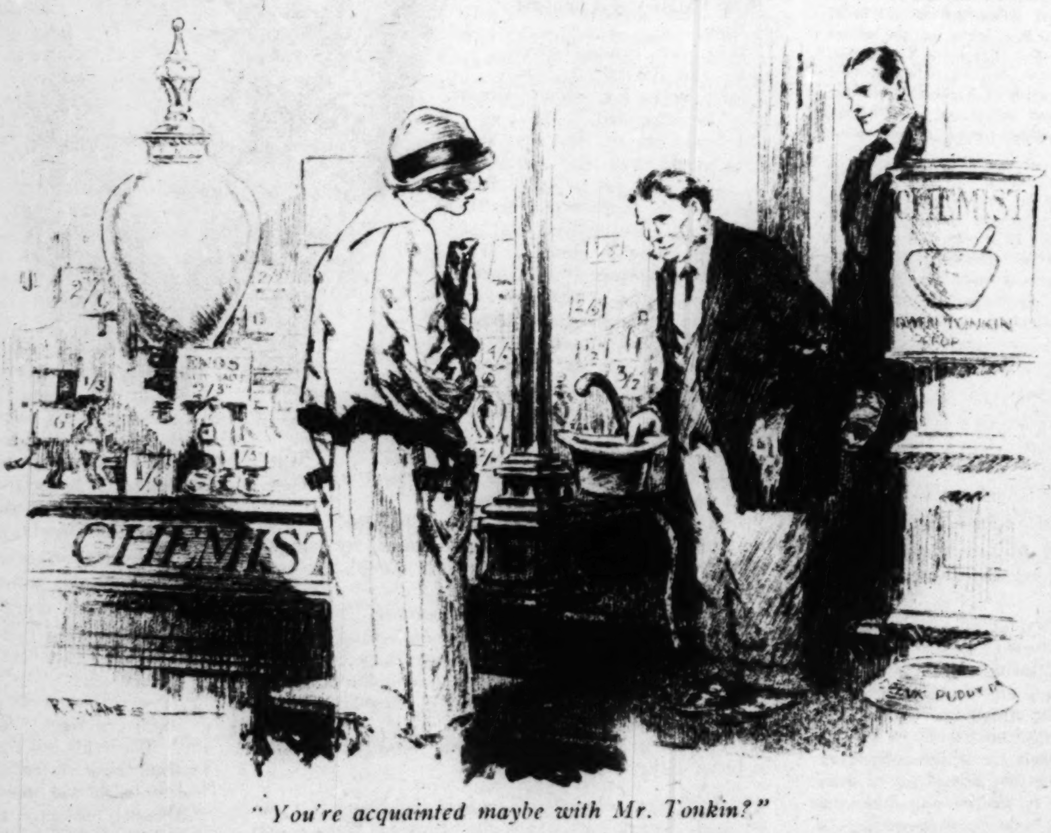
"The doctor's car passed me just as I drove into the town," Mr. Scroggins declared.

"There should be more news then in a while," the ironmonger reflected.

"Even if they manage to save the child's life," he said, "I am afraid it's all up with poor Tonkin."

There was a little murmur of sympathy.

"Us has to be careful where us sends for physic," Mr. Scroggins admitted. "It doan't do for chemists and them as handles dangerous stuff to be careless."



"You're acquainted maybe with Mr. Tonkin?"

"They say the young man's been kind of absent-like lately," Tom Baker observed. "There's no doubt but that he's had a pretty hard struggle what with old man Sams turning sober and his daughter there in the shop to look after him."

"Darter's away for a few days," Granfer Crocombe confided. "Us guessed that when us seed the old man coming out of the Swan. She's most got him broke from that."

Word came from John Craske's presently that the child was alive but still dangerously ill. With the aid of a strong emetic, Owen Tonkin had succeeded in dispersing the poison before the doctor arrived, and the child was fighting now for life.

This was the last bulletin of the night, and the company presently broke up.

* * *

OWEN TONKIN, notwithstanding the absence of customers, was standing behind the counter of his shop on the following morning when Police Constable Chopping, redder of face and more portentous of presence than ever, entered.

"Morning, Mr. Tonkin," he greeted him.

"Good morning, Constable."

"A bad business, this!"

"A very unfortunate one!"

"Mistakes is mistakes," the constable continued, "but when they cost a person his life they becomes in the eyes of the law a misdemeanor."

"Are you going to arrest me?" Owen Tonkin demanded.

"Not at the moment," was the cautious reply. "My instructions are to keep my eye upon you. If so be that the child should die—well, summat might happen."

"I understand," the young man observed. "Unless your duty necessitates it, do you mind not staying any longer. You see, the people are gathering outside to see you march me to the police station."

"That same will be an unwelcome task, Mr. Tonkin, if so be that at any time it should happen," P. C. Chopping declared, as he took his dignified departure.

The day dragged on, a weary succession of hours, during which scarcely a single customer crossed the threshold of the little shop. Toward evening came better news of the child, and on the following morning it was pronounced out of danger.

The end of the week drew near, and Owen Tonkin realized that he was fighting a losing battle. There was a cheery nod of sympathy for him in the street, but still an entire absence of customers. Upon the sixth day he commenced to pack up. He was on his knees upon the floor, filling a case with sawdust, when the door was pushed open. He looked around. It was Mary Sams who had descended the single step and was standing within a few feet of him. He gazed at her, absolutely helpless. He forgot to rise to his feet, forgot to move his hands from the sawdust.

"Miss Mary!" he gasped.

"I have come to have a few words with you," she announced. "May I sit down?"

Without waiting for an invitation, she seated herself upon a stool. Owen Tonkin rose slowly to his feet. He suddenly remembered he had not shaved for two days, that he had flung his clothes on without thought. Perhaps that accounted for the pity which certainly softened her face and shone out of her eyes.

"Mr. Tonkin," she said, "I have just discovered the truth."

He was proof against further shocks. He simply listened.

"My father is very ill," she went on. "As you may have heard, he has been drinking ever since. They fetched me home to look after him, and last night he told me the truth. It was to him the child came—not to your shop at all. Father had been in the Swan all the afternoon, and he admits that even now he doesn't remember out of which bottle he took the powder. It was my father who made this terrible mistake, Mr. Tonkin, and not you. As a matter of fact, you saved the child's life."

Like all young men of a certain type convicted of an heroic action, Owen Tonkin looked for a few seconds a perfect fool.

"It's too late now to make a fuss about it," he said at last. "I knew that your father had had too much drink that afternoon, and when it got about that it was from me the messenger had received the powder, I thought I'd better let it go at that. If either of us had to make a fresh start, it was easier for me, as the younger man."

There was a dangerous mistiness in her eyes, and for a moment or two she avoided looking at him.

"What are you doing there?" she asked.

"Packing."

"Then you had better unpack."

HE shook his head.

"Not a customer has passed through these doors for three days," he confided bitterly. "Some of them might have trusted me just a little. Even if I had really made the mistake, the doctor is telling every one that I saved the child's life."

"They'll be sorry enough," she assured him, "when they know the truth."

"Who's going to tell them?" he demanded.

"I am," she answered simply. "In fact, I have begun already. I called in at the Melhampton Arms on my way down. I was going to tell Granfer Crocombe and let him spread it about, but there was quite a crowd of them there, so I told them all."

"You told them?" he gasped.

She nodded.

"My father wished it," she said. "It is he who is going to retire, Mr. Tonkin, and not you. I have come to tell you this. I have come to thank you for your wonderful silence."

She gave him her hand. Some of her confidence seemed to be slipping away as she realized the atmosphere of passion by which she was surrounded.

"Father wants to give up," she explained rapidly. "I suppose his stock and good will and everything is worth something. We wondered—I wondered whether you would take the business over with yours and allow him a trifle so long as he lives. It ought to pay very well indeed," she went on. "Father's been extravagant, and he's lost a lot of money betting on horses, but he doesn't owe very much and I have enough to pay that."

"It all sounds like a dream!" he said, drawing a little closer.

"You agree?"

"I——"

There was a moment's silence. She slipped from the stool into his arms. Owen Tonkin walked reverently in paradise.

"What I do say, and all you'm folk will agree with me, is that it do be a right proper and sensible ending to a troublesome affair," Granfer Crocombe pronounced that night in the bar parlor of the Melhampton Arms.

SWORDS EAST

by Achmed Abdullah

The Story So Far:

ELLEN McINTYRE, left an orphan at 21, arrives in Constantinople on the eve of the Young Turks' revolution. Two leaders in the political intrigues of the stormy times fall in love with her. One is Marquis O'Malley Pasha, a young Irish soldier of fortune, who is loyal to the Sultan. The other is Prince Tcherkessky, a Circassian whose brother eloped with O'Malley's mother. Two of O'Malley's friends, Watson Pasha and Yar Ali Bey, are murdered the night before they are to second O'Malley in a duel with Tcherkessky. O'Malley appears alone for the duel. The prince and his two seconds try to kill him, but Ellen, in hiding, shoots the sword from Tcherkessky's hand.

BIBI FATHMA, a Hindu favorite of the Sultan, is in love with O'Malley and jealous of Ellen. She forces Tcherkessky, who has been her lover, to promise he will kidnap Ellen, but make it appear that Ellen fled with him of her own will. Meantime Sabri Bey, chief of the secret police, details three men to guard O'Malley. The latter, in turn, sends his faithful servant, Reshid, to watch over Ellen at her hotel. Bibi has made Tcherkessky promise he will not harm O'Malley, and the prince stirs Ellen's jealousy when he tells her Bibi forced that promise from him.

WHEN it seems the murders of Watson Pasha and Yar Ali Bey are about to be traced to him, Tcherkessky goes to Bibi to enlist her aid. She agrees, provided he will kidnap Ellen, as he promised. Bibi tells the prince to bring her a famous emerald which disappeared when Yar Ali Bey was slain. Then she encourages Zado Kaboolian, a tremendously rich banker to whom she has owed money.

NOW the scene shifts back to Sabri Bey and O'Malley. The police chief is demanding how it happened that Ellen saved O'Malley's life.

And Then:

INSTALLMENT VIII.

Wild Geese of Ireland.

FROM the beginning of the interview the Irishman had suspected that Sabri Bey's question would have something to do with the duel. Now that the question had actually been asked he did not know what to reply.

So he was silent. He stared at the other—sitting there, stocky body bent forward, russet red beard stuck out defiantly, like a battering ram—and he was conscious of that faint feeling of hostility which is possible even between friends, which grows the more bitter with the realization that the friend, in his disagreeable task, is not actuated by selfish considerations but by a strict, four square prompting of duty. A queer psychological riddle: to dislike a man because of the charateristic which had been the original foundation for liking him.

Perhaps Sabri Bey, with that pouncing, feline imagination of his, guessed what was passing through O'Malley's mind. He rose and came nearer.

"I beg your pardon," he said almost humbly.

"For what?"

"For being a patriot. Listen . . ."

He related how, acting on Kibrizli Pasha's drunken confidences, repeated to him by the Syrian dancer, he had arrested Hakki Yussef, Prince Tcherkessky's confidential messenger, on a trumped up charge, commenting: "The man is stubborn. He only howls with pain when my—O—experts try to make him confess and insists, between screams, that he knows nothing, nothing!" He related, furthermore, that, about an hour earlier, Kibrizli Pasha had come to police headquarters—"he looked and behaved entirely too ingenuous and naive to be true!"—and recounted what the dictaphone had whispered to him of the latter's and Djavid Bey's conversation.

"It seems," he added smilingly, "that for some reason of his own the Circassian has decided not to have you murdered—yet awhile. So at least for the present I shall not have to waste the time of two of my best detectives by having you watched and protected." And he wound up, "So there we are. Here, if not the murderers, are the instigators of the crime: Tcherkessky, Kibrizli, and—for his name, too, came through the dictaphone—Colonel Obelensky of some Russian embassy. Behind them stand the Young Turks led by Achmed Riza, Enver Pasha, and Niazi Bey, and the Russians, led by the tsar, Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholayevitch, and Count Sergius de Witte—the monkey's wile and the cat's guile. We know that it was monkey and cat who instigated the murder of Watson Pasha and Yar Ali Bey—who tried to get you, too, out of the way, and somehow failed. But there is a missing link. And you alone can supply it."

"Why?"

"Because all our evidence is circumstantial."

"People before this have been convicted on circumstantial evidence, Sabri."

"I know. But you forget Obelensky is implicated, and he is a Russian and in the diplomatic service."

"You have the testimony of your dictaphone, haven't you?"

"Such testimony can be forged, altered. We have to be careful."

Still O'Malley was fighting for time.

"Why not bring Tcherkessky and Kibrizli to trial without bothering about Obelensky?" he suggested.

"I would like to. But they themselves would drag the Russian into the case. And what then? Russia would use the opportunity to force us into war. But if you and Miss McIntyre should come forward—chiefly Miss McIntyre, an American, thus disinterested politically—as eye witnesses of . . . of what I suspect"—he interrupted himself; went on—"O'Malley, I am not asking you through idle curiosity. But Turkey is in danger—my country—your country——"

"I am Irish!"

"That's why you are loyal to the land which has given you asylum and high honors!"

"Suppose," came the slow, speculative reply, "that by telling you what you want to know, by owning up to what you already suspect, I should get into disgrace with the sultan?"

"You are not a hand kissing courtier."

"But suppose I should get into such deep disgrace that I may have to leave the service, may be unable in the future to work for Turkey? You know, Abdul Hamid never forgives those who disobey one of his personal orders."

"You must make up your own mind. The stake is bitter either way."

SO O'Malley told what he knew: the cause for the duel, Tcherkessky's trick of suggesting Watson and Yar Ali Bey as seconds, Hassan's strange behavior—by this time Ellen had related to him the adventure that night when the man had dropped the revolver on her table—and the duel itself, the attempt to murder him, Ellen's interference, and his real reasons for wishing to locate the negro.

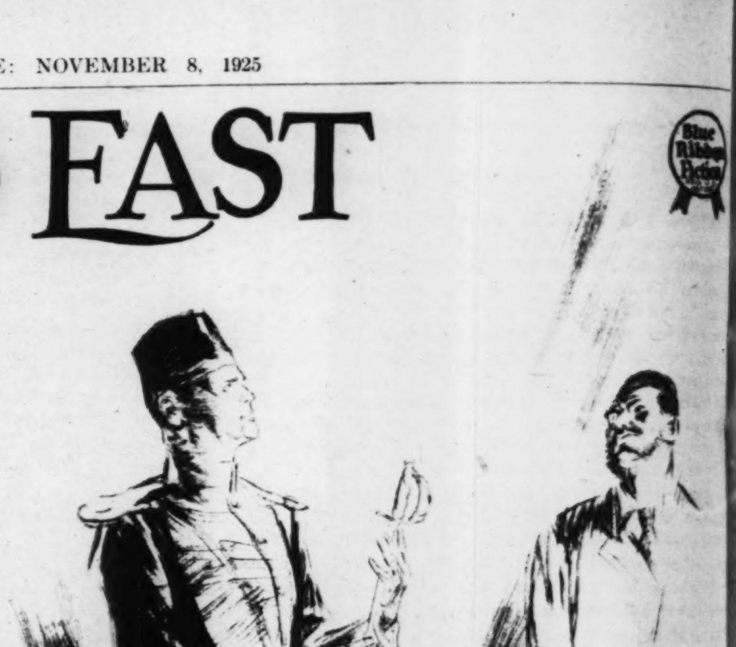
"I suspected something of the sort," said Sabri. "Now I know. You are right. The sultan will not forgive you. Only the other day I heard him talk about his firman against duels—he was violent on the subject."

"I'll be cashiered from the army, I imagine."

"Well," said the other after a moment's thought, "I shall not give you away until I absolutely have to."

"What can you do with this information unless you use it?"

"I shall try at first to use it as a threat, a club which I shall hold above the heads of the three gentlemen, forcing Tcherkessky and Kibrizli into voluntary exile and Obelensky to send in his resignation. I am grateful to you . . ." Then, quite suddenly his voice broke a little as he went on: "And yet——"



"Two crosses I believe in and follow!"

"Yes?"

"I am neither a coward nor a pessimist, but there are moments when I feel everything we can do will be too late—a century or two too late to save us. Turkey is sick and weak and tired. The old eagle's claws are blunted—the beak like putty—the eyes bleared and dim—the wings powerless. And there are all those carrion crows waiting for the eagle's end—the carrion crows of the Occident, Europe."

O'Malley crossed himself.

"No, no," he said. "Turkey has survived many a storm, will survive this one." But in his heart, too, was ominous foreboding.

"I wonder," mused the other, "if it would not be better to throw ourselves on Europe's mercy."

"A burglar's mercy?" sneered O'Malley.

"What else is there to do except surrender? We cannot win."

"Peace, eh?"

"Yes. Instead of useless slaughter, useless death."

"You are right," replied O'Malley; "if we fight we die. The odds are too great. But what of it? There is something worse than death—and the name of it is life—with dishonor."

Abruptly he gave that loud, reverberating, bull-like roar of his, that great, throaty Celtic laugh of exultation and triumph.

"I shall fight," he exclaimed, "fight to the end. I am Irish, after all!"

He drew his sword, held it point down so that it glimmered in the sun rays with silver and blue. His words were strangely wooden, strangely medieval, as if his soul had leaped back across the centuries to the days of crusade and oriflamme:

"Two crosses I believe in and follow: the cross on which they crucified our Dear Savior and—here—this steely cross made of blade and hilt! Aye! and I shall believe in and follow cross of wood and cross of steel as long as sun can shine and soil can nourish and rivers can run and the wind can blow . . . and he who says different is a Judas!"

But the moment of exaltation passed. He looked at his watch.

"I'll have to run along," he said. "Miss McIntyre is waiting for me."

"I suppose," smiled Sabri Bey, "you are grateful to her for saving your life?"

"Naturally! Don't be an ass!"

"You know—there is good deal of gossip about you and her."

"I can imagine their rotten lies."

"Gossip does not always lie."

"But gossip," said O'Malley, "would be disappointed if it could overhear what Miss McIntyre and I are usually talking about."

"Namely?"

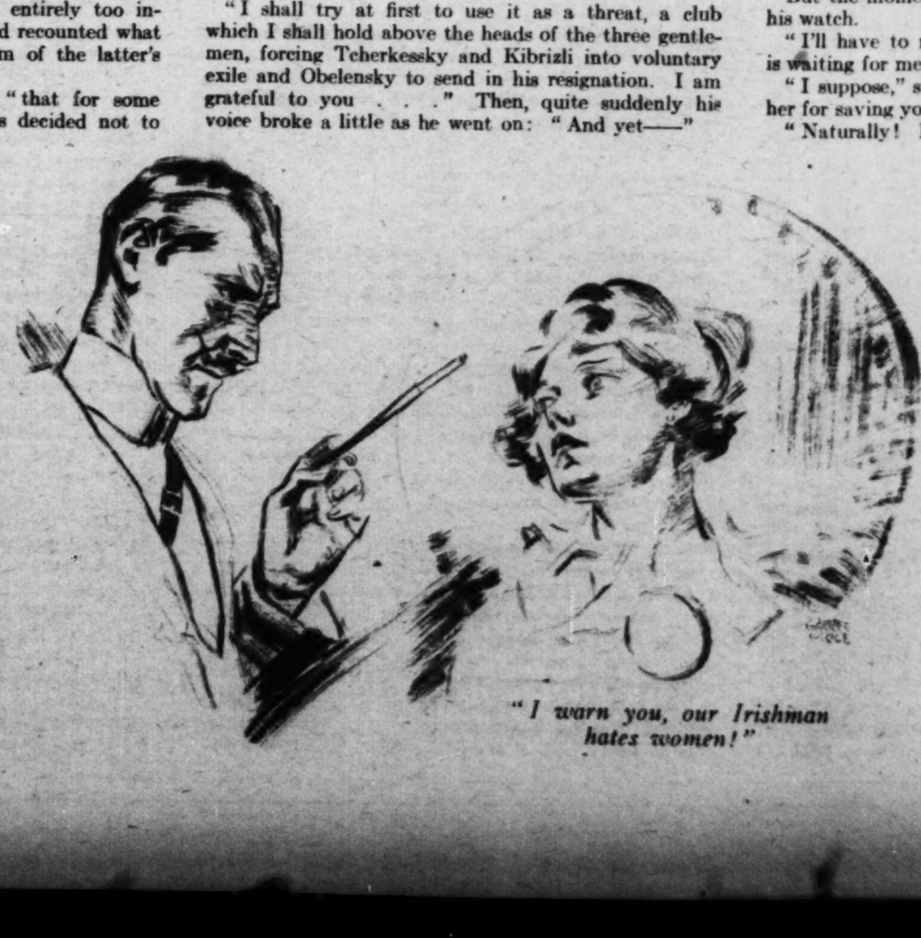
"Impersonalities—nearly all the time."

"Expect me to believe it?"

"I don't care if you do or if you don't. But—by St. Patrick's blessed bones!—it is the truth."

And it was.

Indeed, experience had taught caution to O'Malley as well as to Ellen. Experience had taught them that the personal element was a quicksand, morass, a treacherous timberfall where their feet slipped and their minds, where tempers became ragged and lips spoke words for which both were sorry immediately afterwards—and both too proud and stubborn to admit it.



"I warn you, our Irishman hates women!"

It is so with people who love each other and who for some reason—in O'Malley's case it was his queer, congenital mistrust of women—refuse to speak of it. Such silence, and the restraint which it breeds, wears out the nerves.

Occasionally when they were alone, he with his thoughts and dreams and she with hers, they would compose words, whole sentences, emotional but succinct, fervent but to the point, which they made up their minds to speak when they should meet next. They even figured out the problematical replies and his or her own counter-reply. But when they came face to face the words remained unspoken, and they continued to treat each other with that mixture of faint spiritual and intellectual sympathy and emotional and physical aloofness which is called good breeding.

Since that day at tea Ellen had not seen Prince Tcherkessky. But, of course, she did not say so to O'Malley. Nor had he spoken to Bibi Fathma, not even through the marble screen of her balcony, a point on which he was equally silent. On the other hand, he realized that, since they dined together every night and met at lunch and tea whenever his military or palace duties permitted, she had hardly any spare time to devote to Tcherkessky; and exactly the same reasoning convinced Ellen what little chance O'Malley had of seeing the gypsy. This had a slightly soothing effect on both their jealous natures. Still, they kept away from personalities as much as they could, and the nearest approach to it was when one day he told her a little of his family history.

It had come about through her calling him a superstitious goose when, spilling the salt cellar, he threw some of the contents over his left shoulder.

He replied that he considered it a compliment. For was he not one of the Wild Geese of Ireland, the Wild Geese of Limerick?

And when she did not understand, one question leading to another, he told her the tale of the O'Malleys.

THEY were descended—ran the tale of this last of the O'Malleys—from one Murty Og O'Malley, a landed gentleman in Tir-Chonnail, which today is called the county of Donegal, and where still—"I have never seen it, doubt I ever shall," he added—stands the ruined castle of the O'Malleys near the banks of the River Eske.

They had been scholars rather than soldiers, giving poets and professors and prelates to the Green Isle, until the days when England conquered Ireland.

"The days," said O'Malley Pasha, with all his racial, inherited hate and bitterness, "when the foreigners forced us to forget our learned tomes, our peaceful civilization, and our holy vestment, and take to the sword—to the flame—and to ambush! The years when the invaders closed our churches and universities and forbade education under penalty of death! When the killing of an Irishman was not a legal crime and when the Lord Chief Justice proclaimed from his bench, proud with wig and bigotry, that in the eyes of the law an Irish Catholic did not exist! The years of oppression! The black years . . . and, by God, we made them red with blood!"

So the O'Malleys of Tir-Chonnail joined with the other gentlemen, with the Ulster chieftains, O'Neils and O'Donnels, with the Clan O'Sullivan of the northwest, with the De Laceys of Limerick, the Plunketts and O'Dwyers and O'Rorkes, the O'Mahonys and MacElligotts, the MacGeoghaghans and O'Donoghues. Fighting, year in and year out; on the run; hiding on mountains, in caves and forests; killing from ambush because the enemy was a hundred to one; steadily taking toll.

Finally they fought under the greatest of them all, General Patrick Sarsfield, the heroic defender of Limerick; and when Limerick fell in 1691, not conquered but starved out, the O'Malleys were amongst those who were permitted to march away from the battered walls with full honors of war, battle standards waving, drums beating, trumpets bellowing defiance, under the sole condition that they leave Ireland forever.

"The Wild Geese of Ireland!" he exclaimed. "Flying straight and far—as wild geese do! 'Semper et ubique fidelis—always and everywhere faithful!' was their motto."

The Wild Geese flew to the continent of Europe. They made history on a dozen battlefields, immortalizing Irish valor; made perhaps yet more history in a dozen European chancellories, as statesmen and diplomats in the service of Austria, Poland, Spain, France, Russia, Sweden.

The O'Malley who had fought under Patrick Sarsfield became a colonel in France's Irish brigade and died, an old man in the eighties, strapped to his horse, which his knees were to weak to guide, at the battle of Fontenoy. His descendants continued to serve the kings of France. They intermarried with the best blood of the Bretagne and the Auvergne, once even with the Bourbons—"nearly, not quite, as good a family as ours," commented the narrator, and he meant it in spite of the twinkle in his brown eyes—and it was Louis XVI. who conferred upon them the title of Marquis and Peer of France and gave them broad estates in Normandy.

Came the French revolution: the day when young democracy stirred suddenly in its sleep, awakened, rubbed its eyes, flexed its muscles, realized its strength, and brushed away with an impatient fist all the Bourbon cobwebs.

Came the Terror—and a day of test and trial for the aristocrats of France.

Some scurried for cover, into cellars and garrets, trying to hide their powder kegs, their brocaded coats, their lace jabots, their jeweled snuff boxes, their simpering love letters, and their wornout, feudal ideals. Thence the ragged, woll capped hangmen of Robespierre ferreted them out and dragged them forth to lamp post and the potter's field.

Others, amongst them the Marquis de O'Malley, fought to the last:

"Semper et ubique fidelis!"

So like the stout royalist he was, satin ribbons at the knees, peruke well powdered, a tiny black beauty spot on his left cheek, he mounted the scaffold, walking slowly and carefully because his red heels were very high. There he bowed with sardonic politeness to the howling, bloodthirsty mob, threw a kiss at a huge, grey-haired, disheveled woman who demanded his death with raucous, obscene shouts, and cracked a jest—in French, with an Irish accent—in to the very face of the executioner who manipulated the Red Widow, the guillotine:

"Faith—and I wager this is the handsomest head you ever cut off, my lad. Show a little taste—and don't spoil the fit of my wig!"

The executioner, a simple, brutish soul, was shocked at such levity—"that's the trouble with radicals the world over," said O'Malley Pasha, "they have no humor"—and quickly he jerked the string; and the marquis' head rolled into the basket and was spiked on a steel tipped pole and carried through the streets of Paris to the cries of:

"Liberte! Egalite! Fraternite!"

His small son was smuggled out of France by a devoted servant and a decade or two later, known temporarily as Herr Baron Patricius von O'Malley, commanded a regiment of giant Prussian grenadiers, proud with fur busbies and pipeclayed belts, against the Corsican. Battling all over Europe, the downfall of Napoleon's magnificent house of cards had found him in Turkey, drilling savage Anatolian soldiers, and there his descendants had remained ever since, high in the confidence of the Osmanli Sultans.

"Perhaps," said O'Malley, "the Wild Geese are no longer on the wing. Perhaps they have found a nest, a home."

THUS ran his tale, stopping short with his grandfather, who had been minister of war under Sultan Abdul Medjid.

Not once did he mention his father or his mother—his mother who had run away with Prince Tcherkessky's older brother and who had thrown this queer, grim shadow across his life as he saw it.

A morose, exaggerated, blighting shadow. So at least Ellen felt and judged.

He misread—the strange simile came to her—the gold and black hieroglyphics of life and life's values which are embroidered on the fringe of the robe of God; hieroglyphics that were neither all gold nor all black. Interpreting her own simile to herself, she accused him of being unfair, of generalizing, of condemning all women for the sin of one. She wanted to shake him out of this mood of his. More than a mood it seemed to her at times; nearly an obsession. She wanted to make him step out of the dark house of his boyhood and youth where his mind went groping about blindly, flagellating itself with the morbid whip of remembrance, sensuously reveling in the thrill of its pain.

"It is wrecking your life," she wanted to tell him; "your life, Pat, and mine, don't you understand? What has happened, has happened. Your mother. whatever her guilt, has passed on into death, into the sunset. But look: the sun has risen again, with red and gold and silver, with desire and hope and promise!"

If he read her unvoiced thoughts—and perhaps he did—he gave no sign. His soul, in all other matters so gay, so elastic, so irrepressibly Celtic, seemed to enjoy the peccant, austere self-torment of his memories. It seemed to satisfy some subconscious hunger for martyrdom in his rather mixed psychology; he seemed to welcome it with a rabidly wrong headed ingenuity.

And then, on the day following the interview with Sabri Bey, he did speak of his mother, with the result that Ellen was very sorry for, and perfectly furious at him.

On that day, coming from the dining room after breakfast, Ellen saw Prince Tcherkessky, who had just entered the lobby of the Megatherium-Palace Hotel.

She was about to pass him by with that blending of gracious rudeness and ungracious politeness which is a trick of highly civilized woman when she wants to cut a man, nearly but not quite—a short bob of the head giving the lie to smiling lips, a hearty: "O, how do you do?" giving the lie to eyes that stare straight ahead.

But the Circassian guessed what she was trying to do. He knew women, Oriental and Occidental, stupid and clever, narrow and broad minded, mundanely discreet and mundanely indiscreet, socially arrived and socially aspiring, ingenues in white and primrose ribbons, flamboyant young married women, and aggressive dowagers of mid-Victorian vintage who foiled their antimacassar upbringing with the help of astonishingly tight skirts and improbable hair. One and all he knew how to handle: some with excessive politeness; others with ironic suavity; still others with the velvet hardly concealing the steel; others again with brutal frankness.

He classed Ellen McIntyre in the last category. For it was his philosophy that in the eternal war of the sexes the finest nature will yield before the coarsest weapon.

So he stepped squarely in her path.

"Mademoiselle," he said, "if you should tell me, as I'm afraid you mean to, that you are in a hurry or have an engagement or anything of that sort, I shall doubtless call you a little liar."

His arrogance left her aghast, left her silent, too; and he followed up the advantage quickly.

"You are avoiding me," he went on with direct accusation, cleverly trying to put her on the defensive, therefore in the wrong. "You refuse to see me. You did not accept the flowers I sent you yesterday."

Perhaps he overplayed his hand. For all at once she regained her equanimity.

"Seems like it," she replied serenely.

SUDDENLY she decided to have it out with him. She was not going to show the white feather and run away. It was in the nature of a contest within herself. Formerly she had avoided him because she had thought him too fascinating and because, level headed, straight thinking, she had not wished to be fascinated by a man whom she did not trust, did not even like. She was no longer afraid of this fascination. For now the only man in her life was O'Malley. The latter did not know; rather, and worse, did not wish to know. But what did it matter? Love—the conviction came to her at that moment—was not a traffic in mutual, emotional values. It was a fact, standing by itself. And by facing Tcherkessky, unafraid, giving him truth for truth and frankness for frankness, she would make yet surer of this fact.

"Seems like it, doesn't it?" she repeated.

"O." This time it was he who was taken aback. But he recovered himself quickly, tempering his hard voice wtih a faint suspicion of pleading. "It is because you dislike me so?"

"O, no!" She seemed slightly amused.

"Or perhaps because you like somebody else? Ah"—the man's Europeanization was amazing, fantastic—"are congratulations in order? Wedding bells—and a narrow gold ring—and a shower bouquet of sweet peas—and an ordained gentleman in a snowy bib and canonized sideburns—and a couple of pounds of rice—and what God hath joined together, eh? Well, I warn you! Our Irishman hates women! Don't count this particular chicken before it is——"

"Be quiet!" She was losing her temper as he was losing his. "If all you're trying to do is to annoy me——"

"Forgive me, mademoiselle!" He recanted completely and suddenly, deciding that he had used the wrong methods after all. "I—forgive me again, I have no right to mention it—but I am jealous of O'Malley! Why? O"—nor was he acting at that moment—"because I love you—so much—I can't tell you how much! Well"—he shrugged his shoulders—"never mind. It doesn't interest you, I know. All I came here to ask you for was the first waltz."

"Waltz? When. Where?"

"Haven't you seen? Look!"

He pointed at a poster fastened above the hotel desk, where the manager of the Megatherium-Palace announced a fancy dress ball for a week from Saturday—a poster a copy of which at that moment was in the henna stained hands of Bibi Fathma who, loudly and sincerely, was thanking Allah, the Prophet Mohammed and a number of heathenish, unclean gypsy deities.

"This fancy dress ball is going to be a rather amusing affair," Prince Tcherkessky went on. "As exclusive—of restraint—as Paris' Moulin de la Galette on a Wednesday night. And as inclusive—of everything socially worth while or glittering—as the Concorso Ippico in Rome. Look!" He indicated the list of hostesses printed on the poster. "Everybody will be there who can boast of a title, a million francs, a cellar filled with vintage champagne, or a sufficiently bad reputation to make him or her interesting."

Ellen laughed. Her ill humor disappeared. She was fond of dancing.

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

Hollywood knew her as "Peanut," this little French girl with the bearing of a Parisian cocotte but the face of a Madonna—a Madonna of the streets but a Madonna nevertheless.

The story of "Peanut" is a gripping tale of life among the stars of Hollywood and the myriads of poor, pretty moths who flutter about the bright lights of the movie world. It is a soul-stirring story, masterfully told

"But where do I come in?" she asked. "I have neither title nor cellar filled with champagne--nor, I hope, a bad enough reputation to be accepted by the elect."

"Then come because you are yourself."

"Very well, prince."

"Will you do me a favor?"

"Let's hear it first."

"Please wear an Afghan costume. You'll be able to find one in the Stamboul bazaars, and it will be so becoming to you. It will blend charmingly with your violet eyes and your heart of jade."

"Is my heart as green as all that?"

"No. But it is as hard as jade—and nearly, not quite, as beautiful."

"Just for that I shall save you a dance."

"You will get the Afghan costume?"

"I shall try."

"Do me another favor?"

"What?"

"May I go to the bazaars with you and help you choose it? Granted?"

"Declined!"

"Useless to argue?"

"Quite!'

"I suppose," he smiled, "you are going to ask my hated Irish rival to be your guide?"

"You've guessed it," she admitted calmly.

DURING the next twenty minutes two messages crossed Constantinople: one, by confidential servant, from Prince Tcherkessky to Bibi Fathma; the other, over the telephone, from Ellen McIntyre to O'Malley Pasha; and both connected with the fancy dress ball at the Megatherium-Palace hotel.

The first message instructed Bibi Fathma to despatch her husband Shafizullah to the hotel as soon as possible. Written in Turkish--and when he used an Oriental language Tcherkessky's European veneer was conspicuous by its absence—it added:

"The foreign woman and O'Malley Pasha are going to the bazaars to purchase what you and I know. Let Shafizullah follow and report everything, even if he should have to strain his unclean body like a hare trying to lay an egg. He must bring four eyes, four ears, four legs, and no mouth at all. He must be as secretive and wary as the moon in eclipse. For I have noticed that there is a new porter at the hotel who watches the foreign girl and who seems as like to O'Malley's former body servant as a wolf to a gray wolf. So, again, let Shafizullah be careful, and let him remember the saying: 'May I be an elephant in attack, a snake in flight!'"

The other message, zumming along the telephone wires, was less enigmatic:

"Hullo, Pat!"

"Hullo, Ellen!"

"There's a fancy dress ball at the hotel a week from Saturday. Do you know who is going to take me?"

"Yes. I."

"Correct! And, Pat?"

"Aha?"

"I want to wear an Afghan costume."

"Why?"

"O—" she was silent about Tcherkessky, and just the least little bit angry at herself for being silent. After all, didn't she have a perfect right to? No! Better not tell him! He was so jealous, even though he did not admit that he loved her. "Just an idea of mine," she continued quickly. "Will you accompany me to the bazaars and help me choose?"

"Gladly. When?"

"Today."

"Ill call for you a little after one. We'll lunch, and then we'll run over to Stamboul and hunt. Right, Ellen?"

"Right as rain, Pat!"

But when they met a few hours later in the hotel lobby he told her they would have to put off the shopping expedition for another day. For in the meantime he had received word from Sabri Bey who wanted him to come to the headquarters of the secret police and look over certain evidence in connection with Hassan which his department had unearthed.

"May I go with you?" asked Ellen. "Perhaps there may be time afterwards to visit the bazaars."

"All right, Ellen."

They left the hotel and hailed Haydar Nazir. Ever since he had driven Ellen to the place of the duel and had proved to be such a good friend and such a loyal subject of the sultan, they had employed him in their almost daily drives through town. A minute or two earlier, using the excuse of a light for his cigaret, O'Malley had whispered to his servant Reshid who was hovering near not to bother playing watch dog. But even so, while the Turk did not shadow them, somebody else did: Shefizullah, angry at the world because there was no donkey to steal so that today he was forced to spend money on another carriage, instructing the driver to keep the Albanian's victoria in sight.

"May dogs defile her future grave!" he cursed silently, thinking of his wife, as he swallowed the dust of the first carriage. "May she, in the hereafter, burn in oil! Here am I, an elderly, respectable Hindu, condemned throughout life to do her bidding: either to nose on the trail of those lovers whom she wishes to eliminate, or of those whom she wishes to ensnare. Ah!—at times I would like to be a bachelor. Marriage is a stench and an abomination in the nostrils of the righteous, the virtuous. U gurnahki makkhi khay——' he added in Hindustani—"Most decidedly!—marriage is not the sort of sugar a clever fly will light on!"

The streets, as they drove toward the headquarters of the secret police northeast of Pera in the Pankaldı, not far from the military school, were crowded. There was a tense, dramatic excitement surcharging the atmosphere. It was different from the ordinary excitement, so typical of Constantinople, that dull, suppressed agitation where native Christian looks at Moslem and Moslem at native Christian, both disdainful and distrustful and bitter, but both silent, showing their feelings in gleaming eyes and tight lips rather than in curse or blow.

TODAY the picture had changed. People talked loudly, careless who heard them; gesticulated extravagantly.

A bristling background, gorged with hate. Here and there a single fact standing out, sudden, sharp, tragic as well as ludicrous.

A Greek boasted and bragged of Hellas' ancient glory. A rough, fur-capped Kurd struck him between the eyes, knocked him down, kicked the prostrate figure.

"Padishah chok yashah!"—he yelled—"may the sultan live forever!"

But a moment later, deciding that discretion was the better part of valor, even of ruffianly Kurd valor, he fled down a side alley, chased by a rabble of Young Turk sympathizers who were against the Greeks, yet more against the sultan.

"Hurrah for the Young Turks!" shouted a little underfed, pimply schoolboy. "Hurrah for the Republic! For liberty, union and progress!"

And at once a Turkish professor, in black broadcloth, steel spectacles, ragged mustache, red fez, dirty shirt, and frayed cuffs, made an impromptu speech on the subject of freedom. He started academically, but wound up with incoherent roars, just opening his huge mouth, showing his decayed teeth and yelling mad, pathetic invective at all constituted government, while a crowd gathered and shouted back its approval.

Another time, as the victoria neared Taxim square, Ellen was shocked by the sight of a middle aged woman, well dressed in heliotrope taffeta, neat shoes, white kid gloves, and a little black Viennese toque. Had she seen her back home, in Spokane, she would have said that the woman was the wife of some prosperous mining man, of good family, soundly respectable, rather conservative, most likely a member of various progressive civic organizations and clubs, and the mother of a large, happy family. But O'Malley, who knew her, said that she was an emancipated Turkish woman, the wife of a prominent doctor who was a Young Turk politically; and here she stood, her neat little hat awry, waving a pamphlet in her hand, and shrilling a foaming, bubbling stream of curses and obscenities against the sultan.

Across the street another crowd huzzaed an elderly army officer who, naked sword held aloft, was swearing fealty to the sultan.

Young Turk and Old Turk. Moslem and Christian and Jew. Osmanli and Greek. Armenian and Syrian and Arab and Kurd and Turkoman. Each group pulling and jerking and pushing its own particular political or racial or religious Jagganath, urging it on with the knotted whip of lust and crazy ambition. Groups within groups, drunk with the jingoistic megalomania of nationalism. Top heavy they were with worship of self and twisted ideals, hoarse with the shouting of inane, stereotyped shibboleths, rotten with false standards.

A mad, nauseating hodge-podge of emotions, of cries and yells and curses, as if crying and yelling and cursing proved a point, showed religious or racial or political superiority. A very miscarriage of patriotism, a grotesque and ghastly imitation of liberty, and always sprinkled and larded with Allah! Sultan! God! Duty! Christ! Mohammed! Freedom! Hearth! Home! Hurrah!—and then more curses, more belching forth of savage lust of blood.

A cult of brutality. A cult of hate labeled love of country or political differences. And Ellen thought it less terrible than pitiable.

Never in all her life since at school, automatically, she had saluted the flag, had she loved her own land as during that drive. Faults? Of course, America had faults. There was no nation this side of millennium free from them. A nation needs faults, like the shadows in a flame, to emphasize its brightness. But the faults of America were those of youth, added to those of an inherited, badly digested Mayflower Puritanism, faults at times sharpened and brought into clashing contrast by the continuous immigration and assimilation of tens of thousands of foreigners. Historical, geographical faults they were rather than national or civilizational.

But this? This Turkey of the Young Turks? Why, there was that respectable married woman, that pimply schoolboy, that spectacled professor, a dozen others, and all mouthing mean obscenities, polluting the very liberty in which they professed to believe. America, too, had faults. But—she smiled as she coined the phrase--they were such decent faults, while these—she shivered a little.

Once she had argued with O'Malley on the subject. She had told him that as an American she was in sympathy with Young Turk ambitions. Now she agreed with him when he said:

"I am a conservative, almost a reactionary. Liberty is only for those who know how to use it, who deserve it. I would rather be ruled by the sultan, the autocrat, the single lion, than by a million squealing rats."

"Is revolution coming?"

"It is nearly here. I do wish you would leave Constantinople."

"After the fancy dress ball, Pat!" she smiled. "I want to find out how good or bad a dancer you are."

The carriage turned north.

Here the crowds became thinner, and in the drab, reeking tenements that clustered about the military school the enthusiasm, revolutionary or loyalist, decreased proportionately with the misery of the people who lived here.

Finally they reached their destination and asked Haydar Nazir to wait, while not far away, in a narrow alley around the corner, Shafizullah waited too, telling his inquisitive Levantine driver not to ask questions but to stuff his greedy mouth with the expectation of the extravagant tip which he meant to give him by-and-by.

Inside, Sabri Bey received his callers.

"I brought Miss McIntyre along," said O'Malley, "do you mind?"

The other bowed to Ellen:

"My whole department is honored by your visit, mademoiselle. You have been a good friend to all Turkey."

"I?"

"Indeed. Did you not save the Pasha's life?"

"O—Pat—you told him——?"

"It was necessary."

SABRI BEY turned to an orderly, and sent him for M. Ducastel, the celebrated detective once head of the French secret police, who had been driven out of office through the back wash of the Dreyfus affair and had found congenial employment in Constantinople where he had established his famous, supra-efficient system—that system of political espionage and counter-espionage which was perhaps the one and only competent department in the lumbering, corrupt Turkish government machine of those days.

Ducastel came a moment later.

He was an old man with a shrewd, rather waspish face whose sharpness was still more accentuated by the bushy eyebrows, the goatee, and the supercilious up-sweep of an immense, snowy white mustache. He was dressed in the costume in which the Paris cartoonists had formerly loved to picture him: the flat Basque cap with the silken tassel roguishly over the left ear, a suit of velveteen of an indescribable yellowish brown that matched the tobacco stains, with short, tight jacket and voluminous Zouave trousers; a costume which made him appear more like an elderly slapstick comedian than like a celebrated detective, and which was strangely in contrast with his shrewdness, his marvelous insight, and his superb pluck.

Sabri Bey remained behind while Ducastel led the way to an immense room covering over two acres in the basement of the headquarters building. It was entered by intricate doors like those of a safe. Inside it was steel lined, steel ceilinged, and steel floored. The whole place resembled an enormous safety deposit vault.

It was continuously patroled by armed guards, protected by elaborate chemical and electric devices, and the pressure of a single button would flood it with water at a moment's notice. Around the walls, reaching from floor to ceiling, were steel filing cabinets, each provided with an ingenious lock; and, bending over flat, low tables half a dozen men, who seemed more like scholarly librarians than headquarters employees, were busy with small pasteboard cards—red cards and yellow and blue and white and green—writing, comparing, filing away.

This vault was the very heart of Turkey, from a political more than a strictly criminal point of view. There lived hardly a prominent man in Constantinople, native born or foreign, diplomat or banker, lawyer or merchant, officer or politician or what-not, nor a single man who if only in the most menial capacity and for the shortest space of time had been employed by any of the many government departments, who did not have his card or a whole nest of cards in one of the filing cabinets.

"Everything is put down on these cards," the Frenchman explained with a sort of cynical pride in his handicraft, "from a man's first attack of chickenpox to his last attack of delirium tremens. They give a concise résumé of any political opinions he may ever have uttered, a report of his financial condition, his married life, his taste in drugs, wine and women, his hobbies and vices, his favorite restaurants, his friends, his enemies, and an account of his mistresses."

INSTALLMENT IX.

Out for Buffalo.

THE game for which we were heading toward the Ruchuru plains was particularly the black buffalo of the cape type—though we wanted a few good antelope, and were not going to refuse any lions that came our way.

We had hunted the cape buffalo on the Semliki, below Mboga, as we waited for our porters for the journey on through the Ituri. That hunting had brought some exciting moments, but no buffalo. One of the exciting moments was when we caught up with a herd one morning just as they slipped behind the leafy screen of the jungle growth that banded the sunken river. We went down the slope after them, and were twenty feet from the thick wall of green when a sudden noise warned us. There was utter quiet; then a snort.

If one does not believe this makes an exciting moment—to be twenty feet from a snorting buffalo, a buffalo that is unseen and whose companions are unseen, on a grassy slope that drops sharply down to the buffalo without a shred of cover, in grass waist high, nicely impeding escape, if escape there could be from those flying hoofs—then all I say is, let him come and try it. I know that my heart was beating like a trip hammer as we stood, guns up, waiting in tense suspense for the next move.

When the crash came, however, it was not toward us, but on to the right, and after another period of waiting came other sounds, going off to the left, indicating that some of the herd had waited, then gone off, less hurriedly, in the other direction.

The big bull that we had been tracking had gone off with the first lot, and we never did catch up with him again. Nor were we more successful on other days, though we saw some good herds at a distance. We could not wait over then for more hunting, as our porters were due at Mboga, though we would have liked to learn more about the habits of those buffalo.

They were exceedingly wary, coming out late in the afternoon from the forest along the water courses to graze in the grasslands and going into the forest before sunrise in the morning, and this wariness was rather remarkable, for they had never been hunted. They gave me a despairing feeling that we were never going to catch up to buffalo, and then, later on, after we encountered the Abyssinian buffalo in the grasslands and the forests of the mountains from Bungulu to Miserere, I felt we were never going to be away from buffalo.

That region was literally alive with them. No hour of the day was free from possible encounter. This was a different species from the cape type, not quite so large and with smaller horns, curving backward; they were much like wild cattle, we thought. Sometimes this variety has been called the red buffalo, but there seemed as many black as red in the herds. There were no herds all of one color.

THE Abyssinian bull does not present the massive majesty of the great cape buffalo, with his shaggy shoulders and wide, downspreading horns, but he is a wicked looking creature, alert and vicious, with a truculent menace we got to know rather well.

We began hearing about him at Bungulu, where he had just killed a native soldier, but the soldier had fired upon him before the attack. The buffaloes graze every day on the slopes about Bungulu, and, though the soldiers kill them for food, the post is so new—only three months established—that the buffaloes still let the soldiers get close. Of course, the native soldier is a good stalker.

Then another man was killed, just a few days before we went to Malunga's village, on the path we came on, and this time the buffalo had been utterly unprovoked, charging suddenly out of long grass. Of course, it is possible that the animal had been startled or that some previous acquaintance with a soldier had rendered him vicious, but we heard several other stories from the natives farther on of unprovoked attacks.

They generally occurred in high grass, and in every case the buffalo was probably taken by surprise, with disastrous results for the surpriser, but it goes to show that the buffalo, even when his temper has not been aroused by hunting, is a touchy beast to startle. In this case near Malunga's, the buffalo had tossed the man, then followed him up and stamped on him until he was pounded into the red soil.

One of the things that makes the buffalo such dangerous game is the thoroughness of his attack, the utter annihilation of his methods. He is like the elephant in that. Carl Akeley puts the buffalo first as the most dangerous of Africa's big game, with the elephant a close second.

Selous and Stigand put the lion first, and Roosevelt said that in his judgment the summary of opinion was for the lion as most dangerous, but I know that in every conversation with hunters in British East Africa they all put the buffalo or elephant ahead of the lion.

It is true that more men are killed by lion, but perhaps more men hunt lion, or the lion gets his toll among unsuspecting ranchers. At any rate, the chances of escape are better from a lion than from an elephant or buffalo. The lion gets in a bite or a stroke and often springs away. If the victim dies later, it is quite as frequently from the infection of the wound as from the extent of it. Many a man recovers from a lion mauling, though he bears the marks to his grave. Few men have escaped elephants.

Carl Akeley escaped one, though actually within its tusks—but it was only the chance hardness of the ground stopping the elephant's driving tusks which saved him. Captain Salmon escaped, though the elephant's trunk was wound about his neck, and Selous has escaped several times through furious running and dodging, though the elephant's outstretched trunk was spraying blood down his tattered shirt.

SELOUS, by the way, that most famous of big game hunters, had a habit of hunting elephants on foot, in his ivory gathering days in South Africa, clad simply in his shirt, his trousers removed to facilitate the getaway—a performance that for daring and discomfort has rarely been equaled.

The only escapes from buffalo that I happened to hear of were those up a convenient tree. I never heard of a man getting away after the buffalo had once established contact.

We began our real experience of buffalo with that herd of fifty near Malunga's village, where they had gone surging past us in a thunder of hoofs and one of them—believed to be the black bull, unfired upon—had come back to charge. He was at fifteen feet when the two shots we gave turned him. I never want any livelier emotions than those few minutes in that herd.

After that we had some encounter every day, for the region about the place we called Green Hill and the country south from Malunga's was literally overrun with them. They were a constant worry in long grass. We were everlastingly running on to them when we were following elephant trails—and having to look out for buffalo in a narrow aisle of a trail between canyon walls of grass means just waiting on the Lord!

Almost always the buffaloes made off, though twice there were direct charges. The first charge we brought upon ourselves, for we were out after a herd that we had been watching, from which we had decided to take two bulls, for meat and for trophies.

We stalked them without difficulty, and found a rock on which to climb for observation as they took the alarm and moved away. It was the easiest hunt I was ever on. Arthur Scott and I were to do the shooting, as the others had good trophies, so he chose a black and I a red, and we opened fire, bringing them down.

The herd rayed out in stampede, but one big red fellow that had been in some grass between us and those that we were after came tearing straight at us. There wasn't much time for impressions. Herbert and I were on the low side of the rock, and Herbert's gun boy helpfully leaped in front of my gun in the effort to climb up off the ground.

I got the gleam of a red torpedo coming through the grass and the glint of those horns. Herbert fired and turned him. He did not fire again, for he did not want to bring him down, as we had enough now both for food and trophies. Afterward we regretted it, for our buffaloes were so dead when we got to them that the Moslem gun boys scarcely felt it worth while to pretend to cut their throats—for they could only eat meat killed in the orthodox way with the orthodox incantation—and the meat was useless for them after all, while the head of the red one was not as large as that of the red one that had charged.

Again a black bull charged us—showing there was no distinction in color—and this charge was unprovoked. We were going up a little hill to look out for elephants, following an old buffalo trail to the top. It was tall grass. Herbert was a good bit ahead, his boy carrying his gun. Suddenly a buffalo rose in his path, a big, black bull. Nothing on earth could have saved Herbert if the beast had come at him—his boy with the gun had given a backward jump, and I don't believe anyway that the boy could have got the gun to him in time, for if the buffalo had charged he would have been on top of him at once. He owes his life to the chance that the buffalo plunged off the other way.

When I came up a few minutes later I saw nothing of buffalo, nor did the two men who came up another trail. We sat some time on a sloping rock on the summit, scanning the country for the big tusker we were seeking, and watching some distant herds of cows and babies; then Arthur and Harry went down to signal us from another little hill.

A FEW moments after they had gone down there came a rush through the grass and in front of us, on the edge of the little clearing of trampled grass about the rock, stood a big, black bull. Presumably he was Herbert's chance acquaintance. More than presumably he was mad, fighting mad. This going up and down had been too much for his nerves. And then he caught sight of us.

He was so near I could see his eyes gleam. He was one of the pictures of Africa—and we were safe enough on that high end of the rock to enjoy it!—a wild bull buffalo, confronted for the first time in his life with Man, the Invader. As a matter of fact, he was confronted, too, by Woman, the Arch Invader, but I expect he wasn't making any distinctions.

He flew into a passion. He stamped, he tossed his head, he blew his nostrils, he bellowed at us. We had time to watch him, time to have our boys, who were farther down the rocky slope, pass along our guns. He was a tremendous sight, sheer, savage anger, impotent to wreak its rage, yet burning to launch itself. What wouldn't we have given to have had the motion camera with us that day!

And then like a thunder bolt he came on. Not straight against the rock, in senseless frenzy, but at a slant to the edge at our right, where the tilted table top met the ground. It was no greater inclination than we had found in trails themselves, and for all we knew he might have been in the habit of climbing it every day for the view. Herbert didn't propose to wait to find out, but fired at his head. He missed, but there was no need to fire again, for with the astounding roar of the gun had come an answering roar from the bull, and he swerved, and sheered off at a tangent down the slope.

That same day gave us one more picture of buffalo, this time that of watchful waiting. From our hilltop we could see down into the green meadows through which our trail wound, and there we saw three buffaloes grazing. Their heads kept coming up uneasily, for the wind was from us. A little farther on we could just make out another buffalo buried in the grass by the path. She never budged, but stood like Patience being her own monument, her head toward the tainted wind, her eyes, presumably, on the path. We would lose sight of her as soon as we left the top, so we took our bearings carefully, to make connections with some very different trails.

THE Abyssinian buffalo ended with the forest country, and on the plains of the Ruindi and the Ruchuru rivers were the black cape buffalo again. We planned to strike straight east to the right bank of the Ruchuru river, which was out of the game reserve, then northeast to the foot of Lake Edward.

We had a scramble getting away from the Ruindi, for we had only about fifty of our old mountain porters left. All the loads that we could spare had been sent on to the Belgian post of Ruchuru, three days' journey to the south, but even so, we had not been able to keep enough carriers to move the rest of us.

We were waiting for men from the post of Ruchuru, but we decided to move at once, before those we did have died of the squashes and the lion meat that they were living on, and our boys and ourselves of the kimputu that came crawling out of the cracks in the old grass houses at night, invading our tents, so we got twenty porters from the nearest chiefling, and some others simply out of the atmosphere—innocent bystanders and inadvertent travelers and passers by who yielded to the lure of our wages and promptly regretted it.

Six of the porters the chief brought us were women, and half of these had their babies on their backs. It appeared that six husbands had dived into the bush at the summons from the chief, and their wives had been haled forth to do duty instead.

It was the custom of the country, and we swallowed our protest; moreover, we were soothed with a beautiful explanation—as soon as the hiding husbands saw their wives loaded beside the other porters and marched away they would leap from the bush, wrest the loads from their heads, and march valiantly in their stead.

Nothing of which happened. No husbands or anybody else leaped out to wrest any loads from the women—as a matter of fact, they seemed to accumulate all the surplus bundles and chickens of the caravan. But we had seen to it that their loads were half as light as usual, and they did not seem to be having a thin time at all.

I noticed that our cook, a jaunty chap, forbore his usual custom of hurrying ahead to have his fire going by the time the food came in, and strutted along among the women, his hat cocked, his cane swinging.

That evening the women settled down by their campfire, prepared for a cheery night in the great out of doors, and there was lamenting when Herbert thoughtfully sent them across the river to the huts of the chief's wives.

Next morning all the Ruindi carriers started back, and we decided that the three men had better take all the available porters and strike northeast toward the hunting grounds where they could get meat, while Miss Williams and Alice and I, with our boys, stayed here in camp to await the porters from the post. Then we planned to follow after the men.

But when the porters came, they were fifty, not a hundred, and said they had food for but two days, so I decided to go straight into Ruchuru, leave Miss Williams and Alice there, and then north with fresh supplies.

Ruchuru looks like a bit of California, with its rose edged avenues, bordered with tall eucalyptus, its orange and lemon trees, its white houses among masses of bloom, and the view that it commands of distant mountains. East and west were the Rift walls, and to the south rose the eight volcanic peaks of the Virunga or M'fumbiro mountains, our old friends of the Akeley expedition. There were Mikeno and Karisimbi, on whose cloud wrapped heights the great gorillas lived—and lived now in peace, for the mountains have been made a gorilla sanctuary—and, farther to the right, Nyamlagira, in whose crater of fire we were the first to look, and beyond Nyamlagira, the companion volcano, Chaninagongo, floating the familiar banner of steam.

Ruchuru is an important post; there was a commissioner, an assistant commissioner, an administrator, and other civil and military officers, a doctor, a hospital with native orderlies, a mission church, a banque du Congo Belge, and a poste from which letters come in and go out by runner. And here, after some days enlivened by the kind hospitality of the commissioner, Monsieur Le Duet, and of the administrator, Lieutenant Dubuisson, and his charming wife, and of all with whom we came in contact, I left Miss Williams and Alice cheery as crickets on their hearth, ensconced in a little mud house with thatched roof, and with my gun boy, Omari, and twenty porters started north across the plains to rejoin the hunters.

It was a lively march, for the local guide the men had sent me didn't want to go back to the camp; he yearned so volubly and continuously to escape to his village and rejoin a wife whom he either adored or distrusted—I didn't gather which—that Omari and I decided that we had better do the two day trip in one for fear the guide would escape in the night. So the guide, Omari, and I marched like mad over the face of Africa, leaving the porters far behind, and after eight desperate hours of it the day began to wane, and a lion along the river began some early hunting noises, and I began to remember the little postscript in Herbert's letter, in which he said that if they moved camp they would leave a man behind to bring me on next day.

If the hunters had gone on and my porters didn't catch up with the tents, I could see a jolly little night for me and my faithful gunboy, without food or water, our backs against a tree, taking pot shots at a lion.

Crossing the plains—the end of a perfectly hot day.

BUT the men had not moved. The camp was in a beautiful site, on the eastern bank of the Ruchuru river, opposite the last peak in that spur of the Kasali mountains which runs out into the plains between the Ruindi and the Ruchuru rivers. We called it Camp Hippo, for the wide pools of the river were alive with the great creatures, and all the ways to it, through the dense palm and thorn thickets, were the deep rutted trails they make.

Here we spent hours photographing the hippo with the motion camera, and they seemed to get as much fun out of watching us as we did out of them. One morning we had six of them lined in front of us in the water, great blobs of heads they were, with clear cut little ears, goggly eyes, and simply incredible mouths. They would come to the top with a snort, stare and stare, swimming about a little, perhaps, then sink slowly, like a cork drawn under. We had some food now for our porters, sent out from Ruchuru, and the men had shot some antelope meat, so there was no need to sacrifice one of these lumbering old monsters.

There was plenty of lion about this camp, but few buffalo, so we struck northeast, nearly to the foot of Lake Edward, to the ravines of another river where the herds of cape buffalo lived. One big fellow, a lone bull, was encountered in the plains.

Herbert had sighted him one morning, lying down under a tree, and he and Harry stalked him carefully, on hands and knees, till within ninety yards. Herbert was not after him for himself, as he had a fine head of one shot on the Ruindi, magnificently mounted for him by Akeley in memory of the hunt, and the shot was Harry's. He fired, the buffalo plunged off; he fired again and brought him down. It was a big bull with good horns.

The next encounter was with a herd. It was Thanksgiving morning, November 27. We were just drinking the morning tea which the boys thrust within our mosquito nets every morning, when a native came into camp breathlessly announcing many buffalo on the slopes of the ravine near by, and we plunged into our clothes and sped off. I remember snatching a bit of bread and cheese from a side table in the mess tent, thinking it was the quaintest Thanksgiving breakfast I had yet known.

All four of us were on that hunt, the first shots to be Arthur's and mine. One of us had to get a buffalo for Thanksgiving dinner, and we could do with two, as we had about a hundred porters now. The guide led us down a gully, through the usual jungly growth, then up a steep side and on to a slope that verged into plain. We came out under some tiny thorn trees, mere bushes, and looked over the long grass, and there, just ahead of us, ninety to a hundred yards away, were the buffalo—great hulks buried in the grass, grunting and gurgling, utterly at their ease. I could see the backs; I could see the tails switching the flies, but it was hard to see the horns, as they were grazing and only raised their heads briefly to dab back at flies.

We were in a foolish position, brought up so close, the wind against us, the ground sloping toward us and the ravines, their natural retreat at an alarm, and with no cover but those thorn trees which would have bent with a robin's nest. There were too many of us for concerted action; we four with our gun boys were strung out in a line and signaling would have given the alarm. Any two of us could have kept close together and sneaked back down the ravine to [illegible] again into better cover, but there we were, and there were the buffalo—more buffalo every time we looked anywhere—and so we went through with it, relying on the chance that the buffaloes would go off the [illegible] way, a chance that, considering the position of the ground, I think was against us.

I know I had a grim feeling that we had [illegible] all the luck we were entitled to, and this was [illegible] we got ours. Herbert said later he was feeling the same way. But we acted too quickly for reconsideration. There were two big bulls just ahead of us; [illegible] got the alarm and raised their heads together, [illegible] at us. Then they moved off, a step at a time, [illegible]ping to look back.

We were sure now from the size of the horns [illegible] they were bulls—no simple thing to determine—[illegible] Arthur and I hastily concentrated on those two, back[illegible] up by Harry and Herbert. We [illegible] grateful for all the artillery we [illegible] get as we fired; I know I was [illegible] myself for a terrific rush toward them.

When that herd crashed off up the slope and away from us, I don't [illegible] saying I had the thankfulest Thanksgiving morning feeling I have ever known. This business of dying bravely facing fearful odds is all very well, but I don't want my odds with horns on them!

There was one buffalo down and extremely dead; he was anybody's and everybody's buffalo from the [illegible] of wounds in him. We sent back [illegible] the porter and they got him to [illegible] in sections, and he made Thanksgiving dinner for all of us. He must [illegible] petered out among the porters, but I know we did [illegible] well with the tenderloin.

WE had another buffalo hunt on the Ruchuru [illegible] had some rather humorous qualities. Two bu[illegible] had been sighted as we were on the march and [illegible] of us started off into action. As we were getting [illegible] we sent two guides ahead to report on the [illegible] that were supposed to be in some light woods a [illegible] distance off.

As the guides did not return to report, we started [illegible] after them on their trail which we could follow [illegible] as it was in long grass—not elephant grass, [illegible] tufted, plumy grass, usually over our heads, [illegible] occasionally there were patches less high.

Suddenly we were stopped by shouts, and there [illegible] our two guides, treed like bears ahead of us, [illegible] back to us to look out, that the buffaloes were [illegible] very near. We found a hard ant hill to climb up [illegible] and from this point of vantage we looked about, [illegible] not a buffalo could we see.

So there we stood, shouting vain questions to [illegible] guides in the trees, who shouted vain directions [illegible] pointing excitedly, and there, somewhere between [illegible] were two adjacent buffaloes.

At last we caught just a glimpse of horns and [illegible] apparently missing. Shooting through the tall [illegible] has a mean way of deflecting bullets, to which [illegible] hollow point Springfield is especially [illegible] Something unseen tore off through the grass [illegible] by something else almost unseen. I did [illegible] curve of the back for an instant. We got down [illegible] our ant hill and started after, and in a few minutes [illegible] guides descended gingerly from their tree, and [illegible] the caravan.

Those buffaloes went round and round in circles [illegible] round we wound after them, the plumed grass [illegible] about us. It was beautiful grass, I remember, [illegible] tiny seed pods silhouetted up against the vivid [illegible] the sky.

I had a carefree mood that morning; I [illegible] grass, I liked the buffaloes, I liked the [illegible] Instead of any presentiment of gloom, I had a [illegible] feeling of delight and competence in danger. I [illegible] was going to see quickly and shoot straight.

And then I went right past a buffalo that was [illegible] down in the grass, and never saw the thing till it [illegible] up behind us. And as for shooting straight that [illegible] I think I merely nicked him in the ear. My [illegible] excuse for that is the grass again, and the fact [illegible] seemed to be moving as fast as the bullet [illegible] fired—luckily in the same direction, away [illegible]

I am glad, now, it did not do him much harm. [illegible] didn't, for he stopped his galloping after a [illegible] began to travel slowly, snatching some grass [illegible] there. We read the nick in the ear from some [illegible] of blood on the grass at that level. We could, [illegible]haps, have caught up with him, but he had [illegible] led us too far from our line of march; we were [illegible] grass then among other buffaloes, and it was [illegible] our boys' lives foolishly, as well as our own, [illegible] about longer in that vain pursuit.

But somehow that day brought me none [illegible] chill of danger, only the gay stir of it, the [illegible] intense living that such moments bring. It [illegible] feeling, I suppose, this joy in adventure, not [illegible] the adventure, but in one's own response to [illegible] brings us back, again and again, to hunting [illegible] game.

And I never have and I never shall, knowing[illegible] a rifle against any gentle thing.

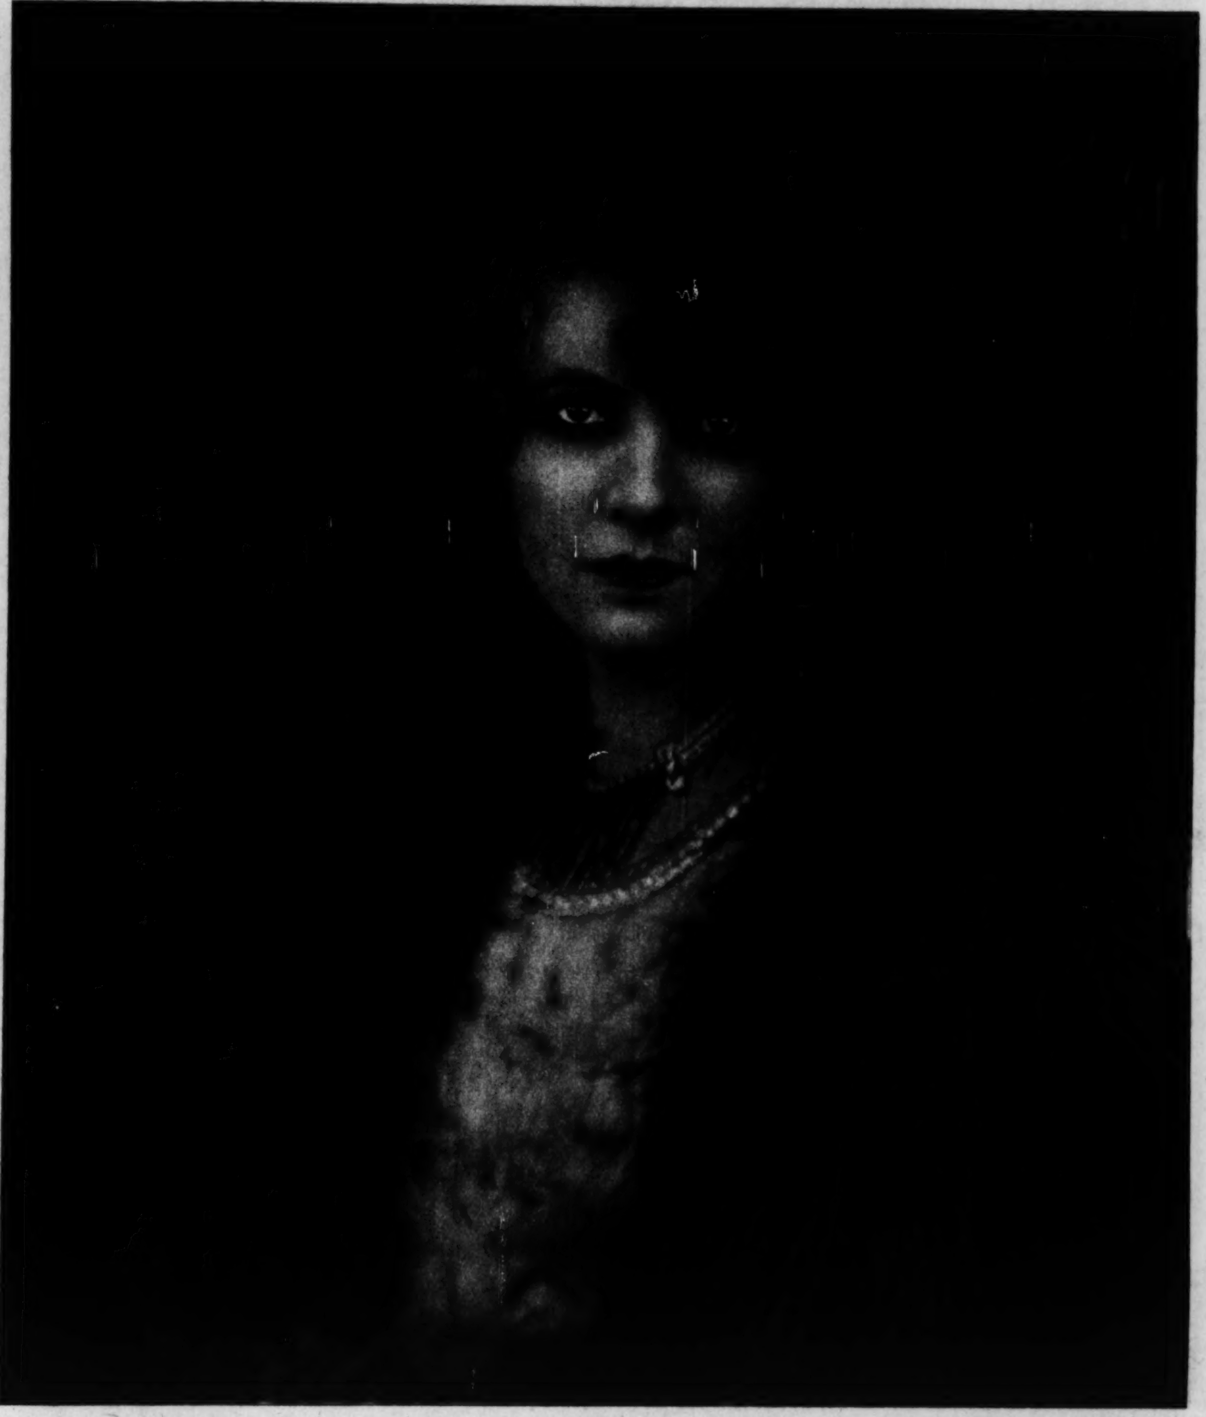
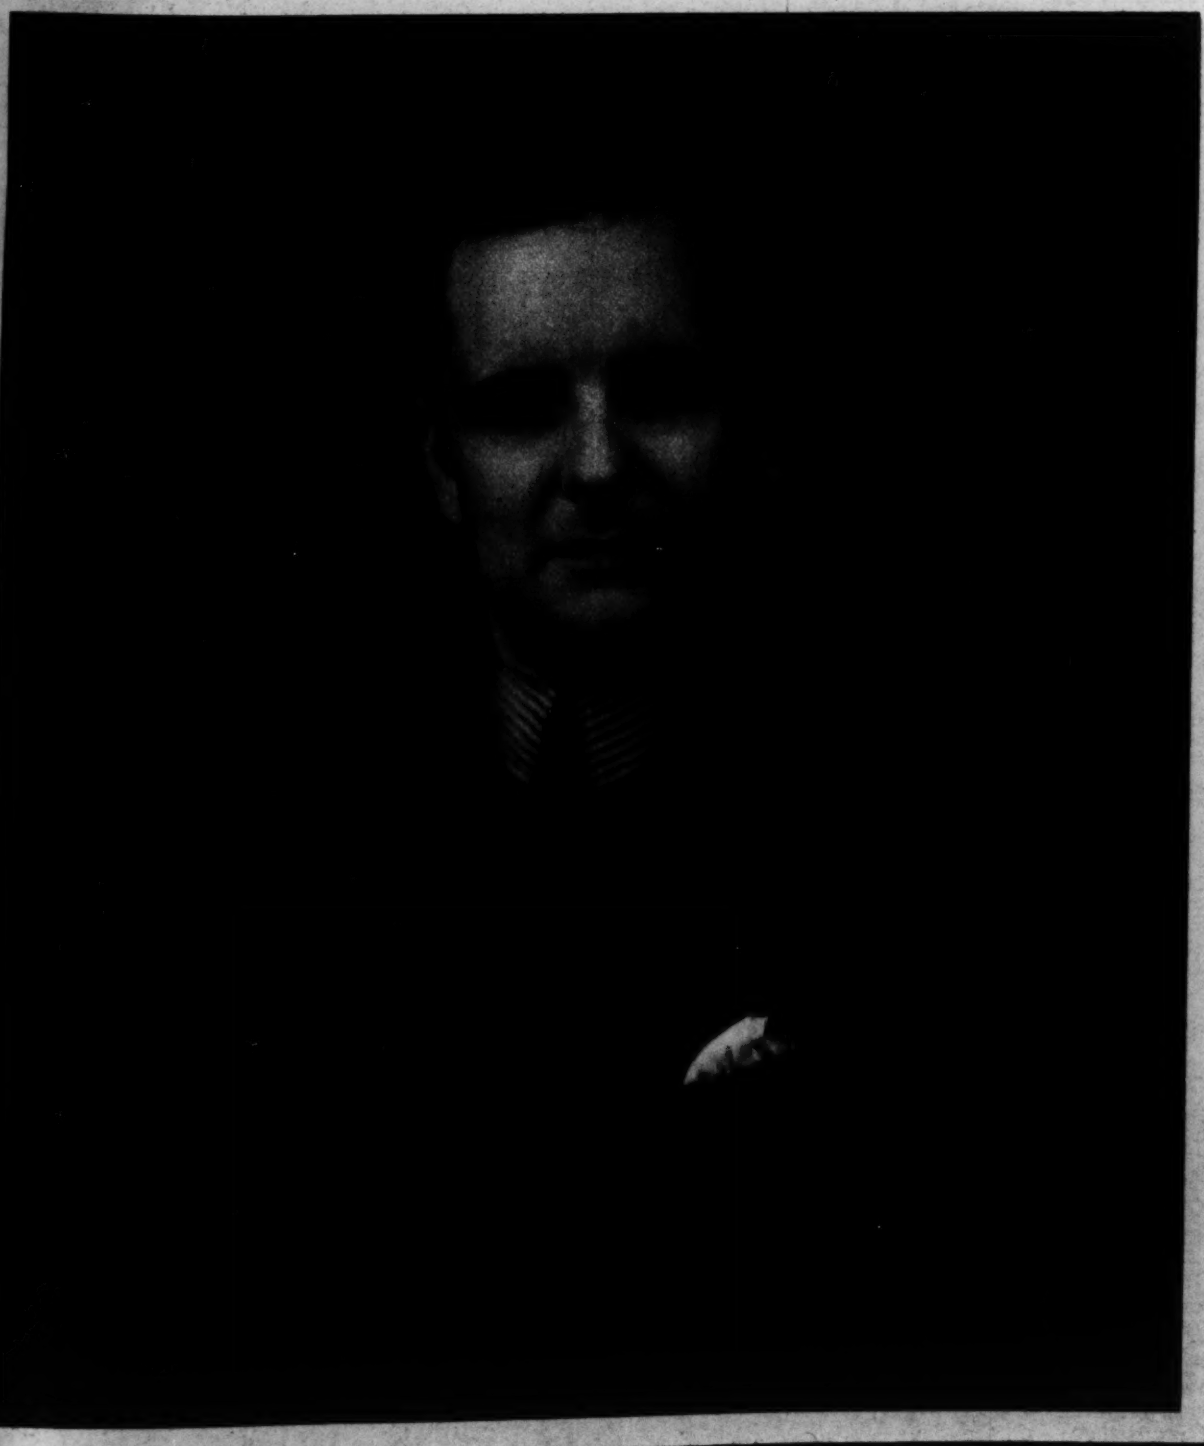
TOM MIX, the dashing darling, is seen here as he looked when Europe went wild, simply wild over him. His tie appears slightly askew—but that is merely a touch of careless elegance.



CLAIRE WINDSOR'S color photograph was printed here once before, but if you saw it you know it didn't begin to do the lovely Claire justice. We hasten to try out another, devoutly hoping that this one will come nearer to hitting the mark.



CREIGHTON HALE is a capable actor who can appear perfectly charming when the occasion calls for that, or, when the role demands it, seem the world's greatest prune. Here you see him apparently in a receptive mood, all set to do whatever the photographer might want him to do.

LOUISE FAZENDA, who for years was only paged when a director needed a slapstick comedienne, is being given semi-"straight" roles nowadays, and in them is doing herself proud. Pretty girl when she's dolled up and her hair's combed, isn't she?

Your Teeth—the daily measure of your Beauty and Health

How you can insure their safety and loveliness

TODAY you can be happy about your teeth—certain of their attractiveness—sure of their safety.

The best dental authorities now know how to cleanse and protect your teeth by nature's own method.

Your own salivary glands should give your teeth full protection. But modern foods do not give these glands the amount of exercise they need. Their alkaline flow, today, is not sufficient to counteract the acids that are constantly forming in your mouth from food.

Unprotected, your teeth decay. The effects of your brushing are over in a few minutes. The only way to prevent decay is to use the tooth paste that restores the full action of your salivary glands.

Pebeco keeps glands active

Pebeco is an effective salivary stimulant. Its effect is accomplished by gently promoting the flow of natural, alkaline saliva.

As soon as Pebeco enters your mouth the salivary glands flow more freely.

Pebeco restores the natural protective action of your mouth glands

With regular daily use Pebeco entirely restores the normal, protective flow of your glands. Their alkaline fluids bathe your teeth day and night and prevent the formation of bacterial plaques or film. The acids of decay are neutralized as fast as they form.

PEBECO polishes beautifully without using any gritty substance. It keeps your gums clean and stimulated, your whole mouth healthy.

Do not let your teeth deteriorate. Send today for a ten days' trial of Pebeco.

See your teeth whiten. Feel your mouth grow fresh and normal, and safe for your teeth. With Pebeco you can be free to smile and laugh from morning till night. You will know that your teeth are always white and beautiful to look at; that everyone who sees you will admire them.

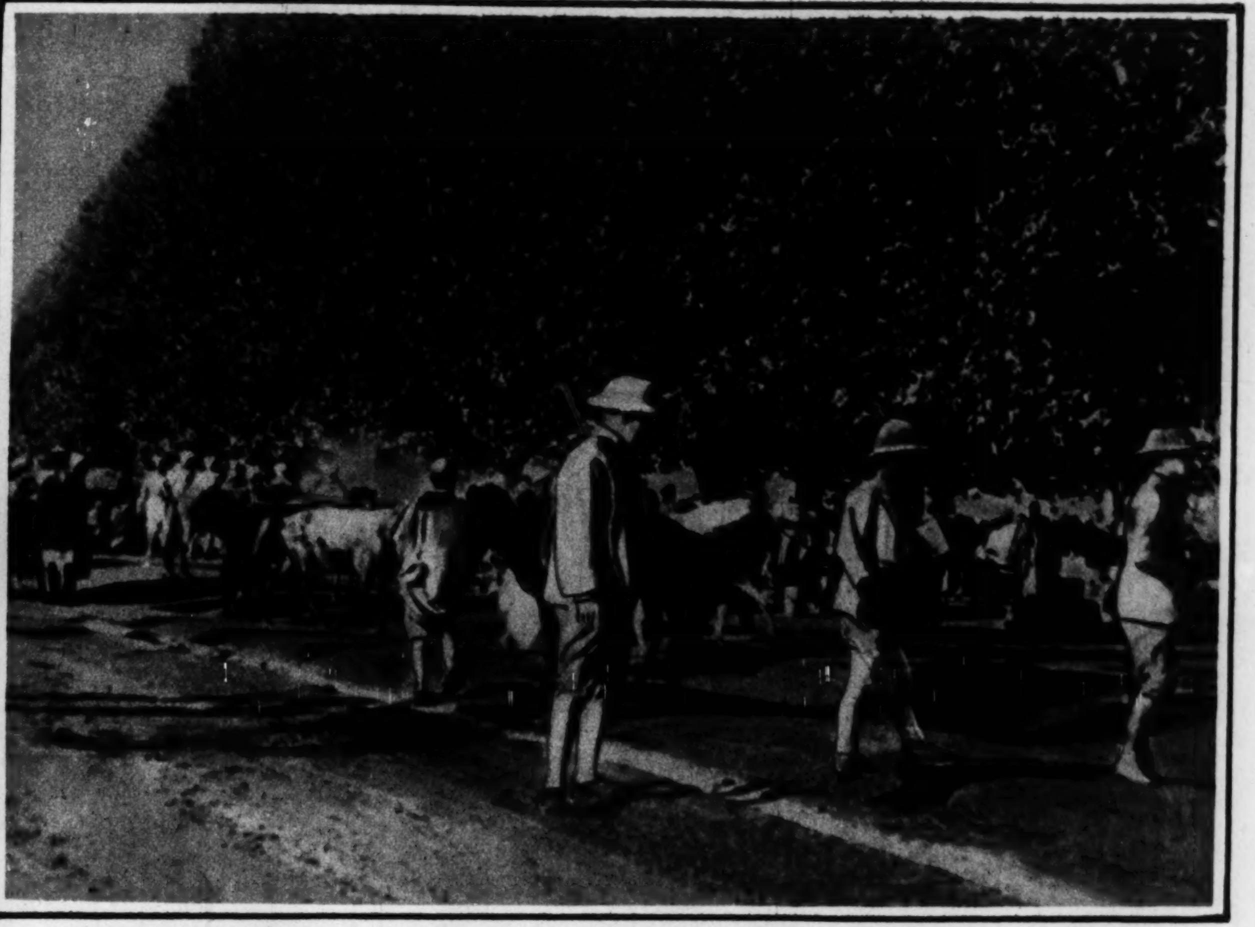
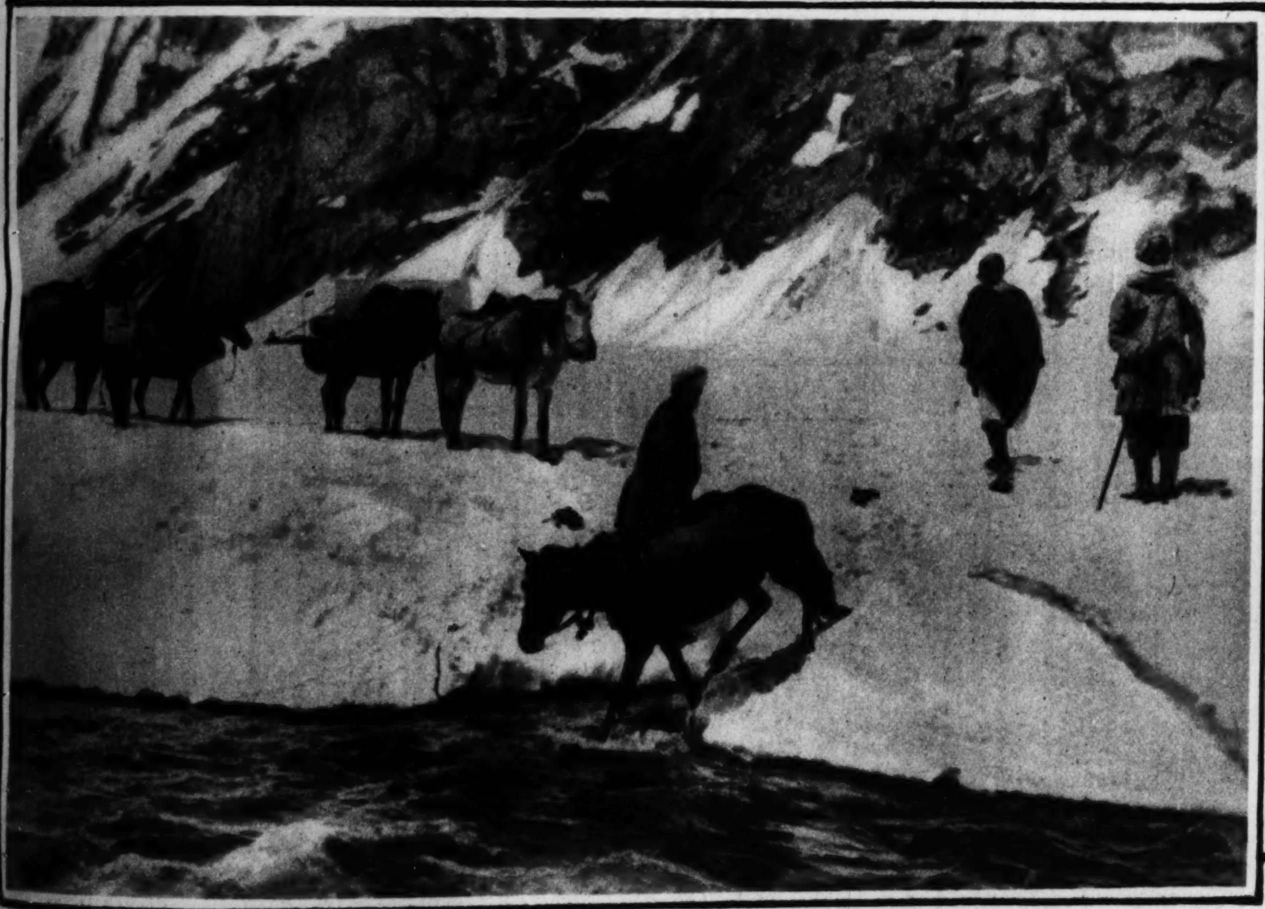
With the Roosevelts in Central Asia

WHERE T. R.'S CUBS TRAILED MARCO POLO in quest of scientific lore for the Field Museum of Chicago, and in search of strange game which is said to inhabit the wildest wilds of Central Asia. Here is a typical valley of the Himalayas. It was through a succession of terrifying wildernesses such as this that the Roosevelt expedition laid its course. The Tribune has secured the pictures obtained by the Roosevelts, and this is the first page of the photographs from the expedition.

(All photographs by Field Museum-James Simpson expedition, from Wide World.)



BREAKING CAMP at one of the earlier stops of the Roosevelt trek. In the foreground, directing the work, is Dr. George K. Cherrie, ornithologist with the expedition.

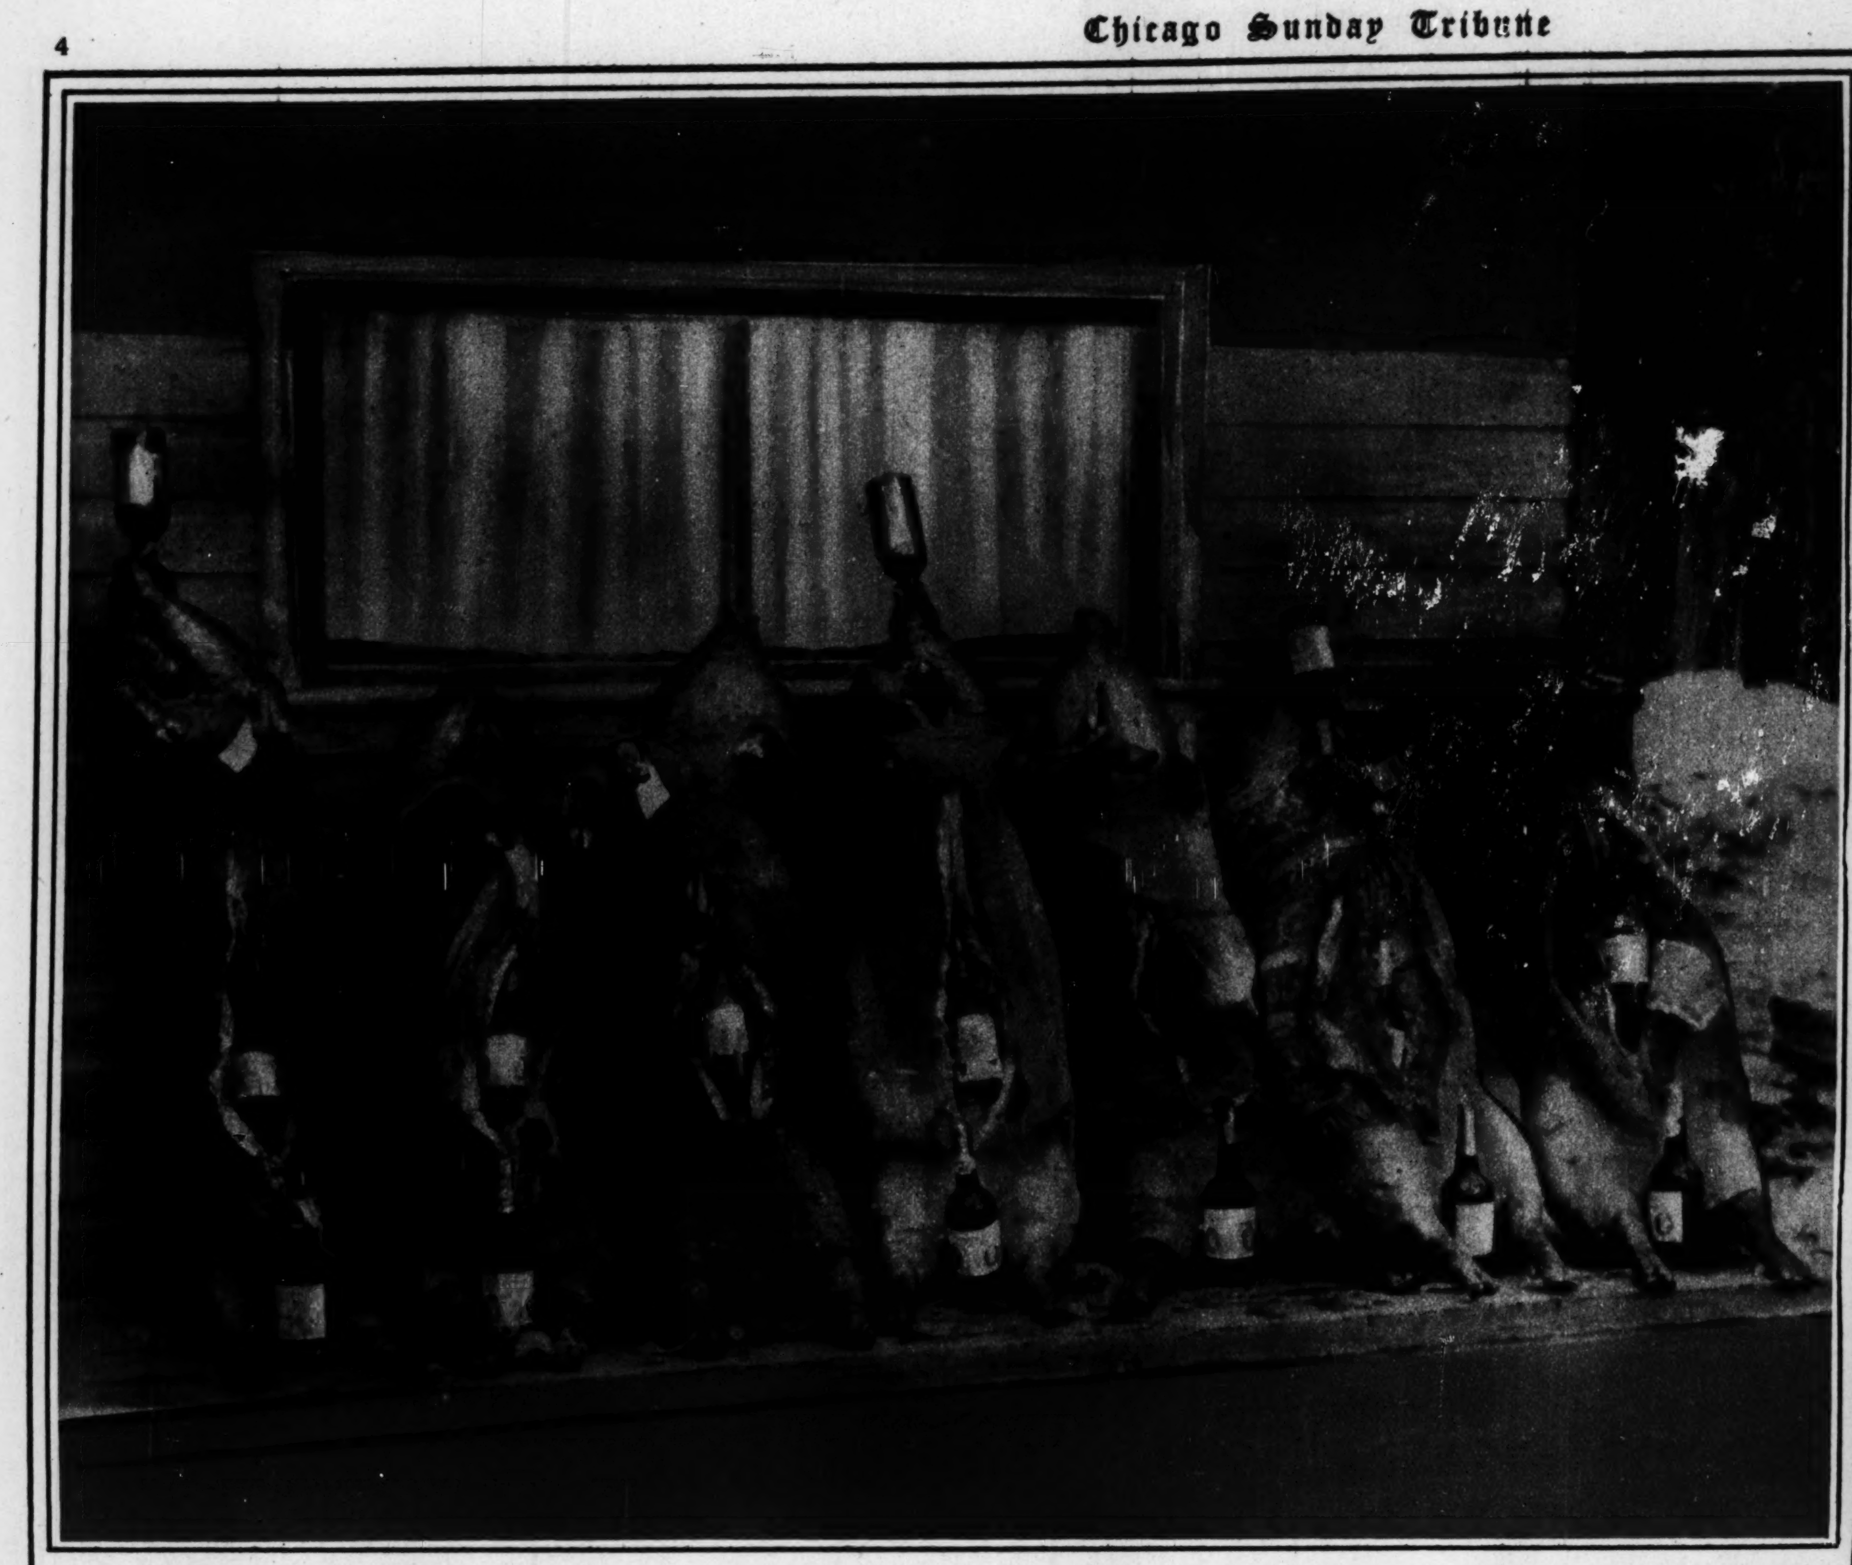


OVER A SNOW BRIDGE that spans a rushing stream in the frozen Himalayas. No word of hardships has come with these pictures, but the heavy bundling of the men would indicate that biting wintry blasts added to the perils of their journeying.

THE PACK TRAIN OF THE INVADERS winds along a narrow pathway up dizzy heights and down steep, hidden trails to the rolling valleys in between. This view from the heights limns in majestic splendor the snow-capped peaks of adjacent mountains.

RICE HUSKING in a fashion as ancient as time itself, with great staffs used to pound the grain in huge stone containers. It is the women who do this work, women clad in costumes that seem to date to Biblical times or back, far back, beyond that era.

THE PLOWMAN OF THE HIMALAYAS plods his weary way behind a primitive, hand-fashioned plow drawn by slow-moving oxen.



BEHOLD THESE REAL BLIND PIGS, carcasses of hogs stuffed tight with bottles of liquor to be smuggled over the border from Canada. Some bright bootleggers with a sense of humor conceived this camouflage, but the Canadian police became suspicious, cut into one of the stuffed porkers, and ruined the clever plot. The Convention

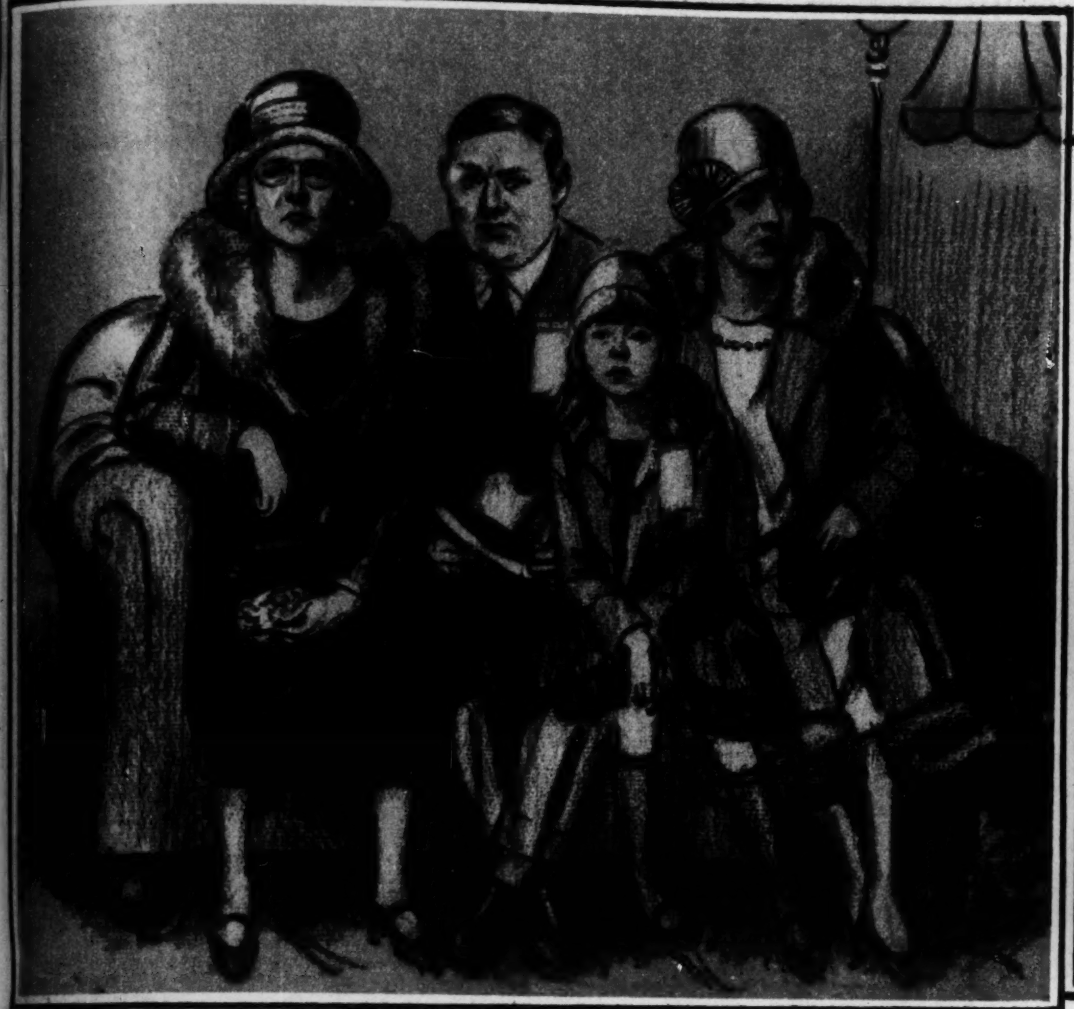
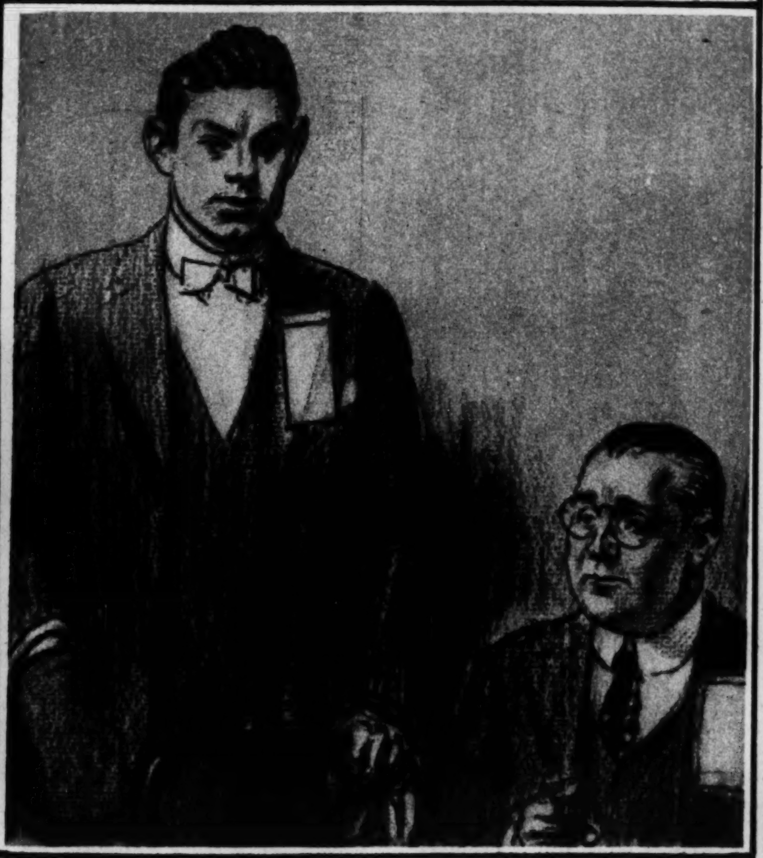
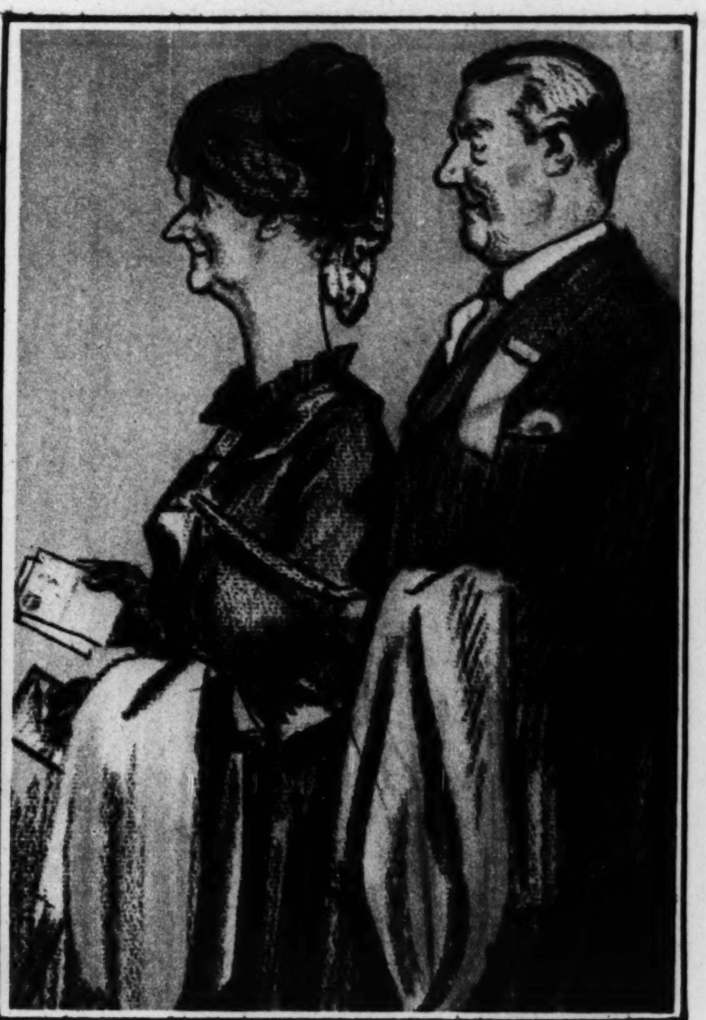
By W. E. HILL



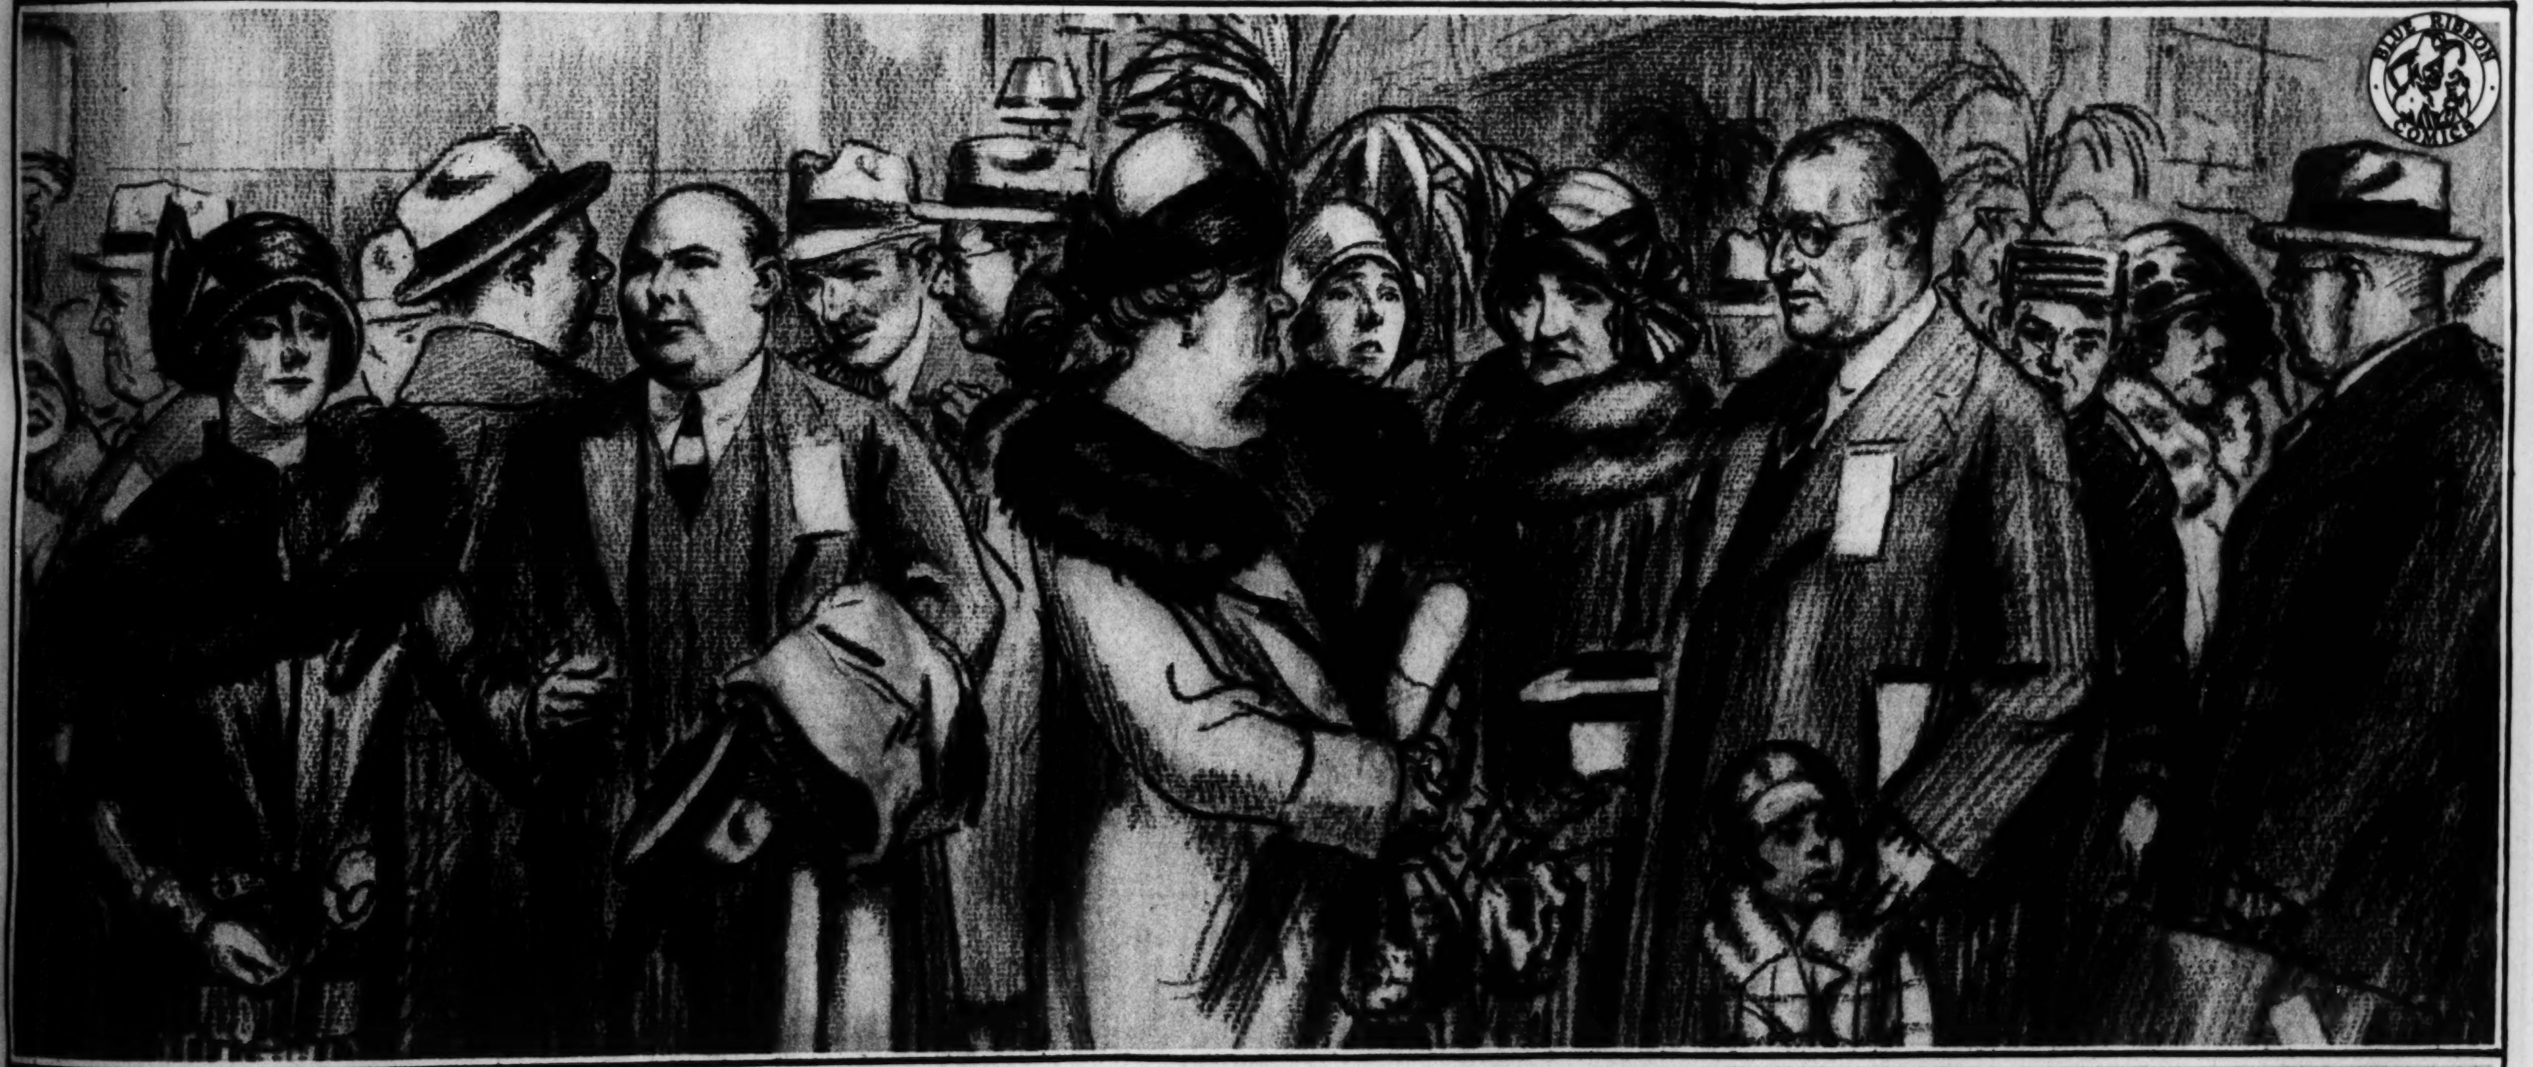
Too tired to move from where they have dropped! Mr. and Mrs. Roblee and their lovely daughters, Winnie and Judith, have been sightseeing as the guests of the national feather bed convention. In one day they have been through the Hygeia ice plant, the Hall of Records, Glendale cemetery, and the Art museum.



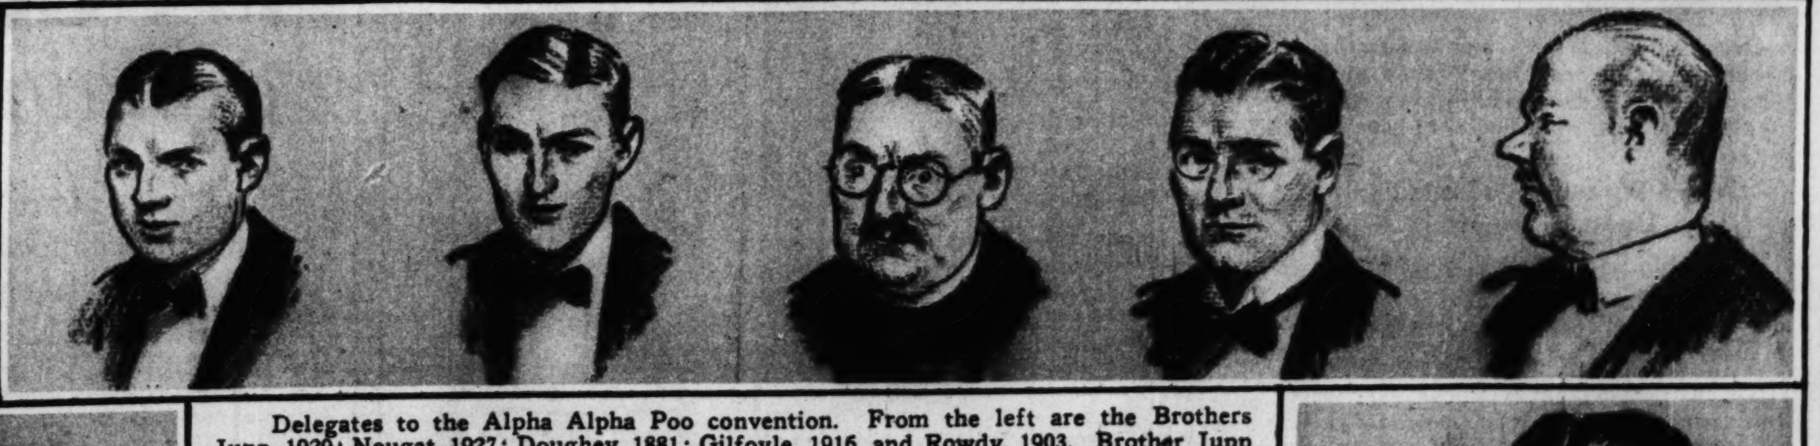
"Now, men, in closing I want to tell you a little story just being here today has reminded me of. . ." The after luncheon speaker at the get-together luncheon of the national convention of roach exterminators falls down on his grammar.



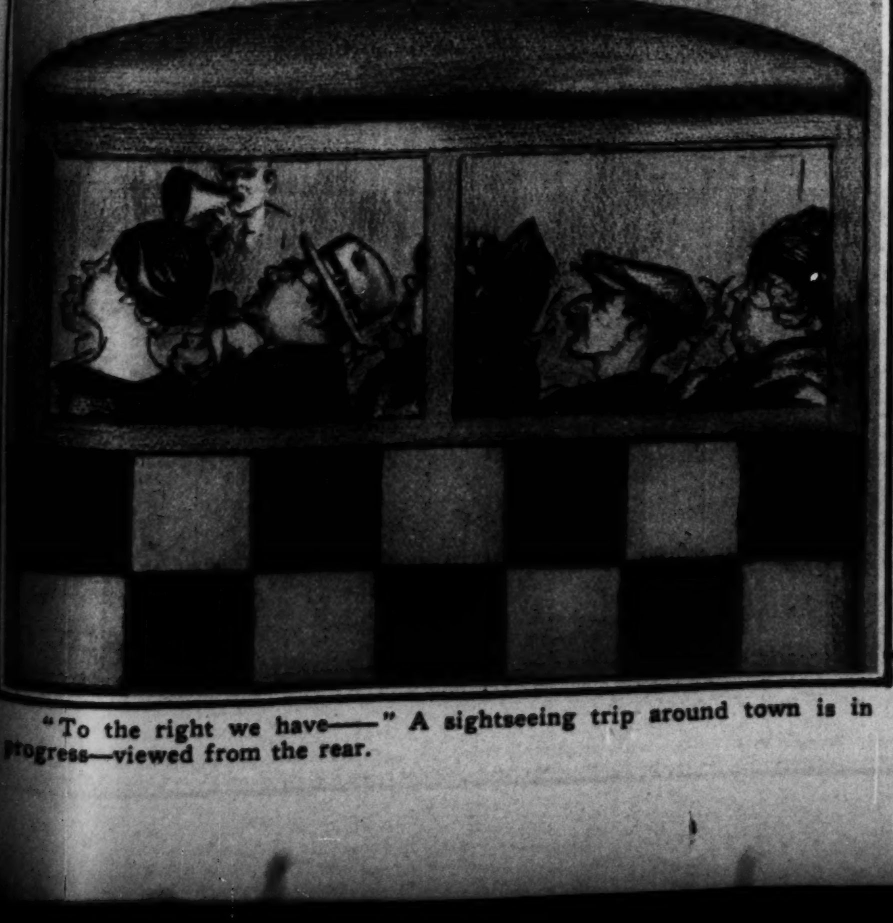
Meet Mr. Dwight Nimmo and his mother, Mrs. Franklyn Nimmo, on for the aspirin growers' convention. Mr. Nimmo is about to ask of a fellow delegate, "Well, up for all day?" That's the sort of a wise cracker Dwight is.



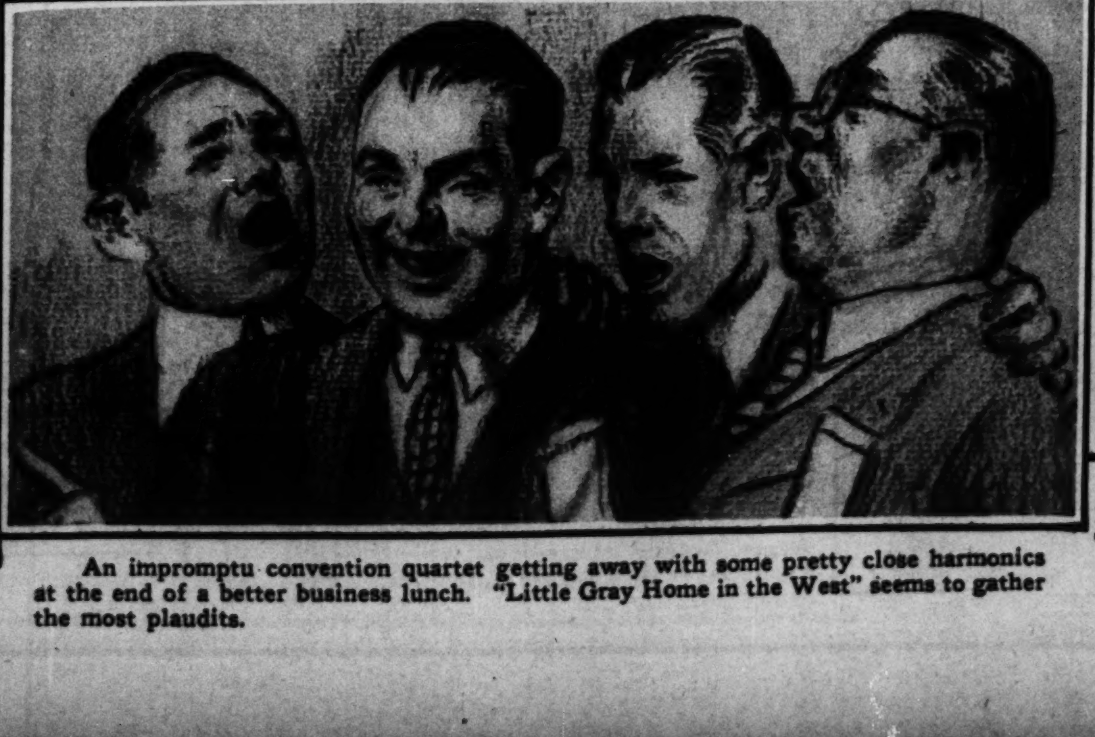
Peacock alley around 5:30 p. m., just outside the Messalina room. From left to right we have with us the newlyweds of six months on a belated honeymoon with the national convention of master accountants (headquarters on the third floor, small ballroom); a family group belonging for the time being to the convention of butter, egg and poultry magnates (third floor, large ballroom); and, with bag in hand, a late comer to the convention of national switch and hair net dealers (fifth floor, smallest ballroom). The butter and egg family have been to a matinee of "The Butter and Egg Man" and, O, the bitter disappointment! Not a hen, or an egg, or a pat of butter in the whole show.



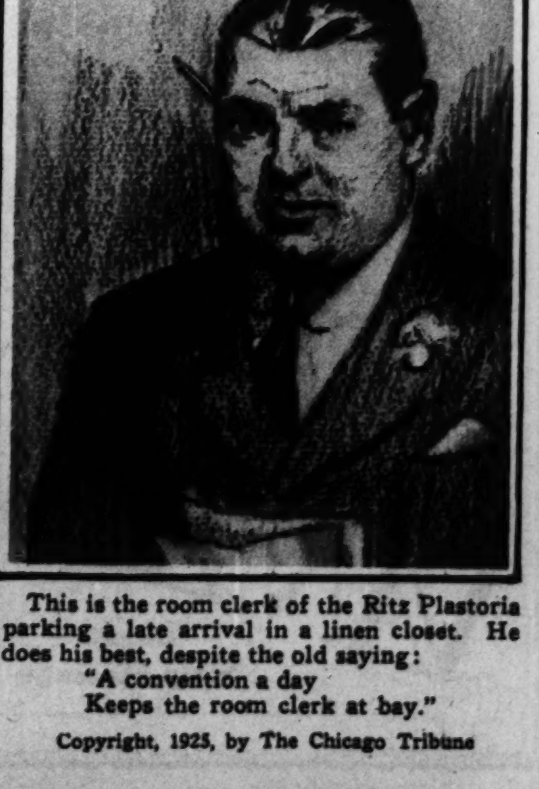
Delegates to the Alpha Alpha Poo convention. From the left are the Brothers Jupp, 1929; Nougat, 1927; Doughey, 1881; Gilfoyle, 1916, and Rowdy, 1903. Brother Jupp will speak on "Fellowship," a fraternity message from the Chow Chow chapter. Brother Doughey, D. D., will offer a prayer if asked to do so, and Brother Rowdy will lead the heavy drinking, whether asked to do so or not.



"To the right we have——" A sightseeing trip around town is in progress—viewed from the rear.



An impromptu convention quartet getting away with some pretty close harmonics at the end of a better business lunch. "Little Gray Home in the West" seems to gather the most plaudits.



This is the room clerk of the Ritz Plastoria parking a late arrival in a linen closet. He does his best, despite the old saying:

"A convention a day
Keeps the room clerk at bay."

A CAMERA HUNT IN WILDEST AUSTRALIA produced these two trophies. Above is a great goanna, or iguana, a giant lizard which native tribesmen regard as the daintiest of game foods. The ugly things reach a length of six feet or more and look like the worst sort of bad news, but they're not dangerous unless attacked. At the right is a native of Arnhem Land on the north coast of South Australia, posing "at rest." This storklike stance is a typical posture of these wild tribesmen, according to Capt. G. H. Wilkins, who headed the British Museum expedition which secured the pictures.

We Grow New Hair in 90 Days

Stop Falling Hair

This New Way

or Your

Money Refunded

We have discovered most all falling, lustreless hair due to Infected Sebum. Now quickly overcome. Hair regrown on 91 heads in one hundred

Van Ess now has delightful faint new odor

This is to offer you new hair—lustrous, beautiful, attractive—or money refunded.

It offers, too, to stop falling hair.

If we fail, the treatment costs you nothing. Your own dealer gives the guarantee. Hence you assume no risk.

Over one million men and women have already made this test. Results are amazing. The charm of wonderful hair is now available to almost anyone who chooses to have it.

Why 6 Women in 8 Have Dull, Unattractive Hair

Science has made many amazing discoveries. It is now known that hair roots seldom die from natural causes. They can be revived in many cases—given new life.

We have proved that in our own experience by regrowing hair on 91 heads in one hundred.

The method we use is new. Two years of exhaustive experiments were spent perfecting it.

Now many world-great dermatologists employ the ingredients. Some charge as much as $300.00 for a similar basic treatment.

Falling hair, dull, lifeless hair; hair without sheen or lustre—6 women in 8 have it.

We have demonstrated that the reason for most of it is a very simple infection. An infection of the Sebum, the scalp oil. This new way quickly overcomes it. It starts to act almost instantly. The effect is soon marked.

The Infected Sebum in Your Hair

Sebum is an oil. It forms in the glands at the follicles of the hair. Its natural function is to lubricate the hair.

But frequently it becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp; clogs the follicles and plugs them. Go to the mirror. See it on your scalp, either in the form of oil or when accumulated and dried with other ingredients, as dandruff.

Germs by the millions breed in it, then feed upon the hair. Soon your hair begins falling. You note too how lifeless it appears. In a short time, all the natural lustre and beauty are gone.

But—and note this scientific fact—remove the Infected Sebum and the hair reverts back to the softness and brilliancy it displayed when you were a schoolgirl.

The Van Ess treatment accomplishes that result. We know you will doubt it. So we guarantee it.

New hair grown in 90 days. Falling hair stopped. Your own dealer gives you our guarantee to do these things if you buy a 90-day treatment. If we fail, your money will be refunded by us, without argument.

We urge you to give this new way a fair trial. It is folly not to test it; for remember, you take no risk. More than 600,000 women have made this test.

Go today to any drug or department store. Obtain the Van Ess 3-bottle treatment. With it you will get a signed guarantee.

VAN ESS LABORATORIES, INC.
28 East Kinzie Street
Chicago, Ill.

Costs Nothing

Unless we grow hair. The Van Ess 3-bottle treatment is absolutely guaranteed. You are the sole judge. The warrant is given by your own dealer. All we require is his signature showing you have purchased a ninety-day treatment. If it fails, we refund your money. Hence you assume no risk making this test.

Note This New Way

—It Massages the Treatment Directly to the Follicles of the Hair

You can see from illustration that Van Ess is not a "tonic." It combines a massage and medicament in one treatment. You do not rub it in with your fingers. Each package comes with a rubber massage cap. The nipples are hollow. Just invert bottle, rub your head, and nipples automatically feed medicament down to follicles of the scalp where it can do some good. At the same time the nipples give your head a massage.

It is very easy to apply. One minute each day is enough.

Snug harbors for decay germs

It is much easier for your toothbrush to clean the more exposed surfaces of your teeth. It is in the crevices that the germs get in their fine work. Kolynos used in the mouth becomes a liquid which flows into the crevices and kills the germs which would otherwise start decay.

Tooth Decay explained

How germs pierce the hardest substance in your body as surely as the dentist's drill

See these germs?

Look harmless, don't they? But Acidophilus germs are anything but harmless. They easily eat through hard enamel, a material that blunts the edge of tempered steel. These germs, small as they look here, are magnified hundreds of times. They are soft, yet they eat through the enamel of your tooth as surely as the dentist's powerful drill.

TRY this germ-killing dental cream at our expense. But first, read why it is necessary for teeth that germs be killed. Germs are the cause of tooth decay.

Two University of Michigan scientists examined a great many decayed teeth. In nine out of ten they found a certain germ. They turned this germ loose on sound teeth and in a short time it ate through the enamel. Kill this germ, they claim, and you immediately check decay. They made experiments. When teeth were treated with dentifrices that did not kill the germs, the teeth decayed; but when the germs were killed, there was no decay.

Many eminent scientists attest the germicidal power of Kolynos Dental Cream. They find that it kills, in the mouth, 80 to 90 per cent of the mouth bacteria. And after using Kolynos, hours pass before there are again enough germs to damage your teeth. You say to yourself, "How clean my mouth feels!" which is the best of evidence that most of the germs are no longer there. Kolynos manufacturing laboratories are located at New Haven, U. S. A.; at London, England; and at Montreal, Canada.

Free!

Enough Kolynos to brush your teeth 22 times, ½ inch to the brushing. Fill in the coupon on the right.

THE MATADOR'S LAST FIGHT, an unusual picture of a famous bull fighter being gored by his intended victim in a Mexico City arena. The great arena was crowded with thousands of spectators when the idol of the bull ring fell. (Photograph from International)

Cutex quickly removes the dead, dry skin at the nail base

Learn this method perfected by the greatest authority on the manicure..

SMOOTH SHAPELY CUTICLE
IN ONLY A FEW MOMENTS

THE troublesome part of keeping the nails well groomed and charming is the cuticle. The whole secret lies in keeping the nail rim free from the old skin that dies as the new grows out.

Cutting only makes it worse. When you cut too much you make hangnails and little raw places. When you cut too little the dead skin is still there.

But the greatest authority on the manicure has perfected a safe, antiseptic liquid—Cutex Cuticle Remover. It softens the cuticle and loosens it from the nail so that the old skin wipes easily away.

HOW TO USE CUTEX: Wash the hands and shape the nail tips. Dip the orange stick in Cutex, twist a bit of cotton around the end and dip in the bottle again. Work gently around the base of each nail to loosen and remove the dead dry skin.

Then pass the wet stick beneath the nail tips to bleach them. Now rinse with water and wipe each finger tip thoroughly. The new skin is left firm and unbroken, framing the nails in lovely ovals. The tips are white and stainless. For a lovely finish, try the delicate new Powder Polish—or spread a drop of the lasting Liquid Polish over each nail.

Cutex Manicure Sets—35c to $5.00—contain everything you need for the manicure. Single items 35c.

Where the serving of food is an art you find Crispo products

The next time you dine out in Chicago, as you pick up the menu, think what an infinite number of details must be organized by the management, the chef, the waiters, to assure the perfect service you expect. . . . The planning, the buying, the preparation, the cooking, the serving of food that is characterized by its quality and excellence. . . . In hotels, clubs, restaurants, tea-rooms of the first order in Chicago, where menus require crackers, Crispo products are used because they are the finest to be bought. At places like the Blackstone, the Windermere, Maillard's, the Crillon (all shown on this page); at the Chicago Athletic Association, at Marshall Field's lunch room—these are but a few of the finest dining-rooms in Chicago where you enjoy Crispo products.

First choice!

And in the homes that set Chicago's standards, Crispo is first choice. Here hostesses are equipped to entertain beautifully, at formal dinners, debutante teas, wedding breakfasts. Here fine linen, sparkling glass, heavy silver, delicate china, flowers and candlelight, furnish the correct settings for meals that are perfect in every detail. With soups, with salads, with cheese, housekeepers and cooks who have every resource serve Crispo Lily Soda Crackers—both on state occasions and every day. . . . A Crispo product for every use.

Crispo products satisfy mothers who regulate their children's diets efficiently, who insist on purity, quality, and food value. And Crispo crackers satisfy children who want something-good-to-eat! Crispo Grahams are especially fine with milk and with fruit; the Cocoanut Bars and the Fig Bars are wholesome sweets, and the Lily Sodas spread with jam or peanut butter are a wonderful between-meals lunch.

Better than anything you've tried

When you taste Crispo products, you are immediately convinced of their excellence. So fresh, so crispy—so delectably flavored! You realize that Crispo kinds really are better than anything you ever tried. . . . The reason for this goodness that must be described in superlatives is the high standard maintained in the Crispo bakery. . . . Only the finest ingredients are used. Pure creamery butter, pure granulated sugar, strictly fresh eggs. Measuring, mixing, baking is done scientifically and accurately. Proportions are never skimped. There is never any substitution. Ovens are operated at exact temperature and proper humidity. This results in master-baking. . . . This is why experts—people who prepare food for a business, professional restaurateurs, choose Crispo. This is why housewives who insist on the best get Crispo.

Your grocer will suggest a variety of Crispo products that you will like. Some kinds you will want to keep on hand all the time—others, the iced goods, you will often order for a special treat. If you fancy chocolate, there are several delicious Crispo kinds: wafers, filled cookies, frosted cookies. The Guest Assortment includes different sorts of crackers delightful to have with tea or hot chocolate; ask about it. Remember, you can buy Crispo products in bulk, ordering as many as you like whenever you wish, always certain they are fresh. You will find this the most economical way of purchasing.

OVER TWELVE MILLION EVERY DAY

We are proud that growing demand for Crispo products has put our production at over 12,000,000 biscuits, crackers and cookies per day in this great Chicago territory. And it is ever increasing. Such a popular response is our reward for using in our products only the highest quality material and the most painstaking care in their preparation. This production means that there is a biscuit, cracker or cookie for every person in the great Chicago neighborhood every day. We hope that each of you is enjoying your share of the good things Crispo makes.

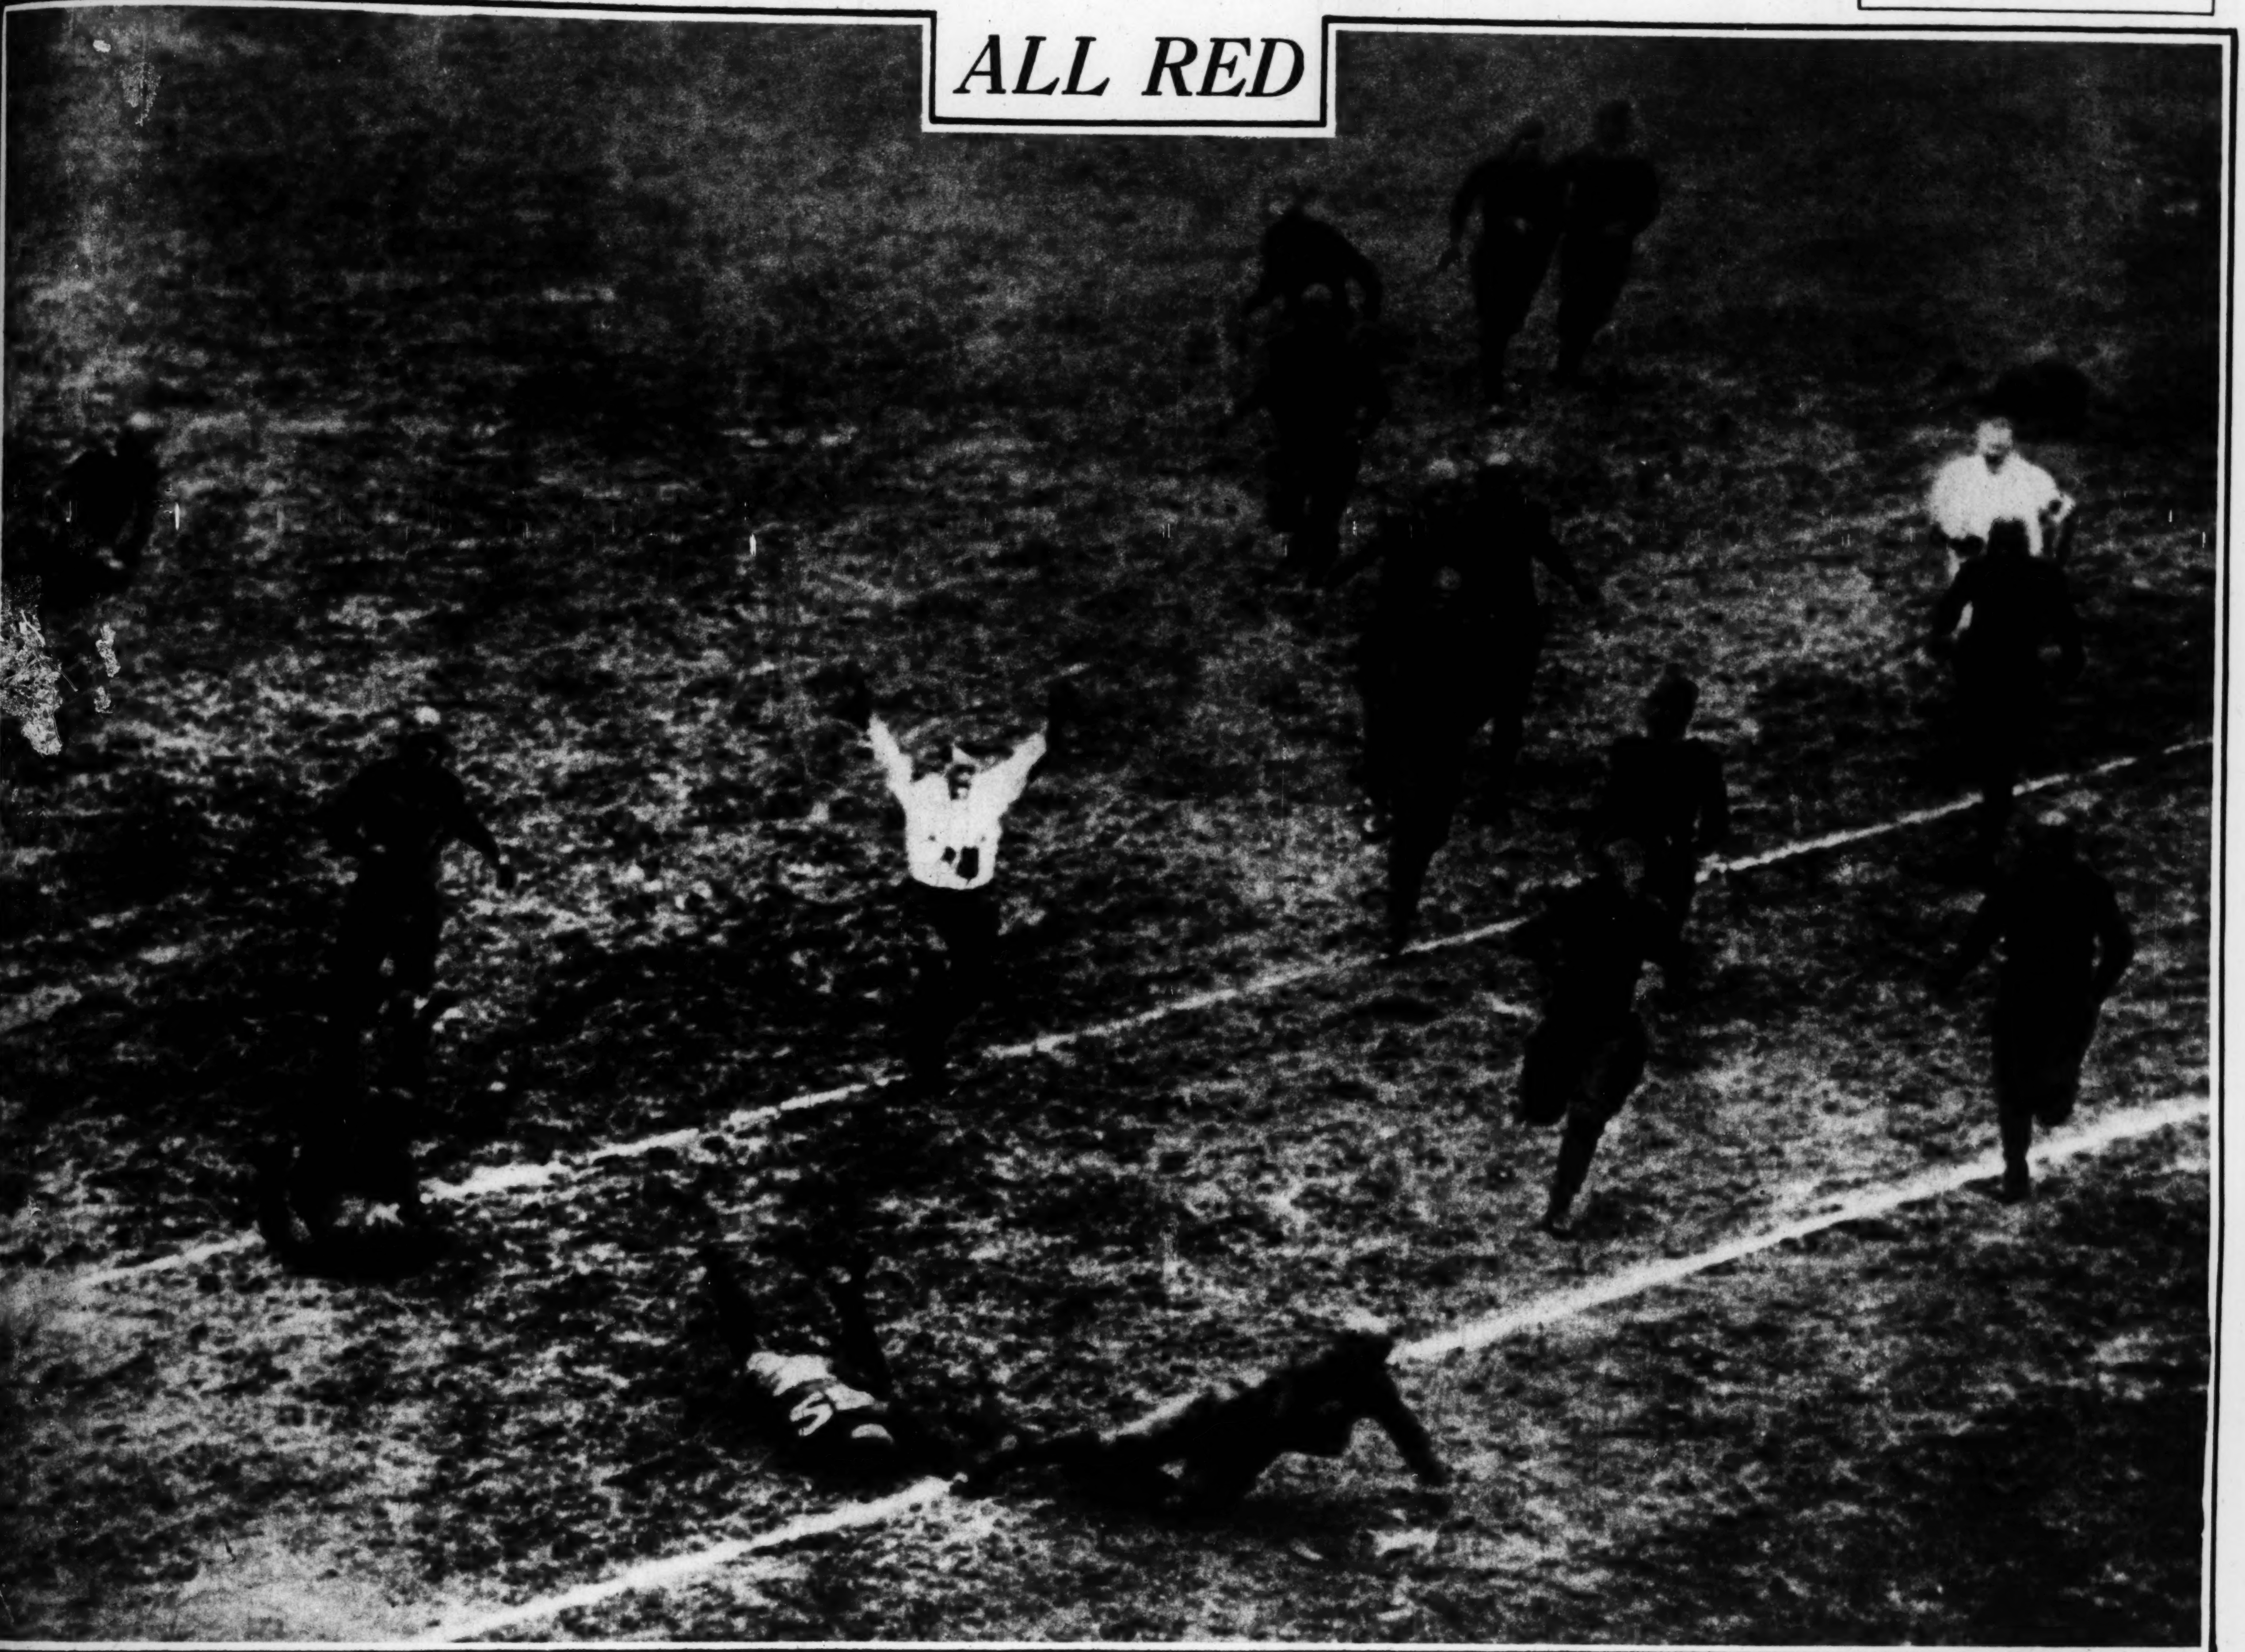
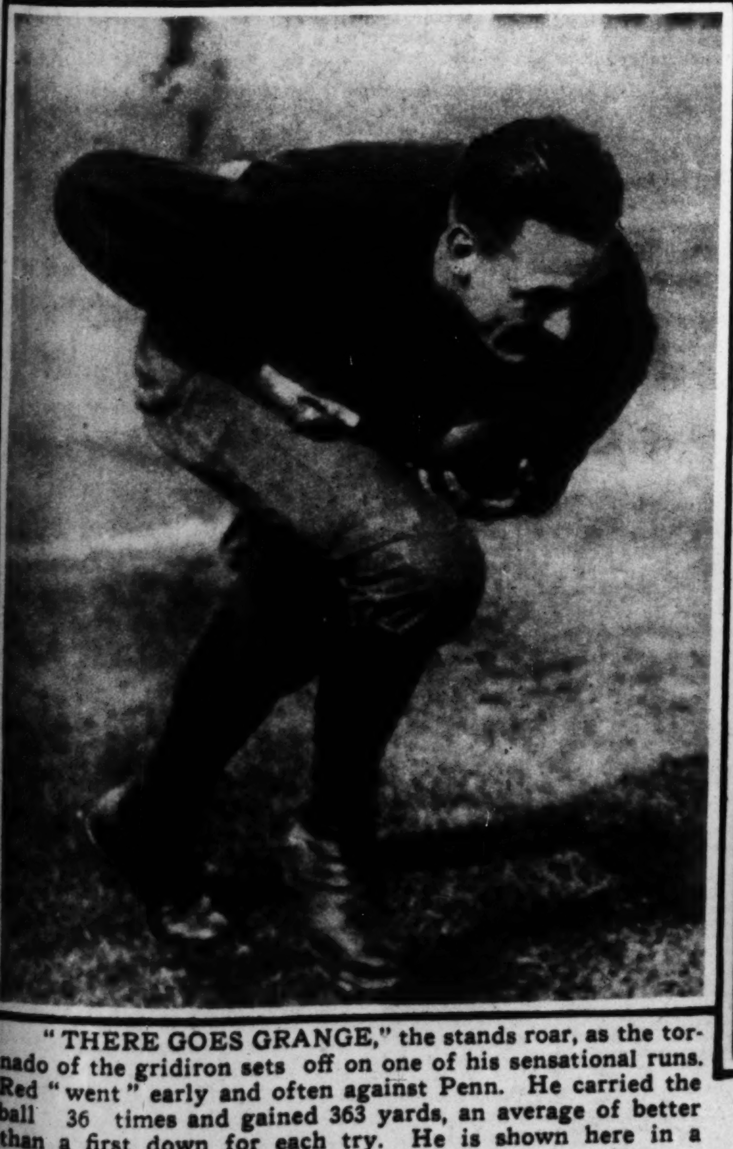
ALL RED



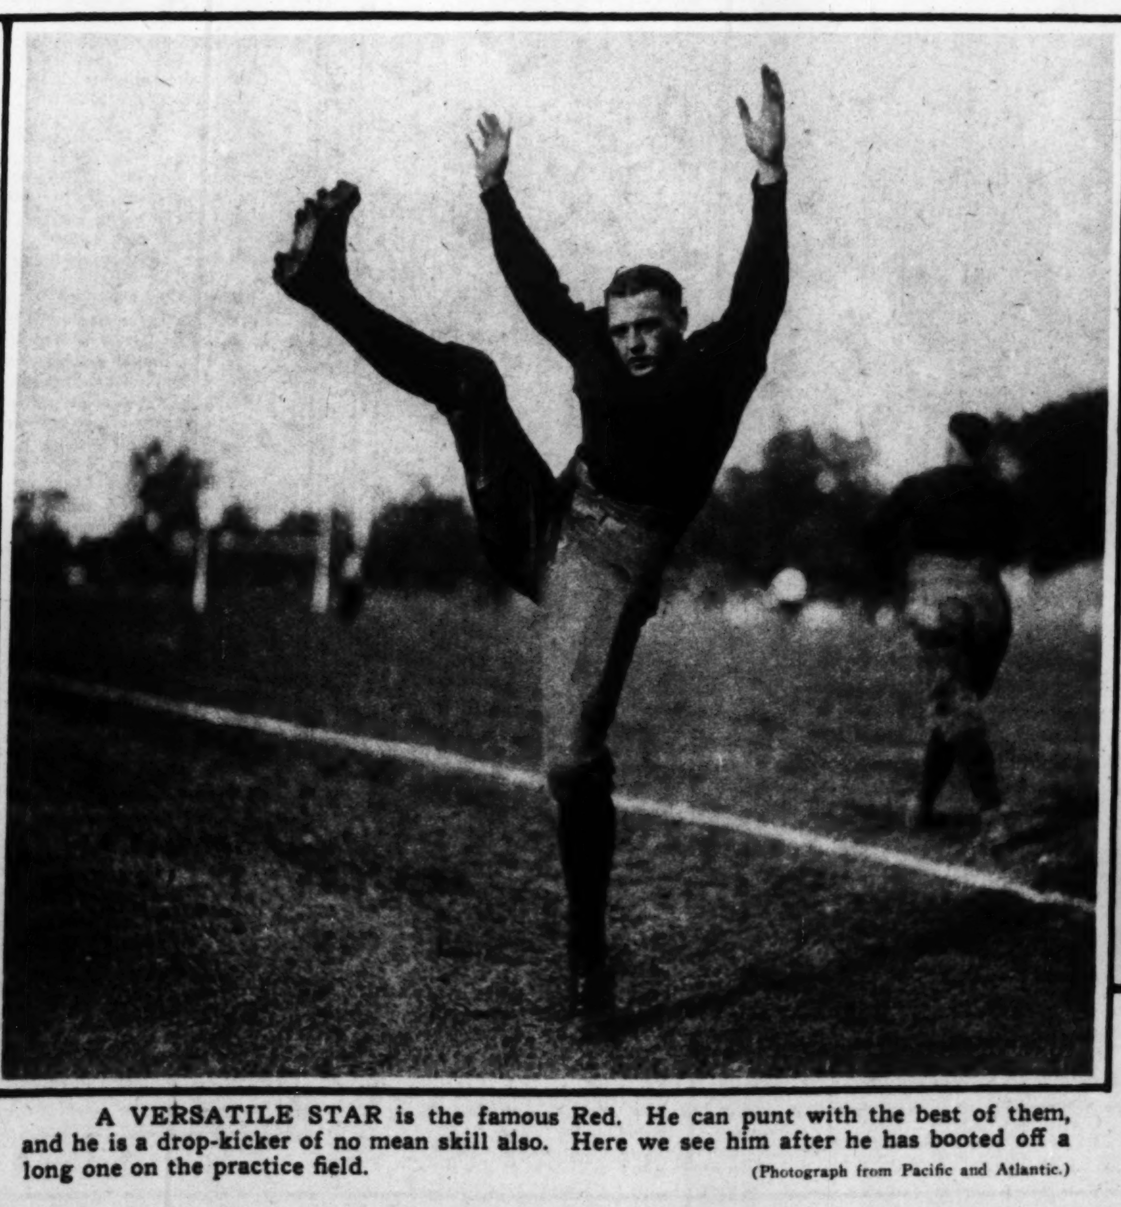
THE GREAT RED GRANGE GOES OVER for the third touchdown in the sensational east-west battle in which Illinois swamped Penn at Philadelphia, 24 to 2. This action picture tells the whole story of the rout. Penn could not stop the mighty Grange. Red won the game almost single-handed, scoring three touchdowns and putting the ball where Britton could smash across for the fourth Illinois score. Tumbled behind the flying Grange are three Penn tacklers whom he eluded. The one stretched over the goal line did manage to get a hand on Red's ankle, but Red drove on and over the line. Right on top of the play is Referee Walter Eckersall, The Tribune's football expert, throwing up his arms to indicate the touchdown is made. That Red had won the east was demonstrated twice during the game. Near the end of the half he was called out for a rest by Coach Zuppke. The great crowd of 63,000 rose en masse and stood silent, the men with bared heads, as the superman trotted to the sidelines. Never before had a hostile throng paid so fine a tribute to a football star. Again, when Grange was taken out for the last time, the gathered thousands surged to their feet and loosed a veritable tornado of cheers in tribute to this hero from the west.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



"THERE GOES GRANGE," the stands roar, as the tornado of the gridiron sets off on one of his sensational runs. Red "went" early and often against Penn. He carried the ball 36 times and gained 363 yards, an average of better than a first down for each try. He is shown here in a crouching dash during practice.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



A VERSATILE STAR is the famous Red. He can punt with the best of them, and he is a drop-kicker of no mean skill also. Here we see him after he has booted off a long one on the practice field.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE—A closeup of the mighty Grange as he looked on Franklin field at Philadelphia. For three years the east has heard the west talk of Grange as the greatest football man of a decade. The east was a bit skeptical, but after the Penn game the critics dug for new superlatives in their praise of this Man-o'-War of football.

There's still plenty of time to enter the Contest

YOU have until November 30th to send in your answers to the eleven simple questions in the Squibb $25,000.00 Educational Contest.

Your chance of winning one of the big cash awards is still as good as anybody's!

Look at the 508 wonderfully attractive awards shown below. $2000.00, $1500.00, $1000.00, $500.00, $250.00, and so on! Even the smallest awards are well worth trying for.

Glance over the ten questions in the contest columns below. The eleventh question may be secured from the Squibb druggist nearest you or by sending the coupon direct.

The questions are certainly not difficult to answer. They require no technical knowledge. You probably could answer most of them right now — without any outside help or information.

But to help you write even better answers we have prepared a valuable little booklet on the contest which we know will give you additional information, and which contains the conditions of the contest. Also the eleventh question!

This book will be sent to you if you fill out the coupon and send it to us at once.

When this booklet comes to you, read it over carefully. Then write out your answers to the eleven questions. In return for this easy work, which you will find quite fascinating, you will stand as good a chance as anybody of winning one of the big cash awards.

Fill out the coupon now before you forget it. A great many people —508 of them—are going to win. Why not try?

SQUIBB EDUCATIONAL CONTEST

Each advertisement of E. R. Squibb & Sons has an educational purpose. It gives information which, if followed, will lead to better health. To help accomplish this purpose, we will distribute $25,000.00 in cash awards among 508 contestants who give the best answers to eleven questions, ten of which appear below. Secure the eleventh question from the Squibb druggist nearest you, or send the coupon below.

THE QUESTIONS

Notice that none of the contest questions is difficult to answer, nor does the answering of them require professional or technical knowledge.

1. What is "The Danger Line" in the mouth? Why is it so called?
2. How can you best guard your teeth against Acid Decay and your gums against Pyorrhea and thus maintain your general health?
3. What is the important constituent of Squibb's Dental Cream? Why is it so important?
4. Why should a dental cream be free from grit or similar abrasives?
*5. Of what value are antiseptics, germ-destroying chemicals or astringents in a dental cream?
*6. Why should a dental cream be free from substances that would be harmful when continually used in the mouth?
7. Why is a correct dentifrice of the utmost importance in the care of children's mouths?
8. Why should you have in the family medicine cabinet only such products as are approved by your physician?
9. State one or more points of superiority in each of the following products: Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, Squibb's Castor Oil, Squibb's Cod Liver Oil, Squibb's Epsom Salt, Squibb's Bicarbonate of Soda.
10. Why is it important to consider the "Priceless Ingredient" before you buy?

100 Special Awards of $25.00 Each

One hundred of the $25.00 awards will be set aside for the hundred contestants who give the best answers to any one question. Winners of the general awards will not be eligible for these special awards. Thus you may answer only one of the eleven questions, or if you answer all or any number of the eleven questions, and your answers as a whole do not win a general award, you have a chance to win one of these special awards.

The judges for the Squibb Educational Contest are:

MR. THEODORE WEICKER, Vice-president E. R. Squibb & Sons.

Dr. Anna V. Hughes, D. M. D., Professor of Preventive Dentistry, Dental School of Columbia University, New York City.

MRS. WALTER McNAB MILLER, Chairman of the Department of Public Welfare of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Special Consultant to the United States Public Health Service.

You should have the FREE Booklet—it will help you answer the questions

SQUIBB

The "Priceless Ingredient" of every Product is the Honor and Integrity of Its Maker

The price of SQUIBB'S DENTAL CREAM HAS BEEN REDUCED TO 40c A TUBE. In a little more than three years the demand for Squibb's Dental Cream has increased from a few thousands to many millions of tubes a year. This demand has necessitated the erection of a new manufacturing laboratory in Brooklyn, N. Y. With the completion of this great new plant, certain economies in manufacture have been effected, and the saving has been passed on to you. The retail selling price of Squibb's Dental Cream is now 40c a tube, instead of 50c a tube. For sale everywhere.

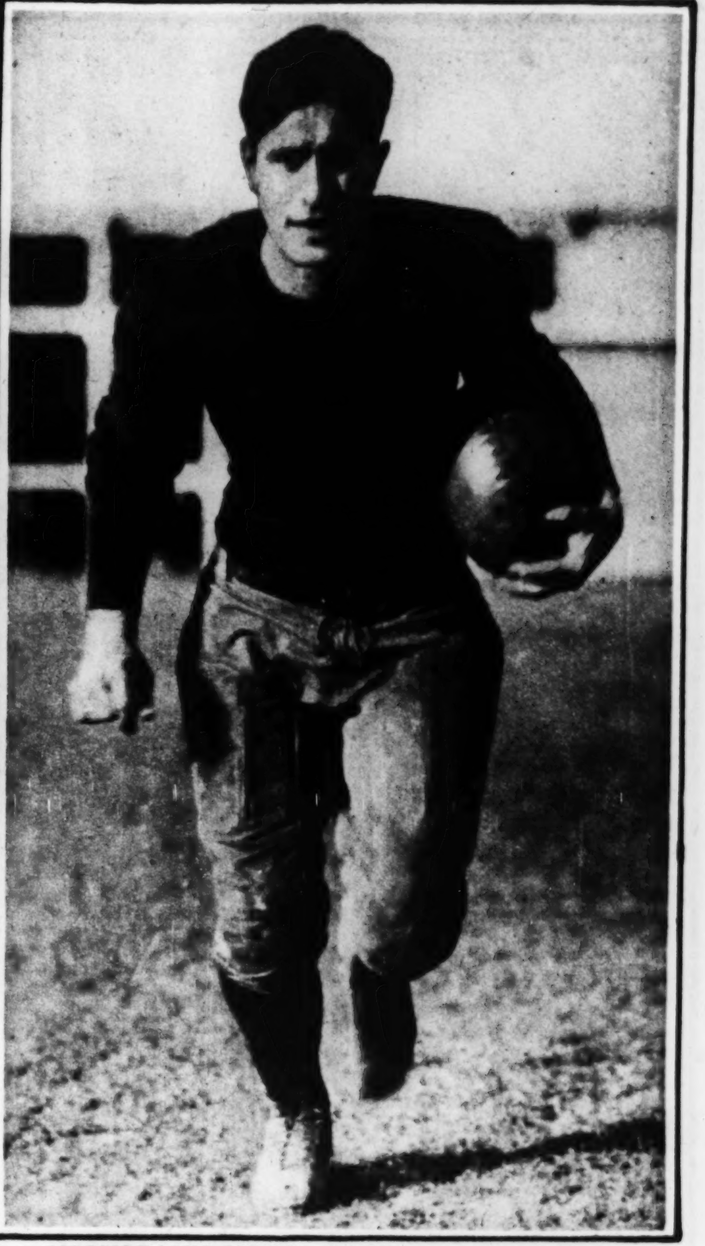
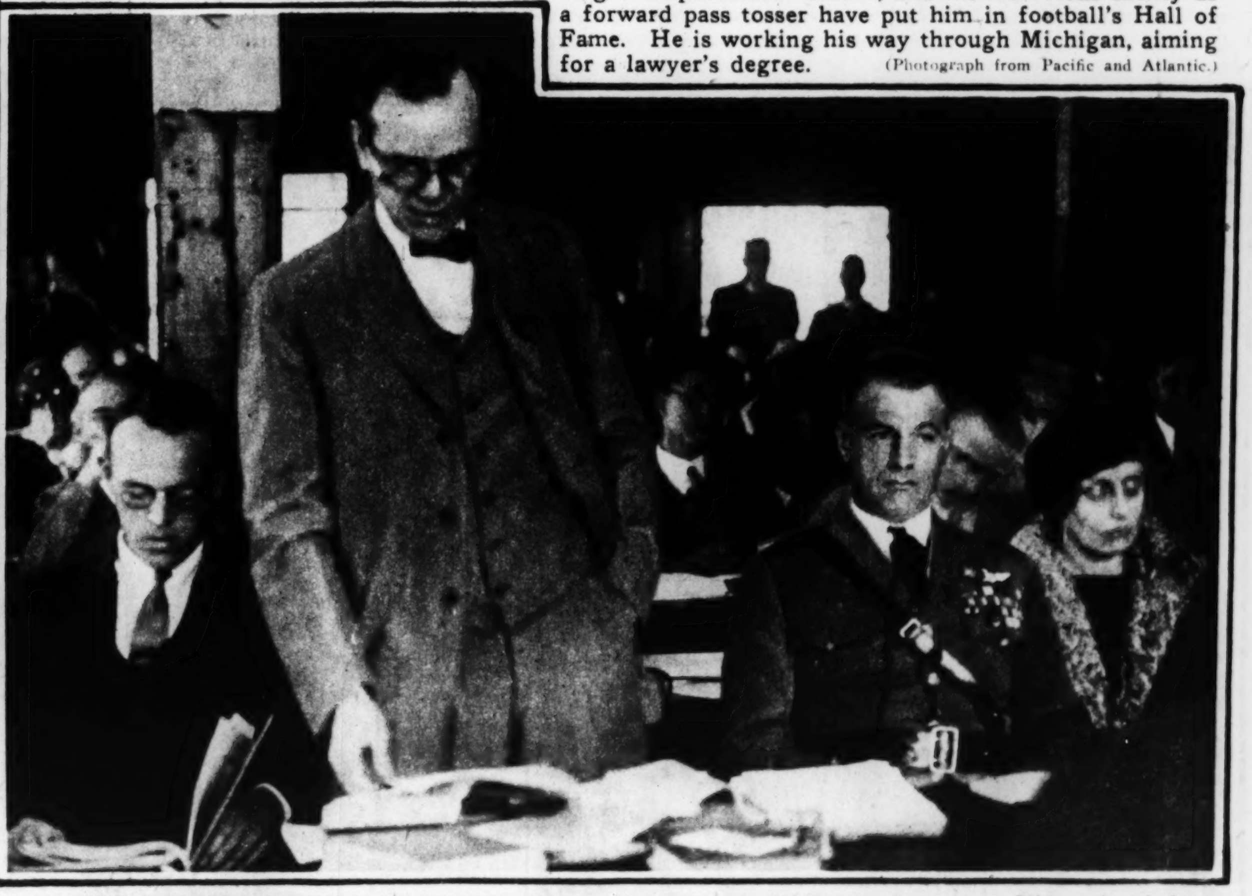
COLONEL MITCHELL'S JUDGES, the ten army officers who made up the court martial board. Originally there were thirteen on the board, but summary challenges by Col. Mitchell ousted three members, Brig. Gen. Albert Jesse Bowley, Maj. Gen. Fred Winchester Sladen, and Maj. Gen. Charles Pelot Summerall. In this group are Generals E. E. Booth, F. R. McCoy, B. A. Poore, D. McArthur, R. L. Howz, president of the board, E. B. Winship, W. S. Graves, W. S. King, E. B. Winans, and George Irwin. All are either brigadiers or major generals. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

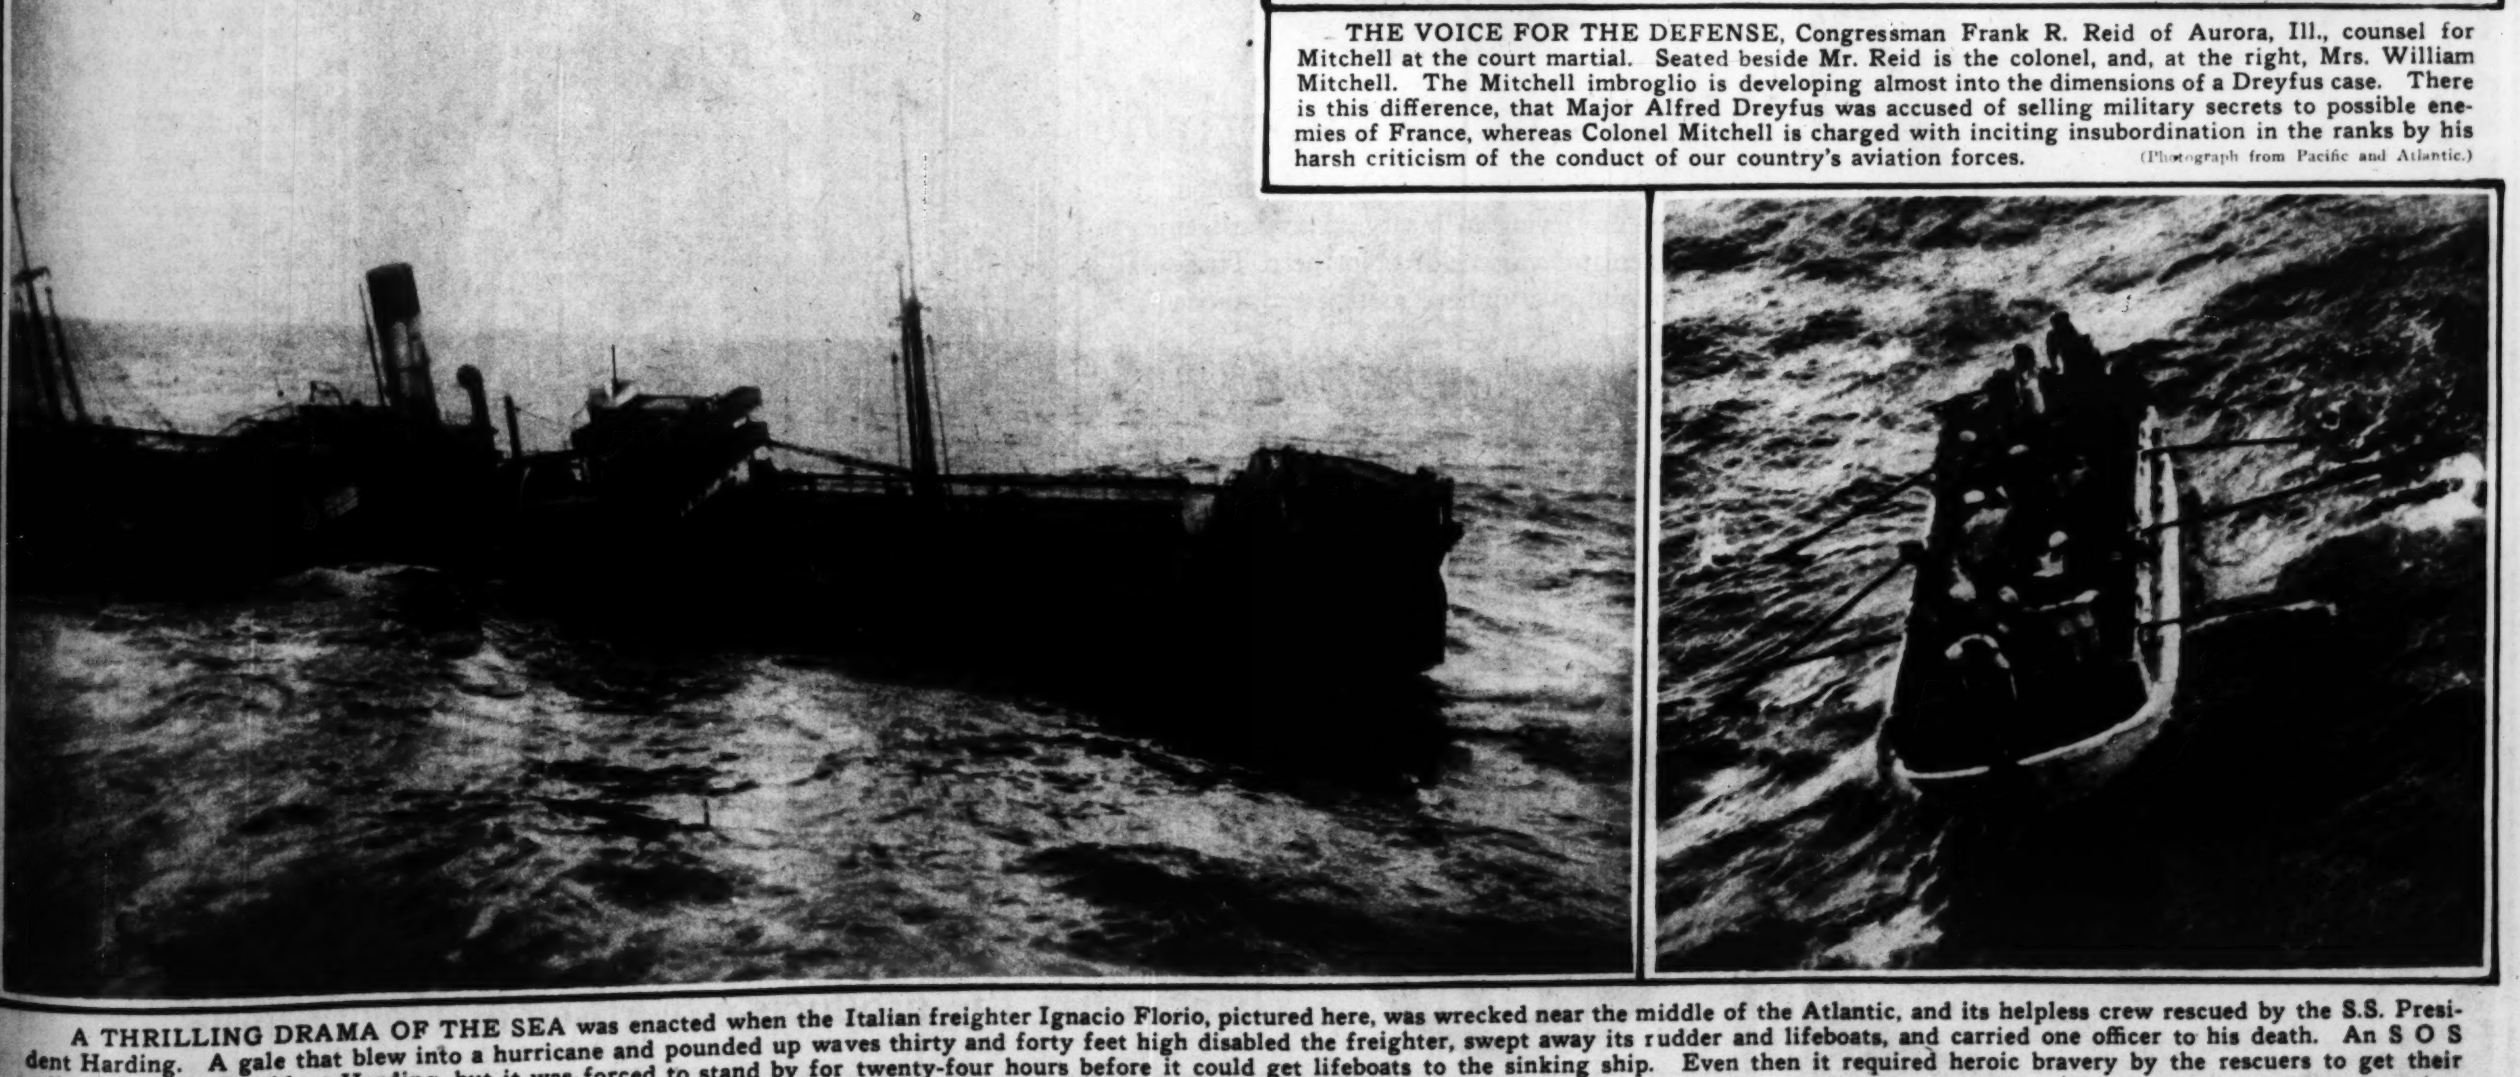


MICHIGAN'S HERO of the current football season is Benny Friedman, quarter back. Rated now as one of the best pilots in the game, this 19 year old Jewish lad was twice discarded by gridiron coaches as a hopeless prospect. His clever handling of the Yost machine, his long and spectacular dashes, and his marvelous ability as a forward pass tosser have put him in football's Hall of Fame. He is working his way through Michigan, aiming for a lawyer's degree. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

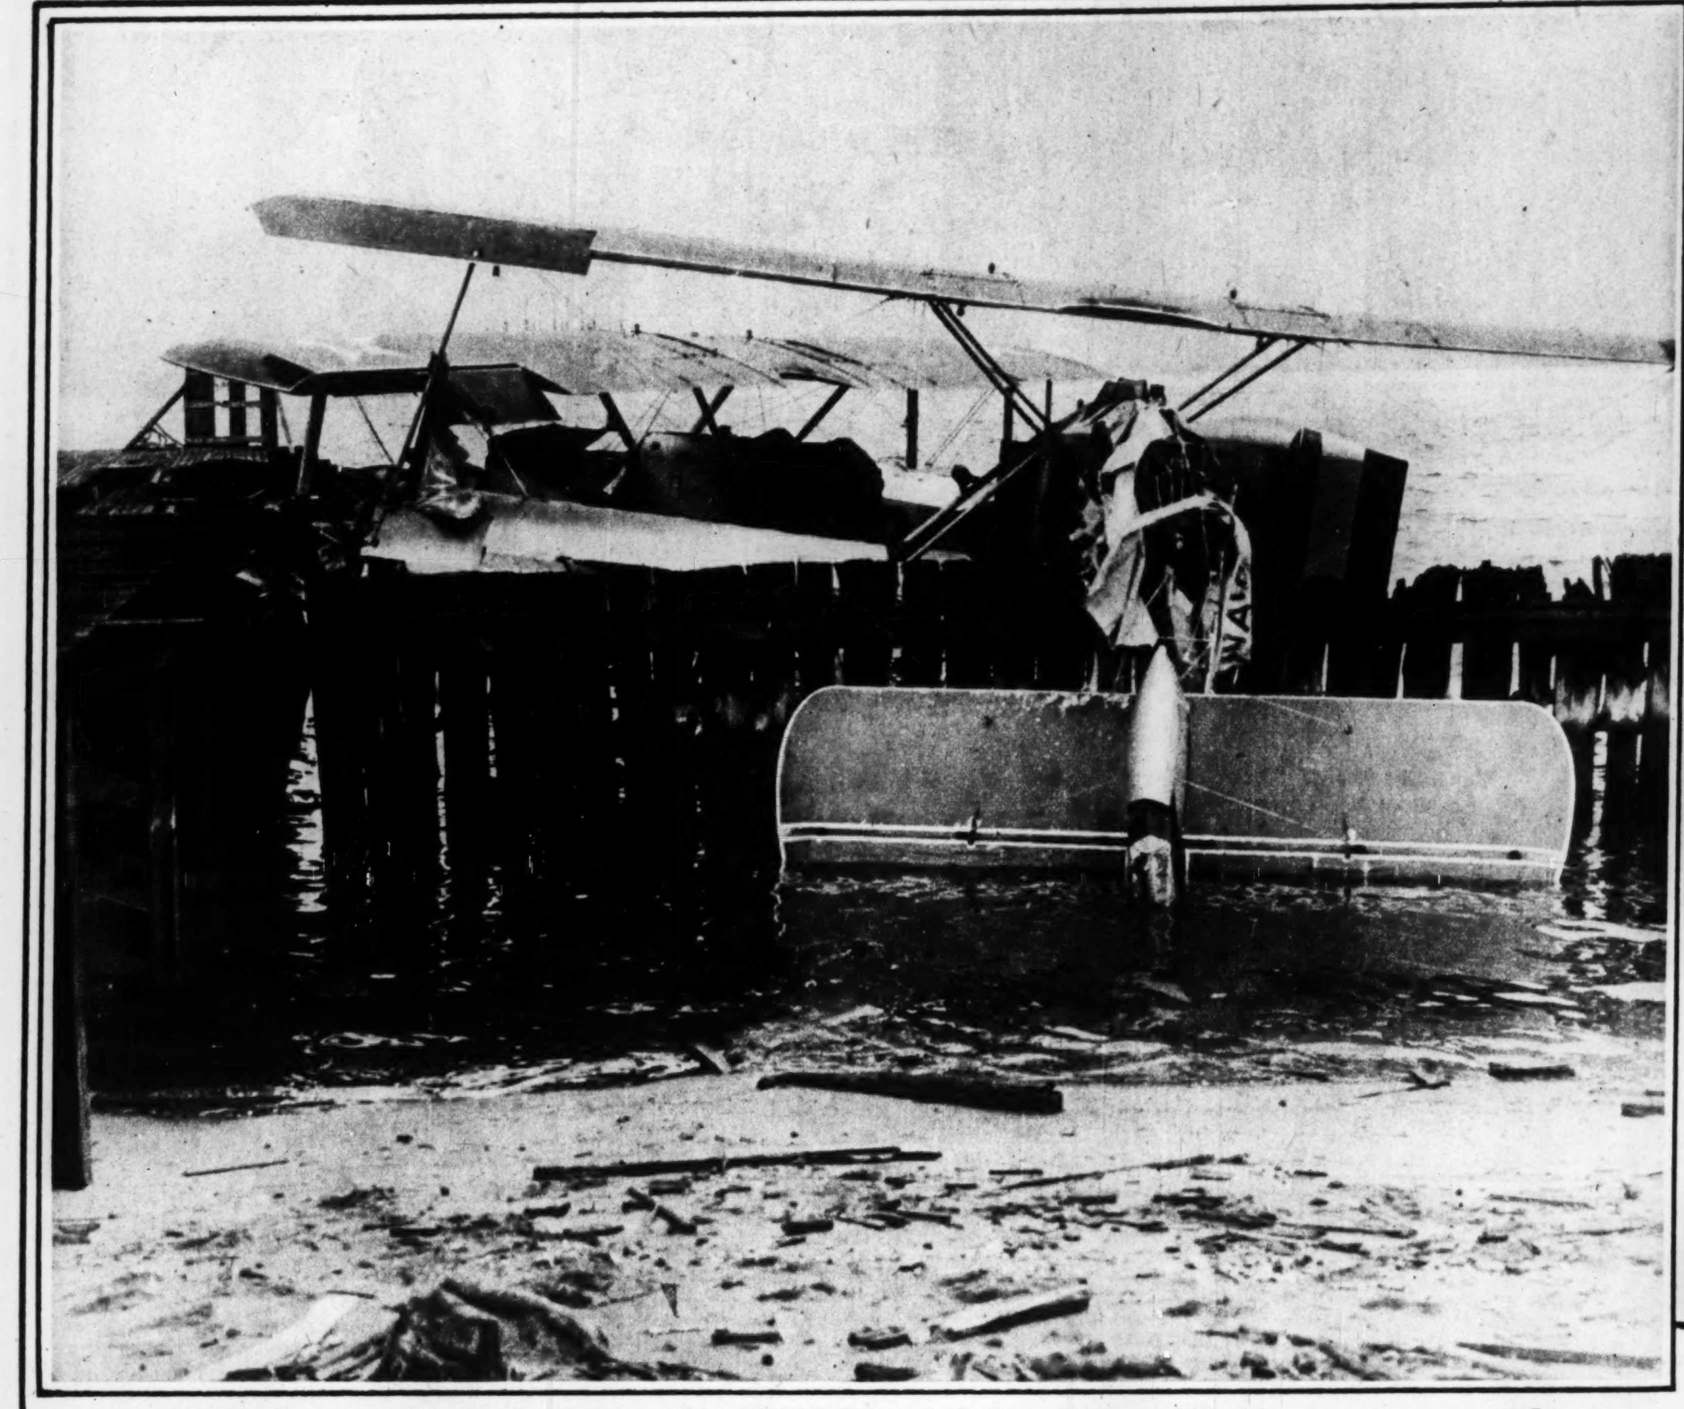
MITCHELL HEARS THE CHARGES, standing thus for an hour and a half before the court martial. The board invited both Mitchell and the judge advocate to be seated, but the latter insisted on standing, and Mitchell followed suit. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



THE VOICE FOR THE DEFENSE, Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora, Ill., counsel for Mitchell at the court martial. Seated beside Mr. Reid is the colonel, and, at the right, Mrs. William Mitchell. The Mitchell imbroglio is developing almost into the dimensions of a Dreyfus case. There is this difference, that Major Alfred Dreyfus was accused of selling military secrets to possible enemies of France, whereas Colonel Mitchell is charged with inciting insubordination in the ranks by his harsh criticism of the conduct of our country's aviation forces. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



A THRILLING DRAMA OF THE SEA was enacted when the Italian freighter Ignacio Florio, pictured here, was wrecked near the middle of the Atlantic, and its helpless crew rescued by the S.S. President Harding. A gale that blew into a hurricane and pounded up waves thirty and forty feet high disabled the freighter, swept away its rudder and lifeboats, and carried one officer to his death. An S O S call brought the President Harding, but it was forced to stand by for twenty-four hours before it could get lifeboats to the sinking ship. Even then it required heroic bravery by the rescuers to get their boats to the Florio. Our second picture shows a lifeboat from the Harding filled with men saved from the doomed vessel. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



HURRICANE WRECKS FLEET OF NAVY SEAPLANES sent to Baltimore for the Schneider cup race pageant. Seventeen ships had wings and pontoons smashed when they were torn from their moorings by the storm. Seven planes were a total loss.

THE BIG THREE OF MASONRY, chiefs of more than 500,000 Scottish Rite Masons, gather at Washington for an important meeting of the order. The men are John H. Cowles, sovereign grand commander of the supreme council in the south of the United States; Raoul V. Palermice of Rome, sovereign grand commander for Italy, and Leon M. Abbott of Boston, sovereign grand commander in northern United States.

A BUTTERFIELD FABRIC

Such dainty, long-wearing underthings can be made from

Lingette

Everybody thinks its silk

IT feels like silk, it looks like silk, but it wears like cotton! For Lingette is cotton, every thread of it—fine, close-textured cotton which offers iron-resistance to wear and washings!

Lingette's lovely lustre is permanent. Lingette's exquisite tints suggest generous supplies of lovely lingerie—peach or pink, Nile or ciel or orchid! Lingette also is made in white, for those many women who prefer white underthings!

The name "Lingette" is always marked on the selvage.

FRED BUTTERFIELD & CO., INC., 361 Broadway, N. Y. C.

Too Fat

Millions now easily reduce

There is no excuse for excess fat today. Any person who permits it suffers in beauty, health and fitness. In every circle you can see that millions have learned how to remove it. Overweight is not one-tenth so common as it was.

The modern way is Marmola Prescription Tablets. It is the easy, pleasant way. No abnormal exercise or diet is required. Take four tablets a day and watch the excess disappear. Reduction is gradual, rarely exceeding a pound a day. So the body adjusts itself to the new condition.

Marmola has been used for 18 years. Countless people have used it and told others about it. The use has spread, until people now are taking a million boxes yearly. There are people all about you who can tell you what it does.

Learn the facts about Marmola. Our book states every ingredient, tells you exactly how it acts. Your own druggist signs our guarantee. In fairness to yourself learn how easy it is to be slender.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. Send this coupon for our latest book, a 25-ct. sample free, and our guarantee. Clip it now.

WAR CLOUDS DARKEN THE BALKANS AGAIN, and once more these soldiers of Greece are called to arms. This time the shooting of a Greek soldier by a Bulgarian frontier guard brought an ultimatum from Greece and a hurried session of the League of Nations to avert a minor war that might spread to threaten the peace of the whole world. Greek cavalrymen are pictured here in offensive operations.

There's unquestioned smartness and good taste in each Nettleton style

THERE'S a decided attractiveness about the Nettleton Fall fashions which clearly defines smartness in terms of good taste. The simple, well-chosen, well-balanced lines of the "Marlboro", shown above, readily appeal to the man who insists upon being correctly as well as comfortably dressed.

Nettletons will prove, too, their true economy thru quality for when the cost is figured by the year—and not by the pair—a real saving is realized.

The nearest Nettleton dealer will be glad to give you a fitting of the "Marlboro". You will find him the most prominent in every locality.

Juliet design in the lovely Nacara effect.

Toiletware that meets the vogue for color

NO matter how carefully you have selected your hangings, your furniture, the finish of your walls and floors—your bedroom will not be complete in beauty until you arrange toiletware of Fiberloid upon the dresser.

Whatever type of room you develop, whatever color scheme you follow, you can choose a set of Fiberloid that will charmingly complement it, either through harmony or contrast.

You will find the daintiest boudoir colors—Azure, Coraline, Rose and Alba. These are in the Sea Pearl effect, a mingling of lovely pastel shades with the shimmer of the Orient pearl. In the Nacara effect, bolder tones predominate—Smoke Pearl, Golden and Rose.

Then there are the popular two-tone effects—Shell on Amber, Ivory on Amber, and Pearl on Amber, as well as plain Tortoise, Amber or Ivory. And these may be had decorated or in plain effect.

As to the designs—their Parisian elegance appeals irresistibly to the feminine taste, as do the tasteful gift boxes in which Fiberloid Toiletware is packed. Yet the prices are well within reach of the modest purse. Indeed you can choose three-piece assortments for as little as $5.00 or a luxurious Royal Package of nine pieces for as much as $75.00.

Ask your favorite dealer to show you Fiberloid Giftware or write us and we will tell you where you can be served. The Fiberloid Corporation, Indian Orchard, Mass. New York Display Rooms, 402 Fifth Ave.; Toronto Display Rooms, 145 Adelaide St. West.

Look for the Fiberloid salesgirl. Wherever you see her you will find Fiberloid Toiletware for sale.

ROYAL
FRUIT GELATIN

Flavor from Fresh Fruit

Its fragrance tells you it is flavored with the fresh fruit.

ROYAL STRAWBERRY: tells you by its unmistakable fragrance, that its flavor comes from the fresh berries.

ROYAL LEMON: so delicious in desserts, is equally wonderful in a

WINTER SALAD

Dissolve one package of Royal Lemon Fruit Gelatin in 1½ cups of boiling, clear meat stock. Add ¼ cup of vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon onion juice. Cool. When it thickens, add two cups cooked vegetables well drained. Mould in large or individual moulds. Serves six.

THE actual fruit flavor as you know it yourself.

A new and startling achievement in gelatins. It simply revolutionizes your ideas, your experience, in regard to them.

Open the package of Royal Strawberry Fruit Gelatin and see the rich heaviness of its clustering crystals. Scent the fragrance, even in the crystallized form. At once you know its flavor comes from the fresh fruit juice. Pour on the boiling water. Instantly the very scent of the sun-ripened fresh fruits themselves rises to delight you. No aromatics or synthetics are used.

YOU know by that glorious aroma that it is different from anything you've ever bought before. The delicate gelatin that carries these delicious fruit flavors has not altered their taste or fragrance in any way. For pure gelatin has no smallest trace of gluey flavor, no "sticky," "gummy" smell or taste at all.

Famous food authorities have shown the definite value of gelatin in the diet, as a source of protein, a principle of growth, an active aid to digestion. You can give Royal Fruit Gelatin to your children with complete confidence, knowing that it is the best and purest gelatin obtainable.

YANKEE PILOT AND YANKEE SHIP WIN WORLD SEAPLANE RACE, the Schneider cup contest, held off Baltimore. The pilot is Lieut. James H. Doolittle of the Army. He sped at a rate of more than 235 miles an hour on his fastest lap, the last lap of the long grind. He made nearly 235 miles an hour for the first 100 kilometers, and better than 234 miles for 200 kilometers. Pictured with him is his plane, the same ship in which Lieut. Cyrus Bettis of the Army recently won the Pulitzer cup race. In the Schneider race Capt. Hubert Broad of England finished second and Lieut. Giovanni de Briganti of Italy was third.

The Principle Behind the Product

Great reputations are built, not born.

It's the principle back of a product that forms the character of its reputation.

It's not so much the length of time you've been in business as it is the achievement made during a period of time, be it short or long.

In the brief quarter of a century of Mallinson Silk history a reputation little short of phenomenal has been built, and its chief bulwark today is the faith and appreciation of American women.

The making and selling of Mallinson Silks varies from the ordinary methods in general practice.

The theory that the memory of quality far outlasts that of price has inspired the Mallinson management to place paramount importance on the product followed by a price to fit the product.

There are altogether too many products made to fit a price.

Naturally, our silks cost a little more but they are worth, Oh! so much more.

The wearer of Mallinson's silk enjoys not only a wealth of luxury but actual economy as well. They represent the last word in originality, distinctive beauty and sterling quality.

Your definite insurance is the name MALLINSON on the selvage.

MALLINSON'S
Silks and Fabrics de Luxe

A bathroom luxury everyone can afford

IF YOU lived in one of those palatial apartments on Park Avenue in New York City, where you have to pay $2000 to $7500 a year rent, you still couldn't have a better toilet seat in your bathroom than the Church Sani-White Toilet Seat, which you can afford to have right now.

Adds new beauty

THE improvement in appearance made by a spotlessly clean, all-white toilet seat is certainly surprising. Its beauty and refinement are qualities every woman wants in her bathroom—a room she can be proud to have guests use.

The Church Toilet Seat is all-white and stays white permanently—a sanitary seat that washes as easily as porcelain. Its white surface is neither varnish, paint nor enamel, but a durable sheathing as handsome as ivory. It won't crack, splinter, chip, wear off or stain. You can install it yourself on your toilet in a few minutes and easily take it off and reinstall it if you move to another house or apartment. Obtainable at any plumbers.

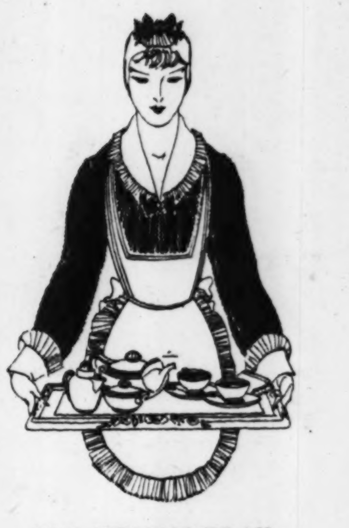
THE UTILITY TRAY

The Utility Tray with its roomy velvet pad compartments, provides a permanent container for the Town-House Set of silverplate.

"PRECIOUS!"



AS A SERVING TRAY

When the Utility Tray is not in use as a container for the silverware, it may be used as a serving tray for luncheons, teas, etc.

The Silverware Merchants of Chicago invite you to a Special Value Demonstration of 1847 ROGERS BROS. Silverplate

SEVERAL weeks ago, three well-known merchants were discussing silverware in a downtown club . . . Said one of these merchants:—

"It's a pity how often one sees ill-mated silverplate these days in homes that are otherwise correctly appointed. What's the reason—when the finest silverplate is so inexpensive?"

"That's just it," replied one of his companions. "Everybody doesn't know that it is inexpensive. There is an old notion still prevalent among some housewives that a modern silver service costs a small fortune."

"Well, if that's the case," returned the first merchant, "the International Silver Company ought to single out one of their typically remarkable values in 1847 Rogers Bros. silverplate and broadcast it in a Special Value Demonstration."

And that is precisely the Value Demonstration now taking place in the stores of this city's leading silverware merchants.

A Silverware Table Service for six persons
With this attractive double-purpose Serving Tray . . . .
$26.10

The Set: Twenty-six pieces of silverplate — 1847 Rogers Bros.

6 Knives
6 Forks
6 Tea Spoons
1 Butter Knife
1 Sugar Shell
6 Table Spoons

Price of silverplate $25.10 in the Ancestral, Anniversary or Ambassador pattern.

The Tray: We will include a beautiful serving tray, at but a dollar extra, with every purchase of The Town-House Set. Both for $26.10. Tray is finished in mahogany with marquetry inlay or polychromed in gold or silver finish. Lined with velvet. Sold only with the silverplate.

THIS Value Demonstration of Silverplate—featuring The 1847 Rogers Bros. Town-House Set—is directed to two classes of women.

First, the woman of unlimited wealth who wants the finest regardless of cost . . . And second, the woman of limited means but of unlimited good taste.

Each will find in The Town-House Set, the silverplate table service of her dreams.

* * *

The Town-House Set, embracing a service in table flatware for six people, is wrought of the finest silverplate money can buy—the closest approach in silverplate to solid sterling. Available in the famous Ancestral, Ambassador or Anniversary pattern of 1847 Rogers Bros.

And $25.10 is the price of this silverplate! But wait! This isn't all. During this demonstration event, there will be included at only a dollar extra, the handsome Utility Serving Tray pictured herein.

* * *

The Utility Tray is offered during this event to induce every woman lacking an adequate service in table flatware, to fill that need without further delay—more, it will serve as the nucleus for a lifetime family possession.

WELL, SANDY, I JUST FEEL LIKE A NICE LOLLY-POP- WE'LL WALK OVER TO JOE'S- HE'S GOT THE BIGGEST ONES-
OH SANDY - LOOKIE- THEY'VE BEEN FIXIN' THE STREET AGAIN-
GEE WHISKERS! THAT'S AN AWFUL DEEP HOLE- YOU CAN'T SEE THE BOTTOM OF IT AT ALL-
THEY SAY IF YOU DIG DOWN FAR ENOUGH YOU'LL COME TO CHINA- IT'S EIGHT HUNDRED OR EIGHT THOUSAND MILES - I'M NOT SURE WHICH- BUT IT'S A LONG, LONG WAY- THINK OF DIGGIN' A HOLE THAT DEEP, SANDY- DON'T SOUND REASONABLE-
ANYWAY WHO'D EVER WANT TO GET TO CHINA BAD ENOUGH TO DIG A HOLE EIGHT THOUSAND MILES DEEP?
HOP HI LAUNDRY
推? 禾 宇 中
AW, THAT CHINA STUFF'S A LOT OF CHOP SUEY, I BETCHA-
JUST IMAGINE A CHINAMAN COMIN' UP OUTA THAT HOLE NOW- RE-DICULOUS, SANDY- 'TISN'T POSSIBLE- GOTTA BE CRAZY TO BELIEVE STUFF LIKE THAT-

LOOK AT THE CUTE LITTLE KITTENS, MISS JESSIE.
SAY YOU- GIVE THEM HERE BEFORE YOU GET CHAWED UP!
THEMS MOUNTAIN-LION CUBS AND I'M GOING TO TAKE 'EM BACK BEFORE THEIR FOLKS START ON THE WARPATH.
ROOO AAAR!
ULP!
SHOOT HER TEXAS- SHOOT HER!
BANG
YOU IDIOT- LOOK WHERE YOURE SHOOTIN'- AIM LOWER!
AND SHOOT QUICK!
OW!
BANG!
UH!
WHERE'S THE LION AT, MR. DALTON'
SHE'S DOWN AT TH' BOTTOM OF THAT GULCH!
GOODNESS, WHAT ARE YOU RUNNING FOR- THAT LION WILL NEVER BE ABLE TO GET OUT. IT'LL PROBABLY STARVE TO DEATH DOWN THERE.
NOT IF I CATCH THIS LAD SHE WONT STARVE!

GASOLINE ALLEY
MR. & MRS. JACK FROST
-King
NO, SKEEZIX, THINGS ARE NOT DEAD, THEY'RE ONLY SLEEPING AND THEY'RE ALMOST READY TO WAKE UP.
SEE, HERE COME THE WARM SPRING RAINS WHICH WILL SINK DOWN TO THE ROOTS OF THE TREES AND PLANTS AND FLOWERS. THEN WHEN THE SUN COMES AROUND THEY'LL BEGIN TO OPEN THEIR EYES!
NOW THE BUDS ON THE TREES BURST INTO A MILLION TINY LEAVES AND THE GREEN THINGS START TO PUSH THEIR WAY UP THROUGH THE SOFT EARTH BUG!
ISN'T THIS GLORIOUS, SKEEZIX, TO BE ABLE TO LIE OUT HERE IN THE EARLY SUMMER AND FORGET THE COLD WINTER AND THE RAW WINDS OF SPRING!
LOOK, UNCA WALT! SKEEX GOTTA LOTTA APPLES.
YES SIR! AND WE'RE GOING TO HAVE SWEET CORN FOR SUPPER!
NOW IT'S AUTUMN, THE TIME WHEN SUMMER RAINBOWS FALL INTO THE TREES AND TINT THEIR LEAVES A THOUSAND COLORS.
JACK FROST HAS DONE HIS WORK THE LEAVES HAVE FALLEN. YET IT'S ALL BEAUTIFUL, ISN'T IT
UNCA WALT MAKE SKEEX ANUDDA JACK 'LANTERN?
AND NOW WINTER COMES ALONG AND LOWERS HIS COVERLET OF SNOW OVER ALL LEAFY THINGS AND PUTS THEM TO SLEEP AGAIN. AND ANOTHER YEAR IS DONE.
SKEEX ROLL A SNOW MAN JES' LIKE UNCA WALT
